Three guys got the can hung onto them and the Marlboro Hockey Club had its franchise forfeited at last night's O.H.A. meeting. That's the outcome of an expose of the club's financial doings coming from a court trial when a fellow took a dare and "told all". The O.H.A. did what it could in the matter but this powerful Association hasn't enough carpet-sweepers to clean up the pro-amateur hockey situation in Ontario. Somehow, we imagine star pucksters will continue to sort of drift toward certain centres where the grass grows greener—at least, as long as the A.A.U. of C. sticks to its screwy rigid ruling of keeping the lily-white amateurs away from all wicked professionals.

Sports are in the spotlight for sure this week. Besides all the playoffs and ordinary games going on here, there and everywhere at this time of year, three events of an international nature will attract much attention the next few days. The big swim derby is on in Toronto today with over two hundred aquatic stars from all over, trying to painfully splash their way toward a fortune. Friday sees the sculling race for the pro title between Pearce and Pheips, also in Toronto. And then across the line Saturday, the big Harmsworth Trophy speed boat classic is on between Scott-Paine of England and Gar Wood of Detroit.

BRITISH CHAMP PLANS TO RETIRE AFTER TOURNEY

Far Too Much is Expected of Champions She Declares.

STIFF OPPOSITION.

Scores Triumph in First Round U. S. Women's Championship.

HIGHLAND PARK, Ill. Aug. 30. (CP).—Determined to become the first foreigner to win the United States women's golf title in 20 years and then retire from championship golf, Enid Wilson of England to-day faced 15 of America's golfing stars in the second round of match play for the crown.

"After this is over," Miss Wilson said after scoring an easy triumph over Mrs. H. C. Lake yesterday, "I'll be glad to be out of competitive golf where too much is expected of champions...I want to play in friendly matches where I can just rag around and enjoy myself."

A glance at the list of survivors of yesterday's first 18-hole round showed that the English champion had her work cut out, however. Helen Hicks, Maureen Orcutt, and Virginia Van Wie, defending champion, were still in the struggle that witnessed the upset yesterday of Ada Mackenzie, Canadian champion, by Peggy Wattles of Buffalo.

SAINTS BREAK LOSING STREAK

Take 8-5 Victory From Clerks in Campbellford Town Softball Play-offs.

SERIES EXTENDED.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 30. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—Snatching an 8-5 victory from the Clerks in the Campbellford Town Softball League play-offs last evening, the Saints extended the series and forced the necessity for two more games.

A large crowd of fans witnessed what proved to be one of the tightest games of ball played this season. Taking the lead in the second frame by counting one run, the Clerks were unable to hold it, when the Saints made a break in the third, counting four. This lead they held through the rest of the game. Stuart for the Saints made the only homer.

Reynolds for the Clerks however, played a good game of ball and was responsible for two runs, both of which were made on stolen bases.

The teams:
Saints—Owens, c; Hopping, ss; Mayers, 1b; Whitton, cf; Stuart, 3b; DeCarroll, 2b; McComb, p; Little, lf; L. Bush rf.

Clerks—Hendy, cf; MacArthur, c; Campney, ss; E. Bush, 2b; Holmes, p; Reynolds, rf; Atkinson, lf; Gillessie, 1b; Upton, 3b.

Umpires—Plate, G. H. Free; bases, C. Massie, H. Tinney.

Score by innings:
Saints .....004 110 02x—8
Clerks .....010 021 01—5

ALEX MORRISON says:

It seems to be a habit with a great many players to bend their knees forward in an attempt to loosen up their legs.

The action they produce thereby is most ijurious to their swings because this very action must be avoided if possible.

The knees must bend, of course, but only in such a way as to help the side to side motion of the hips.

The proper knee action as well as the much desired breaking up of tension in the legs can be had by simply rolling first one foot then the other toward the inside during the swing.

In the starting position just roll the right foot toward the inside and let most of the weight drop onto the left leg.

Next: Hands at top of swing.

"Gossip and Such"

....SO FAR HE'S been just a young fellow trying to make good, but its high time the baseball world forgot for the moment its adulation of Chuck Klein, Jimmy Foxx, Lou Gehrig and other super sluggers of the major leagues and paid tribute to Walter Anton Berger.

Berger of the Braves—up to now regarded as just another good ball player—may prove to be the real "man of destiny" in the National League pennant race in this year of the Blue Eagle, 1933.

Berger of the Braves is hitting .327 at this writing. That's no average to make Klein or Foxx or Al Simmons spend sleepless nights, but Wally Berger has been getting his hits when the Braves need them. That's one of the big reasons why the Boston Nationals are in a spot where they threaten to duplicate their 1914 feat—and may capture the flag.

Some two dozen of Wally's wallops have been homers—and his manager, Bill McKechnie, says Berger is still learning how to hit!

BERGER is not only setting the pace at the plate for his teammates but he is also a fine fielder. McKechnie claims Wally is the best centre gardener in the National League. Anyway, Wally this season has been one of the fastest fielders in the senior circuit.

One of Berger's best assets is that he is consistent. Until this year he was a good, dependable hitter, always certain to turn in a .300 or slightly better average for a campaign. Now that he is turning into a slugger as well as a fine short hitter, Berger is easily one of the best men with the stick in the National.

In recent games, the hitting of Berger won the decisions for the Braves against the Pittsburgh and St. Louis clubs—two of the erstwhile National League pennant contenders!

BERGER HAS been a big leaguer and a Brave for four seasons.

Born in Chicago in the autumn of 1905, Wally decided to become a professional ball player while living on the Pacific coast. He applied for a post with the San Francisco Seals but did not last long enough to get his name in the record books.

The following season the determined youth bobbed up again, this time with Pocatello, Idaho, in the Utah-Idaho League. He had decided to begin at the bottom and work up.

The Seals were sick when they saw the kid they had kicked away grind out a .385 average for the Pocatello team and they were sicker when the Los Angeles club, their Coast League rivals, grabbed Wally for $700.

WALLY CONTINUED to slough the horsehide for the Angels, slapping out an average of .365 in the two weeks he was with the club at the end of the 1927 season.

To prove that was no fluke, he continued the good work in 1928 and 1929. The Braves bought him for cash and players in the winter of the latter year. The Chicago Cubs, which club owns the Angels, could have had Berger, but the Baby Bears couldn't see him.

Now the Seals can move over. All the Cubs need do is watch Berger at work any afternoon and the Chicago Cubs' ownership must immediately become sicker over its lost opportunity than the San Francsco team ever was.

BALL PRACTICE.

The Cognawaga ball team will practise to-morrow evening at six o'clock at Exhibition Park in preparation for their next game in the second round of the O.B.A.A. playdowns. Every player is requested to be on hand.

ORANGE SOFTBALL TEAM SEEKS TWO GAMES HERE

One of the crack intermediate softball teams of Toronto, the Prince of Orange squad, which is in the finals of the Queen City playdowns, is seeking games with Peterborough teams. The Prince of Orange team ask for a double-header here on Saturday evening, starting at 5 o'clock. Harrison's squad is willing to take the Queen City aggregation on for one game, and probably Omemee or Rye's will accept the second tussle. The task goes to the first bidder.

Don't be a Sucker.

THE MILK BOTTLE STACK

By HERSCHEL DEUTSCH

(Central Press Canadian Writer)

(The operator of a crooked carnival game is called a "grifter." Although the sucker—the paying customer—doesn't know it, practically every game of skill and chance at the average traveling carnival or resort can be fixed by the operator so that the player can't win.

This is not usually true, however, of legitimate amusement parks, which have large investments in permanent equipment and are interested in keeping the good will of their patrons. Such places do not permit grifters. But beware the fly-by-night joint!)

"KNOCK 'EM off the shelf, boys! Three balls for a dime. Knock 'em off and win a prize!"

The teetering stack of imitation, painted milk bottles certainly seems easy to dispose of with three well-placed balls. The sucker, who used to be a pitching star in his youth, feels that the problem won't present any difficulties for him. He confidently buys the balls.

The three on top went off readily enough, but the other half of the stack merely topped over, without falling off, as required by the rules. Well, let's try again. He tries several more times, but with no better success.

The shill does it easily enough, however. His balls, aparently no better placed than those thrown by the sucker, demolish the stack and send it flying off the shelf.

Because the stack is slightly differently arranged when he does it. Although the bottles are all painted alike, they are very different under their uniform exteriors. Three of them—the ones on top when the sucker pitches—are made of light wood or aluminum. The other three are of heavy cast iron. When the shill plays, the heavy ones are on top, that's all.

BOOTLEGGERS BUYING GOLD

American Bootleg Firms Buy Up Gold and Ship it to Canada.

MAKE BIG PROFITS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30—(C.P.)—A Philadelphia dispatch to the New York Times says a complaint that bootleggers, paying a premium price for refined gold, had established what amounted to a free gold market in the United States and were threatening ruin to the refining industry, was sent to the committee for the nation Monday by Ross M. Barrett of Philadelphia, head of the crucible service.

A telegram summarizing the points of the protest was reported sent to President Roosevelt.

One bootlegging syndicate alone, the dispatch quoted Mr. Barrett as associating with handling about $1,000,000 worth of gold a month, purchased at prices ranging as high as $3 an ounce more than that paid at the United States mint.

It was then a simple matter for the bootlegger, he said, to smuggle his product to Ottawa and collect nearly $30 an ounce, about $9 more than the United States' prices.

"The result is," he wrote to the committee for the nation, a group of business and financial leaders, "that the business people in our position is decreasing week by week, while into the hands of the bootlegger is falling this increased supply of gold which their premium prices are bringing out."

CONKLIN SHOWS AT BELLEVILLE

First Time Belleville Has Included Carnival Show in Attractions.

COMING HERE.

Conklin's Carnival Show, the feature of the Midway at the Peterborough Exhibition last year, is making a big hit with the crowd at the Belleville Fair this week, Art Blade told The Examiner this morning.

"This is the first time Belleville included a carnival show in their attractions," Mr. Blade said, "and the directors are highly pleased with the Conklin boys. The grounds are really not large enough for the entire show. They are coming to Peterborough again this year, and the crowds are going to find real improvements. They have more rides and other attractions, and they put on a free diving stunt that is a big thriller. It will be seen in Peterborough. I was told that the Conklin Bros. let several contracts to D. Hardie of Peterborough for a new top for the merry-go-round and other improvements, and this expenditure will run to about $1,000.

"Everybody in Peterborough is boosting our own Exhibition, and I just wanted to report that the Conklin Midway will really be bigger and better than ever."

Ten Dollar Fine For No Driver's License

CAMPBELLFORD, August 30 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Charged in Campbellford Police Court yesterday with operating a car in the municipality without a driver's license, Stanley Russell of Campbellford was fined ten dollars and costs. The charge was laid by Constable George Hardy, the offence being committed last Saturday evening. A drive on all motorists operating cars in the municipality without licenses is being made by Constable Hardy, who informed The Examiner that several complaints regarding this violation of the Traffic Act have been received by the Police Department. Magistrate J. M. Bygott presided over the court.

Oratorical Contest.

The annual oratorical contest for the Campbellford Public School has been set for October 27 and will be held in the Campbellford High School Auditorium by permission of the Board of Education. This annual event is arranged for and supervised by the Trustees and Ratepayers 'Association of Northumberland County.

46 Members Joined Barbers' Association

The local Barbers' and Hairdressers' Association held a meeting last night in the City Council Chambers.

W. Welch informed meeting that there are now forty-six members in Peterborough, an encouraging increase. Jack Smith, in an address, told how the older members of the barbers' union enjoyed good business and social times a few years ago by staying together, but that since the depression had brought along a flock of price-cutters neither the well established barbers nor the price-cutters could make more than a bare living. "Compare your hours and wages with the man who cleans the street", said Mr. Smith, "the street cleaner has better hours and bigger wages."

"Years ago we used to work till midnight every night. Closing at 7 p.m. was considered an impossible suggestion and was bitterly opposed, but with patience and by banding together we obtained decent hours and prices for ourselves and also for you younger people who are coming after us."

It is going to be to the advantage of every barber and hairdresser to join the association. It will mean better business and encourage a more friendly spirit between them than is apparent just now.

William Welch resigned as president in favor of Don Moore.

Mr. Moore extends a cordial invitation to all barbers and hairdressers to attend the next meeting, asking them to unite for better times.

Henri Cochet Will Turn Professional

PARIS, Aug. 30 (A.P.)—Henri Cochet, bulwark of France's Davis Cup defence for five years, finally has decided to turn professional.

The tennis star, once a bell-boy in his native town of Lyons and later the undisputed kingpin of the game for the three-year interval covering 1928 through 1930, is expected to announce his decision officially next week.

His first professional engagement it was learned, will come in the Franco-American matches starting Sept. 22 when he will have a chance to renew his old rivalry with Big Bill Tilden.

Barring a last-minute hitch, Cochet and Martin Plaa will represent France in these matches against Tilden and Bruce Barnes, former Texas amateur.

CHIEFS WANT STRICTER CONTROL PROJECTION ROOMS IN THEATRES

Two Operators Should Be on Hand All the Time Speaker Declares.

COMMITTEES NAMED

The Dominion Association of Fire Chiefs in convention here, yesterday afternoon gave unanimous endorsation to the report of the National Research Council containing recommendations regarding stricter control of projection rooms in motion picture theatres, in the interests of public safety.

On motion of A. B. Handley, Chief of Ingersoll, seconded by H. J. Smith, Chief of Mount Denis, a resolution was adopted by the convention endorsing the report of the Research Council, and urging that it be compulsory to provide an operator for each motion picture machine, instead of allowing one operator to have charge of more than one machine, as was the case at present.

An interesting paper on "Fire Hazards of Motion Picture Films," was presented by W. P. Cobert, 2nd International Vice-President Motion Picture Operators' Association of America, which preceded discussion of the report of the National Research Council outlined by Mr. Cobert.

The National Research Council, Mr. Cobert explained, was a group working under the jurisdiction of the Federal Government, appointed to look into the technical fire hazards of industry.

He contended that in Ontario and other parts of the Dominion the law governing the matter of motion picture operators was not being rigidly enforced. Condition in Quebec in this regard he said "are deplorable."

It would be advantageous to all Canada the speaker declared, if standard regulations for the controlling of motion picture projection rooms and operators, could be adopted. The recommendations of the Research Council, he stated, called for qualified projectionist and a tightening up of the regulations, in the interests of public safety.

Arthur Milligan of the Toronto Projectionists' Association, also addressed the convention. He explained the chemical composition of motion picture films, and stressed their inflammability and danger. It had been proven by tests, he said, that unless a film that had caught fire was caught in the early stages it was impossible to check the spread of the blaze of the film.

If for that reason alone, he urged the necessity of having two operators in any projection room, where more than one machine was in use. The report of the Research Council, he stated, was adopted by the Ontario Federation of Firefighters at their recent convention at Ottawa.

Chief Armstrong Reports

In his capacity of secretary, Chief James Armstrong of Kingston, presented a comprehensive report which reviewed the activities of the Association for the past year. He also presented the financial statement, the Association being at present without a treasurer, owing to the death of Chief R. McLeod of Port Arthur, who was the holder of that office.

"Hazards Caused by Sewer Gas," was the title of an interesting and timely paper presented by Chief Sam Blackler of Ottawa. Interest created by the topic was reflected in the discussion that ensued after the Chief had concluded his paper.

The main discussion on the paper centered around the regulations or lack of regulations, concerning the operation of service stations and gasoline tank trucks.

Chief R. Harrington of the McColl Frontenac Company of Montreal, effectively stemmed the growing tide of criticism regarding regulations now in general effect by most of the oil companies, for the use of their drivers and service station attendants. He explained that under no circumstances did his company allow a tank attendant to leave his vehicle while it was pumping into the gas station storage tanks. The regulations of his company, in this respect, were definite, he said, and infringement of the rules meant instant dismissal for any employee.

The third paper of the afternoon, which proved to be of great value to the firefighters, was that given by Chief W. L. Andrews. It was entitled "The Use of 1½-inch Hose."

Committees were named by Secretary Armstrong, as follows:

RELIGIOUS LAWS BEEN RELAXED

recently. New organizations were set up, and anyone can be a member, regardless of his social antecedents, while formerly only orthodox Communists were admitted.

Great Religious Freedom.

There is also far more freedom in religious matters. The Soviets feel that the political power of the former state church has been definitely broken. There is a noticeable pickup in attendance at the churches, I was informed. The rule forbidding religious instruction to be given to minors is slightly relaxed. The very fact that Henri Barbusse, the famous French writer who wrote two books on Jesus Christ, which were translated into Russian, is at present the honored guest of the Soviets while he was bitterly criticized for his "sentimentalizing" on the subject of the Nazarene a year or so ago, shows the beginning of a change of heart on the part of the authorities here.

The new edition of Barbusse's book, published on the occasion of his visit, was sold out in three days, 30,000 copies. Russia, in fact, is the writer's paradise. No man who has anything to say need go without an audience here. At the moment when American and English literati are tearing their hair and many are wondering what the future will bring, this country's literary output is so tremendous that no matter how many new paper mills are put in operation—one per month in the last year—the shortage of paper is as acute as ever. People are reading. No other country is reading as much as Russia. An excellent sign!

Wanted Book Written.

"Do sit down," they said to me upon arrival in Moscow, "and write us a book about what you saw and heard in Germany and Spain and Palestine since you were here last." And they showed me a room with a stupendous desk and a couch and a fine library and they said: "This is your place! Do you want to dictate or do you write yourself?" Shall we send a secretary?"

Some temptation!

"How about this new night-life business?" I asked one official here in Moscow. "I thought you people had always considered it as one of the worst parasitic aspects of capitalism? How is it that you are allowing it now to grow up in your own cities?"

He gave me a very plausible and convincing answer: "This is perhaps the only country in the world where all industries work three shifts a day," he said. "There must be an opportunity for the workers of all three shifts to have an hour or so of diversion each day. Moreover, night life as it is known in Paris and London and other large cities which we condemn is different. We are not opposed to gayety and frivolity as such, but against the parasitic aspect of it, against its exploitational character...."

New Era in Jazz Music.

But never mind his reasons. The playing of jazz bands and the opening of midnight theatres, the frequent dances in Moscow and elsewhere, all this shows that the situation is easier and improving. Incidentally a German symphony orchestra conductor told me some months ago that the way the Russians were playing jazz opens up an entire new field of musical experimentation. Under the leadership of the group of young composers, the German master believed that the Russians were about to inaugurate a new era in music. They have done it in the past, why shouldn't they do so again? Especially now, when musical education—and all creative art, in fact—has been opened up to millions and millions of people. Everything depends on economic circumstances. Art begins to unfold immediately when there is a greater measure of well-being.

And well-being — not for a mere handful, but for all—is unquestionably on the way here. People who have come so far, will go further. If the harvest is good this year, there will be no more holding back of the New Russia, Walter Duranty, the dean of the journalistic corps in Moscow, who has just made a trip through last year's bad regions, said to me last night: "This year Russia is turning the corner. There will be no more looking back." Duranty has never sinned on the side of optimism in the past, it may be recalled.

One thing I noticed, too, was a change in the tone in which people speak of the menace of a foreign war. There was no longer that sorrowful anxiety as in the past when the subject was mentioned. The new attitude was by no means defiant, on the other hand. People were simply convinced that their government was strong enough to hold out against the ceaseless pressure from abroad. Again an easier feeling and with it all, of course, the most amazing enthusiasm which shows not the slightest sign of flagging and a hope that step by step they are getting nearer the goal.

CENTRAL BANK NOT NECESSARY

Royal Banking Commission Holds Short Session in Halifax.

AMEND BANKS' POWERS.

(By Ray Brown, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

HALIFAX, Aug. 29.—Half-a-day sufficed for the Royal Commission on Banking to hear Nova Scotia representations. It was the shortest sitting [illegible] body has held thus far. Into the two hours to-day, however, were compressed representations from the Halifax Board of Trade, the Banks of Nova Scotia, and various organizations engaged in industry. Lord MacMillan, chairman of the Commission, said that the meeting would prove valuable to his four colleagues and himself.

Asserting that "the chartered banks are quite able to take care of the financial requirements of Canada, the Halifax Board of Trade advanced a number of arguments against the proposal to establish a central bank. It stands to reason that the expense connected with its establishment and operation will be heavy, and in the opinion of the control of this board will outweigh the benefits to be derived, the brief asserted.

Amend Powers.

Possibly amendments should be made to the powers now possessed by the banks, but in the opinion of the board, the Dominion government by keeping in touch with the Canadian Bankers' Association and the banks could deal with any emergency which might arise.

"Many of the Atlantic coast fishermen are as completely down and out as the farmers of the prairie provinces," A. H. Whitman speaking on behalf of the dry fish industry, said to the commission.

Lumber interests were represented by George McKean, and a review of business in Nova Scotia was submitted by C. E. Mackenzie, supervisor of the Royal Bank, on behalf of the banks of the province. Andrew Mathews, of the Canadian Export and Trading Company, of Halifax, also made a submission.

The Commission will sit in Charlottetown on Thursday.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO—Grain ignored generally bullish developments yesterday and liquidation forced all cereals sharply lower in price.

Led by wheat, with a decline of 5c a bushel, the maximum allowed in one day's trading, the grain market displayed a weak and uncertain tone. Announcement that Secretary of Agriculture Wallace had tentatively ordered a 15 per cent reduction in the United States 1934 wheat acreage imparted some strength to wheat at the outset, but persistent liquidation of September contracts finally led to a sharp break near the close.

Wheat closed weak and 3¾c to 3⅞c below Monday's finish. Corn also was weak, and 2¼c to 2⅝c down; oats, 1c to 1⅜c off; rye 3c to 3⅜c lower, and provisions at declines ranging from 3c to 35c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Aug. 30.—With the exception of butter all lines held unchanged on the Montreal Dairy and Produce Market yesterday. No. 1 grade butter eased a quarter of a cent a pound at 17¾c to 18c per pound. Some Western butter was reported here on consignment. Receipts yesterday totalled 364 boxes.

The egg market held firm, graded shipments in cartons or less of Ontarios being quoted at 22½c to 23c a dozen for extras, 18c for firsts and 14½c to 15c for seconds. Westerns for shipment are as low as 21c for extras, 17c for firsts and 14c for seconds. Arrivals amounted to 1,321 cases.

Cheese Prices Firm.

Ontario and Quebec cheese held steady at 9¼c to 9¾c a pound for the former line, and 9 1-8 c to 9¾c for the latter. Receipts were 6,363 boxes.

Potatoes remained at 80c for new Quebecs in 80-pound bags.

At the weekly auction to be held to-day about 1,200 boxes of cheese and between 700 and 800 boxes of cheese and between 700 and 800 boxes of butter will be offered.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, August 30. — In sympathy with a 5-cent nose dive at Chicago, wheat futures prices slipped off on the Grain Exchange yesterday to stand 1¼c to 1⅝c lower at the close, with the options resting on their "pegged" values.

The market traded at fractionally lower levels most of the morning but coincident with the downturn at Chicago scattered selling entered the Winnipeg pit and bore prices downward. May delivery being the only option to stay above its minimum.

October delivery closed at 70½c, December at 71⅝c, and May at 76⅝c. Trading was very dull until the last half-hour, when the action quickened a little. Volume was not large.

Liverpool Wheat.

Liverpool wheat closed firmer than expected, unchanged to ⅛d lower, but had no effect on prices here. Export business was smaller than for some time, with sales estimated at not in excess of 200,000 bushels.

Reports from Russia point out the surplus in that country will probably not be more than 25,000,000 bushels, while the need of rain is still urgently felt in the Argentine. Western Canada weather was warmer, but movement of new wheat from farms was quite small, and consequently hedging pressure was light.

Assaults Brother Gets Three Months

LINDSAY, Aug. 30. —(Examiner Correspondence.)—Robert Black, of Eldon township, who refused to enter the House of Refuge or to work on a farm unless given a suitable remuneration, was sentenced to three months in the county jail to-day by Police Magistrate Jordan. Black assaulted his brother recently while the latter was on a visit to his old home in Eldon, and his arrest followed.

Laverne Ayers, son of George Ayers, of West Ops, fell from a carrier track close to the roof of his father's barn on Monday. The young lad was found in an unconscious condition with a fracture of the skull and severe body injuries.

The death took place at Boston a few days ago of Robert Elliott, a former well known newspaper man of this district. The deceased was on the staff of the old Port Hope Times for some years, and was also editor of the Millbrook Mirror. He also worked for a time on the old Peterborough Morning Times and was editor of the Lindsay Post in 1907-8. Prior to leaving this district in 1908 he was provincial organizer for the Independent Order of Foresters.

NELSON SETS MARATHON SWIM RECORD

Bill Goll Second, Pritchards Finish Third and Fifth

Clancy Of Cincinnati Takes Fourth Money—Eli Radakovitch $100 Sixth Prize—Winner Betters Blagden's 1932 Mark By 19 Minutes.

MAJORITY OF FAVORITES, BLAGDEN, YOUNG, GAMBI, ROSS, SPONDOR VICTIMS OF CRAMP.

By Jack Hambleton, C. P. Staff Writer

TORONTO, Aug. 31.—(CP)—A slightly blase young fellow from Fort Dodge, Iowa, today looked for new worlds to conquer. He is husky Marvin Nelson, one-time "Fort Dodge Kid," who yesterday broke all records for the 15-mile Canadian National Exhibition professional marathon and won the first prize of $5,000.

He finished the course in 7 hours and 37 seconds, 19 minutes faster than George Blagden's 1932 mark and among the new worlds which Marvin seeks to conquer, or at least a part of them — is the English channel. Marvin announced he wouldn't be satisfied with just swimming the channel. Instead he wants to swim it both ways, non-stop. "I've been thinking about it for a couple of years," he said. "I think next year I'll go over to England and take a stab at it."

Nelson's victory yesterday marked the first time any one man has ever won the local swim twice. He won it previously in 1930.

The outstanding favorites fell by the wayside before the half-way mark was reached, and Nelson simply coasted into the lead and was never headed. George Young, Toronto, was taken out with sore eyes; George Blagden, Memphis, Tenn., winner last year, was violently ill; Gianni Gambi, the "Italian Windmill," flailed his arms and suddenly sank, nearly drowning before he could be pulled out. Then Clarence Ross, Chicago Flyer, led the parade for a time but folded up. So did Jackie May of Honolulu. He swam the first three miles like a 100-yard man and then couldn't stand it any further. Isadore Spondor, the Port Colborne "Butcher Boy" was doing well, hanging comfortably behind the leaders, when he, too, succumbed to cramps, in the 13th mile.

Bill Goll of New York, whose rendition o f"My Wild Irish Rose" gave him his title of "Singing Bill" away back in 1927, placed second again this year to take down the $1,500 prize for that position. Frank Pritchard and Stanley Pritchard of Buffalo placed third and fifth respectively to take down $900 between them. Harry Glancy of Cincinnati was fouth, and Eli Radakovitch, Duquesne, Pa., won the $100 sixth prize.

Around the swim camps they are still talking to-day about the

Dane Experts Check Lindbergh's Reports

COPENHAGEN, August 31 (C.P.)—A commission of Danish experts will examine Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's report on his experimental flights over Greenland Premier Stuaning said to-day, and on its decision will depend the Danish Government's action regarding concessions for flights across Greenland.

The aviation firm which Colonel Lindbergh represents applied for rights to maintain an air route via the Danish possession some years ago the Premier said.

"The application was rejected because we did not find a reasonable foundation for the belief in air traffic with landings under such difficult conditions as in Greenland," he went on.

INQUEST JURY NAMES PRIEST IN BOY'S DEATH

Rev. P. J. Bart Under Influence of Liquor Half Dozen Witnesses Swear.

REFUSES TO TESTIFY.

Companion Admits He Did Not Know of Accident Till Next Morning.

TORONTO, August 31. — Rev. Father P. J. Bart of St. Michael's College, Toronto, was under the influence of liquor when the car he was driving struck and killed 15-year-old Frederick Rose on Yonge Street near Thornhill on August 21, a jury declared in its verdict at the inquest held in Willowdale last night.

Father Bart, who faces a manslaughter charge, was in an intoxicated condition, half a dozen witnesses, including a doctor who examined him, swore in the witness stand. The accused man was invited to give evidence if he desired, but on the advice of counsel he refused.

Evidence which caused the jury and officials to sit up was given by Father W. J. Storey, owner of the car, and Father Bart's companion. This witness admitted that two bottles of spirits were purchased on the day of the fatality—some hours before, in fact—and that he and Father Bart each had three drinks between Kitchener and the point of the accident.

The bridge of his nose disfigured by a scar, a souvenir of the crash which left his automobile capsized on the road, Father Storey swore that as far as the accident was concerned and the interviews he was said to have had with police officers and others, he had absolutely no recollection of them.

SOVIETS FORCE WORK IN WOODS

Order Year's Second Mass Mobilization of Peasants—Women Run Village.

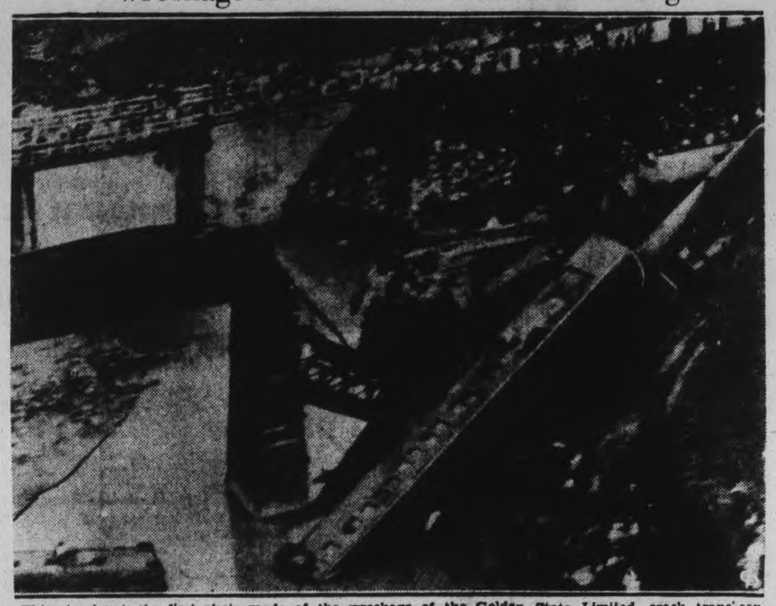
ALL REFUSING, TRAITORS.

ARCHANGEL, Soviet Russia, Aug. 31. (CP)—A mass mobilization of peasants for work in northern forests has been ordered for the second time this year by the Communist party because of the "catastrophic condition" of the timber transport.

The peasants will work from Sept. 1 to Sept. 25 to get the timber out, while their womenfolk carry on the work in the villages. Those who refuse will likely be treate like traitors. Workers will be fed by the state.

A decree read: "The Party Committee appeals to the collective members, the workers and individual peasants to fight against desertions on the labor front, against the Kulaks (independent farmers) disorganizing the transport, against idle workers, against losses, and to do their best to secure raw materials for the factories. . ."

Wreckage of Crack Train After Fatal Plunge



This air view is the first photo made of the wreckage of the Golden State Limited, crack trans-continental flyer, near Tucumcari, N.M., in which eight persons were killed and nearly fifty others were injured. The locomotive and five coaches of the speeding train crashed through a trestle, weakened by floods, and plunged into a creek bed. An inquiry into the wreck has been instituted.

HOSIERY STRIKE ENDS IN BATTLE, TWO MEN SLAIN

Eighteen Are Injured as 200 Police Tangle With 2,800 in Mob.

ALL MILLS TIED UP.

Crowd Claims Shots Fired From Upset Truck Used by Strike Breakers.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31 (AP)—Two men were shot and killed and at least 18 persons were injured today as 200 police battled many times their number of strikers and sympathizers outside the Cambral Hosiery Mills, in northeastern Philadelphia.

The dead men were Clem H. Norwood and Frank Milnor, strike pickets. The shooting accurred after the overturning of a truck which was bringing non-strikers to work.

Police estimated the crowd to number 2,800, while other sources placed the total much higher.

Police did not know who did the shooting. An officer riding in the cab of the truck said he fired two shots into the ground and two into the air, but that the death-dealing bullets were fired later. Witnesses said the later shots came from the truck after it rolled over.

All Mills Closed

Virtually every other hosiery mill in Philadelphia has been closed by the walkout, and strikers from all parts of the city congregated at the Cambral plant. Fifty police were already on guard because of previous disorders in the eight-week strike, but they were overwhelmed when the trouble started.

Eight automobiles carrying workers had broken through the picket lines, although every window was broken by missiles, when the truck appeared. In it were 14 employees.

The crowd rushed the truck and bowled it over, trapping the workers inside. Then the pickets began battering at the vehicle and the shots rang forth.

Police charged the crowd and took the workers inside of the plant, later removing them to a police station for questioning.

Motorboat Supplied To Game Inspector

Fred Marshall, Fish and Game Inspector, has been supplied with a motor boat powered by a 7 h.p. Johnson motor which he will use in the waters of the county for patrol purposes. Mr. Marshall is also wearing a new khaki uniform. This week's Havelock Standard, published by T. P. Lancaster, M.P., remarks that the boat and uniform have been advocated by conservationists for some years as two things necessary for a game warden in the performance of his duties.

Indian Wiles Fail

WATKIN'S GLEN, N. Y., Aug. 31.—(AP)—A Mohawk Indian's knowledge of wild animal nature met today with the same failure the white man has had in attempting to rescue a seven point buck deer which has been trapped for six days on a rocky ledge in the gorge of Watkin's Glen State Park.

Lowered cautiously by a rope from the top of the 200-foot precipice to the ledge 50 feet below, Chief So-Lat-Dowance, in full tribal dress, failed to come within lassoing distance of the frightened animal whose alarm was intensified by a news reel photographer who followed the Indian down the cliff.

Park officials called a temporary halt and ordered both men off the ledge.

SCHOOLBOY DIES IN TRUCK SMASH SCORE INJURED

One of Lads is Rushed to Guelph Hospital Critically Injured.

ON WAY FROM C.N.E.

Tragedy Occurs Near Rockwood as Machine Hits Car on Curve.

GUELPH, Ont., Aug. 31—(C.P.)—Tragedy to-day overtook a truckload of 20 schoolboys on their way home from a joyous visit to the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto. When their truck was turned over in a collision with an automobile, Bernald Pridham, 15, of Harriston, Ont., was killed, one of his companions was critically injured and several others received minor injuries.

Thomas Richardson was rushed to hospital here in serious condition after the smash-up. Most of the score of youths were cut and bruised when the truck upset after running into a car driven by Thomas Hewitson of Norval, Ont. The accident occurred near Rockwood, south of here.

Pridham died in hospital early this morning, six hours after the crash.

The truck, driven by W. W. Pritchard of Harriston, and loaded with boys from the same town, was making a turn on the highway

BORDEN REGRETS COURSE TAKEN BY JAPANESE

Canada's War Time Prime Minister Addresses Bar Association.

SUPPORTS THE LEAGUE.

Japan May See Day When She Regrets Course She Took.

OTTAWA, Aug. 31. — (C.P.)—Breaking a long silence, Sir Robert Borden, war-time Prime Minister of Canada, voiced his regret to-day at the course followed by Japan in the Sino-Japanese controversy on Manchuria.

The address was delivered before the Canadian Bar Association convention in leading the discussion on International law. Absence of membership in the League of Nations of Russia and United States —two great powers on the Pacific and each of them a neighbor to Japan and China—must be taken into account in determining whether the League could have acted more promptly and more effectively, stated Sir Robert. To the league he gave his staunch support.

Rowell Read Address.

And, he asked, who shall declare that these incidents in the final outcome might not be fraught with graver concern to Japan herself

Term Ends Abruptly On Ticket of Leave By Guthrie's Order

Release Comes After Serving Over 3 Years Of 5-Year Sentence In Attempted Bank Hold-Up, And Follows Two Exhaustive Inquiries Into Charges He Was "Framed" By Toronto Police.

PROBES UNEQUALLED IN QUEEN CITY FORCE; PRESS BARRED TILL DORLAND STEPS ON TRAIN

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 31.—(CP)—Albert Dorland, for over three years a prisoner in Portsmouth penitentiary, stepped out of the prison late this afternoon a free man. He was on ticket of leave by order of Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Federal Minister of Justice.

It is understood Dorland will be placed on a train leaving here at 7:30 p.m. (E.S.T.) for Toronto. Officials of the penitentiary will be in charge of the man whose conviction on a charge of carrying concealed weapons resulted in an inquiry into methods of Toronto police.

It was indicated newspapermen would not be allowed to interview Dorland until he is put on the train.

Served Over 3 Years

Release of Albert Dorland from Kingston penitentiary after serving about three years and five months of a five year sentence in connection with the attempt to rob the Wellesley street branch of the Royal Bank, in Toronto, April 7, 1930, follows two exhaustive enquiries into charges he was "framed" by the Toronto police.

In the course of the investigations, which for length and intensity have no parallel in the history of the Toronto police force, Inspector of Detectives Alexander J. Murray, Detective Sergeant William Thompson and Sergeant of Detectives Lew Williams were asked for their resignations. The general methods of the police in handling the case came in for a great deal of criticism.

Acting as a Royal Commissioner, Mr. Justice A. C. Kingstone recommended the prosecution of four detectives who fired shots into Dorland's car when they arrested him. No action has been taken on this recommendation so far.

TRAPPED DEER DISTRUSTS MAN

Caught on Hazardous Ledge in Watkins' Glen State Park.

RUSHING TORRENT BELOW.

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—A wild deer's innate distrust of man to-day threatened to defeat efforts to rescue a sensitive seven point buck from a hazardous ledge in Watkins Glen State Park, where he has been trapped for six days.

Although he humbly trots back and forth along his narrow runway unconcerned while scores of visitors, attracted by his predicament, watch him from the opposite side of the gorge a few feet away, His fear of man has blocked every plan of rescue.

He becomes so terrified when approached that his would-be rescuers have to give up their efforts for fear he will leap to his death in the dashing torrent 200 feet below.

It was fear of a dog that drove him and his mate into the perilous position from which he cannot escape, and it was fear that caused his mate to hurl herself down through the gorge to a rocky death.

The big buck is skeptical about eating the luscious ears of sweet corn, one of his favorite foods, because they have been placed there by man; he prefers to slake his thirst with the dew from foliage rather than drink the water lowered over the cliff to him; he spurns the bridge which was thrown across the chasm in the hope that he would venture across it to safety; most of all he fears any attempt to approach him.

Officials still have a few plans they expect to try out, if the deer continues to ignore the bridge. They were considering trapping him with a net or lassoing him or possibly lowering a fence along the ledge to form a corral.

Mayor Denne Drew Eight Names From Two Ballot Boxes.

TWO-DAY VISIT.

Children While in Toronto Be Guests of Wrigley Company.

Mayor Roland Denne, assisted by City Clerk S. R. Armstrong, this morning dipped his hand in the ballot boxes and drew at random eight slips with the names of eight lucky children who will be guests of the Wm. Wrigley Jr. Company of Canada on a two-day visit to the Toronto Exhibition during the next few days.

The names of the eight are:

Marjorie Lewis, 13, 581 Chamberlain street.
Eunice Armstrong, 12, 214 Carlisle Avenue.
Phyllis Meehan, 13, 261 King street.
Joyce Powers, 12, 578 Stewart street.
Leslie O'Donnell, 12 261 Park Hill Road.
Walter Moore, 13, 494 Park street.
Norman Millen, 12, 533 Waterford street.
Pat Jordan, 14, 629 Union street.

Arrangements for the transportation and handling of the party of 500 children of which the Peterborough group will form a part, have been completed by the Wrigley Company officials in conference with railway and Y.W.C.A. officials. Conductors and railway officials will take charge of the children as they board the trains at their local stations.

On arrival in Toronto, the children, all between the ages of 12 and 16, will be met by officials of the Wrigley Company and officials of the Y.W.C.A. who will chaperon them during their visit. They will be taken from the station to the Royal York and King Edward Hotels, where reservations have already been made for them. After a check-over, telegrams advising of their safe arrival will be despatched to their parents. The two-day program of tours to the Exhibition grounds which will also include a tour of the city of Toronto, will then get under way.

The date of departure for the Peterborough children will be announced shortly. The names of the eight chosen for the trip are being forwarded to the Wrigley Company in Toronto by Mayor Denne.

Mrs. Jimmie Walker Ordered To Resort

CANNES, France, Aug. 31 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. James J. Walker left to-day to spend a month in Evian, a resort in Southern France, where Mrs. Walker, the former Betty Compton of Toronto, has been ordered by her doctor because of delicate health.

A close friend of the former New York Mayor said the Walkers had expected a baby, but that hope was destroyed following a severe intestinal illness which she suffered recently.

Mrs. Walker, who often has expressed a desire to have children, has been despondent since the illness, the friend said, and failed to respond satisfactorily to treatment.

The doctor consequently ordered the change.

BENNETT SURE WORLD PARLEY WILL RECONVENE

Premier Reaches Quebec, Fit, After Three Months in Britain.

MOTORS UP COAST.

Sees Canadian Wheat Growers Benefitting in Long Run Despite Present Sacrifices.

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(C. P. Staff Writer)

MURRAY BAY, Que., Aug. 31 (C.P.)—Without doubt the World Economic Conference will reconvene either in whole or in part, Premier R. B. Bennett declared here today on his return to Canada after spending three months in Great Britain attending the world gathering and presiding at the Wheat Conference.

Mr. Bennett could not suggest a day or place for the resumption of the Economic Conference, but predicted it would take place when the United States had so adjusted its domestic conditions as to permit it to consider world problems more intimately.

The proposal to ban Russian lumber from Great Britain had been under discussion the past two months, the Premier said, but no decision had yet been reached.

During his three-months' absence in England, the Premier headed Canada's delegation at the World Economic Conference, enjoyed a short holiday at a seaside resort, conferred with representatives of the United Kingdom and other governments on the working out of the Empire trade pacts and presided at the meetings the of the World Conference which resulted in an agreement among the leading exporting and importing countries to stabilize the wheat market.

Mr. Bennett declared he was hopeful of important results from the wheat agreement. It would mean sacrifices on Canada's part for the moment but in the long run would be of benefit to Canadian wheat growers.

MOTORS TO QUEBEC.

QUEBEC, August 31 (C.P.)—Premier R. B. Bennett who landed from the liner Empress of Britain at Murray Bay several hours earlier, reached Quebec by motor car today. Accompanied by Hon. Maurice Dupre, Solicitor-General, the Prime Minister went immediately to his private railroad car. He was to go to Montreal by train to attend a Board of Trade dinner in the evening before proceeding to Ottawa.

"I a mvery glad to be back again in Canada," Mr. Bennett declared on his arrival here. "I landed this morning at Murray Bay and I have happy memories of the very beautiful drive to this old city. As I came along and saw the work of the pion-

26 YEAR TERM FOR U.S. SOLDIER

Found Guilty Violating Espionage Act at Post in Canal Zone.

ADMITS HIS ACTION.

FORT SHERMAN, Canal Zone, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—A sentence equivalent to 26 years of hard labor was imposed last night on Corporal Robert Osman of New York, following conviction of violating the United States Espionage Act of 1917 in attempting to transmit secret military documents to America.

The defendant was convicted after five minutes of deliberation in a courtmartial here following upon testimony by Osman himself that he was acquainted with a number of Communists in New York.

Previously prosecution witnesses testified similarly, a mail clerk declaring he had sent a letter to Brooklyn and in return had received a communication containing eight $50 bills.

Osman added that he had been out of work three months prior to the time he enlisted in the army and that he had connections with persons living in exclusive Park Avenue, New York. One of these he named as Harry Duryea. Duryea, he continued, suggested that they correspond through a third party so the former's parents could not know their son was writing to a soldier.

PORT CHURCHILL FACING THREAT OF EMPTY BINS

May Close Early Because Wheat Shipped Cheaper Via Longer Great Lakes Route.

PRAIRIES WORRIED.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan Urged to Unite to Protect Huge Investment.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 31 (C.P.). — Prairie grain-growers, after half-a-century of seeking for a low-rate northern shipping outlet for their product, marvelled to-day at reports the three-year-old port of Churchill may close up early this season because grain is being moved overseas cheaper by the longer Great Lakes route. Virtually no grain is moving by rail to the near-empty bins on the Hudson Bay shore.

One thousand miles along a zigzag rail-line north of Winnipeg, the model seaport was built on the rocky bay shore because it gave the prairies a harbor only 175 miles farther from Liverpool than Montreal—and it was possible to dump grain cars into the 2,500,000-bushel elevator and run the grain directly into ocean-going boats. Now it is estimated the seven cargoes loaded this season so far and the loads for two boats en route will leave the elevator empty.

Insurance Lowered.

Pleas made by growers and shippers brought the longer export season this year. Insurance companies responded by extending the date when ships could leave the port without paying additional insurance on hulls and machinery from Sept. 30, last year's close, until Oct. 7. With five weeks of the period still remaining, only 6,000 bushels were en route from inland points for export.

In an official statement, Saskatchewan Pool Elevators, Ltd., declared exporters were unwilling to use the Hudson Bay port because of the lesser charges on the St. Lawrence route. Sponsors of the majority of big shipments through the port, although temporarily out of the export field, the Saskatchewan wheat pool subsidiary statement said most grain exports at present were being made from Montreal.

Lake tonnage, said Fort William reports, was being chartered at the lowest rates for the season. The rate to Montreal, as high as six cents last year, was down to around three cents a bushel. Rates from Firt William to Georgian Bay ports ranged from 1¼ to 1⅛ cents compared with two cents last year, and the rate to Buffalo had dropped from last year's quotation of 1⅝ cents to 1¼ cents a bushel.

W. J. Ward, M.L.A., Dauphin, Man., told a gathering at Yorkton, Sask., that Manitoba and Saskatchewan must unite to protect their interests and the millions of dollars invested in the port at Churchill. Pointing to the heavy wheat exports via Montreal, he declared there would be no wheat left in Churchill

HAMILTON CUTS HOSPITAL RATES

Private Rooms Given From $3.50 to $6.50 in Drive for Patronage.

EFFECTIVE SEPTEMBER 1.

HAMILTON, Aug. 31.—The governors of the Hamilton General Hospital, at their meeting yesterday, decided to make an experiment. Rates for private and semi-private rooms will be substantially reduced, in the belief that greater patronage at lower prices will result in an increase in hospital revenue.

The new scale of prices, to become effective on September 1, is as follows: Private rooms—reduced from $8 to $6.50; from $6.50 to $5.50; from $5.50 to $4.50; from $5 to $4; from $4 to $3; semi-private rooms, from $3 to $2.50. Semi-private rooms for which $1.75 has been charged will remain at that figure. Ward patient rooms remain free to resident patients, and the rate of $12.25 to non-residents taken on a township order remains unrevised.

R. G. Wells, chairman of the board, expressed his conviction the institution would save money.

"Too Much"

"I believe," he said, "that we can keep 475 persons in this hospital almost as reasonably as we can keep 325, in view of the large overhead which is always present. We have four beds here at $8.00 a day, which is too much. I have been told by a friend that a room just as good as these can be had at the Toronto General Hospital for $6 or $6.50.

Payment of $400 to E. Lawry, electrical engineer, engaged in 1927 to save power costs at the hospital and whose account has been outstanding since that time, was ordered.

VALERA-ARMY SPLIT CROPS UP

Breach Starts With Government Raid on Republican Camp.

WEAKENS FORCES.

LONDON, Aug. 31 (A.P.). — The Daily Mail said to-day the first definite breach between the Irish Republican Army and President De Valera's Government occurred in Dublin last night when the I.R.A. issued a statement declaring it had no confidence in the administration.

The Irish Republican Army is a militant relic of the 1916 rebellion and has supported De Valera. Its objective is an independent Irish republic.

The manifesto asserted the present Free State government of 26 counties is no more entitled to the allegiance of the Republicans than is the Imperialist junta of the six counties of Northern Ireland.

The I.R.A. camp in County Dublin was raided Sunday by civic guards, the statement disclosed. The Council of the "Army," it was said, took this move as an indication that De Valera's Government intends to embark on a policy of coercion against the I.R.A.

The President told the London Daily Herald at Dublin that he was anxious for peace with Great Britain but that it must not be dictated by strong means.

AUSTRIAN JAIL RAIDED BY NAZI

Trio Release Tyrolese Leader and Escape to Italian Border.

ONE BELIEVED WOUNDED.

INNSBRUCK, Austria, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Three Nazis disguised as members of the Fascist Home Guard raided the Innsbruck Jail yesterday and released Franz Hofer, their Tyrolese leader, and escaped with him toward the Italian border.

Policemen along the route fired on the speeding automobile in which the raiders sought to get out of the country, and it was believed that one occupant was wounded. The motor car was found abandoned about two miles from the border, and whether Hofer and his liberators had got into Italy was not determined.

The disguised Nazis were admitted to the jail at midnight and they soon overpowered the jailers.

Forty per cent. of the citizens of Innsbruck voted the Nazi ticket last April. Hofer, a big blond and handsome man, has been in prison since June 12. He is not a direct descendant of Andreas Hofer, the patriot who lost his life because of his opposition to the first Napoleon, but because he bears the Hofer name the escape is especially notable.

MENINGITIS VICTIM.

TOLEDO, O. — Margaret Mary Grames, one-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Grames, who won a healthy baby contest one month ago, is dead, victim of a form of meningitis.

Horace Dodge Intimates He May Enter Boat in Harmsworth Race.

FEW BOASTS.

Briton Expected to Try For 100 Mile Average on Course.

ALGONAC, Mich., Aug. 31 (A.P.). —The possibility developed yesterday that the Harmsworth Trophy race starting next Saturday might see three boats, instead of two in competition, the third boat joining Gar Wood in a defence of the prize. Horace E. Dodge, here to defend his gold cup title on Friday, announced that if his Delphine V., a 25-footer, makes 95 miles an hour in a trial run on the Detroit River, he will enter it in the Harmsworth.

The Dodge craft is three years old and when it was built it attained a speed of 65 miles an hour.

Should Dodge decide to enter his boat, all he is required to do is notify the race committee within two hours before the race that he wants to help defend the trophy. Under the rules, each contending country may enter three boats.

Whether Gar Wood, who for more than a decade has held the bronze plaque that denotes the world's speedboat supremacy, faces "the stiffest battle of his career," or "just another race," in the Harmsworth contest, continues a question of endless debate in his home town and along the "waterfront."

Wood and Hubert Scott-Paine, the British challenger, were absent from their boat wells yesterday, and the Miss America X. and Miss Britain III. remained undisturbed in their cradles. To-day both the craft will be given final shake-down trials, possibly over the seven-mile course in the St. Clair River, near here. Both Wood and Scott-Paine have carefully avoided boastful statements since it became definitely assured they would meet in the Harmsworth. Scott-Pairne considers Wood one of the world's greatest speedboat drivers and Wood regards Scott-Paine as a worthy opponent and a "wonderful boat builder."

Wood has said his boat has been improved on . . . in sturdiness, power and speed possibilities. He has absolutely no fear that the top speed—some say 136 miles an hour—will in any way endanger her hull. Since Wood first won the Harmsworth, a dozen years ago, only one challenger has beaten him in a single heat. That was Kaye Don, in 1931. Only one other challenger, Betty Carstairs, has finished against him.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

Cowboys Are Real Entertainers—Radio Favorites Coming to the Capitol Friday and Saturday.

Ken Hackley and his Oklahoma Cowboys, nationally known radio artists, which are coming to the Capitol Theatre to appear in person Friday and Saturday with continuous performance Saturday, are real novelty entertainers, as well as real cowboys, each and all of the cowboys play any and all string instruments—just any that happens to be handy.

They feature many old time tunes and songs in their stage show and many novelties. The funny cowboy, the red-headed one, will keep the audience in an uproar of laughter with his comic antics and catchy, funny songs, such as "It Can't Be Done," "Adam and Eve," "You Can't Change It," and many others. Zeke, as he is called, is just naturally funny, and you never can tell what this clumsy and bungling cowboy will do next to keep you laughing. Many people will like the old time weird cowboy songs, some will prefer the old time yodels, the feats of trick roping will astound you with the fastness of it, as well as the extremely difficult rope tricks, such as jumping through the spinning ropes and many other feats too numerous to mention.

Ken Hackley and his Oklahoma Cowboys are now being featured over CKCT radio station at Toronto, where they have made many friends of their listeners. This group of novel western entertainers have been heard over sixty-five radio stations throughout the country, and also featured by the National Broadcasting Company on their coast to coast network of thirty-six stations. Every place they have appeared in person they have showed to large crowds who were very much enthused over their program and appearance. So when you see them at the Capitol Theatre Friday and Saturday you will see many stunts, lots of laughs, plenty of pep, a typcal cowboy entertainment of playin', singing', ropin', dancin'.

AT THE REGENT

"SLEEPLESS NIGHTS"

This is a gay musical comedy farce in the best British manner, tinkling with music and the smart quips and cracks that ahimate these smiling English films.

American comedians appear to start out to try to make a monkey of the other fellow. The British comedian makes a monkey of himself, and is quite content when the other fellow laughs at him.

There is plenty of fun and merriment in "Sleepless Nights", in which a conspiracy is wound about the hero, who never wants to go to bed, until he finally changes his ideas, after a number of "sleepless nights." There is a touch of French farce about the affair, and the good old stand-by of a boudoir serves as the basic setting for several of the scenes.

Music animates the comedy from start to finish—bright, catchy music and pretty songs—with a heroine who boasts a fine voice, and a number of effective song-hits, including the theme song, "I Don't Want to Go to Bed," and a tuneful bit entitled "One More Dance."

Stanley Lupino is the hero, a short comedian with a lot of nonsensical gab and a pair of swift feet that do some smart eccentric dancing. Polly Walker is the dainty heroine.

It is a comedy of errors, with mistaken ideas about nearly everything, including the hero's marriage certificate. It is a gay successor to the prime favorite, "Jack's the Boy", in which Jack Hulburt starred with so much success. The abandon and nonsense which featured his role is apparent in this picture also.

The short reels include a Moran and Mack comedy, in which the two black-face innocents go to Africa and get tangled up with the big cats.

which appeared in a recent issue of this paper. In this advertisement the recipe called for ground "white" spice. This should have read ground "mixed" spice. The correct recipe for this very tempting pickle is given herewith:—

Select nine medium sized onions, peel them and take 2 dozen ripe tomatoes, 6 large apples, ¼ lb. ground mixed spice, 1 qt. vinegar, 1 lb. raisins and salt to taste. Having boiled them all together for 1½ hours, strain them and add 1 lb. brown sugar, ¼ cup of Keen's Mustard and 1 teaspoon of cayenne pepper. Now boil the entire mixture for ½ hour and your Indian Pickles are ready for bottling.

APPOINTING JUDGES.

With the suggestion of the Federation of Labor clubs in Canada that judges should be appointed for a five-year term by the Bar Associations of the various districts rather than by the Government in power, there is likely to be sharp disagreement.

While many Canadians would favor the idea of having the Bar Association consulted in the selection of judges they most certainly would not approve of a plan that would remove judges from the bench just when by reason of the experience they had gained in their five-year term, they would be capable of the best service.

The present method by which appointments to the judiciary are made by the Federal Government may have its defects, but they are more theoretical than real, for over the years the system has worked very well and has given little cause for complaint.

The public is willing to admit that the vast majority of Canadian judges have carried out their duties fearlessly and impartially and so long as that condition pertains there is not likely to be a very insistent demand for a change in the method of appointment; at least there is little danger that it will be succeeded by the system suggested by the Montreal Federaion of Labor Clubs of Canada.

A SENSIBLE DECISION.

From East Windsor the other day came the story of a youth convicted of reckless driving and disorderly conduct who was allowed to go on suspended sentence on the condition that he must not touch liquor or drive a car for the next two years.

That disposition of the case will appeal to most people as a common sense decision on the part of the court.

The usual way would have been to impose a fine or a short jail sentence, but the East Windsor method of dealing with a young man who attempted to mix liquor and gasoline seems a much more effective way of protecting the public and curing the offender.

A few days in jail might fail to correct this youth's drinking habits or his reckless driving; but the sentence handed out by the magistrate will save him from hurting himself in the matter of overindulgence in liquor and at the same time the public will be guarded at least for two years against the irresponsible driving that got this young fellow into trouble.

It is a plan that might well be studied by other Ontario magistrates who are constantly being called upon to deal with just such cases.

It is better to teach a youth sobriety and careful driving than it is to give him the stigma of a jail sentence.

THE EXHIBITION IS READY.

The various committees of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition have made their final reports and announced that everything is ready for what is confidently expected to be the banner exhibition in the history of the event.

With the opening little more than a week away public interest will begin to kindle and there is every reason to expect that the patronage will be in keeping with the admitted excellent of the exhibits and of the program of entertainment in store for Exhibition visitors.

As The Examiner has stressed in previous years, The Peterborough Exhibition has attained its present prestige because, while alive to the fact that the public demand special features in the way of program, the management has never lost sight of its mission to encourage and help agriculture and has never allowed that side of the Exhibition to be submerged beneath too much entertainment.

Some fairs have suffered because the amusement end was too strongly emphasized; others have deteriorated because they failed to provide enough program attractions.

The Peterborough Industrial has steered a safe course between these two mistakes and as a result stands high in the eyes of Government heads, the farmers of the district and the public generally.

SCHOOL CHILDREN AND WAR.

It is not surprising that the school children who were examined in a survey by two professors of Columbia University, should have revealed a tendency to glorify everything connected with war.

Martial things—roll of drums, blare of trumpets, men in uniform, and all the fanfare and trumpery of war—have a well nigh irresistible appeal to young minds, and to many old ones.

School children in the very nature of things can have little appreciation of the horrors and cruelty of war; they see only its glories. Their text book heroes are great soldiers, and they learn that the destinies of their country have revolved about war. Was not Canada born in blood? Was not Napoleon a hero, even though he led a nation in war?

Nor is there any wonder that children have little grasp of the machinery of peace. Even adults might be found woefully lacking in knowledge of the Kellogg Pact, the World Court, the League of Nations, and the intricacies surrounding these agencies.

But while the professors' survey reveals little that is surprising, it does call attention to the need for bringing forcibly home to future citizens the fact that war is a national catastrophe and that as such it is to be avoided if that is possible; and that good has seldom come from any war.

Progress toward universal peace has been disappointingly slow and has had many setbacks.

Peace machinery is imperfect and not very effective.

These facts, however, only make it more desirable to put forth every effort to avoid a new war, which would be infinitely more terrible than the last, and which many world leaders believe would bring the destruction of civilization.

It is not necessary to breed milksop pacifists. An understanding of what war really is, how wars are made, and what is being done to minimize the chances for war, can be combined with a healthy world patriotism.—Vancouver Sun.

THE ROAD TO RECOVERY.

The adjournment of the London Conference held out to each of sixty-six nations the challenge to put its own house in order. How is this to be done? Are we to demolish and consign to the scrap heap those serviceable appointments to which we are accustomed even though in some instances they may have become tumbledown and unattractive, or are we to choose a process of refinishing and rearrangement?

Russia established a new order by force. The United States is endeavouring to bring about a new deal through Governmental paternalism. The C.C.F. would have Canada attain a new Commonwealth by socialistic legislation. Other groups advocate other shibboleths.

Are there means, however, by which readjustment can be brought about so that that which is good in our present regime ca nbe retained, and that which is detrimental can be improved to effect our desired economic rehabilitation? Are the tools of recovery locked away or are they within our grasp?

With the wings of NIRA'S blue eagle fluttering at our threshold, it is only natural that consideration is being increasingly given to the American policy. What may be considered sound in our neighbor's household, however, is not necessarily applicable or desirable in Canada. As we conceive it NIRA requires a vast internal market. Canada lacks this market but is the fifth international trader. Further, NIRA requires an appropriation of vast sums of money, and we believe Canada, with taxation as it is, can ill afford to increase her borrowings for this purpose. Nor do we put emphasis on the policies of artificial price raising, and more Government in business.

Of one thing we are certain. Canada will not usher in a new order by force, nor will she stage a revolution. Recovery, moreover, can be facilitated without coining a new slogan or turning upside down the capitalistic system in which we live. We believe that recovery will be achieved through the toning up of our present system. In fact, this remedial process is now in operation. Everyone has not been passive. Our leaders are awake. Not all of our statesmen are dormant. Even if not "all's right with the world," at least some tried things are.

Our course to recovery involves a continuous searching out of our weaknesses. Direction is always needed in such an enquiry. Greater inspiration and leadership can be given at this time jointly and individually by both Governments and business looking toward a normal policy of recovery. First of all there should be a general recognition of the need for less self-imposed ordinances on the part of governments and more business-prompted legislation. Helpful criticism should come before, not after, the law begins to be administered. Bureaucratic rulings are ill-advised. Patronage, too, must give way. Political expediency however desirable for the party may often be unfortunate for the nation. Hand-outs do not invite necessarily the general welfare.

Moreover our governing bodies are too numerous, their expenses often too uneconomic while unbalanced budgets are too prevalent. What about it? It seems reasonable to expect that Governments should be willing to proceed further with those adjustment measures which have already been instituted in this field as a result of the insistence of business leadership in its desire for recovery and stability. There must be no flagging in that insistence at this time.

Business for its part has a national duty in adhering strictly and at all times to equitable trading practices. Not that integrity fails to characterize our business dealings, but that wherever the principles of the unfair dealer show themselves, whether he be a larger manipulator or of the smaller fry, they must be killed and not scotched. A fractional percentage of our business must not brand or penalize the whole.

The improvement of living conditions for labor and employment for all who are willing to work, can continue to be our objective under the present regime. Even if all that is desirable has not been accomplished for labor, it is to be admitted that we in Canada have gone a long way from sweatshops, child labor and the exploitation of manual workers. Neither industry to-day, nor government is deaf to valid economic need. Assisting in our normal recovery will be a continuing joint leadership of labor, business and Government for our social betterment.

Cannot a suitable program be drafted and implemented for agriculture? We have adequate machinery in our present institutions so to do, and we are not incompetent in this field of leadership. What we require is to follow proven forms and basic principles tried and tempered in the crucible of experience. What does business and government say with regard to a revised immigration policy? If we listen to the logic of national reason, and shut our ears to class clamourings on this score, would immigration improve or would it not improve a situation wherein productivity seems to have out-run consumption. Government could well review this possibility. We expect the MacMillan Commission will give a lead to our financial policy. Its findings should be considered in the light of our national welfare and not in the darkness of political prejudices. If Canada has an honest-to-goodness need for a Central Bank, let us have it. If our banking system is sound, let us say so.

Cannot Canadian business accept the responsibility of taking such voluntary action as is necessary to put its house in order? We believe the answer is "yes", and that business can be counted upon to give leadership in some directions and government in others. A concerted effort now on the part of both is to be recommended. The road to recovery lies within the present system, not without.—Canadian Business.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It was a happy thought to let the visiting Fire Chiefs see something of the beauty of the Kawartha district. Too many visitors to Peterborough go away without glimpsing our Summer playground.

The discontinuing of the Toronto Star's Station CFCA will be regretted by radio fans generally who will miss Canada's pioneer broadcasting station.

With the Canadian National Exhibition holding the boards Toronto people evidently have not the time these days to stage any riots in the parks.

London is still trying to convince Ottawa that she needs a new C.N.R. station. The Forest City authorities must be given credit for their determination.

CHAPTER 11

WHEN SALLY saw that Ted had vanished from beneath her window she felt as she might upon suddenly finding herself locked in a stuffy vault. Yet she could not move. She had to keep hidden while Gus Vitelli, if it was he, peered through her keyhole with those old yellow-streaked eyes of his. Weakened by a growing nausea, she lay still by the window, below the level of her bed which stood between her and the door, until her muscles ached so that she could stand the position no longer.

Gradually, breathlessly, with painful alertness, she wriggled forward on her stomach until she reached the bed. Then she rose quietly at its head, which she believed was beyond the range of vision of the keyhole, and as softly as possible, she let herself down upon the blanket, frightened that a spring might creak. But no spring did.

For a minute, perhaps, she simulated the regular, steady breathing of a person asleep and once she twitched and turned again. Then she sighed and sat upright in the bed, almost convinced that the movement would bring a whining bullet in her direction through that awesome keyhole. But nothing happened. She got boldly out of bed and walked to the bathroom, switched on the light and let the water run in the wash stand as if for a drink. The sight of her face in the mirror startled her at first, then, for some unexplained reason, made her want to giggle; it was so round-eyed and tensed.

Sally turned off the light and threw herself heavily upon the bed, rolling over it with one motion and alighting neatly and noiselessly upon the floor. Then, stealthily, she crawled to the door, took a deep breath and looked boldly through the keyhole. All she saw was the wall again. She listened carefully. This time she heard no sound of breathing.

Feeling somewhat more secure, she decided to open the door boldly and look out. She did so, as quickly and as quietly as possible. The hall was empty. She listened. There was no sound in the house.

Closing and locking the door again she hurried over to the window and looked out upon the sand. And experienced another shock. Someone was below, digging in the sand. Allowing just the corner of one eye to lean out over the window sill, she watched until she realized that she was looking down upon the broad back of her employer, Fred Proctor.

She darted her head back into the window and released a soft sigh of amazement. Here was the dark, somewhat severe, somewhat suspicious young millionaire digging again in that spot of sand where but five minutes or so before Ted Chandler had been excavating. Now where was Ted? Why had Gus Vitelli come prowling to her keyhole? Why was Proctor down there by the wall of his own house after midnight? Had he seen Ted? Had Ted seen him?

Sometime during the early morning Sally fell asleep. She awoke rather later than usual surprised to find herself there alone and safe in her room with the frank, pleasant sunshine flowing in from over the ocean. She got up and went to the window, feeling heavy and tired and strange as if getting over the effects of a nightmare. But she knew it had been no nightmare. Last night, down there in that patch of soft sand, two men had been digging, one after the other, the one Ted Chandler, the other Fred Proctor.

Sally bathed, dressed and fortified herself for meeting the members of the household downstairs. When she left her room humming she felt secretly as if she were reporting to an inquisition.

Fred Proctor was gone. He had breakfasted early and left the house, Jasper informed her. Jasper, at least, didn't seem suspicious.

"Did he leave any instructions for me?" Sally asked.

"No ma'm," Jasper said. "I reckon you got the mawnin' to youself."

After breakfast she looked out toward the garage but saw no sign of Ted. By now she was really worried about what had happened to him. There had been no sound, but he had disappeared completely.

"Jasper," she asked the little light-brown Negro, "has the handyman—you know, the mechanic or chauffeur, or whatever he is—been about to-day?" She thought she had better explain herself. "Mr. Proctor told me to tell him to run an errand." Immediately, she was sorry that she had given Jasper a lie like that. It was dangerous; it might rebound.

"No'm. Anyways, ah aint seen him aroun'. Did you look down at the ga-rage?"

"No. But I haven't heard him about, so I suppose he isn't here yet. It's nothing, though. I can do it myself."

"Well, ah be glad to hep you ma'm."

"No, it's nothing of consequence, Jasper. Just forget it."

She hoped he would. Then Ted hadn't reported. She went weak with the realization. He might have been killed. There was no noise, but he might have been quietly choked or knocked on the head and thrown in the ocean.

As the morning went by Sally felt she had to do something. She got into her bathing suit and went down for a dip.

On the way up she saw a man sitting on the sand in a bathing suit, a dark, bent, hairy old man—Gus Vitelli. He had been watching her, evidently.

When she had taken a shower and dressed she went downstairs determined to take one of the cars and go out in search of Ted Chandler. She was supposed to be about the house in the daytime, she presumed, but she would find some excuse and take a chance on slipping out.

However, she heard Fred Proctor's voice as she went down the stairs. She met hm in the hall. He wore white knickers and a white linen cap. "Hello there," he greeted her. "Got up late, didn't you?"

"I'm afraid I did—"

"Oh, that's quite all right. Do I have to keep telling you I'm no Simon Legree? You are to consider yourself as a sort of guest and you know it. No, I had hoped we'd get in our morning plunge together, but when I saw you weren't up I went alone. I didn't want to wake you, knowing how sleepy you were last night."

"Thank you, Mr. Proctor. Is there anything I can do?"

"Not just yet, thanks. Make yourself comfortable. I was just up to Jacksonville this morning looking at some planes. I may trot one down and give you the first ride, if you're a good girl."

"I'd love it."

"Well, I may one of these days. I took the handy-man up with me—" Sally nearly gasped with relief— "and I'm glad I had him along. That lad certainly knows planes and motors. You ought to see him handle one of those big ships as if it were a kiddiecar. Well, just do whatever you like. I'm going to have to run down to the boatyard."

"I'll take a nap then," Sally said, feigning another yawn. "This climate certainly is ruining my ambition."

"I'll see you this afternoon sometime."

"You won't be back until this afternoon?"

"No." He looked at her rather closely, she thought.

Sally smiled as sleepily as she could. "I'll take a long nap then," she said. "Maybe I might take one of the cars over to town this afternoon? I have some things to get at the department store."

She thanked him again and went back upstairs. She lay down on the bed and tried to be patient but it was hard when she realized that Ted was back on the premises, safe.

When she heard Fred Proctor drive away in the sedan—he was thoughtfully leaving her that beautiful big yellow roadster—she waited a few minutes more, then hurried downstairs.

"I think I'll run over to town now before lunch," she told Jasper. "I'll be back soon."

She got the keys from the desk and went out to the garage. Ted was there, whistling, and polishing the roadster which evidently had carried him and Fred Proctor to Jacksonville and back that morning.

Sally spoke softly and quickly. She told him what had happened and he nodded solemnly.

"Watch that oyster, Vitelli," he said. "Watch him as if he were a rattlesnake. If I could only get you out of that house for good! I'll tell you what happened. I heard your friend, Proctor, coming, and ducked. I waited to sneak back and tell you, but he hung on and I thought I'd better get while the getting was good."

"You didn't find anything?"

He smiled mysteriously and produced something from his pocket. "Only this."

The object he held in his palm was an exploded cartridge. Sally took it and turned it over. It bore the mark: 38.

YOU MAY NEED GLASSES

DIDN'T KNOW I needed glasses. Didn't like glasses on people, anyway. Thought they made people look "funny." Got in their way. Interfered with swimming, playing tennis. Got between a fellow and life....That's what I thought. I liked the world as it looked to me, and didn't want it improved, sharpened, made plainer than it was, brought closer to me. I was satisfied.

Then along came a war and I thought I ought to get into it. And when I was examined they told me I'd have to have glasses. So there were some shennannigans and I bribed an examining oculist. (At any rate I paid $10 more than seemed reasonable, and I didn't ask too many questions.) And I got in....and walked out wearing glasses on my nose—into a new world.

A different world. A brighter, gayer, more splendid world than I had ever known. A lovely, gallant, delightful world....I could see things now that I'd never seen before .... Flowers were charming creations. Birds were lovelier.... I could see the scarlet on their wings and the ruby pulsing of a humming bird's throat .... And girls were prettier than ever. I'd thought them nice before, I was sure of it now....And an old hurt cleared away. A friend had told another friend and that friend had told me that I used to be a pretty good fellow but that I'd become a snob. He had passed me and waved to me one day and I had turned my head away deliberately....Now I knew the trouble was I hadn't ever seen him.

I could see him now! I could see everything. I could see those pretty girls. I could see their bright young eyes, and also their slight imperfections. But the imperfections didn't matter; the beauty made up for the flaws, and I was more than satisfied....I'd learned something....I knew then that it was best to see everything. You can't go blind through the world. You must see all of it, feel all of it, know all of it. You can't shut your eyes, you can't squint at life. You must take the pain with the pleasure, the grief with the joy, the failure with the success, the ugliness with the beauty, the earthly with the heavenly—and if you do not do this, you are cheating yourself out of half the excitement of being alive. Because you may need glasses for your spirit more than you need them for your eyes.

It took a war to get glasses on my nose, but that's my story now.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

FREDERICTON'S UNIQUE CATHEDRAL

On this date in 1853 eighty years ago, Christ Church Cathedral, Fredericton, was consecrated by Bishop Medley. It is the only real Cathedral of the Church of England in Canada. Some church authorities may disagree with this statement, but it is a fact none the less. Moreover in the words of its second prelate, Bishop H. T. Kingdon: "It is the first cathedral built in the Anglican communion since the Reformation, and it may truly said to be the first cathedral foundation since the Norman conquest. For, although many of the English cathedrals, as they now stand, have been erected since that great event, they are all on the site of earlier Christian edifices." And Dean Neales has pointed out: "Though there may be one or two built before ours, they are all, I believe, parish churches and used as such, and though called cathedrals (really pro cathedrals) they are all governed by rectors, church wardens and vestries. Our Fredericton cathedral has been from the first upon a cathedral foundation without a parish or district and not governed as a parish church by rector, wardens and vestry, but by the Cathedral Chapter, representing the whole diocese."

It was in 1845 that the Province of New Brunswick was separated from the see of Nova Scotia and made into a separate diocese. On May 4 of that year Rev. John Medley of the diocese of Exeter, England, was consecrated at Lambeth Palace by the then Archbishop of Canterbury (Howley) and set sail for his new home. One of his first acts was to secure a site for his cathedral and he laid the foundation stone on October 15, 1845.

Once started on the work he never looked back. He gave all his private fortune towards the funds, even to the length of selling his library which was a very fine one. Before the building was roofed funds gave out. The bishop prayed all night under the stars in the church, and shortly afterwards sufficient money came to complete the work arrived from England. The letter accompanying the money was signed only with three initials and these initials are carved on the foundation stone in the chancel. The building took eight years to complete.

In 1911 the cathedral was damaged by lightning and fire, but was repaired and re-opened for divine service August 31, 1913, the sixtieth anniversary of its consecration. The bells of the first cathedral were melted together in a lump in the fire; this lump was sent to England and eight bells cast therefrom, a gift from Sir James Ross, formerly of Bathurst. The cathedral is perfectly appointed. Chief among its treasures is an altar cloth, of cloth of gold, used as the coronation of William IV, and presented to Bishop Medley by the then Dean of Westminster.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterborough's Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner.

A.F., c/o Norma Rennie,
Keene, Ontario.

Your handwriting indicates a dual disposition. Sometimes you are deliberate, neat and precise, then at other times, you do not care for anything which calls for neatness or precision. You feel that you must relax and let everything drift. Sudden 'spurts' of energy are depicted, but these only occur when you are happy and in better health than you are at most times. I do not mean to say that you are actually ill, but there is really no vitality upon which you can rely in an emergency. Therefore, the most important thing for you to do at present is to guard your health. Do not drive yourself beyond your strength, in search of a career. Live out of doors as much as possible, study flowers and plant life, as a hobby. Make notes of your discoveries and you will soon become very interested and intelligent on the subject. You can then compare notes from books on botany in the public library. Perhaps later on, as you progress, you could teach the subject to others.

Miss Mary Daniel,
15 Kirk Street.

There is a perceptible tendency to worry and nervousness noted in your handwriting, and perhaps a lack of physical strength. But, you have will power and the ability to accomplish much, yet there is a propensity to expend too much physical energy on any project you undertake, when mental energy would have brought better and quicker results. You do not seem to be able to relax but tend to hold yourself rigid and always at a nervous tension while working, afraid lest something might go 'wrong.' If you always do your best (and I feel certain you do) there is no necessity for this strenuous strain and fatigue. Could you not give yourself a little more leisure time in which to enjoy life? Your capitals express your personality, one who is intelligent and kind, but your 't's' indicate that you make up your mind to do something, then ponder and become undecided as to your ability to succeed. You can succeed. You can do anything if you want to earnestly enough. But do you? The answer is entirely in your mental power. Love and kindness are as essential to you as the air you breathe.

Mariene Fitzgerald,
Peterborough, Ont.

Your handwriting suggests artistic ability and shows that you dislike anything that is distorted or out of harmony. You are possessor of a priceless gift, that of comparing colours for creating beauty and harmony in your home. You are adaptable and can 'turn your hand' to almost anything, be it work or pleasure. You are fairly good natured but due to the tendency to become easily upset, you are judged accordingly and so really do give way to your emotions when you are hurt. You have a propensity to worry over details and to permit others to interfere with your work. This is because you have not quite sufficient will power to enable you to say that one little word, which means so much....'No' and mean it. You are too prone to give in and spoil all your good intentions. Your tall 't' which stands alone, as it were, in the clouds speaks volumes as to your thwarted hopes and ambitions.

Viola Oldrey,
393 Princess St., Kingston, Ont.

Your handwriting shows a graceful calmness of spirit, your every movement is artistic, yet quick and methodical. You have an artistic tendency which at times causes you to become a little over-proud. You are clever beyond the average and your thoughts and actions are intelligent. You are most fastidious in your choice of friends and prefer those with intelligence on a par with yourself. You have a strictly rigid view on the question of religion. You are fond of travel, and of meeting people. You are at your best when among a number of congenial friends. At night, after the lights are lit, you shine forth with vivacious attractiveness, even though you may have spent a most miserable day. You are fond of rich coloring. I do not mean gaudy shades but those of elegance and refinement and you should wear colors suitable to your moods.

Louise Gadin,
Peterborough, Ont.

Your handwriting with it's close, compact letters delineates you as a reserved and mysterious individual. People think they know all about you but they are mistaken. You have, as it were, several interesting cards up your sleeve. At times you are too frank and at other times you are not frank enough. You are not the type to long for a social life to such a degree that it becomes an obession. True, you do enjoy the company of a few good friends and you like fun and good, clean jokes. But, that craving to mix in society does not belong to you. You are steady going and a hard worker. You do not believe in undue flattery though you like to express an honest opinion. If you admire anyone or anything, you say so, if not you make that sentiment known too. You are thrifty and careful about financial affairs. You always think earnestly before you act. You are conscientious, loving and forgiving often to your own disadvantage.

Eugene Fitzgerald,
Peterborough, Ont.

Your handwriting delineates you as one with big business possibilities. You are very determined and ambtious. There is nothing underhand about you. You can always make your meaning clear and insist that your methods in business are understood. You are rather proud of a certain accomplishment and, why not? You know that you can give your best to the world and you do. You have splendid executive ability and command attention without being overbearing. You are fond of music but not all types. You are possessor of a mischievous spirit and enjoy a good joke. You delight in making people do their own thinking. You believe that everyone has a certain amount of 'grey matter' and that it is to their own detriment not to use it. Your own brain is most active and you are fond of delving into mystery, anything which has a possible solution at all. You make it your business to solve it, though you may never tell anyone at what decision you arrive.

A Thought

"There is nothing to do with men but to love them; to contemplate their virtues with admiration, their faults with pity and forebearance, and their injuries with forgiveness."

—Dewey.

LABOR DEMANDS SHORTER WEEKS IN N.R.A. SCHEME

President Green Suggests 35 Hour Limit—Even 30 Hours Long Enough.

11,000,000 IDLE.

Washington Believes Consumers' Boycott Will Force Ford in Line.

(By Sam Robertson, C.P. Staff Writer)

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—A demand from organized labor for an even shorter work-week than is embraced in national recovery codes had come to-day to further perplex the stupendous task of General Hugh S. Johnson, Chief Administrator of the United States Better-Times drive.

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor asked that NRA work-weeks, generally set of 40 hours, be reduced to 35, even 30. Some 2,000,000 workers have been absorbed back into industry since the drive began. But, he pointed out, there still are 11,000,000 pairs of idle hands in the country.

There was also the case of balky Henry Ford to bring additional lines to the already worried face of Gen. Johnson. Indication that President Roosevelt himself was ready to enter the picture was seen in his request for a full report on Ford and his reasons for not accepting the auto industry code.

Several means of disciplining the Michigan motor manufacturer were at the President's call.

Cut Off License

Most drastic was the Presidential privilege of licensing the entire auto industry and refusing a license to any branch not under the Blue Eagle of the NRA. Ford being the only magnate of the industry not signed up, such a step apparently would force him to release manufacturing.

But there was no indication such action was even being considered. Washington commentators leaned to the belief a consumers' boycott would likely be the most severe penalty to fall on the head of Ford. Consumers signing under the Blue Eagle are pledged to buy from those subscribing to codes. Right now, some 1,000,000 volunteers are in the field securing such signatures.

The administration had news, both good and bad, on repercussions to its drive. New York wholesalers reported business 81 per cent better in July than the same month last year. But operations of the steel industry fell this week to 47 per cent of ingot capacity, compared with 50 per cent the previous week.

Business failures the country over numbered 326 the week of Aug. 24. Slightly higher than the 312 the week before, the total was 44.7 per cent under the same week of 1932. Grouped 151 major railroads had net income in June of $21,276,730 after all taxes and expenses, compared with a deficit of $20,632,703 for June, 1932.

TRAINING SQUAD IN RESCUE WORK

Chief Defields of Windsor Outlines Plan to Fire Chiefs.

THE MASTER ADAPTER.

A paper of exceptional interest and value entitled, "Organization and Training of Rescue Squads in Fire Departments," prepared by H. R. Keetch, first aid instructor, Windsor Fire Department, was presented to the Fire Chiefs in Convention here by Chief Defields of Windsor.

A rescue company was organized in the Windsor Fire Department in 1931 for immediate training in oxygen carbon dioxide resuscitation therapy and the general care of the patient. They are also given an absolute training in physiology.

"Fire departments in general are ideal locations for training and developing rescue companies as they are centrally located and prepared for immediate action," the paper stated.

The paper dealt with emergency cases; general first aid; carbon monoxide poisoning; treatment of asphyxia; resuscitation; first aid treatment; etc.

Considerable discussion followed presentation of the paper, after which the secretary was instructed to send a letter of appreciation to Mr. Keetch.

Chief R. Harrington of McColl Frontenac organization, Montreal, spoke of the organization of police and fire rescue squads in Montreal.

Chief Sinclair of Toronto advocated the use of inhalators. He, in common with the remainder of the delegates, criticized the H.E.P.C. in regard to their attitude toward the use of inhalators.

"The Master Adapter"

In the paper presented by Chief R. Beaulieu of Quebec City, which was read by Chief R. Harrington of Montreal, a new piece of fire fighting equipment, which Chief Beaulieu was the first to use in Canada, was explained.

This new piece of equipment is known as the "Master Adapter," which may be connected to any water tap nearest a fire. It is claimed that the equipment is valuable for effectively checking fires in confined spaces in homes.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

MINING MARKET.

TORONTO, Aug. 31.— (C.P.) — Mining stocks put on a rather lifeless performance in the closing session of the month on the standard, but nevertheless showing more strength than weakness. Draggy in the early art of the session, prices firmed in the afternoon and closed unchanged to higher.

The high-priced golds moved within a narrow range in light trading and Dome, Hollinger, Pioneer and Wright Hargreaves closed unchanged and Lake Shore, Bralorne and Teck off small amounts.

Base metal shares were better in the afternoon with some buying coming in for Nickel, Noranda and Sudbury Basin. Noranda finished practically unchanged, Nickel up 5, Sudbury Basin up 5.

Even the sharp advance for the price of gold in London failed to shake the mining market out of its lethargy and the whole list had a draggy appearance up till mid-afternoon. New York's somewhat unsettled movements in the early trading were a damper on the base metals, and most of them, including International Nickel and Noranda, wre narrowly lower through most of the day.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, August 31 (C.P.).—Stocks milled about in extremely dull trading to-day. An early half-hearted rally brought a moderate demand for alcohols shares which maintained part of their 1 to 4 point advances into the late dealings. Oils were fairly firm in the last hour, while numerous other industrials, rails and utilities were virtually unchanged. American Sugar and Liggett & Myers B were smoewhat reactionary. Transfers approximated 1,200,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Aug. 31. (CP)—Slow trading action and firm prices on whole characterized the final Toronto Stock Exchange session of the month. Prices were down narrow fractions in the early trading except in the case of Walkers common which was active and higher, but the general list improved late in the day to show more gains than losses.

Most of the beverage shares lagged in volume and at the close Industrial Alcohol was up ¼, Distillers Seagram ¼, Walkers Common 1¼ and Brewers and Distillers 5.

International Nickel was about steady at the close and Smelters off a small fraction to 134. Brazilian was unchanged; C.P.R. gained ⅛ and Ford of Canada dropped ¼.

Trading dragged through most of the day and prices showed no disposition to step out of a narrow range in either direction. From an irregular opening the tendency was toward firmness, the small fractional changes were mostly on the upside.

Walkers common alone turned over in normal volume firming with National Distillers on the "big" board.

SCHOOLBOY DIES IN TRUCK SMASH

when it collided with Hewitson's car, travelling in the opposite direction. The impact sent the truck on its side on the road. It is believed the Pridham boy was thrown out.

Inquest into the tragedy is to be opened here this morning by Coroner Dr. M. L. Stewart.

Provincial Police Constable Howell of Rockwood, who investigated the accident, said he learned both cars were travelling quite close to the centre of the highway. It appeared, he said, that the car driven by Hewitson crashed into the left front section of the truck Hewitson was not injured.

All the lads on the truck had won the free trip to the C.N.E. in a contest staged by a Harriston grocer. The 18 who were with Pridham and Richardson are George Stone, Eldon Bleman, Chester Lyons, Alan Robb, Charles Dadswell, Jack Ward, Harry Newman, Alexander Ivol, Harry Brown, Earle Binns, Harvey Stevenson, Tom Noonan, Jack Gilkinson, Jack Gordon, Earl Howard, Jim Hall, Dave Hughes and Stewart Greenwood.

In addition to Prichard, driver of the truck, two men were with the boys. They are Robert Richardson, whose son was critically injured, and Lorne Gordon.

Terrible Experience.

HARRISTON, Ont., Aug. 31. — (C.P.).—"It was terrible." This was the straight impressive statement of Charles Lyons of Harriston, who accompanied the truckload of happy schoolboys to the Canadian National Exhibition yesterday and which overturned on No. 7 highway east of Guelph, bringing death to one and injury to several.

The town of Harriston to-day was severely shocked by the tragedy as news drifted back of details of the terrible accident, claiming the life of Bernald Pridham, 15.

"We had had a fine time at the Ex. and the boys were enjoying the trip home. All of a sudden there was a crash, the truck veered and then turned over on its side. I think everyone was stunned, and when I came about again I heard boys moaning.

"I reached Eldon Bleman and he seemed unconscious," said Mr. Lyons at noon to-day. Mr. Lyons said that boys and blankets appeared to be scattered all over the highway. He never saw the Pridham lad or the Richardson boy, who is seriously injured, now in the Guelph General Hospital.

He was not able to determine what time the accident happened. It was about ten o'clock when they left Toronto, and he felt that it was midnight, Standard Time, when the crash occurred.

Twelve-year-old George Stone, who was riding in the truck, gave his version of the accident as follows:

"I can't tell you very much about it. I was in the back with the other boys.

"It was a large transport truck and most of the boys were asleep because they had been on the go at the Exhibition all day. Suddenly there was a crash and our truck turned over on its side. It all happened so quickly that it is difficult to tell you much about it," said the lad.

eers, and finally the St. Lawrence River in the distance, and passed Kent House, I realized that two great races had co-operated together in building this country; and it is my earnest hope that we may be able, by wise measures and sound policies, to continue persistent co-operation for the building here of a Canada that will ont be unworthy of the great efforts of the early pioneers.

"I am gald to say to you," he added, "that amongst the people of other nations of the world that I have been privileged to meet during the past few weeks, there has been a singular unanimity as to their appreciation of Canada. Formery many of them seemed to think htat they were better off than we, living in Canada, were; but to-day many of them seem to think Canada the most favored country in the world."

Real Tribute.

"That is a singular tribute," the Prime Minister pointed out "to the conditions our people have been able to obtain, and the impression they are making in other minds than ours. I only hope that under Providence we may be able to experience a general recovery throughout our own country, as it is now evident that we have improved conditions throughout the world. I trust all fay enjoy happiness, opportunity to work as we return to prosperity, and contentment under a kindly Providence in this great land we call our home. I am glad indeed to be welcomed back in this old city, and thank you for the kindly manner in which you have received me among yourselves again."

than to any other nation or to the League?

Suffering a temporary indisposition, or in obedience to a "writ of ne exeat dome" issued by his physician—to use hi s own words—Sir Robert authorized Hon. N. W. Rowell, president of the Association, to read his address.

"Let us not minimize the present significance of incidents that have arisen," Sir Robert stated in his address. "Japan has foluted and defied the league and has given notice of withdrawal therefrom. Indeed a grave incident, but its present startling significances will, undoubtedly, diminish as the years roll by. The period during which these unfortunate events have occurred is but as the thousandth part of a thread on the endless loom of time. And who shall declare that these incidents in the final outcome of centuries or even decades may not be fraught with graver concern to Japan herself than to any other nation or to the League?"

Situation Difficult

His address proceeded: "I am not here to criticize, much less to condemn, the course which so great a nation as Japan has resolved for herself, a nation which has given, and I believe will still give, signal service to the world. The situation that confronted her was difficult and perplexing; it seemed to her that her vital interests called for immediate action. Subject to her solemn engagements and to recognized standards of public right, Japan was fully entitled to shape and to carry out such policy as to her rulers and her people seemed essential. But, there are those among the truest friends of Japan who cannot avoid sincere regret that her policy, her course and her methods were not more in consonance with her adherence to the covenant, the Nine-power Treaty and the Pact of Paris and with the public opinion of the world.

"It must be said in justice both to Japan and to the League, that one element was wanting which might have led to a different outcome.

Membership in the League presupposes in each country the existence of a system of efficient governance capable of maintaining peace, order and good government throughout its territories and of implementing its engagements to other nations. It was at once the irony and the mischance of actual conditions that China, although a member of the League, lacked such qualification in any effectual sense. To deny to her membership would have been impossible. But, on the other hand, we are obliged to recognze that in her case this essential and indeed fundamental condition was absent.

"However, it must not be forgotten that similar conditions existed in Canada in 1922, when the Washington; and that one of the main objects of that treaty was to safeguard the territorial and administrative integrity of China until she should be able to establish a stable government.

Work Out Salvation

"In this respect China can, and beyond peradventure will, work out her own salvation. Let us assume, if you will, that even for another half century China will fail to establish such efficient system of governance as would justify the world's confidence. What is the significance of so monetary a period in her tremenous history? Beyond the shadow of a doubt I am convinced that as century succeeds century the roll-call of the nations will find China among the foremost, strong and calmly confident of her future. For her there will be neither partition nor absorption, destined as she is to take her part and place in the world's advancement as one of its greatest nations.

"I am still an earnest and sincere believer in the service of the League to humanity. What would you have put in its place during the past critical years? Let us admit that it failed to avert hostilities. If the old-time diplomacy could have succeeded, why did it not arouse itself and act?"

AUTOMATIC SPRINKLER EFFICIENT MEANS OF PROTECTING PROPERTY

S. C. DeWitt Delivers Paper to Dominion Fire Chiefs in Convention Here.

SPRINKLERS CRITICIZED.

"Automatic Supervision for Prevention of Fires and Automatic Supervisory Alarms" was the title of an interesting paper presented to the Fire Chiefs in convention here this morning, by S. C. DeWitt, of the Dominion Electric Protection Company.

There was considerable discussion aroused by the paper, during which the open circuit sprinkler systems came under a barrage of criticism. Chief George Gimblett proved to be one of the exceptions. He stated that the sprinkler system under his control in this city was functioning perfectly and had done so since they were first installed ten years ago.

"At the various conventions having to do with Fire Fighting and Prevention we are generally asked to speak on the subject of automatic supervision of buildings whether sprinklered or otherwise" said the speaker.

"By automatic supervision I mean a system that not only sends in an alarm in case of fire, but supervises itself as well. By this I mean that if any part of the system gets out of order it sends in its own trouble signal. It is not dependent on the Fire Department testing it out once a week and then perhaps having it go out of order an hour afterwards. I am not telling any secret when I mention that the inspectors of the C.F.U.A. in making an inspection in one city a little over a year ago, found six bells connected from sprinklered plants to the Fire Department inoperative. These were not supervisory systems and had nothing to show they were out of order."

"In cities large enough to maintain private Central Stations all signals and alarms go to that station. Fire alarms are transmitted instantly to the Central Station and the Fire Department."

"In smaller cities supervisory systems are used in which the fire alarm and trouble signal go direct to the Fire Department."

"It is generally conceded that the automatic sprinkler is the most effective means available for protecting property from fire."

"The next thing is to keep the water damage as small as possible. The supervisory system does this by promptly notifying the Fire Department."

"Just what is the supervisory system?"

"In addition to sending in a fire alarm caused by water flowing from a sprinkler the system must have signals to show when a line is broken or grounded."

"A gate valve closed when the water or air pressure is low. If there is a gravity tank—a low water level or a low water temperature."

"There must be provision for a trouble signal for showing if the storage battery is run down or the case broken."

"I am not going to weary you by telling you how all these things work, but I want to impress upon you the big difference between a supervisory system and a set of open circuit bells such as are to be found in most fire halls in Ontario."

"You never know about these open circuit bells—they are generally tested out on Monday mornings and they generally are all right. Are you sure that they are all right until the next Monday morning? Would you know it if a line broke or a fuse blew? They would then be inoperative.

"Is such a system safe enough to report fires?"

Mining Items

Halcrow Swayze

Halcrow Swayze Mines has completed it's shaft and sunk past 200 feet, advises Horace Strong, Company head and cross cuting has commenced. He estimates the lateral work will reach the main No. 2 vein at about 60 feet and No. 4 veins will require about 140 feet to north. The No. 4 vein will come in as work advances towards No. 2. The new discovery about 500 feet east of the shaft, on surface, is proving up substantially and as work advances it is thought this will prove extension of No. 2 vein. Diamond drilling is now under way on this latest find, which greatly broadens the picture, both as to extent of ore and values.

Nordon Corporation

Nordon Corporation on McLeod river well, Alberta, which raised high hopes a couple of months ago, ran into trouble drilling at 3,900 feet depth, according to latest official advice. The bailer stuck in the well while cleaning out, with caveins resulting 30 feet off the bottom.

Reno

Reno Gold Mines meeting was held yesterday in Vancouver but reports coming through are inconclusive. No mention is made of a statement from mine manager Marshall and estimate of reserves and general mine conditions. O. C. Thompson who signed the annual report covering 14 months explained mine development and outlined the ore formation. He stated the continuous development could be carried on over an indefinite period.

Waite Amulet

Waite Amulet Shareholders of both Amulet and Waite Mines in meeting at Montreal approved the merger plans presented. Amulet's shares will disappear, being exchangeable on the basis of 3 for 1 in the new Waite Amulet Mines which will control and work the larger acreage. Waite's ore hitherto shipped to Noranda will undoubtedly be handled in the Amulet mill, reopening of which depends on establishment of permanent ore metal prices.

Wayside

Wayside Consolidated is to start raising from the 4th to the 1st level in the ore located in the new section, reported at 20 feet wide and assaying over the full width. The work will take upwards of 6 weeks to complete and enable correlation of ore encountered.

Noranda

Noranda is reported with a crew of 10 men, and some four tons of provisions and equipment on a property in the Chibougamau.

Hollinger

Hollinger is not intending to boost it's tonnage upwards to 7,000 tons as rumored, remarks the Canadian Institute of Mining bulletin.

Barry Hollinger

Sinking of the Barry Hollinger main winze to the 2,375 foot level is now well under way. Officials hope the development of a sufficient tonnage to warrant resumption of milling will follow completion of the development.

Month-end selling got pretty well out of the way yesterday and those who tried to capitalize on it did not get very far. Tomorrow marks what is accepted as the end of the holiday season and it is generally agreed that the market has been discounting this event for some time now. In other words pretty nearly everyone is predicting a rattling good market in September and this feeling is so unanimous that it would not surprise us if today was marked by a real rally.

Stocks are none too plentiful and if the buying comes in, and we think it will, the market is certain to close higher with the real possibility of a drive for stocks starting Friday.

Still convinced that something big is near at hand for gold. —Dan Cushing.

COUNCIL FACES FRAUD CHARGES

Cobourg Mayor and Four Councillors to Appear in Court.

SEWER DISPUTE.

COBOURG, August 31. — Summons to appear in Police Court next Tuesday, September 5, to answer charges of conspiracy to defraud have been served on Mayor Jack Delanty of Cobourg, and four Cobourg Councillors, Archie Russell W. J. Maher, Reuben Jackson, and William Jennings. Arising out of a dispute over the laying of a sewer, the charges were laid by Harry A. Allan.

The dispute arose early this year. According to members of the Cobourg Council, two residents on Ann Street approached Mr. Allan for permission to connect their houses with a private sewer owned by Mr. Allan. The residents viewed the price asked by Mr. Allan for the privilege as too high and appealed to the Council. The Council in turn made Mr. Allan a second offer which he refused to accept, and then proceeded to lay a separate sewer to supply the wants of the two residents. The sewer connections had been ordered by the Board of Health and considered urgent by the Council, councillors stated.

The defendant Mayor and councillars disclaim any legal responsibility in the matter. They state that they made Mr. Allan a reasonable offer for the use of his sewer, and that his rejection of the offer forced them to proceed with the new sewer.

"Mr. Allan's charge is ridiculous," was the Mayor's comment.

In an interview, Mr. Allan stated that the charges will be executed on the grounds that, in building the separate sewer, the councillors' action has had the effect of condemning his sewer and lessening its commercial value to him, thereby defrauding him of revenue from the sewer.

Birds Of Feather Flock To Autumn Hats

Top left, gray velvet ribbon hat with ostrich tips; centre, visor turban with upcurled points; right, "Lady Lou" ensemble; below, tricorne dinner hat with veil.

"BIRDS of a feather flock together," they say, but feathers seem to be flocking very industriously to the new hats. They are used variously, and especially to accent the popular trend in height.

The first chapeau shown, at the upper left, is developed in gray velvet ribbon on fatigue cap lines. Tiny ostrich tips outline the centre seam and give the aforementioned height to the hat, which is finished by a veil.

The same effect is obtained in the gray velvet dinner or theatre hat, right, which completes the "Lady Lou" ensemble of eel gray ostrich cape. Tiny white ostrich tips give the effect of height at the top of the crown.

The visor cap, centre, shows Japanese influence in its four upcurled points on the crown.

The tricorne is one of the most popular modes, and persists in some form almost every season. It is exemplified in the dinner or theatre hat, below, of black lace with satin cording, and tricky veil gathered at the top of the crown.—By Central Press.

OUTING ENJOYED BY FIRE CHIEFS

Convention Delegates Enjoy Sail Up Trent to South Beach.

WATER SPORTS.

Doubtless for many years to come, the Fire Chiefs will look back upon yesterday's outing to Clear Lake, as the outstanding social and entertainment even, on the program at the 25th annual convention of the Dominion Association of Fire Chiefs.

From the moment the good ship "Stoney Lake" steamed away from the George street government wharf until she docked there again at midnight, all went "merry as a marriage bell."

At South Beach, a splendid program of water sports was witnessed by the delegates and their ladies; a bountiful luncheon was served under the spreading trees in the grounds of South Beach; and dancing was enjoyed in the hotel ballroom to the music supplied by Red Moncrief and his Haymakers.

Sea flea racing demonstrations were staged under the direction of Hugh M. Campbell, general manager Canadian Johnson Motor Company, and Hy Wood, factory superintendent Canadian Motor Company. The drivers who put on some well-timed and thrilling races, were: Don Wood, Robert Ardiel and Bruce Payne, and Bus Elliott of Buffalo.

Don Wood is holder of the Canadian professional sea flea record at 54 m.p.h.; Robert Ardiel is holder of the D. Class record at 47 m.p.h.; while Bus Elliott was runner-up amongst the "champs." He recently took two firsts and a second prize for flea racing at Buffalo.

In a hand-shaking contest, Mrs. Harry Guerin, wife of the genial president of the Association, was declared winners of a prize by Chief George Gimblett, the convention host.

As dark closed in, an interesting demonstration was staged by the Canadian Johnson Motor officials, proving the efficiency of the Johnson-Tremblay pumps. Two outfits were put into operation, and a lively water battle was staged between Fireman James Macfarlane who wielded his hose against Fireman Stewart Finney and Gerald Fitzgerald. The combatants were attired in rubber coats and high boots—and they sure needed them. The idea of the contest was to knock off a contestant's fire hat with the water from the hose under high pressure. It was a contest that took some skill and not a little pluck—Macfarlane won, in spite of the fact that he was single-handed.

MILLBROOK COUP LE HONORED ON EVE OF 25 TH ANNIVERSARY

Guests Present Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Bentley With Gifts of Silverware.

OVER 80 ATTEND.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 31 (Examiner Correspondence). — A pleasant surprse was prepared for Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Bentley on Tuesday evening when over eighty guests literally "took their home by storm" to honor the 25th anniversary of their wedding-day, and to give tangible expression to the high esteem in which these popular citizens are held.

From a distance, from the community, and from a wide area of the sorrounding countryside, the guests arrived until the house was filled and the lighted verandah and the living-room porch had their full quota of occupants beside. The fine night with its brilliant moonlight, the warm-hearted hospitality for which Councillor and Mrs. Bentley are well known, together with the careful and happy arrangement of all details by the committee in charge, combined to make the social side of the occasion of the most enjoyable nature.

H. A. Fallis acted as chairman for the informal program, inviting the "guests of honor" to central seats amid the company, while all joined in singing the chorus of "Put On Your Old Grey Bonnet," led by Miss Isabelle Black of Peterborough. Mrs. J. W. Hamilton read an appreciative address, and on behalf of a wide circle of relatives and friends, Mrs. W. E. Ball and Mr. Hamilton presented the bride and groom of 25 years' standing with a set of flatware in community plate and Adam patterns, comprising one dozen each of hollow-handled dinner knives and forks, salad forks, tea spoons and butter spreaders.

Accompanying the community gift was a pierced silved cake basket from Mr. and Mrs. H. Scott of Toronto, who were the attendants when Mr. and Mrs. Bentley were united in marriage in the Methodist Parsonage at Trenton a quarter of a century ago, and were themselves made bride and groom at the double wedding, the celebration of their silver anniversary taking place at their home in the Queen City on Tuesday evening, hence their inability to be present at the similar happy gathering here. An embroidered linen dinner cloth was also a part of the gift presentation, this coming from Mr. and Mrs. W. Althouse of Picton, the home town of Mr. and Mrs. Bentley.

22 Years in Millbrook

The hearty singing of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," followed by three lusty cheers helped to relieve the embarrassment always incident to a surprise such as that provided for the guests of honr at Tuesday's anniversary occasion; Mr. Bentley replying briefly on behalf of his wife and himself, and emphasizing especially their pleasure in the friendships formed during the 22 years of their residence in Millbrook.

Others who spoke appreciatively of the fine type of home life, and of good citizenship generally, of which Mr. and Mrs. Bentley have been the exponents during their married life together, were Reeve P. Stinson, who brought greetings and good wishes from the Municipal Council of which Mr. Bentley has been a member for some years, and also referred to his admirable record in fraternal circles, his membership including the Masonic Order and the Odd Fellows. Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., and A. J. Fallis, ex-M.P.P., followed along the same line with complimentary remarks, mentioning the capacity for making and keeping friends as an outstanding characteristic. Readings by Miss Jean L. Burnham, and solos by Miss Isabel Black completed the program, and shortly afterward the committee in charge, with a number of the gentlemen assisting, served a dainty lunch.

Personal good wishes for continued health and happiness were warmly extended as good-nights were spoken, some of the guests remaining for a game of cards, but the majority leaving shortly before midnight. Among those intimate friends and relatives who came from a distance for the happy event were Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Thomas, and Mrs. N. Mark, of Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Scott, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Scott of Picton; Mr. McLean of Beaverton; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brooks, their daughter, Miss Ena, and son, Master Fay, of Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. R. Jones, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Whyte, of Hamilton; W. Porteous of Nestleton, and several others.

The committee included Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Fallis, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hamilton, and Mrs. and Mrs. W. E. Ball.

70 YEAR OLD SPINSTER TEACHER LEAVES LEGACY TO OPEN SCHOOL

Wants Ideas for Girls' Education Perpetuated—No Drinking, Smoking.

RELIGIOUS TRAINING.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (C.P.).—The sum of a 70-year-old spinster teacher's view of girls and their training —a curious mixture of the quasi-Victorian and the ultra-modern — has been placed on fyle in Surrogate Court, White Plains.

It was the will of Caffity E. Mason, founder and head of the Castle, finishing school for girls, which she established 38 years ago in Tarrytown. Miss Mason, a teacher for 50 years, left a legacy which she hoped would amount, in trust, to $5,000,000, to perpetuate her ideas in education; and these ideas, in brief, are:

Girls should not smoke or drink.

Girls should be modern.

Girls should have a Christian education.

Girls should be schooled in all modern subjects — particularly in citizenship, in social service, in leadership, and their education should keep pace with that of men.

Girls should be sent from school, with a knowledge of eugenics, of social evils, of manners and polish, and of motherhood.

To carry out this blending of the old and new in pedagogy, Miss Mason, who died August 24, appoints trustees to invest the principal of her estate in trust until it reaches $5,000,000.

The $5,000,000 then is to be used for establishment of a college or school, to be known as the Mason College or Mason School, to carry out her ideas of training.

The college must be one "which does not permit smoking or drinking, and does not neglect sound religious teaching.'

CANADA--An Adventure in Nation Building

Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett Defends Ottawa Conference

By the Rt. Hon. R. B. BENNETT LL.D., K.C., Prime Minister of Canada

Copyright, 1933, by The Examiner and Central Press Canadian

Canada represents an adventure in nation-building — against geography, against economic forces and also, in some respects, against the historic development of North America. The impulse which moved Canadians to preserve the northern half of the American continent from swinging into the orbit of a great and contiguous economic unit, and to maintain in that territory a distinctive British-Canadian union, is the epic of history that we celebrate as Dominion Day.

Canada is in the truest sense the product of industry and perseverance. Stern economic facts, the struggles of our pioneer forefathers, constant pressure of material forces—these are the elements that fashioned her national character. But there is a romantic and a deep spiritual importance in the drama of her development.

I think it may be said that there are three distinctive factors that contribute to the making of the Dominion of Canada. In the early days of colonization of the North American continent, the British colonists, with that practical bent for which the British race is famous, settled in solid formation between the Alleghany Mountains and the Atlantic Ocean, from Maine to Georgia, which included the original Thirteen Colonies; while the French, who represented the regime of the Bourbons, made their way up the St. Lawrence and up the Mississippi, there to occupy the two sides of a triangle of which the British settlements constituted the base.

Rt. Hon. Richard B. Bennett "Records show decline, but....."

The result of the conflict which followed is a matter of history. The trials of the early French missionaries in their crusade to establish the cross in a new world inhabited by the Indian, their quiet resolve to substitute Christian love for savage cruelty, has been written in verse and has provided the substance of much historical fiction. The noble attempt of those who represented the flower of the French kingdom to carry to a new world a dynasty that the old world was about to destroy is a fine example of adventure, not less heroic because it failed.

French Clung to British

These French colonists, deserted by France, defeated by the English, refused partnership in the new republic and clung hopefully to the British crown as an instrument of government under which they believed their own cultural and political institutions would find their most secure and permanent setting. Nor was their faith either misplaced or betrayed. It must always be remembered that the attitude the French colonists took towards the British crown after they had been defeated at Quebec, as an example of security and individual liberty, was of first importance in the making of the Dominion of Canada.

Then came the United Empire Loyalist Settlers to Canada. Before the present constitution of the United States had emerged from the Philadelphia convention in 1787, there was an interlude of stark disillusionment. These revolutionists had fought for what they conceived to be liberty. They had established independent commonwealths, based on the revolutionary concept of distrust and fear. Liberty, their inspiration during the war, had thrown among these commonwealth states an apple of discord, and many of these people realized what an almost imperceptible difference there is between liberty and license in the organization of human society. From this attitude of doubt, distrust, fear and recrimination there turned many thousands of United Empire Loyalists, some of them landing one hundred and fifty years ago at what is now the Harbor of St. John, others in Ontario, going to the Bay of Quinte district, to rededicate their belief in the sure and steady political processes that have characterized British constitutional development.

"From Sea to Sea"

It is difficult today to visualize the scenes of those episodes, remnants of which have been, happily, preserved; men and women turning from reasonable comfort, badly provisioned, and with little prospect of material comforts, to link their fortunes with those who were determined to restore to a new land the British system. Then the process went on, as it did in England during one hundred years previously, of that play of forces between central authority and local claims to autonomy, the cabinet system, self-governing legislatures, with the crown's representative advised by ministers responsible to elected representatives.

Then there was a new vision. Joseph Howe, in 1859, made the forecast that people then listening to his voice would live to hear the whistle of the steam engines in the passes of the Rocky Mountains and see the journey made from Halifax to Vancouver in six days. Confederation was the practical implementation of this vision. A mari usque ad mare expressed the political sentiment of these founders—that the new concept of Canada could best be expressed in the Scriptural passage: "He shall have dominion from sea to sea."

There was still much to be done. The western part of Canada then became a colony of the new Dominion. The Canadian Pacific Railway was completed, the last spike being driven by Lord Strathcona, in 1885.

Here was a new empire in itself over which the buffalo roamed and in which the only means of communication was the Red River oxcart—a land for wheat and barley, waiting for the modern machinery of civilization to turn it into what became, during the Great War, the greatest single source of foodstuffs and supplies.

Into this new land came people from all parts of Europe. You can ride through its towns and villages to-day, and see the different racial and cultural groups—a mosaic of European civilization.

This I would mention as the third great element in our political life.

But let it not be forgotten that in all this great development the British and French were the pioneers, and that, by their common devotion and loyalty to the Crown re-transplanted into this territory, there was given to their institutions the same British character which prevailed in Eastern Canada, and which means to-day that in all these diverse elements we find a common attachment to the institutions of its Motherland.

The Dominion of Canada, as I have said, is an adventure in nation-building, but the difficulties which geography and economic circumstances have imposed upon it have been the making of its spiritual character.

Ranks High in Exportation.

It is not material resources that make a nation. These we have in Canada. In the production and exportation of many staple products, Canada ranks high among the leading nations of the world. She leads the world in the production of newsprint, paper, nickel and asbestos; occupies second place in the production of gold; in the output of wheat and zinc she occupies third place; and fourth place in the production of automobiles, copper, and lead.

In export trade, Canada leads the world in the export of wheat, newsprint, nickel and asbestos; occupies third place in exports of wheat flour, fourth place in the export of automobiles, and wood pulp; and fifth place in the export of rubber tires. Canada also ranks high in the world's exports of many other staple products, such as lumber, fish copper, barley, cheese, raw furs, meats, farm implements, cattle, raw gold, silver, rye, oats, rubber, footwear, leather, photographic films, and hides.

Our national wealth increased from under one and a half billion dollars at the time of Confederation to thirty billion dollars in 1929. Manufacturing now takes precedence over agriculture in the net value of production for the whole of Canada. Agricultural production in 1930 represented 23.6 per cent. of the net output of all branches, while the corresponding figure for manufactures was 54.8 per cent. Forestry, construction and mining were the next most important branches of production. The output of the Canadian mines in 1932 was officially estimated at $182,000,000.

Despise Fear, Love Sacrifice

But these do not represent the real basic assets of its people. I could name countries of vast, almost unlimited resources, who are not named to-day among the Great Powers. I could also name countries comparatively poor in physical and natural resources who, in education and scientific development, have led the nations of the earth. The greatness of a nation does not in any sense arise out of its material resources. It arises rather from those divine impulses which cause people to shun comfore in the service of humanity, to despise fear and love sacrifice; and these attributes are most wholesomely expressed in that concept of racial existence which we call a nation.

I have been speaking of Canada as a Dominion. To stop there would be far indeed from doing justice to its place among the peoples of the earth. There is an association which which extends far beyond its boundaries—yes, even to the ends of the earth. It is that strange community of nations, all owing allegiance to one Crown, and comprising one-fourth of the human race, which we call the British Empire. In that association Canada has permanently and freely chosen to work out her national life. By the strengthening of its ties she will find her national life enriched. If she loosens these ties, she seeks her own impoverishment.

That association it is her determination to strengthen. When we met at Ottawa we entered into certain Imperial agreements with a view to giving the backbone of reality to this spiritual concept called the British Empire.

Empire Can Hold Together

The Ottawa agreements do not discourage greater world markets. Rich customers mean our prosperity. But we created a framework within which the nations of the British Empire may expand their trade with one another without excluding the possibility of promoting the exchange of goods with countries outside the commonwealth.

If the nations of the world are not able to decide on a practical alternative to the doctrine of national self-sufficiency, the countries of the British Empire can withstand the contraction in international trade which must inevitably follow, because we are assured of a wide field in which the trade of our respective countries may have the opportunity to expand.

The Ottawa agreements are proving effective in the promotion of intra-empire trade. Exports from Canada to all parts of the empire show encouraging increases, both in respect of value and of volume. Comparing the two fiscal years ending March, 1932, and 1933, we find that the proportion of our total exports going to empire countries increased from 38 to nearly 47 per cent.

The United Kingdom trade agreement with Canada is enabling the United Kingdom to secure an increasing share of the Canadian market. True, the trade returns record a decline in the value of our imports of United Kingdom goods, but this is accounted for by the falling-off in Canada, in common with all other countries, of purchasing power due to the world depression of trade.

U.K. Exports to Canada Increase.

The true picture of the stimulus given to the United Kingdom trade by the Ottawa conference is seen in an examination of the percentage of the total imports into Canada from different sources of supply. For example, whereas in the fiscal year ending March, 1932, the United Kingdom supplied 18.4 per cent. of the total imports, in the last fiscal year ending March, 1933, she supplied 21.3 per cent. This increase in the proportion of imports derived from the United Kingdom is a striking illustration of the value of these agreements to empire trade, particularly when it is remembered that they had been in force for less than six months of the last fiscal year.

And thus in the fields of domestic and empire operation, we have maintained for 67 years an important position—the oldest of the dominions, giving to the world an example of the success of a federal union, and of the value of the declaration of 1926. And in the larger field of world affairs our valiant men have earned a place and have inscribed the name of Canada high up on the bead roll of fame, while Canada has also an honored place within the League of Nations.

Hero's Offer

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 31.—(CP)—Herbert Brown, 27-year-old ex-soldier, has offered himself as an experimental subject in the fight against sleeping sickness.

Brown described himself as a victim of tuberculosis unable to work and expressed the desire to "do something useful before I die." He asked that physicians in St. Louis, where encephalities had made heavy inreads, be acquainted of his offer.

BOOM IN STORKS

BERLIN. — A good omen for the new regime is seen in the fact that storks have multiplied in Germany along with the growth of the Hitler movement, says The Deutsche Jaeger Zeitun, a sporting journal. In Eastern Saxony alone, the number of storks' nest have more than doubled in the last five years.

MARMORA HAS SPORT CARNIVAL

Calithumpian Parade Leads Way to Fair Grounds for Program.

KEEN COMPETITION.

MARMORA, Aug. 31. (Examiner Correspondence)—Marmora's sports and street carnival held on Wednesday as its civic holiday program, sponsored by the Marmora Agricultural Society, was favored with delightful weather and provided much enjoyment for the goodly sized crowd which participated. At 1.30 p.m. a calithumpian parade left the Memorial Hall for the Fair Grounds, there being over thirty entries for the prizes which were awarded as follows:

Best fancy dress: gents, (Mad Hatter) Don Auger; ladys, (Pink Doll) Hilda Phillips. Best comic outfit, Rita Deacon and Mrs. G. McWilliams.

Then followed an excellent musical program from the bandstand by the Clover Hullers Orchestra. Through a serious illness befalling a near relative, Jack Thyne, the Kansas Farmer was prevented from appearing with his aggregation but Roy McMichael "The Hired Boy" rose to the occasion with his great variety of song numbers which, with splendidly rendered orchestra numbers by the Clover Hullers enlivened the crowd. Five of this orchestra which has had a long list of engagements in Western Ontario since coming into existence at Brussels, Ont., three years ago, were known for nine years as the Jackson Family. They are: Bert Jackson, violin; Mrs. Bert Jackson, banjo; Edna, piano; Frances, traps; Harry, trumpet. With the men attired in overalls and the ladies in gingham, they present a truly novel appearance and they entertain liberally. Succeeding their performance was the sports.

Softball Games

The softball game between men's teams from Springbrook and Mount Pleasant was closely contested, Springbrook coming from behind in the seventh to win by 9-7. In the fourth, Warren for the losers scored a home run and K. Holmes, his teammate, got a three bagger. Blea's triple hit in the fifth brought in Springbrook's first run. The teams:

Springbrook—M. Heath, 3b; T. Ward, rf, 3b; W. Rickman, ss; L. Bateman, p; G. Williams, c; W. Heath, 2b; C. Burkitt, cf; G. Haslett, 1b; T. Blea, lf; A. Brown, rf.

Mount Pleasant—C. Holmes, 1b; J. Coggins, c; A. Kellar, p; H. Higgs, 3b; H. Brown, 2b; A. Warren, ss; A. Fraser, cf; K. Holmes, rf; C. Dunkley, lf.

Umpires: T. Moffat, at plate, W. Quinn on bases.

Score by innings:

Springbrook	000 024 3—9
Mount Pleasant	110 500 0—7

Following this game was an exhibition fixture between Tweed and Deloro, Trent Valley League teams, in which the former won by 9-6. Fred Callery, who was on the mound for Deloro, was not so effective as usual because of a galaxy of left hand batters on the Tweed nine. Callahan pitched fine ball except in the fifth and seventh innings when the Smelters obtained a trio of runs in each. The features of the game were a two bagger by McInroy in the seventh which brought in two runs and a double play in the ninth when Orr touched second to put out McInroy and threw to first to dispose of F. Callery. The teams were:

Tweed—Cordy, cf; Quinn, 1b; Simpson, 3b; Marsh, rf; D. Casey, c; P. Casey, 2b; Callahan, p; Orr, ss; Campbell, lf.

Deloro—Stewart, c, 1b; McInroy, 1b, c; F. Callery, p; M. Callery, cf; V. Callery, 2b; Simmons, 3b; Hewitt, rf; Gray, ss, 3b; Cousins, lf; Laveless, lf; Smith, 3b; O'Neill, lf, 2b.

Score by innings: R. H. E.

Deloro	000 030 300—6	12	3
Tweed	112 300 02x—9	13	0

Umpires: G. Kennedy, Havelock, at plate; F. Wells, Marmora, on bases.

The athletic events were marked with unusually good competition. In the 100 yards and 220 yards dashes, W. Simmons, Deloro, came in first; with T. Shannon, Marmora securing second place. In the broad jump, George O'Neill, Deloro was successful with the distance of 17 feet, 8 inches; Manley Emmorey, Toronto, came second.

The brothers, John and George O'Neill, Deloro, did best in the high jump, John eventually winning through clearing 5 feet 1 inch against 4 feet 11 inches cleared by his brother.

Owing to the lateness of the hour, the 2-mile race was changed to a 1½ mile event. In this W. Simmons Deloro, was an easy winner and for the third time in the afternoon, Tom Shannon, Marmora, was his second.

Refreshments were served on the grounds by the Marmora Women's Institute while R. E. Bonter and T. E. Neal managed one booth and M. Kowri and A. T. Neal superintended another. Harry Dunlay and Ralph Neal were in charge of games. For the dance in the evening, as last year, Forsyth Street was fenced off and furnished with a good platform for the evening music. After "The Hired Boy" had given another selection of songs Charles Jones as caller got the dance well under way to good music by the Clover Hullers, receiving assistance from Clarence Campion. The Flindall Sound System of Brighton furnished amplifiers and merrily went the dance. Altogether, the sports and street carnival was a pleasing success.

STORE LOOTED AT THOMASBURG

Raymond Oliver Suffers Loss of Men's Articles and Cigarettes.

GAS TANKS RAIDED.

(Examiner Correspondence)

THOMASBURG, Aug. 31.— Mr. Raymond Oliver's store was broken into on Monday evening and fine shirts, cigarettes, cigarette lighters and men's articles were stolen. The thieves gained entrance by breaking a window in the front of the store.

They also stole gas from tanks owned by Messrs Henry Blakely and Clifford Adams.

Provincial police from Belleville are investigating.

Mr. Dan Cauffee's store at Ried was also broken into the same night.

The Maritime Provinces show a considerable regional difference in crop production, although fruit and potatoes are the most important cash crops, with especially favored conditions for their production.

For Day And Evening

BANDEAUX and hair ornaments are securely established in the very best circles. It all started with a clip of brilliants worn at the left temple to hold the curls back from the forehead.

Now it had grown to an Alice in Wonderland comb effect just across the top of the head, or to clips in star shapes or other designs of brilliants or colored crystals.

The Alice comb is shown by Shirley Grey, top, as is worn for daytime.

Below, Gail Patrick, another featured screen player, shows it in elaborate jeweled design for evening.

WOOD AND PAINE LIKELY TO HAVE NEW OPPONENT

self as satisfied with his little Miss Britain III, that lacks much in size and horsepower compared to the defender. He has said that he believed he had a chance against Wood, and that if he did not win he would return again until he finally has captured the trophy. He has not revealed the potential speed of his 1,375 horsepower motor.

It is generally conceded to be what is loosely termed a "hundred mile an hour" craft by veteran speedboat builders here. But no Harmsworth race ever has seen a 100 mile an hour average in competition, and Scott-Paine's friends believe he designed his strange appearing craft with that very fact in mind.

Perhaps, they say, his tiny craft —it's just 24½ feet long— can turn up that average speed not only on the straightaways but on the turns. Wood, they assert, may be able to cut loose on the straightaways, but he must slow down sharply on the short turns.

The course has two three-mile straightaways with the two turns furnishing the seventh mile of the 35-mile (nautical semi-elliph.

The Harmsworth is labelled the British International Trophy contest and this year it will have more of an international flavor than ever before because although the course is in American waters, the contesting boats cannot possibly keep out of Canadian waters in making the wide, sweeping turns.

Scott-Paine, it developed yesterday plans to take no chances with his boat, after the finish of the catapulting drive around the course in the race proper. He has engaged a Canadian wrecking tug and as soon as Miss Britain III crosses the finish line, instead of being towed back to her boatwell, she will be lifted out of the water, placed on a lighter and carried back to the well.

The precaution was decided upon to avoid the possibility of damage to the craft from rough water or from the roll that may be churned up by scores of craft that will swarm over the course after the race.

Sees Move to Destroy Route.

"An apparent move to destroy the Hudson Bay route for shipment of grain," was seen by Mr Ward. He believed Eastern interests were sponsoring the effort. As a contract he declared the Lake Shippers Association five months ago told the Federal Government wheat could not be carried from the lake head to Montreal at seven cents a bushel yet to-day the rate was down to half that figure.

Prospects of the shipping season ending before it was necessary was noted by Col. F. J. James Regina vice-president for Saskatchewan of the In-to-the-Bay Association after the S.S. Pennyworth loaded a wheat cargo to cross the Atlantic. The decline in supply of wheat at the port would leave ships without cargoes, he declared.

WILLIAM JOHNSON.
LINDSAY, Aug. 31.—One of the oldest pioneers of the Northland, in the person of William Johnson, formerly of Lindsay, passed away at his home, Buena Vista, South Lake, Minden, and was buried in Riverside Cemetery, Lindsay, last week, by the Masonic Order.
The late Mr. Johnson was eighty-one years of age at the time of his death, and had spent the greater part of his life working for the Hudson Bay Company. He came out to Canada from England, around 1870, and started with the Hudson Bay Company in the Northland. He was widely known along the trails of the North and was a Justice of the Peace in the Mackenzie River country, where he was always called Judge Johnson. Seventeen years of his adventurous life were spent inside the Arctic Circle.
Retiring from the company, Mr. Johnson settled down at South Lake, Minden. A few years ago he received a gold medal in appreciation of his services with the Hudson Bay Company.
His widow, Mrs. Lila Johnson, is a sister of Mrs. John T. Hornsby, Aylmer street, Peterborough.

Interest In Swim Beginning To Fade

Interest in the annual C.N.E. marathon swim is dying if the number of result inquiries received at The Examiner yesterday is to be taken as a true indication. About 400 calls as compared with inquiry totals running into the thousands in other years, were answered by the staff during the afternoon and evening.
The Petes-Ponies baseball game in Napanee undoubtedly held the spotlight in the interest of Peterborough people. Approximately 1,600 inquiries were answered between four o'clock and ten o'clock. Possibly the big game distracted interest from the swim but relatively few of those seeking the score of the game bothered to inquire regarding the marathon. About 200 calls indicated considerable interest in the Sugar Bowl-Smith-Baldwin softball game in Lindsay.
The usual abundance of sidelight on the psychology of the general public was provided during the avalanche of calls. Picking up the receiver and acknowledging a call with the greeting, "editorial", one reporter heard a lady say apologetically, "Oh, I'm sorry. I asked them to give me The Examiner!" Sighs and groans frequently indicated the reaction of the inquirers when they were informed of the disastrous 9-4 ball score.
Of note was the observation that few inquirers bother to thank their informant when the score news he seeks is bad. Instead of the cheery "Thank you" usually heard when The Examiner is able to report a Peterborough victory in the case of a ball game, the callers hung up their receivers without a word more often than not. The staff has learned to charge such things up to human nature.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

In every family there are two or more women who share in the work of homemaking, there can be a certain amount of community and co-operative housekeeping.

• • • • • •

Much has been said and written about the advantages of minimized labor in community housekeeping, but repeated experiments have proven the disadvantages of comparatively large groups of unrelated persons attempting to keep it up.

• • • • • •

Uncongeniality of temperaments was largely at fault. But what fails with unrelated groups can be carried on successfully within the limits of a home, with persons who are all working for the good of their own establishment.

• • • • • •

It is important to have a well established basis of cooperation.

• • • • • •

Let us imagine a home in which there are two, three or even more women adults. They may be sisters, or mother and daughters. Each has some special ability and preference for some part of the work.

• • • • • •

One woman may find pleasure in cooking, another in keeping rooms in order and spic and span. One may delight in going to market and seeing and picking out the attractive foods and the needed edibles.

• • • • • •

One may find making beds and doing the upstairs work not at all irksome while another may dislike it decidedly. One may find the laundry work a part suited to her preference while others may find it tiresome and uncongenial.

• • • • • •

There are some women who like to wash while others like to iron. Perhaps it may be so in the households in question. If so, here is a good division of the laundry work.

• • • • • •

In the cooking line there are various preferences, and co-operative cookery is much easier on everyone.

• • • • • •

A home is, in reality, a small community. There are various departments. The competent homemaker learns to run them all well. But when there are other women in the family, each should take some department—some special part of the work and assume the responsiblity of it.

• • • • • •

This is a great relief to the homemaker. The division of labor permits each person to have a share of leisure. Without such division, one woman overworks and the rest have the leisure, which is apt to mean leisure to criticize.

• • • • • •

Divided activity makes each respect the other's part, for work respects work. The co-operative housekeeping suggested has been proven a good idea.

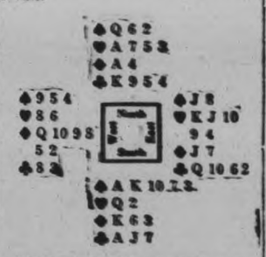
SUCH THINGS HAPPEN OFTEN

BECAUSE a venturesome player has an expert partner it happens more often than it should that the generous bidder lets his partner try for slams upon slight excuses. It may be flattering to the fine player, but often it is also annoying, as was the case with the following hand. The declarer's fine deductions enabled him to play the hand beautifully. He deserves credit.



North jumped his partner's opening bid of 1-Spade into 2-No Trumps, to discover whether or not South had rebid values in spades. When South bid 3-Spades North jumped into 6-Spades, which was a desperate leap in the dark, even if nobody doubled.

The opening lead was the 8 of diamonds, which was full of information for as excellent an analyst as North. As the lead obviously was not from Q-J-10 or J-10-9, or an honor would have been led, the 8 appeared to be a fourth-best lead from either Q-J-9-8 or Q-10-9-8, meaning that East held just one higher card of the suit, either the J or the 10. When dummy's Ace won the trick, East dropped the 7, apparently meaning that West had held 6 diamonds and that East could ruff the third round of the suit.

Dummy's lowest spade was led. East played the 8, marking him with either a singleton, the 9 or J-9 still left, provided he was not false-carding. The K won the trick. One more round of trumps was necessary to find whether East was to outruff dummy when the third lead of diamonds was made. A low spade was led. Dummy's Q captured East's J. Dummy's last diamond was led. Declarer's K won, and dummy's last trump ruffed declarer's last diamond. East discarded the 10 of hearts, showing the K-J back of dummy's Ace. If East also held the Q of clubs a grand slam was possible through a squeeze. Every player dearly loves to make a grand slam on a small slam bid.

The 4 of clubs was led from dummy. Declarer's J won a finesse. The declarer pulled West's last trump. Dummy's Ace of hearts won the next trick. The Ace of clubs won a trick. Upon two leads of trumps dummy's last two hearts went. At the critical eleventh trick East had to let go a club or his K of hearts. He had to trust that East held the Q of hearts, as East knew that dummy's K-9 of clubs would rim the two last tricks for a grand slam if he let go a club. When South saw the K of hearts discarded he led his Q of hearts and wound up by winning his thirteenth straight trick with dummy's K of clubs.

Dr. Clendening

"IN CONCLUSION," states a recent report on the summary of ten years' hay fever treatment, "the best that can be said is that the results obtained under the present methods of treatment are highly unsatisfactory."

The report covers only the results of attempting prevention by vaccines.

If this is true, it would seem that the poor hay fever patient is in a bad way. And so he was ten years ago. I believe, however, to-day that there is more hope than is indicated, and that most hay fever patients can obtain relief after the season has started by using air filters or air conditioning apparatus in their rooms.

In an earlier article this week, there was summarized the carefully checked experiments at the University of Illinois, which showed that more than 80 per cent of the patients were relieved of hay fever when a room fitted with an air filter was occupied.

The same thing applies to air conditioning apparatus, as proved by a test by the refrigerating division of a motor manufacturing concern using their apparatus. Doubtless the same would hold good for any type of air conditioning machine.

In this test groups of patients suffering with hay fever were admitted to the room in which the air conditioning apparatus was installed.

Says the report:

"In the individuals suffering with symptoms of hay fever uncomplicated by asthma, a striking change was noted in from 10 to 15 minutes. Within an hour the symptoms had entirely subsided, and after two hours the individuals, who had previously been most miserable, had no evidence of hay fever. These patients were then returned to the rooms of the clinic. Within 15 minutes symptoms developed, and in an hour these patients were as miserable as when they first went into the room. Patients who were suffering not only from asthma, did not respond quite so rapidly, although within an hour there was a striking improvement in their general condition."

One of the remarkable things about the test was that pollen grains deliberately blown into the room disappeared in a short time. They were evidently sucked into the condensing aparatus which removes the humidity.

The only drawback to the treatment is the expense. In the name of all humanity it is to be hoped that the expense of these remarkable air conditioning machines will be reduced. As an alternative, people might adopt the scheme recently humorously depicted in a cartoon of a whole family, who brought cots and kitchenette into an air conditioned movie theater, and set up housekeeping there.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

E. B.: "I wonder whether you could give me some information and sure cures for the skin infection known as the itch or scabies?"

Answer: Scabies is due to the presence of a small insect parasite, and nothing will cure it until the parasite is killed. This can be accomplished by sulphur in some form; a 1 per cent ointment of precipitated sulphur. This should be rubbed on the scabby places on the skin for two or three nights in succession. The treatment should not be continued further for a week, because the sulphur is likely to irritate the skin.

MENU HINTS

Scalloped Beans Harvard Beets
Whole Wheat Rolls
Cottage Cheese Pie
Coffee

This is a luncheon or supper menu. Some radishes or green onions or celery might be served with it for crunchiness, if you do not serve a salad. The cottage cheese pie helps you to use up the sour milk you usually have on hand in hot weather.

To-day's Recipes

Scalloped Beans—Wash two cups of dried kidney beans, cover with a quart of water, and soak over night. In the morning discard the water, cook the beans in one quart of salted water until tender but not broken, and drain. Brown one chopped onion with one cup diced salt pork in a skillet, add the beans, two cups tomato juice and one-half teaspoon salt. Heat to the boiling point and pour into a shallow baking dish. Cook in the oven for about 45 minutes, or until the tomato has thickened. Serve from the baking dish.

Harvard Beets—Wash six medium-sized beets, cook them in boiling water until tender, remove the skins, then cut the beets into thin slices or cubes. Mix half a cup sugar with one tablespoon cornstarch and half teaspoon salt, add half teaspoon vinegar and let the sauce boil for five minutes, stirring constantly. Add two tablespoons fat, pour the sauce over the beets and let stand for a few minutes to absorb the sweetsour flavor of the sauce.

Cottage Cheese Pie—One pound cottage cheese, one-third cup sugar, one-fourth cup milk, three eggs, beaten, one-half cup chopped raisins, one-half teaspoon salt, rind and juice of one lemon, one tablespoon melted butter, pastry. Press the cheese through a fine sieve. Add the other ingredients and stir until well mixed. Line a deep pie tin with pastry and bake until a delicate brown. Fill with the cheese mixture. Bake in a moderate oven until firm in the center, about 15 to 20 minutes.

Petes Lose and Kingston Retains League Title

SUPERIOR HITTING ABILITY OF PONIES GIVES THEM EDGE

Petes Flourish Bats With Purpose in Eighth, But Ponies Regain Runs.

FOUR PITCHERS IN GAME.

The Petes reached the end of the trail in Napanee yesterday, Kingston taking a 9-4 decision to retain the Central Ontario League championship another year. Twelve hundred fans saw Knotty Lee's team turned back in the final game of the play-offs, a game that was all Kingston's. The difference in hitting ability was the difference in the way the outfits finished—Kingston as champions again, and the Petes as "also rans."

Only in the eighth did the Liftlockers come through at bat, and they got three runs then to draw within one of their opponents. But the latter stepped out and cinched the contest in their half with a barrage of bingles that left no room for doubt as to which was the better team. Before the eighth, the Petes got but five safe hits, always with one or two out. And the fielding of the late Vern Beavis was sadly missed in the right garden; the winners dropping three flukey hits in short right.

Russ Kitchen started strong on the locals' mound, but ran into trouble in the second, and he was chased in the fourth after walking two and being nicked for a double and a single in a row. Bill Calladine then took up the burden and pitched fine ball till the hectic eighth when the slugging Ponies got to him for a walk, two singles and a double and a triple. The hurlers' support was fair, although there were several errors of omission.

Chuck Fournier, slim Kingston southpaw, had the Lee crew handcuffed completely for seven innings giving but five scattered hits and sending five back on strikes. He received excellent support most of the way. Running into trouble in the eighth, Fournier gave way to Tammy Jamieson, who polished the locals off in order the rest of the game.

In fielding, the Petes' inner works clicked in good style with but one error, though they passed up a few chances at double-plays and handed Kingston several cheap hits. Whatley threw out two and both pitchers fielding well. The outfield had little to do but chase hits. Smith, Joyce, Quinn and Fournier handled a flock of chances for the fast-stepping Ponies, who played better ball as the contest went on.

Ash and Rose, for the Petes, got two hits apiece; Macdonald, Whatley, Batten and Hollingsworth being the other clouters. Compeau led the winners with three, while McQuaide got two doubles, Scrutton a double and a single; Smith two singles; Joyce a triple; Quinn a double, and the pitchers a single apiece.

Hollingsworth walked, was sacrificed and scored on Rose's hit in the first. There was a walk and a hit in the second, but nothing came of it. In Kingston's half, two runs counted on hits by Smith and Scrutton, a fielder's choice and an error, when Hollingsworth dropped Rose's toss to second. A hit with two out in the third come to naught for the Petes and they went out in order in the fourth. Kingston got two more then on two walks and Scrutton's double.

In the fifth with two out, Whatley walked and died on first. The other side shoved over another marker, McQuaide doubling, moving up on an out and racing home on Smith's bingle. Nothing happened in the sixth. An error, walk and Rose's hit in the Petes' seventh amounted to nothing, Hollingsworth being nailed at the plate in a close play. Kingston went out one-two-three. A hit batsman, error, fielder's choice and singles by Ash, Macdonald and Hollingsworth sent in three for the locals in the eighth, chasing Fournier. But the Ponies comes right back to score four on Quinn's double, a sacrifice, a walk, singles by Jamieson and Compeau and Joye's triple to centre. The Petes failed to threaten in the ninth.

Ada Mackenzie, three times Canadian champion, was among the contenders in the U.S. women's national at Exmoor, Highland Park, Ill., as the qualifying round was played. Here she is in action.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

BY ALEX. J. MORRISON

Number 84

ALEX MORRISON says:

The golf student sees so many illustrations of good players with their arms and hands raised quite high in the backswing.

The observer doesn't realise that the picture fails to convey a dimension that is most important in connection with the elevation of the hands during the backswing.

The hands should not go any higher than they can go comfortably through the help of the body turn and proper arm action.

Any attempt to raise the hands and the club beyond the limit set by the amount of body and arm action can result in nothing but an uneven swing.

The extra lifting of the hands simply throws the club out of its natural groove.

SUGAR BOWL ELIMINATES LINDSAY

BOSTON AWAITS CRUCIAL SERIES WITH TERRY MEN

Braves Lie in Fact That Six Games Will be Played in Four Days.

PITCHERS READY.

Giants Defeat Cards as Schumacher and Dean Have Pitchers' Duel.

(By Edward J. Neil, A.P. Sports Writer)

Baseball's deep and abiding passion—a truly "crucial" series—gripped Boston and the National League to-day as Bill Terry's New York Giants ran their pennant chances into the gauntlet of the second-place Braves.

Washington's runaway in the American League, the quick and ever-increasing dash of the Giants in the fore of the senior circuit, have been particularly hard this year on "crucial" series that abounded in stretch drives of the past. The Giants brought a full six-game lead to Braves' field, normally a discouraging outlook for the home folks, but it's been many a long and stormy season since any Boston club could thrill the faithful with a threat even that close.

They play six games in four days, and therein lies Boston's stoutest hopes. Terry's amazing pitching staff has been worked overtime beating off the Cubs, Pirates and Cardinals for the past two weeks.

Bill McKechnie's advantage, if there is any, lies in the fact that his strongest pitchers are rested and ready.

Setting the scene for the start of to-day's big battle, the Giants outbelted the Cards 5-4 yesterday, with Hal Schumacher showing signs of wear as he staggered home victorious in a duel with Dizzy Dean. Meanwhile the Braves, regaining their stride, knocked down the Reds 3-2 to even the series as Huck Betts turned in a neat five-hit performance.

Long Range Guns

St. Louis ran up a lead of 4-0 on Schumacher, who was beaten by the Cards Monday, before the Giants' long-range guns got into action. Bill Terry hit a home run after Hughie Critz singled for the first hit off Dean in the fourth. Then Mel Ott singled and Lefty O'Doul smashed his 14th homer of the season into the right field stands.

The impish figure of Walter James Vincent Maranville, going on 42, stuck out all over the Braves' conquest of the Reds. The waggish little man pumped a single over first to score Pinkey Whitney with the winning run in the ninth.

Pittsburgh Pirates edged almost unbeknownst into third place by two points through taking the fourth straight from the Phillies 5-1 while the Cubs slipped to fourth by splitting a double-header with Brooklyn Dodgers. Charlie Root edged Hollis Thurston to give the Cubs the first 2-1, but Rosy Ryan, in relief, held the Cubs in the second as a rookie shortstop, Linus Frey, drove in four runs in the Dodger victory 7-3.

Ralph Birkofer held the Phillies to four hits to win his second victory for the Pirates since being recalled from the International League.

No games were scheduled in the American League.

THE GIANTS are the real sufferers in the matter of the recent rainy wether in the east. The Terriers must now play several of those postponed games on foreign fields—and they don't like the road.

Horse Bucked Out Hockey Moguls

Digesting the O.H.A. report on the Marlboro, sass Edwin Allan, of the Mail and Empire, we find that everything was O.K. but the officers. We also find that Canny Age was the horse which set them back $700, which leads us to remark that it might have been in a worse plight if the horse had won for we learn the odds that day were 7 to 1. They might have had a hard time explaining where all the money came from. But probably you'd want to hear about the race. It was a two-year-old event. Canny Age turned in the stretch in front and then bucked and away went the $700 and a good deal more. It was not the first time that two-year-olds have bucked during the running of a race, for juveniles have tender shins. Some only buck in front, while others buck all around. Canny Age swiped to buck the Marlboros out of the O.H.A.

REIGN OF WOOD SEEN TOTTERING

Experts Concede Paine Edge on Turn, But Uncertain of Straightway Outcome.

BRITISH BOAT STURDY.

PORT LAMETON, Ont., Aug. 31 (C.P.)—Folk in this little village who have watched many a speed trial of the fleet, Miss Americas, and they have come to look upon Gar Wood as the speedboat king of the world to-day, were wondering if his reign was not on the verge of ceasing.

For more than a week they have watched Hubert Scott-Paine, British challenger for the Harmsworth trophy, prepare his tiny craft, Miss Britain III., for her supreme test on Saturday. They have witnessed its performance during trial runs, and to-day they were convinced the Briton was almost certain to give the "Algonac wolf" the hardest race of his career.

For the first time since Wood entered the Harmsworth picture debate on the outcome of the race centred about the ability of Miss America X. to stand the gaff. There were many of the opinion that the defender could not stand the strain of two hard races.

Wood apparently thinks otherwise. "Miss America X. is the strongest hull I ever rode in," he maintains. "There isn't a sign of a leak or a seam in her hull that indicates the four motors would crack her. She would hold two more motors if there was room.

On the other hand, few doubt the ability of the British craft to stand up under the test. While Scott-Paine at no time during his trial runs showed speed to equal that of the rival boat, few doubt its chances of finishing the race—the major factor in all Harmsworth events of the past.

Those who have a penchant for trying to figure the result of a race in advance rate both drivers on a par, concede the Briton an edge on the turns, but figure this advantage may be lost on the straightaways. The challenger, it is claimed, is more manoeuvrable around the turns.

By his showing in trial runs and with a mental picture of his performance several years ago in the Detroit River, when he won the international five-and-one-half litre trophy, Scott-Paine has won respect as a driver.

BOWL COMES THROUGH STRONGLY PROVE MARGIN OF SUPERIORITY

Heavy Clouting Features Important Contest in Provincial Softball Playdowns.

BOWL ALWAYS LEAD.

(By Staff Reporter)

LINDSAY, August 31—If any doubts regarding the superiority of the Sugar Bowl softballers of Peterborough over the Smith-Baldwin aggregation of Lindsay remained in the minds of Lindsay fans after the calling of Monday night's game due to rain, mob and darkness, they were dispelled last evening. The Sugar Bowl boys eliminated the Lindsay champions from the O.A.S.A. running by a score of 10-7 in nine innings of decisive ball.

With the exception of the seventh inning when the Smith-Baldwins pounded in five runs to drive Ted Sturgeon, Sugar Bowl moundsman, from the box, the Peterborough squad outplayed the home boys with a consistently superior brand of ball. Taking the lead with two runs on their first apeparance at bat, they led the contest throughout. The Smith-Baldwins made a bid for the lead when their five runs in the seventh brought the count to 8—7, but were stopped short in their spree by the Pete's veteran relief hurler, Bill Simmons.

Home Runs Feature

A home run by Jimmie Shaw, homester third baseman, in the seventh, and a long drive by Pat Calladine, the Bowlmen's catcher, which also netted a home run, were features of the game Num Fever, captain of the locals, and Bill Gamble, moundsman, were responsible for spectacular and profitable three-base drives in the sixth and seventh innings; Bud Weese, Calladine, Ross Currie and Cliff Campbell contributed two-base hits to the evening's record of heavy swatting.

Calladine and Sturgeon scored the Sugar Bowl openers in the first; Heinie Albert chalking up one for Lindsay, making first on an error by Bud Weese and going the rounds on a sacrifice by Balfour and a hit by Jack Campbell. Bud Weese's two-base drive to the left field led off the spree that netted the Peterborough team their four in the third. The homsters scraped a tally in the fourth and the Sugar Bowl one in the fifth. Dormer got the only counter in the seventh for the Lift Lock contingent, while their opponents' five were scored by Shaw, McBryen, Albert and the Campbell brothers. Arnold Smith's counter and the homer by Calladine in the first of the ninth, dispelled visions of an extra innings.

A's Pitching Hero Retires for Year

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31. — (UP) — George Earnshaw, big right-handed pitching hero of several world series for the Philadelphia Athletics, has retired from baseball for at least the rest of the season, he said today.

His retirement, which he said was requested by Connie Mack, climaxed a season in which he and the Athletics' manager were at odds repeatedly.

First it was a salary dispute. Then Earnshaw's poor form and lack of effectiveness on the mound caused Mack to send him home once or twice from Western trips. Later he was suspended for a week.

Engineers Defeat Office In Softball

The second game of the finals for the championship of the C.G.E. Inter-Department Softball League developed into a hitting spree last night at the King Edward Park when the Engineers stepped into the fast Office nine and eked out a 16-13 decision, after both teams had hammered the horsehide all over the park.

Bruce Munro gave the Pen-Pushers plenty to worry about, going the whole route on the mound for the winners, while his team-mates backed him up in fair style, and pounded out fourteen clean bingles to salt away the decision. Emery with a triple and two singles led the winners while Brown at third had a triple and double and Price had three singles in five trips.

Freddy Martin on the mound for the Office sent five of the opposition out swinging and was pitching smart ball until the fifth when the Engineers cut loose with a barrage of hits that together with several errors in the infield sent seven markers over and gave the Engineers a commanding lead which they held. Gray was the big hitter for the losers, connecting for a homer, two doubles and a single in five trips. Miller was next with a homer and triple, while Barry had a double and two singles.

BUFFALO LOSES

Bears Win Eighth Straight Victory to Lengther Lead.

(By Orolo Robertson, A.P. Sports Writer.)

Although far out in front of the pack and steadily increasing their advantage, Newark Bears in all probability will not equal their 1932 mark when they won 109 games and lost only 59.

With only 18 games to play before entering the play-offs, the Bears had accounted for 93 of the 105 contests in which they participated. Last year they finished 15½ games in front of Baltimore and to-day they hold a 10-game advantage over the second-place Rochester Red Wings, with the Orioles in third position.

The Bears yesterday won their seventh and eighth straight games, turning back Albany Senators 5-3 and 6-5 in two closely fought games. Home runs by Johnnie Neun decided each contest. Barton also hit for a circuit in the curtain-raiser to help Jim Weaver earn his 24th pitching triumph of the season.

Montreal Royals' drive for a place in the play-offs hit a snag when Toronto Maple Leafs scored all of their runs in the ninth inning for a 4-3 victory. The defeat left the Royals 3½ games back of the Leafs, who hold the second play-off position in the Northern Division.

Bill Brubaker, substituting at first base for the injured Lou Bleu, led the Leafs to victory, hitting a home run with two mates on base to climax Toronto's four-run uprising.

Buffalo Bisons also lost ground in their attempt to oust Toronto, falling to a position 1½ games behind when Rochester Red Wings came from behind with a four-run rally in the eighth to win a night game 8-7.

Jersey City Skeeters snapped their losing streak at nine games, winning the second game of a night double-header from the Baltimore Orioles 7-2 after dropping the opening contest 6-2.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Rabbit Maranville, Braves—His single in ninth gave Braves victory over Reds.

Ralph Birkofer, Pirates — Held Phillies to four hits, and drove in one run.

Linus Frey, Dodgers — Drove in four runs with triple, double and single in Dodgers' second game triumph over Cubs.

Containing First Chapters of Garbo Story

"I consider this one of the greatest true stories that have ever been published, because it touches so deeply upon the hidden emotions of so many millions of women and puts the burden of defense up to so many millions of men."

BERNARR MACFADDEN

BECAUSE of the beginning of the Great Greta Garbo Story which it contains, True Story Magazine will be out four days early this month in order better to cover its extra distribution and the enormously increased demand.

Hundreds of thousands of extra copies are being rushed by fast express because practically every part of America and Canada are demanding more than their regular order.

Tonight the distribution of True Story Magazine will begin. Tomorrow morning it will be in the hands of eighty thousand newsdealers, newsstands and stores reaching from one end of the United States to the other and covering practically every city, town and village in the country.

So much for the demand for the True Life Story and the True Love Story of this silent woman who starts sixty million people to arguing whenever she appears on the screen.

Now for the story itself. The True Love Life of Greta Garbo gives the reason for the first time for the sixty million arguments about her. This is no mere sex story out of Hollywood! It deals with the very fundamentals of life and it handles the decision which every woman has to make between her great desire and her greater yearning.

Ready at all newsstands tomorrow, Friday, September 1st.

Many Upsets Recorded in First Round. Old Champions Being Displaced.

"Hawk" Rosevear, Port Hope, successfully skipped his rink to win the Ovaltine Trophy from his club mate, R. Winters, by the close score of 7-6.

The consolation event was won by Dr. G. Kidd of Cobourg, with D. B. Cutcliffe, Norwood, runner-up, while the hard-luck contest went to A. Sturgess, Whitby, after a tight game with Stan Lowe, of Peterborough.

Thirty rinks from Cobourg, Lindsay, Port Hope, Whitby, London, Norwood and Peterborough comprised the largest mixed tournament ever held in Peterborough.

In the absence of the president, Walter Oke, vice president, welcomed the visitors and hoped that at the end of the day all the prizes would go out of town.

ENID WILSON ENTERS FINAL ROUND OF OPEN

EXMOOR, Highland Park, Ill., Aug. 31 (AP)—On the same trim shoulders of the 21-year-old New Jersey girl who halted the title march of England's Enid Wilson at Salem last year rested the hopes of the United States to-day in the National Women's golf championship.

A year ago Charlotte Glutting of West Orange, stopped Miss Wilson in the quarter finals with a surprising one-up triumph. To-day she faced the English champion in the same round, but the galleryites, who have watched the tall girl from the hills of Nottingham break the medal record and sweep through her American foes, didn't give the New Jersey girl a chance of repeating.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball—Softball—Lacrosse Soccer—Wrestling, and Others

(By C. J. P.)

And that's that! Fourteen Peterborough ball players can now hang up their spikes and crack their training rules wide open again. And they can put their bats back in the bag, or they can throw them away—there didn't seem to be many hits in them, anyway. Kingston Ponies are C.O.B.L. champs again, and we hope they go a long way. "You're a better man than I am, Gunga Din!" Yeah, the better team won. They could come through in the pinch, hitting, fielding and pitching—and we've got to give them the mitt. We may show more promise; we may have a better team on paper—but paper profits are just so much confetti. They don't pay off on anything but wins.

• • • • • • •

It was a tough blow to a flock of loyal rooters both here and in Napanee. And don't think Knotty Lee and the boys didn't feel bad about it. But they lost, and that's that. They congratulated the Kingston players who were doing crazy war-dances of glee around the diamond. As a matter of fact, the Petes at no time—with the possible exception of the first half the eighth—looked quite as good as the Ponies yesterday. Just one of those games.

• • • • • • •

The local outfit had the edge on the series from the start but couldn't hold it. We're not going to do any second-guessing as it's over now. The coach and the various players may come in for some criticism—which every fan has the right to do—but baseball remains baseball, a very odd game. And no one can foretell the future. Knotty Lee took a bunch of young fellows, who would undoubtedly have gone nowhere again as in previous years, and he made a good ball club out of them. They'll get better; they lack the experience of that gang of veteran battlers from Kingston at present. Yeah, Knotty made a good job of it even if they didn't quite reach the top. He can't go in there and hit for them in a pinch—their weakness all season. Hitters are born, not made.

• • • • • • •

As a matter of straight reporting, the locals were only getting their odd hits with one or two out, and tight pitching and fielding cut them off. On the other hand, the Ponies could smack the pill with runnners on. Neither of our pitchers were in top form, though fair. Kitchen allowed six hits and four runs while he hurled, and Calladine was touched for seven hits and five runs the rest of the way. Deyell might have done better—it's impossible to say. Three soft hits that should have been outs fell in short right field with Macdonald, Rose and Ash running after them as if they had the hiccups. Of course none of them are right-fielders. Beavis died and since then, this position has been a real problem. The Petes tried hard, but just didn't make the grade.

• • • • • • •

There were twelve hundred howling fans present, the majority being Kingston rooters, though quite a few went down from here. Ernie Gibbard did everything he could to serve the two teams in fine style, and he has one classy ball field. A certain Peterborough fan caused plenty of commotion in the stands for awhile. He stood up in a lull and hollered, "Anybody want to bet a hundred dollars against the Petes," Above the uproar that followed, somebody shouted, "I'll take it!" Then the first fellow looked around and said, "Now who wants to bet a hundred dollars against this man?" Amid laughter and boos, he sat down.

That seized gate and the hectic Central League meeting after, last night, saw a lot of fun. The Kingston and Peterborough Club officers were hurling the lie back and forth, but finally ended up with a compromise and a handshake at the loop's instigation. Kingston agreed to pay half the Petes' financial demands, and pointed out that since most of the squabble hinged on whether or not we had been notified six hours before game-time that a game was called off, their word was as good as ours and they didn't need legally to pay anything. This was true. However, it was finally settled up satisfactorily, and Kingston came through with their back-pay for the umpires.

Grab-bag: Engineers and Fractional Motors tangle at King Edward Park tonight at 6.15 in C.G.E. inter-dept. softball loop finals . . . . And C.G.E. gals play Cobourg tonight at that time at the Bowl . . . . The Batten insisted upon playing yesterday, and went good, in spite of a bad crack in the face by a ball in practise—four stitches being taken inside his cheek afterward . . . . Yammy Jamieson was a sick boy yesterday and we don't mean just pale . . . . Knotty Lee turned down an offer by Kingston last night to coach them in the O.B.A.A. playdowns . . . . "No, thanks," he said, "Peterborough is my team this year, and I'm not leaving the boys just because they lost" . . . . Just an idea of how expenses run up at a senior playoff: Nine new balls, at $1.20 club price each, were used in Napanee yesterday, several being lost on fouls over the fence.

PHELPS AND PEARCE READY.

TORONTO, Aug. 31 (C.P.).—Ted Phelps, present title-holder, and Bobby Pearce, the greatest amateur of them all until he signed a contract to turn "pro" were awaiting the gun to-day for their world title sculling match. To-morrow evening, the two will go to the mark, and thousands of Canadians will in all probability see one of the greatest races this country has ever witnessed.

What action will be taken by the Canadian National Exhibition, sponsors of the contest, with regard to Pearce's protest about the manner in which buoys are placed on the course is not known. The buoys run directly down the centre, while Pearce prefers them marking both sides, thus allowing the oarsmen to travel to any section he wishes inside the flags.

BRIGHTON TAKES FIRST OF FINALS

Defeats Hastings in Game for Sam Clarke Trophy.

SCORE 11-5.

HASTINGS, Aug. 31. (Examiner Correspondence). Brighton took the first game of the play-off for the late Sam Clarke trophy in a weird game of baseball on the local diamond Wednesday afternoon by a 11 to 5 score.

Owing to a sore arm "Spook" Scriver was unable to take the mound, "Duke" Wilson going on the rubber for the locals. The boys from the highway village found the slants of the youthful local moundsman to their liking and he was touched for thirteen solid hits, this along with nine errors is the sad story of the local nine.

Brighton got two in the first on two hits and two errors and came right back in the second for five runs on six hits and one error.

Shannon, who started on the hill top for the winners, had trouble with his control but managed to keep the locals in hand with the exception of the third when he was nicked for three runs on three hits and one error.

Brighton were an hour late in coming and the game had to be called at the end of the sixth on account of darkness.

The return game of the play-off will be played in Brighton on Saturday afternoon....

Great Pitching Star Wins For St. Thomas

TORONTO, Aug. 31 (CP) — On the strength of one of the most spectacular pitching performances of the current amateur baseball season, St. Thomas Tom Cats to-day were champions of the Inter-county circuit an capable successors to Guelph Maple Leafs, whom they vanquished in the series for the title.

On the shoulders of Gordon "Lefty" Weeks, Tom Cats' stellar southpaw, rests a major portion of the credit for their 9-0 victory in the fifth and deciding game at Kitchener yesterday.

With disconcerting regularity Weeks turned back the Maple Leafs without a semblance of a hit until two were out in the ninth and was on the verge of a no-hit, no run game, when Joe Kaine, burly Guelph outfielder, smote a single to thwart the Tom Cat hurler in his bid for place in the "Hall of Fame."

The winners scored a trio in the opening inning and shelled McNeil from the mound in the sixth with a five-run barrage.

"Gossip and Such"

THE MIRACLE may happen again!

The miracle of a major league ball team in last place on July 4 and on top at the end of the season may be repeated this year.

Miraculous is the amazing fact that the team which may repeat this miracle is the same one that did it before—the Boston Braves.

Super-miraculous (if that is the proper term) is the more astounding fact that the same player who proved the spark-plug of the 1914 Braves' miracle team is again firing his fellow athletes by his play with the crusading zeal to win. He's Walter James (Rabbit) Maranville.

It's all so incredible that had any courageous soul ventured the prediction last spring that the Braves and Maranville would have a change to repeat their 1914 feat he would have promptly clamped into the nearest paper doll factory and placed under heavy guard.

BUT THERE they are—and there's the Rabbit!

It is true that the Braves are quite a few games out of first place but the Bostonians are in the second spot and have eight games more to play with the New York Giants who are first.

This is very significant and is causing Mr. Bill Terry and his Giant colleagues no end of worry for in the 14 games already played between the Giants and the Braves the Bostons have won nine or virtually two-thirds.

If the Braves take, say six of the remaining games with the Giants the New Yorkers will be—seven million Gothamites have the jitters at the thought.

And it doesn't calm the snapping nerves of the New Yorkers to recall that, back in 1914 the team the Braves beat out for the pennant, after coming up from nowhere, was the New York Giants!

An amazing bit of baseball history thus seems on the verge of being repeated—repeated double and redoubled and in spades!

REAMS AND REAMS have been written about Rabbit Maranville. The baseball world is familiar with his story. All baseball fans know that when the tiny infielder broke in with the Braves he wasn't expected to last a week.

Too little for the big leagues. He couldn't take it. But he did take it and has been asking for more, lo, these last two decades!

However, it strikes your correspondent that the most amazing thing about this amazing Rabbit is that he has been a member of Boston's two "miracle" teams, though these two teams happened 19 years apart!

It's all so unbelievable that that the student of baseball history almost expects to see the Philadelphia Athletics at top of the American League, heading for the tragic disaster which engulfed them in 1914. But they aren't.

Old Connie Mack, still boss of the A's, must get a chuckle out of the strange things that are happening in the National League race for this time, with his Athletics out of the race, he knows that the Braves won't crush HIS team four straight games in the world series.

RUTH BELIEVES HE IS THROUGH

Legs Won't Stand Outfielding Job He States Mournfully.

MIGHT BE MANAGER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP)—The habit of writing finis to Babe Ruth's baseball career, a popular winter pastime for years, now has extended to the Home Run King himself.

"I guess I might as well hang up my spikes," he said mournfully last night. "I can't sign up as a player next year. The legs won't stand it. I might get by at first base, but not in the outfield. I'm through."

While the boys have been guessing him into the management of either the White Sox or the Red Sox next season, Ruth knows nothing about it.

"That's up to several other people besides myself," he said. "I'm still the property of the Yankees. If another club wanted me for manager, they would have to make some sort of a deal with Col. Ruppert. It's up to the owners of the other clubs. I haven't been approached, even unofficially, by anyone."

The Babe then had another idea. "Maybe I'll just voluntarily retire for a year. I could stand a long vacation and then see how things work out in 1935."

Local Driver Hurt In Belleville Race

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 31—The racing at the Fair to-day was marred by a spill in the 2.30 class, which necessitated the removal of one driver to the hospital for repairs, and severely bruised and shook up another pair of drivers, when one horse fell rounding into the stretch and throwing the two immediately following. Mack McMillan was removed to the hospital with bad bruises and deep cuts, but was able to return to the grounds after his wounds were dressed. W. Sharon of Peterborough was thrown clear of the spill, but sustained bruises. A. L. Chambers, the other driver, was not injured, but shaken up.

The spill occurred in the second heat of the 2.30 class, when the horses were completing the first half-mile. Rounding into the top turn, Billy S. made a bad break, and McMillan, the driver, was trying to steady his charge, when Peter Oliver came in and partially cut the horse off. The horse stumbled and fell, and Billy S. went over the top, McMillan being thrown to the track. Peter W., driven by Sharon was close behind and the horse went over the top of the other two; Sharon being thrown clear of the spill. The horses involved were all withdrawn. They were not injured.

Don't be a Sucker.

(The operator of a crooked carnival game is called a "grifter." Although the sucker—the paying customer—doesn't know it, practically every game of skill and chance at the average traveling carnival or resort can be fixed by the operator so that the player can't win.

This is not usually true, however, of legitimate amusement parks, which have large investments in permanent equipment and are interested in keeping the good will of their patrons. Such places do not permit grifters. But beware the fly-by-night joint!)

THE CORN GAME

This game, very popular during the past few years, is called Bingo, Tango, Radio, Lucky, Bango, Corno and various other names in different localities. The players sit at long tables, holding cards marked off into five rows of five numbered squares, very much like the old-fashioned game of Lotto. At the end of the room a "caller" sits at a screened desk, picking out and announcing the numbers.

As each number is called it is flashed on an electric indicator or registered in some other way, and each player who finds that number on his card is entitled to cover it with a corn kernel or other marker.

The player who is the first to fill his card wins the prize. Often the game is played honestly, but sometimes, when the prize offered is very large or the number of players too small to give the operator a suitable percentage of profit, a shill is used.

The control is very simple, of course. The number caller, whose operations are concealed from the players by his screen, simply calls the proper numbers to fill the shill's card, without actually picking them out of the box.

For Friday, September 1

ALTHOUGH THE planetary configurations for this day hold testimonies of splendid advantages, capacity, ambition and acumen, yet there are also signs of a mental pressure accompanied by a state of stimulated energies that may prove devastating or abortive to excellent oportunities.

Those whose birthday it is stand at the verge of a year of splendid opportunity for enhancing the position and increasing the fortunes, but there is a sign of too stimulated mental and physical energies which may project affairs into heights where they "o'erleap themselves and fall on the other side." Calm, control, cool decisions and well-directed powers should bring many advantages.

A child born on this day should have excellent mental and physical energies, which may prove to its detriment unless taught to use them temperately and prudently.

NIZAM OF INDIA EQUIPS AN ARMY TO AID BRITAIN

Hyderabad, Richest Man in World, Has Magnificent Military Force — Friendly to England.

By THOMAS C. WATSON
Central Press Canadian Writer

LONDON, Aug. 31.—The Nizam of Hyderabad is the British empire's entry as the richest man in the world. His wealth is said to surpass the combined fortunes of Morgan, Rockfeller and Ford.

Nizam of Hyderabad

He certainly is powerful, for he is ruler of a vast Indian state and has an army 9,000 strong to defend his rights and his faith.

His prime minister and other executives have recently been on a visit to London in connection with Indian affairs and they are now on their way back to India where they intend to set in motion many reforms within their own principality.

The goodwill of the Nizam and the people of Hyderabad is eagerly sought by the British prime minister, for really the goodwill of this rich and powerful ruler is nearly as valuable as that of Mahatma Gandhi, who has no army, no money, no teeth and hardly any clothes, but nearly 40,000,000 followers.

However, whatever may happen to British India, it is obvious that the Nizam has received assurances as to the status of the Principality of Hyderabad; for his government intends to go ahead with reforms, military and political.

Military expenditure in Hyderabad has gone up from 73 lakhs of rupees to nearly 90 lakhs—not far short of $5,000,000.

Under the new reorganization, Indian states regular forces are divided into three categories, A, B, C, equivalent to British regular, territorial and cadet corps formations. The Nizam's A troops are 7,200 strong.

DAVIS SILENT ON WAR DEBTS

Opposes Linking Topic With Disarmament—Each Tough Enough Alone.

AVIATION MAIN SNAG.

S.S. WASHINGTON AT SEA, Aug. 31. (AP)—Norman H. Davis does not want to talk about war debts, he says, when he reaches Europe again as United States Ambassador-at-Large.

The policy of making war debt concessions conditional on European disarmament "had its inception during the Hoover administration" he declared in an interview, adding he is happy "the government since March has wisely taken the view the two questions must be isolated.

He opposes linking them, Davis went on, "because each is a tough enough nut to crack alone."

Disarmament is my baby and I don't want it spanked. Linking it with debts hurts the chances for settlement of either problem. The French would say to me, 'You want to ruin our defence for the sake of collecting money.'

"That's why I do not want to talk debts in Europe. Of course the subject comes up. In Europe they would like to have me talk about it, but I refuse to be drawn out."

Davis has spent several weeks in the United States. Before he goes to Geneva late in September for a meeting of the Disarmament Bureau he will visit London and Paris.

Aviation is the biggest problem involved in disarmament, he said.

"There are several reasons for this:

"First, it is so hard to distinguish between commercial and military aviation and easy to convert the former into war-time use:

"Second, aerial attacks are probably the thing most feared in European cities, and the countries are afraid to cut down their defences.

"Third, this sort of armament is the manufacturers' clover field, and it is hard to put a crimp in such profitable business."

COBOURG GIRLS WIN

COBOURG, Aug. 31. (Examiner Correspondence)—The Cobourg softball team won a 14-2 victory over the Baltimore girl's ball team in a game played on the McGill street diamond here. Frances McCreary pitched for Baltimore and Miss Oliver for Cobourg. Citizens and fans were glad to see Miss Riley back on the Cobourg lineup.

King's Chaplain

"Christianity tottering? Ridiculous! In fact, I may say that I see undeniable signs of a religious revival, at least in England, and I believe it is present elsewhere." Quietly, but with a charming whimsical smile, the Very Rev. Dr. Albert Victor Baillie, dean of Windsor and chaplain in ordinary to King George of England, thus epitomized the Christian world's spiritual attitude. Dr. Baillie, accompanied by his niece, Miss Fanny Baillie, and a family friend, Christophe Smith, will make a brief stay while in Southern California.

THE C.C.F. REPORT

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—I was responsible for the report of the C.C.F. club meeting held Tuesday, August 22, and appearing in the following night's Examiner. Mr. McCullough claims he made no mention of President Roosevelt's National Industrial Recovery Act (known as the NRA). That is perfectly correct. What he did refer to was President Roosevelt's National Reform Act. Not knowing of any act under such wording I naturally thought he meant the National Recovery Act, hence the reason for me attaching the N.R.A. to Mr. McCullough's name. In his letter to The Examiner in Tuesday's issue, he claims that putting the above to his credit would lead one to believe he was a supporter of the N.R.A. and also that the N.R.A. was a new system instead of a reform, which is wrong and misleading. He further states that President Roosevelt had taken a step forward, but it was inadequate in abolishing sweat shops and low wages, but still supported competitive industry. For Mr. McCullough's information, let me say that President Roosevelt's National Industrial Recovery Act is absolutely a new system, granting workers the right to organize, appoint their own representatives and all other privileges in collective bargaining. This also includes the maximum hour week to be worked and a minimum wage to be paid. There is a national administration to enforce this law. General Hugh S. Johnson as administrator, who has repeatedly emphasized that, while it is not his job to unionize industry, he will enforce the law impartially including that portion which gives workers the right to organize into bona-fide unions and bargain collectively without interference, coercion or restraint from employers. I could quote dozens of cases where the law has been upheld, but not wishing to intrude upon your generosity and valuable space, I will content myself to that of four hundred members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union who were on strike at the LaMode Garment Co., Chicago. The company wanted an injuncton restraining striking workers from fighting for their rights. This was refused by Judge M. Fisher of the Circuit Court, who said: "I find that unfair wages, unreasonable hours of labor, unhealthy working conditions are directly connected with this suit. Prevailing conditions in this plant violate the spirit of the National Recovery Act." The judge told the company to abide by the N.R.A. code which it had signed, with a 40-hour week and a minimum wage of $12. Being in the same political boat as Mr. McCullough, but may differ in opinions, should the C.C.F. ever get into power and pass legislation as essential to the workers in as short a time as President Roosevelt has done there will be no kick coming from this old member of the International Association of Machinists, also the C.C.F.

Institute Plans To Have Fair Booth

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Aug. 31.—A special meeting of the Millbrook Branch of the Women's Institute was held on Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. Charles Thorndyke, with the vice-president, Mrs. T. G. Harkness, in the chair, and twenty members present.

After discussion it was decided to have a booth at the Rural School Fair on September 21, and also to have an exhibit at the fall fair, October 4, the committee appointed to approach the Agricultural Society regarding this matter including Mrs. J. L. Byam, Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, Mrs. J. W. Hilton and Miss Burnham.

The invitation from the Mount Pleasant Institute to have the Millbrook branch as their guests on September 6th was read and gratefully accepted, the committee made responsible for the program being Mrs. R. J. McKnight, Miss E. J. Grandy and Mrs. Will Armstrong. The report on the successful short course in sewing held in the town hall, Millbrook, for two weeks and closing on Friday, August 18, was given by the convenor in charge, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, who stated that 23 of the young people had enrolled and greatly benefitted by Miss Petty's instruction. The average attendance was 20, and over 40 visitors had been present throughout the course on varying days as interested onlookers.

A treat of cake and ice cream had been provided on Thursday, August 17, at the close of the afternoon's instruction, and Miss Petty in thanking the Millbrook branch for the hospitality extended, had also suggested the organization of a girls' circle. If possible a short course will be arranged next year in nutrition, with practical demonstrations in cooking, table setting, etc. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 65c to 66c; oats 32c to 34c; barley, 38c to 41c; rye, 45c to 46c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Bid prices were too low to effect any sales of butter at the weekly butter and cheese auction held here yesterday. A total of 679 boxes of No. 1 Quebec butter was offered and 81 boxes of No. 2, but the highest price for the No. 1 was 17½c a pound. On the Montreal Dairy and Produce Market the general price was 17¾c to 17¾c a pound for No. 1 butter in carlots or less. There was some uncertainty concerning Western intentions with regard to exporting of butter, and traders were also awaiting month-end announcement of stocks. Receipts were 817 boxes.

Egg prices were the same at 21c to 23c a dozen for extras, 17c to 18c for firsts, and 14c to 15c for seconds for graded shipments in carlots or less. A total of 823 cases were offered for sale.

The potato market was slightly firmer at 80c per 80 lb. bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Grains abruptly "about-faced yesterday and turned sharply upward late in the session on reports that Argentina had signed the London wheat pact.

Led by wheat with a rise of more than 6 cents a bushel from early low levels, all grains finished well above the previous close. Weakness in early dealings was acute. September liquidation causing distress in all grains. Wheat quotations were down to the lowest levels reached since June 23, but better buying developed at the bottom and the upward reaction was the strongest in some time.

Wheat closed strong at gains of 2⅜c to 2⅞c a bushel, compared with Tuesday's finish. Corn also strong and 1⅜c to 2½c up; oats ⅜c to 1⅜c higher; rye, 1¾c advanced; and provisions ranging from a 25c decline to gains of 8c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, August 31. — Breaking clear of "peg" levels, wheat prices swept buoyantly upward on the Grain Exchange yesterday, and finished 1¾c to 1½c above the previous close.

A rally in the Chicago market was the signal for action here and fair purchases quickly sent prices higher in the late dealings. Selling pressure was moderate and the market easily influenced by any kind of support. Prices were firm at the close only slightly under the high points, with October at 71½c, December at 73¾c, and May at 78¼c.

Early operations were dull and prices at their minimum levels until mid-session. Export business, estimated at 200,000 bushels, was nor a market factor, though weakness at Liverpool had a depressing influence in early trade.

Chicago Board of Trade will be closed on Saturday and Monday and the Winnipeg Grain Exchange has declared a holiday on Monday, Labor Day, with the possibility of a holiday on Saturday, September 2.

BENNETT WARNS AGAINST SHORT HOURS, HIGH PAY

Claims Canada Dare Not Experiment at Risk of Losing Export Trade.

COUNTRY'S LIFEBLOOD.

Determined Not to Allow Canadian Standard of Living to be Lowered.

(By Frank Flaherty—C.P. Staff Writer).

MONTREAL, Sept. 1 (C.P.). — Canada dare not risk the loss of her export trade by experiment with shorter hours of work and higher rates of pay, Premier R. B. Bennett is convinced. With export trade the life-blood of this country, it must be retained at all costs, and only as it expands will the country develop.

None the less, Mr. Bennett is determined not to allow the standard of living in Canada to be lowered. Freshly returned from attending the World Economic Conference in London and presiding at the wheat conference which resulted in an agreement he hopes will secure a fair price for the wheat-grower, the Prime Minister is due back in Ottawa to-day.

He arrived yesterday at Murray Bay, when he disembarked from the Empress of Britain and was hailed by cheering throngs in three Quebec cities. At the ancient capital itself, where he arrived by motor, he was enthusiastically received. Again when his train stopped at Three Rivers a crowd was out to welcome him and cheer him on his way, and in Montreal the spacious concourse of the railway station was packed [illegible] where he stopped with the train.

Guest At Banquet.

His declaration about Canada's export trade was made at a dinner arranged in his honor by the Montreal Board of Trade and was interpreted by the businessmen who heard him as an indication of the attitude of the Government to the suggestion that Canada should follow the pace set by the United States in its national recovery endeavors.

Keeping up with the Joneses, the Premier said, was dangerous for nations as well as individuals. Canada was not a nation of 100,000,000 people. To sell her goods abroad she had to compete with countries in Europe and the Orient who were formidable rivals.

The Premier's speech was largely a review of the world economic and wheat parleys. The latter he was convinced would prove of great benefit. The former, far from being a failure, had brought the nations of the world to a greater realization of their inter-dependence and the necessity of common action. It had, moreover, resulted in definite conclusions on monetary questions of far-reaching consequence.

JUDGE LAUDED JOSEPH POWER

Former Hasting Boy is Assistant Public Defender in Chicago.

FATHER BURIED THURSDAY

A recent news item in the Chicago Herald and Examiner includes a complimentary reference to the ability of Joseph Power, Assistant Public Defender, who returned to Hastings yesterday on a mournful visit, accompanying the body of his father, the late Pierce Power, who was buried at Hastings Thursday morning.

The family was well-known in Hastings and Norwood and generally throughout the county, and the many friends of Joseph Power will be agreeably interested in the report of trial in which he was engaged for the defence.

In this Chicago trial Morris Cohen was convicted by a jury of murder and sentenced to die in the electric chair. In commenting on the case the judge said that in forty-five years' experience in courts he had never heard a stronger case against a defendant. Granting sixty days for perfection of appeal by the accused, the Judge lauded Assistant Public Defender Joseph Power for his "artful and able defence. The defence was practically allowed to select its own jury. I approve the verdict as an aid to law and order."

Wanted!

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 1.—(C. P.—Police stated a widespread search to-day for a motorist who is believed responsible for the attempted hold-up last night of Duncan Hoffack's gas station at Thamesford, Ont., and for the death of Jack Murphy, young cyclist, on the highway east of here.

Police expressed the opinion to-day the same motorist figures in both affairs. Murphy was struck and killed as he pedaled his bicycle along the highway.

Some time later a car pulled up at Hoffack's filling station and the driver asked Hoffack for 10 gallons of gasoline. As the proprietor was filling the tank, his customer leaned over and grabed him by the arm. In the other hand he swung what Hoffack believed was a billie.

Hoffack broke away and ran to his office for a gun but his attacker fled in his car.

1934 CONVENTION AT LONDON

London was chosen as the convention city for the year 1934. The choice was made by ballot in competition with Kitchener, Leamington and St. Catharines. Other invitations which were not balloted on for various reasons were received by the convention from Edmonton, Hamilton and Montreal. It was suggested to the incoming Board of Directors that the convention next year be curtailed to three instead of four days.

On motion of Chief Harrington, the sum of $25 was granted to Chief A. H. Clark of Lakefield, as a token of appreciation from the Association of the work he performed as chairman of the Committee on Exhibits.

Announcing himself as candidate for the secretarial office, Chief Armstrong of Kingston, who has served the Association as secretary since it was organized in 1915, stated that in view of the need of curtailing expenses he believed there

FRENCH CABINET IS GIVEN REVIEW OF BORDER FORTS

Tense European Situation Indicated in Cancelling of Minnsters' Visits.

REMAIN IN PARIS.

Strasbourg Article Claims Germany Can be Ready for War in Year.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—(A.P.)—Premier Edouard Daladier to-day told the French Cabinet about the strength of France's new steel and concrete defence chain along the German frontier, while Nazi followers of Chancellor Hitler were opening their "victory convention" in Nurnberg, Germany.,

The Premier's report of his recent inspection tour, as war minister, of the solid barrier of ultra-modern fortifications occupied the whole cabinet meeting, except for Daladier's outline of Austro-German troubles.

The new fortifications cost $100,000,000 and include trenches and dugouts over a 125-mile line.

M. Daladier described the new defences as adequate in blocking an invasion.

Approval was understood to have been given of Austria's announced intention of raising her army to full treaty strength of 30,000 by recruiting 8,000 militiamen. No action, however, was announced by the cabinet.

The early convocation of Parliament to tackle urgent problems, including the budget deficit and tense European situation, was indicated by the decision of the ministers to cancel travelling engagements and to remain in Paris after Sept. 12.

AIMEE PLANNING TO GO ON STAGE

Hopes to Contact Non-Churchgoers Each Night Following Performance.

PROCEEDS TO TEMPLE.

MINNEAPOLIS, September 1. — Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton evangelist, plans to go on the stage she disclosed here yesterday.

Mrs. Hutton, whose bar tone singing husband, David, has taken up stage work since the couple separated, said she would not go before the footlights as an actress, "but to contact the non-churchgoers."

She did not name the date or the place for her first stage appearance but indicated the place probably will be New York and the time soon after she completes a series of revival meetings in Minnesota.

It was said that after each stage appearance the theatre manager may ask for silence, and that Mrs. Hutton will then open religious services. She said all proceeds would go to Angelus Temple, in California.

It was reported unofficially she will receive $1,000 a night for her stage appearances.

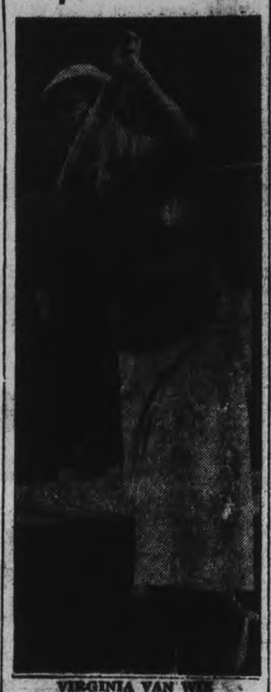
Advance Sale Of Exhibition Tickets Closes Saturday Night—Big Demand For Tickets

Advance sale of Peterborough Exhibition tickets will be continued until Saturday night at the price of four for one dollar.

So many telephone enquiries were received yesterday afternoon that it was decided to extend the time two more days to the end of the week. At Mayor Denne's store 560 strips had been sold up to this morning, and it is expected that the demand to-day and Saturday will considerably increase that number. Tickets are still available at the other stores from which they have been selling.

Mayor Denne said that the sale had been quite encouraging. I hope it will clean us out of the entire lot" the Mayor said. "This year's Exhibition which will feature the Scots Guards band in three concerts should be better than ever. Many citizens who appreciate the excellent music of the Guards will attend at least several of their concerts. I'd like to see the grandstand packed to hear this band. Everyone will be delighted. That goes without saying; but when we take the chance of bringing them to Peterborough I know all the directors would like to feel that this move and the presence of the Scots Guards band are fully appreciated by the people of this city and district."

Conquers Enid Wilson



VIRGINIA VAN WIE of Beverly Country club, Chicago, defending her title to the U.S. Women's Golf Championship, to-day removed the main threat to her laurels when she defeated Enid Wilson, great British star of the links. Miss Wilson, who has played sensational golf against a host of American opponents in her steady climb to the semi-finals, was sadly off her game to-day when she met Miss Van Wie.

LOVE IS DEAD FOR ACTRESS

But Oakland Broker Admits He Will Aid Claire Windsor Fight Ex-Wife's Suit.

$100,000 ASKED.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 1 (CP)—Alfred C. Read said to-day he no longer loved Claire Windsor, blonde actress from whom the handsome Oakland broker's former wife seeks $100,000 in an alienations of affections suit now on trial.

"Nor do I love Marian any more," he said, adding he would assist Miss Windsor in the suit brought by Mrs. Marian Read.

The actress so far has related how she met Read on a New Mexico desert railroad station platform during a train stop, how he kissed her during a "gorgeous moonlit night," as they stood on the observation car platform as the train rolled through Kansas, and how he proposed to her, claiming he was unmarried, as the train click-clacked its way through the Corn Belt of Illinois.

In a letter to Read dated September 20, 1931, Miss Windsor referred to William K. Vanderbilt, Jr.

"He's not interested in me, darling, so don't worry—only a kid and with very little sense," she wrote.

Read, returning to California over the same railroad tracks on which the romance had blossomed, wrote:

"Dearest Clair—Sweetheart, I never knew before just how many years I had in me I have had your picture out almost continuously. If there was only a way to get off this train and get back to you for just one more kiss, I think I would probably do it. Be good, sweetheart, and think of your Al."

WOULD ASSESS HYDRO PROPERTY OVER PROVINCE

Same Basis as Privately Owned Corporations Suggested to Municipal Association.

SOME OPPOSITION.

Falls Alderman Urges Scrutiny of Reason Power Jumped $9 to $30 Per Horse Power.

TORONTO, Sept. 1 (CP)—In a concerted drive for new revenues required to keep tax rates from soaring, the 35th annual convention of the Ontario Municipal Association to-day approved a resolution asking the Provincial Government to amend the statutes to allow the assessment of Ontario Hydro Electric Commission properties on the same basis as privately owned corporations.

Early this week Hon. William Finlayson, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests, indicated the Government will enact this legislation at the request of the municipalities.

Following the submission of resolutions by Niagara Falls and the Township of Saltfleet, representatives of the former city vigorously attacked the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, claiming that the price of power had been trebled under the existing administration.

Niagara Falls speakers contended that while the varous municipalities throughout the Province theoretically own the system, their requests are consistenly greeted with deaf ears by the commissioners.

Amendment Defeated

The convention defeated an amendment of Miss Mary Grant of London Township, who proposed a committee be appointed to list the complete properties of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission and submit a comprehensive report to the association.

In opposing immediate taxation of Hydro property, Miss Grant argued that $125,000,000 of the system's assets were located in several municipalities in the Niagara Peninsular. Reminding the members all municipalities would suffer an increase in rates if the utility were taxed, she pointed out only a few would benefit from the taxation.

All Crown property is exempt in Ontario and Hydro should be, too," interjected H. J. Leadley of Guelph.

"The province should not be allowed to go into business to the detriment of the municipality where they are contracting," contended Alderman J. G. White of Niagara Falls. "Although we have the generating plants in Niagara Falls we actually use Gatineou power for our street lighting. Hydro has a strangle hold on Niagara Falls. Industries that have been taken over by Hydro should pay taxes. We have no private competition, but we used to. Formerly the power cost us $6 to $9 per horsepower—now it costs us $30 per horsepower. That is a spread that should be carefully scrutinized."

Daylight Saving Time Ends Monday Night

Daylight saving time in Peterborough ends next Monday night at midnight. Many citizens have been enquiring about the change back to standard time and wished to adjust their week-end holiday arrangements to the city's clock. The information was obtained from City Clerk Armstrong. And all schools in the city and townships open Tuesday morning.

World Fair Visitor Spots Stolen Dress, Search Leaves Wearer Nudist Candidate

CHICAGO, Sept. 1 (AP)—A woman who identified herself as Miss Alice Ziebur of Chicago probably had no idea she might turn into something of a nudist unexpectedly, but she had not counted on meeting Mrs. Frieda Pitman of Cheyenne, Wyo.

She met Mrs. Pitman last night on the corner of State and Madison streets.

Mrs. Pitman, whose suitcase containing $400 worth of clothing was stolen shortly after she arrived on June 3 to visit the World's Fair, summoned a policeman and informed him that the dress Miss Ziebur was wearing was one that she (Mrs. Pitman) had "made with my own hands [illegible] from a pattern of my own design."

The policeman and the two women proceeded to the detective bureau.

There Miss Ziebur unhooked the dress and handed it over. Mrs. Pitman then looked at the gloves Miss Ziebur was wearing, as well as the slippers, the hose and the lingerie.

"Why," she exclaimed, "everything the woman is wearing belong to me but the hat. Let her keep the hat"

Miss Ziebur stepped behind a screen and handed over the other articles. She was held without charge. Mrs. Pitman, with the clothing over her arm, swept triumphantly from the door. She paused long enough, however, to say:

"I suggest that you find yourself a good newspaper and make some clothing you can call your own."

Merchants Board Up Doors and Windows Prepared For Worst

Communication Lines Already Down To Cities Eastward —Citizens Flee Coast Area And All Shipping Warned To Stay In Harbors.

BRITISH FREIGHTER CAUGHT IN TORNADO DRIFTS TO SHORE DISABLED—S.O.S. GOES OUT

HAVANA, September 1 (C.P.).—Throughout Havana to-day merchants boarded up their doors and reinforced their windows in the expectation that the city would be hit by a cyclonic disturbance, accompanied by 60 and 70 mile winds which were moving along the northern coast, driving inhabitants inland and wrecking communication lines.

The Belen Observatory reported that the storm was centred at 8.30 a.m. over Cardenas, 70 miles east of Havana. The observatory predicted that the centre of the disturbance probably would pass slightly north of the city.

Officials at the observatory expected high water all along the Malecon, the broad thoroughfare on the waterfront, and it was probable that that section of Havana would be flooded.

Persons living in houses and apartments along the waterfront moved out to higher ground.

Havana was gray in a drizzle of rain early this morning. Around nine o'clock there was a brief period of sunshine, and then came a heavy rainstorm.

The National Observatory reported that winds of hurricane force struck the northern parts of Matanzas and Havana Provinces this morning. The observatory predicted that the centre of the disturbance would pass near Havana between 1.00 and 3.00 o'clock this afternoon. The announcement said that the storm's intensity had increased considerably during the night.

At 3.00 a.m. the storm centred over Isabela Desaguas and later proceeded westward at a rate of about 12 or 13 miles an hour. It was exactly in this way that the disastrous hurricane of September, 1888, entered Cuba, causing 1,000 deaths and property damage in the millions.

Storm warnings were raised over Havana harbor at daybreak. The United Fruit ship Peten, scheduled to sail, remained here.

The National Observatory reported that the storm, which yesterday and last night was steadily gaining in force, would possibly attain hurricane proportions and might incline slightly to the south as it swept the island lengthwise. Isabela is about 150 miles due east of Havana, and is in Santa Clara Province.

Communications with Santa Clara were broken during the night. Inhabitants of Matanzas, 53 miles east of Havana, and Northern Santa Clara areas, were warned to leave the coast because of the possibility of high seas.

Freighter Disabled

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (AP)—Radio Marine Corporation was informed early to-day by its Palm Beach station that the Josephine Gray, British freighter in distress off the coast of Cuba, was disabled and drifting to shore. Other advices received by Radio Marine were similar to announcements of Tropical Radio.

FIRST BLASTS ARRIVE.

HAVANA, September 1 (C.P.). — A 60-mile wind, the vanguard of a hurricane which has swept 200 miles of Cuba's northern coast, roared through Havana late to-day, crashing in doors, topping over signs, damaging roofs, and terrorizing the populace.

THIEVES JAILED BEFORE FARMER NOTICE HIS LOSS

Three Young Men Get One Month for Stealing Chickens.

CAUGHT NEAR COBOURG.

Stole 50 Chickens From Farm of James Hutchinson, Otonabee.

Provincial Constable David Silvester went to the farm of James Hutchison in Otonabee yesterday and informed him that his farm had been robbed of fifty chickens before he discovered it himself.

The theft was carried out by three men: George Martin of Millbrook, Percy Henry of Cavan, and John Hummel of Toronto, who were yesterday sentenced to one month in jail in the Cobourg Police Court for a similar theft committed a few hours later in Northumberland County. They visited Mr. Hutchison's hen coop Wednesday night, stuffing the entire fifty birds into the tool compartment at the back of their light coupe car, and proceeded southward into Northumberland County for their second haul.

At 5.15 o'clock yesterday morning, John West of Northumberland telephoned Provincial Constable W. J. Carey of Cobourg and told him that three men in a car had taken some of his chickens. Constable Carey, with Constable Gavin Reid, went in search of the thieves and came upon them on the Gore's Landing Road. He arrested them after a chase, which ended when they forced the fleeing car to the side of the road, exactly forty-five minutes after the alarm had been given by Mr. West.

The fifty chickens taken from Mr. Hutchison's farm, along with another twenty from the West farm, were found in the rear compartment of the car.

Constable Carey communicated with Peterborough shortly afterwards, and Constable Silvester arrived at the Hutchison farm to make an investigation before Hutchison had made his regular morning visit to his chicken coops.

Appearing in the Cobourg Police Court, the three were sentenced for the West theft. They will be brought to Peterborough to answer for the Hutchison theft when they have completed their one-month sentences.

No Probe To Be Made Of McFarquhar Case

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 1 (CP)—No investigation into the case of James W. McFarquhar, war veteran, who died in the insane wards of Westminster Hospital in 1924, will be made by the commission now probing affairs at the hospital. This is stated in a letter from Norman Sommerville, K.C., sent last night to the soldier's widow.

McFarquhar, suddenly gone raving mad attacked a boy in Victoria Hospital, and was injured when patients and orderlies fought to subdue him. He was removed to the mental wards at Westminster, where he died two days later.

After explaining circumstances of the man's death, Mr. Sommerville in his letter, pointed out that because McFarquhar received his injuries in Victoria Hospital, his death was outside the commission's scope. Records at Westminster Hospital revealed he received good treatment while there.

HUNTER IS SHOT BY HIS OWN GUN AT GLEN MAJOR

Weapon Discharges as Ronald R. Hart Helps Setter Pup Over Fence.

NOTED SPORTSMAN.

Victim Lies Bleeding to Death While Companions Comb Brush for Hours.

UXBRIDGE, Ont., Sept. 1.— (C.P.)— Ronald R. Hart, well known Toronto business man and sportsman, was fatally injured when his own shot gun discharged as he helped his setter dog over a fence in the bush adjoining the Glen Major Fishing Club near here.

Mr. Hart was found late last night by a companion, Harry Vipond, who was camping with him. He was lying in a weakened condition from loss of blood and was still bleeding profusely.

Beside the fence where the wounded man lay was the setter pup which he had been teaching to answer to the report of a gun. The pup was whining piteously. Because of the denseness of the bush in this area, Mr. Vipond spent the greater part of an hour looking for his friend. Even the return trip to the wounded man's side was a difficult one and many valuable minutes were lost as the rescuers, summoned by Vipond, tried to locate the position of the dying man.

Mr. Hart was vice-president of the R. S. Hart Company, stationery, vice-president of the Toronto Angler's Association and a member of numerous anglers' organizations.

TORTURE FATAL TO AGED FARMER

Sister Previous Victim—Three Arrested for Brutal Hold-up.

MOB VIOLENCE FEARED.

ROBINSON, Ill., Sept. 1.—(AP) — While his suspected assailants were subjected to an ordeal of questioning, Bernard Weldon, 84-year-old farmer, died today from the brutal beating administered by three robbers Tuesday night. His sister died previously from the torture she underwent.

Outside the Crawford County jail where the trio has been under examination since 2 a.m., a crowd was gathering and the authorities feared trouble.

In neighboring Jasper County, where Weldon and his 82-year-old sister were fatally beaten and his niece Miss Anna Schraeder, severely hurt, public feeling was high and officers felt they could not safely remove their prisoners to the county jail at Newton.

The prisoners, identified as Henry Shelby, Tilton, Ill.; John Allen, Danville, Ill., and Harold Peckinpugh, Indianapolis and Danville, were brought here under heavy guard early this morning from Danville where they were arrested yesterday.

After the prisoners had been brought here escorted by state police, more than a score of automobiles containing enraged Newton residents arrived and demonstrated in front of the county jail. No violence was attempted, however.

The men have maintained their innocence, denying all connection with the crime.

Lad Missing Months Worries Mother Ill

TORONTO, Sept. 1 (C.P.). — Hymie Diamond, 15-year-old lad who is thought to have "just gone off on an adventure," has been missing from the home of his aunt here for two months. And his mother, worried for the safety of her son, lies ill at her home.

Hymie is one of four children all boys, and because his father and mother were not in the best of circumstances he had been living with an aunt. Suddenly he vanished.

Relatives don't believe Hymie was kidnapped. "Only rich boys are kidnapped," his aunt said, so she doesn't worry about that. But in the meantime his mother, who will not be consoled over the disappearance of her boy, has become very ill.

HYDRO DEMANDS HEPBURN GIVE AN EXACT STAND

Prove or Retract Statements —Claim Assertions Grossly Inaccurate.

MANY MISLEADING.

Commission Discounts Apprehension Regarding 1937 Power Surplus.

TORONTO, Sept. 1. — Charging that Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., Ontario Liberal Leader, had failed either to substantiate or retract his statements in connection with the Ontario Hydro Commission,, and claiming that in his Woodbridge address, subsequent to this challenge, Mr. Hepburn had substituted "an additional set of misleading assertions," the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, in an official statement issued last evening, demands that the Liberal Leader say whether or not he stands by his statements repeatedly made from the public platform.

Own Figures Not Correct

Referring to Mr. Hepburn's statements as "grossly inaccurate and inconsistent," the Hydro Commission's statement says: "Some of the figures Mr. Hepburn now cites are correct—notably those obtained directly from the Commission's annal reports; but the additional figures of his own are not correct, and his new representations on a basis of the figures he cites are still definitely and seriously misleading.

"In his public address at Woodbridge on Aug. 23, Mr. Mitchell F. Hepburn, according to the press of Aug. 24, "took the platform and read a statement in reply to the Hydro Commission.' This statement is published in The Globe, Toronto, under the general news caption of 'Hepburn Renews Attack.' This is probably as fitting a heading as could be used, because Mr. Hepburn's statement is in no real sense a reply to the official statement presented by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission on Aug. 22.

Not Personal Opinion

"Mr. Hepburn implies that the Commission's statement represents 'the Commissioners' opinion of me personally.' This is not so. In the Commission's statement the only personal reference to Mr. Hepburn was one which credited him with a desire for personal probity. The Commission, necessarily, of course, did not conceal the fact that the statements it reviewed had been reported as made by Mr. Hepburn. Mr. Hepburn did not issue his representation anonymously, and the Commission could not with truth treat them as such.

"The Commission's statement dealt specifically with grossly inaccurate and inconsistent statements made by Mr. Hepburn, and reported in the public press of the Province. From many misrepresentations specific illustrations were selected. They were quoted in full, and each subjected to critical analysis and contrasted with the facts. These misrepresentations were briefly

Playing Safe

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (AP)— As a city magistrate, Benjamin Marvin spends a great deal of time passing judgment upon various and sundry persons brought before him, but judging babies—that's something entirely different.

Asked to serve as a judge in a baby contest, the magistrate replied to-day as follows: "Every baby is the prettiest baby in the world to its mother, and it would require more than the widsom of a Solomon to select the prettiest child and at the same time please the mothers of the other babies. I'll stick to my own job, watching adults who pass before me. It's much easier."

MAY TEST N.R.A. SUPREME COURT

Unnamed Interests Reported Preparing Case—Noted Lawyer Retained.

STORM BREWS OVER FORD.

By SAM ROBERTSON
(C. P. Staff Writer)

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Veiled indications were not lacking to-day that the highest court of the land may be converted into a test-laboratory for what has came to be known as the great American experiment—the National Industrial Recovery Act.

On the one hand there was independent Henry Ford, remaining without the wage and working-hours structure chief N.R.A. administrator Hugh Johnson built for the automobile industry. As it became apparent the government was preparing to discipline the Detroit magnate unless he subscribed to the code already accepted by all the other motor manufacturers of the United States, there was no word from Ford or his lieutenants to indicate where they stand.

On the other hand, there was an unconfirmed report from Washington that certain business interests were preparing to carry the constitutionality of N.R.A. into the Supreme Court.

Named in these reports as attorney for the unnamed interests was John W. Davis, famed corporation lawyer, snowed-under Democratic candidate for President in 1924 and last in the international eye as coach for J. P. Morgan and Company during the senatorial survey of major league finnancing.

The consumption of meats in Canada in 1932 was estimated at 1,626 million pounds, an increase of 86 million pounds over the estimate for the previous year.

CLAIM NAZIS PEACE GUARDIANS, CONQUERORS OF BOLSHEVISM

Congress Described By Hitler's Aide as Most Modern Representation of Nation.

HONOR ROLL READ.

(By Louis P. Lochner)

NURNBERG, Germany, Sept. 1 (AP)—An exaltation of the Nazi movement as the guardian of peace and the conqueror of Bolshevism was the keynote of speeches given at the first plenary session to-day of the biennial National Socialist convention.

Rudolf Hess, Deputy Chief of the party, speaking before thousands of Nazis, asserted:

"I should like to describe Nazi-ism and Fascism as sound common sense cast into political forms. Both can desire but one thing, namely, to obtain security over and against those states in which sound common sense obviously does not yet reign."

Herr Hess then described present-day Germany as "the most modern democracy in the world, the leader, of which, rooted in the people and borne by the confidence of the majority of the people, gained the right to leadership from his own strength."

This congress, said Chancellor Hitler's aide, may be described as the most modern representation of the people. His opening words were: "I open a congress of victory."

Hess then paused impressively in honor of fallen Nazis while the vast audience of 15,000 delegates and invited guests arose.

40,000 Wounded

He turned the meeting over temporarily to Capt. Ernst Roehm, who stated that "40,000 storm troopers were wounded on account of their love for Germany."

Then he read the names of those killed.

Behind him stood a banner carrier with the bloody flag carried during the 1923 beer cellar putsch. After Capt. Roehm finished, a Brown Shirt trooper stepped forward, calling, "They're marching in spirit in our ranks!"

Hess then resumed.

"No one here or abroad who lays claim to being taken seriously can deny that our people stand behind this state," he declared.

Julius Streicher, leader of the Franconion Nazis, in welcoming the congress, said:

"The fidelity which we old Nazis evinced toward our leader brought us heaven's blessing. Nurnberg has been selected as the seat of all future conventions."

FIGHT TO SAVE NORTHERN PORT

Support of 50,000 Westerners Urged to Keep Grain Going to Churchill.

BOYCOTT HINTED.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 1 (C.P.).—Support of the 50,000 members, mainly farmers in the Western Provinces, of the On-to-the-Bay Association will be enlisted to maintain shipments of wheat from Churchill, the Prairie Provinces' northern seaport, if necessary. General R. W. Patterson, president of the On-to-the-Bay Association, was on record to-day as favoring the massing of the association membership if other means fail.

Bins in the Government-constructed 2,500,000-bushel elevator at Churchill, terminus of the Hudson Bay Railway, are nearly empty, and unless shipments are rushed forward from the prairies navigation will be closed.

"The feeling is," said General Patterson, in a statement to the press last night, "that concerted action has been taken to try to keep grain from Churchill while the navigation season is open. It is admitted that the low freight rates via Fort William and Montreal are not normal, and that the carriage of grain at those rates cannot be done at a profit. If these interests can keep grain from going to Churchill while the season is open, they will get their rates again when the port is closed."

The association president believed the grain shippers in the West, particularly the wheat pools, should see that grain is available at Churchill as long as the season is open. Ships would be available to carry the grain overseas.

"If the shippers won't do that voluntarily," he added, "then we will have to start an agitation among the farmers to route their grain that way. The association will do this if necessary."

No Protection

MORGANTOWN, N. C., Sept. 1—(CP)—Moonshiners of Burke county have found the Blue Eagle affords them no protection. Deputy Sheriff G. S. Hildebran, capturing a 70-gallon copper still and 400 gallons of beer near here yesterday, spied on a nearby tree the familiar symbol of the N.R.A., with its legend: "We do our part."

When he made his report, he turned in the Blue Eagle. Underneath he had scrawled: "I done my part."

WELLS DREAMS OF TERRIBLE WAR

Writes Sees New Order With No Rent, Interest or Profit.

CONFLICT IN 1940.

LONDON, September 1. — H. G Wells has had a "dream" of what is going to happen in the next couple of centuries.

In this he saw a terrible war and the destruction of the present economic system, to be followed by a new order of things in which there will be no rent, interest, or profit and a full and happy existence will be possible for everyone.

Wells recorded this in his new book, "The Shape of Things to Come," published yesterday.

He traces the history of the world from 1913 to 2116, and paints a picture of a horrible war in Europe in 1940, leading to wholesale death and plague from gas, germs and bombs and collapse of the world system as we know it.

From the ruins rise a reconstructed world, in which, as he puts it:

"There remains no way of becoming passively wealthy. Gambling... is ruthlessly eradicated. Usury ranks with forgery as a monetary offence. Money is given to people to get what they want and not as a basis for further acquisition. There are no speculators, shareholders, private usurers, or rent lords."

VOTE ON STRIKE IS CALLED OFF

Order For Wage Cut on Winnipeg Railway Held Beyond Board's Power.

900 MEN INVOLVED.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 1.— (C.P.) — Complete tie-up of Winnipeg's transportation system was averted last night when employes of the Winnipeg Electric Company voted to defer action on a strike timed for midnight last night. Belief that a board of conciliation had exceeded its powers in ordering a 15 per cent. wage cut effective Aug. 1 and assurance the men would be reimbursed for any deductions in to-day's pay cheques left the way open for further negotiations.

Announcement of a truce in the wage dispute that affected more than 900 employes of Winnipeg's street railway system brought a sigh of relief to troubled citizens. Decision to withhold strike action was reached at a last-minute conference between company heads, union officials and Mayor R. M. Webb.

Agreement to strike followed rejection of the company's proposal for a wage reduction and findings of a board of conciliation which ordered a 15 per cent. cut retroactive to Aug. 1.

Assurance from H. M. Ward, Deputy Minister of Labor, at Ottawa, that the order can be made retroactive only to Aug. 15 brought about the truce and paved the way for further negotiations.

CAMPBELLFORD BAKERY BUSINESS CHANGES HANDS

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 1.—Another Campbellford business has changed hands with the buying of the L. J. Stover bakery firm by M. E. Ferguson of Elgin, Ont. Mr. Ferguson will carry on the business in the same premises, which are being repaired and several additions added. FIREMEN GIVE DEMONSTRATION Pit of Burning Oil is Quickly Extinguished By Local Firemen.

CHIEFS IMPRESSED.

A spectacular oil fire for the purpose of demonstrating to the visiting Fire Chiefs the effectiveness of the city's Fomon oil fire-fighting apparatus was staged yesterday afternoon under the direction of Fire Chief George Gimblett.

A pit had been prepared on the east side of the river out near the C.G.E. power dam. Filled with oil and gasoline, it was ignited and the resulting blaze of huge proportions was extinguished within the space of seconds by the city's Fomon equipment. Firemen T. Hatley and Jack Masters of the City Fire Department manned the hose line.

Many of the visiting chiefs were heard to express their interest and admiration upon the fine equipment with which this city is equipped to handle fires. They were no less impressed with the pumper demonstration given by the Canadian Johnson Motor Company with the Johnson-Tremblay portable pumps.

The demonstrations followed upon an automobile drive around the city, conducted by the aldermen of the city and members of other public organizations. The tour included an inspection of the City Filtration plant, under the auspices of Ross L. Dobbin, general manager of Peterborough Public Utilities. A corn roast was held at the grounds of the filtration plant, and was partaken of by the delegates and their ladies.

Stone Crusher Chain Stolen During Night

COBOURG, September 1 (Special to Examiner). — An unusual theft took place the other day in Hamilton Township. The stone crusher had been operated in road construction work and had been left in readiness to proceed the following morning, but some person happened along during the night and stole a heavy chain from it. The chain is valued at $40.00.

CAVAN.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Hunter went to Toronto on Monday and will attend the C.N.E.

Seven dollars and twenty-five cents was added to the treasury of the W.A. by the small fee charged. Mr. Williamson contributed two fine solos. Mrs. Ida Keegan won the piece of aluminumware given at these demonstrations.

The Rev. Mr. Lang will occupy his own pulpit in Cavan United church on Sunday evening after a three-weeks' vacation.

The Great . . . TRUE LIFE Story and TRUE LOVE Story of

★ GRETA GARBO ★

Probably the Greatest True Story Ever Written!

"THE story is deep. It is fundamental. It touches the lives of millions of married women in their homes and of other millions of men and women about to be married. It is a story that springs from the masses and therefore is common to us all."

BERNARR MACFADDEN

"GARBO'S story is basic because it represents what many people call genius, which usually springs from the common people and is usually thwarted in the common people by the natural laws of life. Nobody will ever know how many sparks of genius, how many flares of talent, how many knacks of doing something better than anyone else, have had to be surrendered by men to the daily drudgery of life and by women to their childbearing and the deadly routine of their home."

FULTON OURSLER
Supervising Editor

"NOT that she was a lather girl in a Swedish barber shop; not that she was a shop girl in a department store like so many millions of other girls who smile across the counter and hide their dreams, but, that from her thirteenth year, her body was definitely made for motherhood which has never been fulfilled. And there is nothing deeper nor more tragic than a body that was made for motherhood that has never been fulfilled."

GRETA GARBO—Woman of Destiny, about whose romantic affairs True Story reveals the whole truth!

CLARENCE BROWN, the director, introduced Garbo and Gilbert on the set. Half an hour later they were in each other's arms.

"A long kiss held them, their lips crushed together, their arms about each other. Garbo's eyes were closed. The world swung dizzily and melted away beneath her. There was nothing left but the wild beating of her heart, those strong young arms that held her so close, the fresh young lips pressed upon her own.

"Slowly the long lashes quivered upward, lifted like silken curtains, the great blue eyes gazed up and saw the dark, handsome young face bending above her, the fine dark eyes that were all aflame as they looked into hers.

"Garbo saw youth and love for the first time. She saw romance for the first time, with all its glamour and sweetness. And she knew that she was lost——."

Yet, today, Jack Gilbert is married to another, a sweet, fine girl, the mother of his child whom he adores, and Garbo, the silent, not meant by the gods for marriage nor for any man, stands alone upon her pinnacle—woman of genius, tragedy, mystery.

This is a great issue of True Story Magazine that has arrived on the stands today. It is great not only because it solves the Garbo mystery but because almost every one of its human documents deals deeply with some common problem of the people at a time when our welfare is concerned most earnestly with just such problems and experiences.

VICTORIA DAYS WERE HAPPY DESPITE THEIR ENDLESS WORK FORMER PERCY WOMAN RECALLS

Mrs. William Jackson, 85, Visiting Relatives Around Hastings.

A GLIMPSE OF THE PAST.

Remembers Days Before Hastings Was Settled—Helped In Fields.

HASTINGS, September 1.—Hastings has had an interesting visitor during the past few weeks in the person of Mrs. William Jackson of Toronto, a pioneer settler of Percy Township, and the sole remaining member of a family of ten.

Mrs. Jackson, whose maiden name was Katharine King, was born in Prince Edward County in 1848, coming to Percy 83 years ago and settling on a farm with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas King. The present farm is now owned by her nephew, Roy King, and is situated a few miles from the village. After her marriage 63 years ago, she lived in Alnwick Township until the passing of her nusband, and daughter Susie (Mrs. Gordon Black) whose deaths occurred 3 years ago, both within one week. She then sold her home and went to Toronto to spend the remainder of her days near her daughters. She has many friends and many relatives with whom she has made a short visit. Some of her nieces and nephews are: Alexander Wilson, Mrs. Albert Brooks, Mrs. Annie Fleming, Roy King, all of Hastings; Thomas Thompson, Mrs. W. McColl, and Mrs. F. Fry, of Norwood; Bruce King of Dartford, and several around Roseneath.

Mrs. Jackson, although almost blind, is exceptionally bright, and has retained a keen memory of the events of her younger days and can recount many an interesting story of the pioneer settlers of Percy Township. She can remember when Hastings was unknown, the first settler being a Mr. Crook, and Hastings later being known as Crook's Rapids. Most of the land was a wilderness, acres and acres being owned by Father McCaul of Picton. Mr. John Coughlan is the only person now living whom she can remember from those early days.

Built Log House.

Their farm of 100 acres was bought for $4.00 an acre. Enough land was cleared, timber cut and burned, and a small one-room shanty erected. The furniture consisted of three beds, a table, fireplace, and a box stove with a tin oven. Coals were placed in the oven over which baking was done. The family travelled from Prince Edward County with horses. Enough provisions were brought to last a year, and consisted mainly of flour, pork, and oatmeal. A cadge man then brought provisions once a week travelling over a lumber road from Cobourg, the nearest trading place. It was a common occurrence to see a father carrying half a bushel of wheat to Cobourg to be ground into flour. The nearest doctor was also in Cobourg, so old Mammy O'Neil was always called upon in sickness and a doctor was an unheard of person in many homes. The men walked ahead of the women over rough trails to homes where the sick were, and each one did his or her share in trouble.

The First Church.

Soon a few improvements and changes were noticed. The first and nearest church was a little log building in Alnwick, 10 miles distant, and was well attended. The first school she attended was the Cobourg Road School, built of logs and with an attendance of 70 scholers. She recalls the walk through the woods when she once was encountered by a bear and when deer were plentiful.

"Those were the good old days," said Mrs. Jackson. "Whisky was bought for 25 cents a gallon, and at logging bees 10 gallons were often consumed—and not one man drunk We made our own maple sugar (the only sugar we had), and often had 200 pounds of cakes."

When she was asked what political party she favored and how she looked on the modern trend in women's activities, she declared that she never bothered herself much about politics, but she thought women were as well off before they got the vote as they are now.

"In the old days," says Mrs. Jackson, "they wore more clothes than they do now, and did their courting in their homes and not as the folk of to-day.

Mrs. Jackson thinks young people should enjoy themselves without too much laxity in conduct.

"I always enjoyed myself when I was young, and would yet if I could see," she said. "Young people live too fast these days and don't know what work is. To live long, it is necessary to work."

When Women Were Busy.

Mrs. Jackson has known what work is. In her young days she pitched sheaves to two teams, helped with the hay, pulled peas, and even cradled. In the early days of her marriage she wove the cloth from which she made all the clothes for her family of four girls and always knitted socks for the whole family. Up to eight years ago she operated her own loom, upon which she has made carpets, flannels, and full cloth. She picked and spun her own yarn, and has knitted all her life. In the winter of 1929 she knit 42 pairs of socks for M. D. Brown of Roseneath, besides many pairs for her family and neighbors. She has in her possession four hand-knit bedspreads, and a beautiful knitted couch rug of her own work. Much of her handicraft has won first prize at Roseneath Fair.

In 1930 she and her late husband celebrated their sixtieth anniversary at the home of their daughter in Toronto. She loves to talk of interesting events of her married life. Their marriage took place in Warkworth by Rev. Mr. Alexander. A horse and a two-seated sleigh, then a luxury, conveyed six to the minister's home. The day seemed an enjoyable event without any preparations, the bride wearing a home-made wedding dress and only enoying a honeymoon for one day.

Mrs. Jackson has three daughters, Mrs. John Tilley of 55 Aziel Street Toronto, with whom she resides; Mrs. J. Steele, and Miss Jemima Jackson of Toronto. Miss Jemima is with her mother and at present they are visiting relatives and old neighbors in Roseneath.

Three Canadian Boys Win $5,000 Scholarships

At the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago, three Canadians were among seven boys in North America to win university scholarships donated by the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild for building the best miniature model Napoleonic coaches among thousands submitted in this year's competition. R. S. McLaughlin, president of the Canadian section of the Guild, is here seen congratulating the winners who are, from left to right: Richard Guthrie and David Tennent, both of London, Ontario; and Joseph Olafson, of Leslie, Saskatchewan. Although only two scholarships were originally offered in Canada, Olafson and Tennent ran a dead heat in the senior division and judges were unable to decide whose coach was the better. Mr. McLaughlin's influence resulted in scholarship awards going to both seniors.

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

RINGWORM is the cause of most eruptions of the skin at this season of the year. Many people, however, as we pointed out yesterday, fail to obtain relief because they do not recognize the nature of the eruption they have—they think "ringworm" eruption should be in the form of rings, and they resent the idea of harboring worms. But neither of these conceptions is true of the misnomer "ringworm."

Dr. Clendenina

It is not caused by a worm or animal parasite of any kind, but by a minute vegetable fungus, the tinea triophyton, which under the microscope looks like a mesh of spider-web filaments.

So many people have this infection that the medical profession all over the world is trying to marshal means to combat it. One of the most important of these means is to publish information of how it is spread—how the infection gains entrance to the body.

Most frequently it gains entrance through the skin of the feet. The popular term, "athlete's foot," illustrates this. The fungus lives and breeds on damp surfaces. The floors of shower baths in gymnasiums, locker rooms of country clubs and swimming pools, are excellent breeding places. When the skin of the feet, which has been rendered moist and macerated from soap and water, comes in contact with the fungus, it begins to grow on this skin and shortly makes its way under the surface. The eruption follows shortly, and as this is invariably itchy the fingernails scratch it and deposits of the fungus are embedded under the fingernails. From here it may be spread to any part of the body.

These facts point the way to prevention. An eruption between the toes or on the soles of the feet or heel should not be scratched except with gloves on, or with a cloth that can be thrown away or boiled. Of course, it is wiser not to scratch such an eruption at all. The scrub brush and soap used to cleanse the feet in that condition should not be used on the hands and should be disinfected by immersing in boiling water, alcohol or gasoline.

In locker rooms and shower baths everyone should be compelled to wear paper shoes, and such shoes should be provided by the authorities. In the gymnasia of many universities it has been found practical to require all the patrons to step into a 10 or 15 per cent solution of sodium thiosulphate, or stand in a box of sawdust saturated with it, before and after bathing. (It can be obtained at drug stores.)

Treatment of the condition is simple in the early stages. Many substances will kill off the fungus, the most frequently used being salicylic acid as used in Whitfield's ointment. Tincture of iodine and carbol-fuschin solution are also effective.

Complications require somewhat more vigorous treatment. The commonest complication is suppurative infection from scratching. In this case one must kill off the pus infection with ointment of ammoniated mercury and similar germicidal preparations before attacking the fungus.

Many cases are extremely chronic and frequently recur. In such the best remedy is the X-ray.

While the preliminary estimate of the apple crops of Canada, as at August 1, is placed at 112 per cent. of the crop of 1932, the apple crop of the United States is estimated (on August 1) at 13 per cent below normal.

BLACK BEAR SHOT NEAR BOBCAYGEON

Fenelon Falls School Board Honors T. J. Carley at Opening of New School.

LINDSAY, Sept. 1. (Examiner Corresponence)—Mr. T. J. Carley, who is leaving Fenelon Falls to practice law in Peterborough, was the recipient of a presentation at the opening of the new Continuation School at that village on Wednesday. The School Board presented him with a gold plated tonsorial outfit, accompanied by an address read by H. J. Townley. Miss Jean Townley made the presentation.

James Oliver, who resides near Bobcaygeon, shot a large bear on Wenesday, which tipped the beam at 175 pounds. Mr. Oliver had missed a large quantity of apples from his orchard and lay in wait for the prowler. One shot was sufficient to kill the bear.

According to the local agricultural representative, at least two farmers in Victoria County have been obliged to burn their entire crop of corn because of the presence of the borer. The parasite has caused a shortage of corn in this district. One church planning a corn feast had great difficulty in securing a supply.

Miss Daisy Everson, Worthy Mistress of the local Juvenile Orange Association, was the recipient of a presentation on Wednesday night, prior to her departure for Peterborough where she enters the Nicholls Hospital as a nurse in training. She was presented with a gold bracelet and mother of pearl corsage.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

SALT, TO THE average individual, is nothing more than a substance that is sprinkled over various dishes, in order to season them and make them more palatable. But to the woman who knows her beauty treatments, it is much more than that. To her, it is one of the grandest of beauty aids.

Gladys Glad

Salt has a variety of uses in the beauty field. It is an antiseptic, a deodorant, a stimulant in the bath, an effective dentifrice, and in solution, a fine mouth wash. But most important of all, when properly used, it forms a most effective remedy for oily, dandruffy hair.

Oiliness and dandruff are two of the most common and most unattractive of hair conditions. You yourself know how unpretty hair looks when it hangs in dank, oily strands. And it is just as unpleasant to the sight when its clean glossiness is marred by tiny flecks of dandruff.

The salt pack is really an excellent remedy for oily, dandruffy hair, if properly administered. And the beauty of the thing is that such a pack can be administered most effectively right at home. Before giving a salt pack to your hair, brush the hair vigorously with a flexible-bristled brush, in order to stimulate the scalp and to loosen any dandruff. Then take a saucerful of iodized or ordinary table salt, and moisten it a bit. Part your hair at close intervals and rub a generous quantity of the moistened salt on your scalp at each parting. Then, when your entire scalp has been covered with the salt, massage your head with your finger tips. Then brush your hair again, to remove as much of the salt, oil and dandruff accumulation on your scalp as possible.

After this, a thorough shampoo should be given the hair. A good liquid soap should be applied directly upon the oil, and thus prevent any gumminess. After the first lathering, the hair should be rinsed with tepid water, and again lathered and rinsed until all the oil and salt have been removed. This treatment helps to correct the olly and dandruffy condition of the hair, and also leaves it lustrous and buoyant.

NO BACK SEAT DRIVING FOR SPEED CHALLENGER

ALGONAC, Mich., Sept. 1. (AP) No back seat driver, Mrs. Brenda Scott-Paine is going to leave the running of the Harmsworth race strictly to the men folk, notwithstanding the two speedboat trophies she owns in her own right.

"Of course, I'm going to cheer for Fuzzy" she admitted, as she lounged comfortably in her deck-chair beside the boatwell where mechanics tinkered with Miss Britain III, on which England centres its hope of regaining the trophy captured 13 years ago by Gar Wood. "But I'm not going to advise him, and I'm not going to take credit or discredit for his winning or losing."

"Fuzzy" is Hubert Scott-Paine, her husband.

"After Kipling's 'Fuzzy Wuzzy', you know," she explains.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1933

THE MACKENZIE CAMPAIGN.

There is an interesting political situation out in Mackenzie, Saskatchewan, where the fiery Judge Stubbs of Winnipeg is carrying the banner of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

Judge Stubbs is being opposed not only by Liberal and Conservative candidates but by a representative of the United Front organization and therein lies the chief interest in the campaign.

The United Fronters are virtually the Communistic party; the C.C.F. program on the contrary, while it embraces many of the ideas of Communism, differs of course in the material point that the Woodsworth adherents seem to achieve their ends by peaceful ends as opposed to revolutionary methods.

So there are two candidates appealing to the radical element in the constituency—the United Fronters urging those who desire a change in the country's social and economic system to swing all the way round to the left; on the contrary Judge Stubbs is endeavoring to keep them from going that far, but to swing sufficiently to desert the two old parties.

At this distance it is next to impossible to get a clear picture of the situation, but with four candidates in the field the by-election makes an interesting study for those who like to observe current political developments.

AN INVESTIGATION NEEDED.

The feeling among the people of Canada that there is an urgent need for better conditions in the penitentiaries of the country is not going to be set at rest by official statements that all is well.

The trouble is that for years back there have been such statements from time to time, but they have not put a stop to complaints of brutality and inhuman treatment in these institutions and recent revelations have convinced the public that there is urgent need of an exhaustive inquiry into the whole system.

It makes no difference that similar inquiries in the past have not been followed by the necessary reforms; that does not excuse the present government from taking definite steps to let the real facts come out and to have the conditions reformed and the penitentiary system brought into line with modern ideas.

We have no thought that prisoners in our penitentiaries should be treated as pet boarders; they are confined behind bars because they have sinned against society and they cannot expect to have luxurious treatment.

But they are human beings and they are entitled to be treated as such; the doctrine of the square deal should not be left outside prison walls.

Obviously nothing short of a rigid investigation by a properly constituted tribunal will satisfy the public that the situation is being dealt with adequately.

ANOTHER HYDRO STATEMENT.

As might have been expected the action of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission in issuing a statement in answer to some of Mr. Hepburn's references to power matters has led up to a situation in which the Commission and the Liberal leader are likely to continue to wage a hot controversy.

This is evident from the fact that following a reply made by Mr. Hepburn to the first statement issued by the Ontario Commission, the latter has now seen fit to make public another statement in which it is declared that "misleading assertions that have been made relating to the power situation in Ontario have not been withdrawn."

"What Mr. Hepburn must do," remarks the Commission, "in justice to the Hydro users of Ontario, is definitely to rectract his former harmful statements and not to add to them."

Probably the most important point in this latest communique from Hydro headquarers is the following definite statement:

"As for the situation in 1937, regarding which Mr. Hepburn professes anxiety, the Commission takes this opportunity of once more assuring Ontario citizens that they have the most substantial warrant for discounting such fears. There will not be unused power to the extent of 1,000,000 horsepower in 1937 unless several most improbable things should happen simultaneously. For such a situation to materialize it would require firstly, that the growth trends which for eighteen years were at the rate of 11.4 per cent per year—and some important elements of which have persisted right through the depression—must cease entirely for the next four years; and it would require, further, that the industrial situation, which has already shown material improvement—producing in recent months of 1933 an increase of 7.7 per cent over last year in power demands of the Niagara system municipalities—must for four more years continue to become substantially worse. Moreover, past experience points to the probability that, with moderately rapid recovery from the depression the aggregate loads on the Commission's system will in 1937 equal, if not exceed, the power provisions that have been made.

There is no quarrel with the Commission's informing the public as to matters about which false impressions may have been created; the Hydro body has hitherto been too reticent in that respect.

But the manner in which it now undertakes to supply the information is open to question; there will be a good many people who will feel that it was not necessary to assail the Liberal leader and that the data could have been made public with less of the air of a political document.

IMPROVING CONDITIONS.

With the failure of effective international agreement at London, world attention has been focussed anew upon the prospect of a return to prosperity through national measures, particularly upon what is coming to be known as "the great American experiment" in planned economy and "controlled capitalism," says the Bank of Montreal's monthly statement. Neither the meeting nor the collapse of the World Economic Conference affected Canada profoundly. The past month has seen, upon the whole, continuance of the favorable trend conspicuous since the Spring; general business is now for the first time this year definitely above the level of the corresponding period of 1932, and this notwithstanding the decided check to the speculative upswing which was administered during July and which was in many respects the month's outstanding incident. Like much else, the latter has served to illustrate the closeness with which the trend in Canada is following that of the United States. In both countries after three months of continuous and exceedingly rapid expansion (the rate about one-third less rapid in Canada) there has been sharp reaction in stock and commodity markets, both now passing through a period of consolidation.

Commodity prices in Canada in July registered a further and still sharper rise, the Bureau of Statistics wholesale index showing a movement from 67.6 in June to 70.5, the latter figure comparing with 66.5 for July, 1932. The rise was again, as in preceding months, chiefly in raw materials and producers' goods, the index for the former advancing from 57.9 to 63.0, and for the latter from 65.5 to 69.8, while fully manufactured goods made a gain of only 2.2, and consumers' goods as a whole a gain of only 1.7. Canadian farm products were 60.1 in July as compared with 52.6 in June (grains, 60.8 as compared with 49.4), demonstrating the area in which the upward trend was at its height. Wheat price movements were in fact the most spectacular that have occurred in recent years. Between July 3rd and July 18th, No. 1 Manitoba Northern cash wheat rose from 79½c to 94c per bushel (May wheat passing the dollar mark on July 17th for the first time in two years). In the next four days, however, prices declined 20c, only to regain 15c by July 27th, of which 10c were again lost by the end of the month. The final result was the pegging of the minimum price by the Winnipeg Grain Exchange at the closing quotations of Monday, August 14th (No. 1 Northern, October, 70½c).

For Canadian agriculture, the news of the month has confirmed and emphasized the damage to crops by drought. In wheat, the spread that has developed between Winnipeg and Liverpool prices curtailed the export movement and led to the unprecedented carry-over of 219,000,000 bushels. Crop prospects have declined to 260 million bushels. Thus the available supply for the new crop year will be approximately 469 million bushels; with 130 million bushels allowed for home consumption, this will leave 339 million bushels for sale and carryover in 1933-34. Exports for the crop year just closed have been 265 million bushels.

The main indices of industrial production are upward. The Bureau of Statistics index of the volume of business was 82.2 in June compared with 76.4 in May, and though no comprehensive measurement of the kind is yet available for July, the outlook is for a further substantial rise. The July output of newsprint was 180,387 tons, the record for the year, an increase of 4 per cent. over June after seasonal trends are allowed for. Primary iron and steel plants have increased production in the case of steel billets to 49,067 tons from 31,602 in June, and in the case of pig iron to 31,689 tons from only 867 in June. Automobile production fell from 7,323 in June to 6,540, but after correction for seasonal trend the figures represent a gain in the index. Construction, which is normally down in July, registered an emphatic gain, MacLean's record of contracts awarded being $12,651,000 in July, compared with $8,086,000 in June, a doubling of the corrected index; building permits issued, however, were for less than half the amount of July, 1932, and were down 40 per cent. from June. Flour production was slightly down to 1,136,000 barrels in June, and sugar production declined in July after a very heavy June. Lumber mills have been shipping heavily. Killowatt hours of electricity generated totalled 1,442,362,000, an increase of 25 per cent. over July, 1932.

Car loadings, which normally decline in July, have since continued to mount. For the week ended August 5th, 37,775 cars were loaded, an icrease of 644 compared with the preceding week and of 2,540 compared with the same week of 1932. Export business by water has also improved. Canadian Pacific Railway earnings have increased by $473,000, or 4.9 per cent. over July, 1932, and Canadian National Railways earnings by $492,727, or 3.8 per cent.; both systems have continued to show gains into August.

The figures of Canadian foreign trade for July are again favorable, the total value of this commerce having risen to $87,604,000 from $80,091,000 in June, an increase of $5,377,000 having occurred in exports of Canadian produce, and an increase occurring in all principal commodities with the exception of cheese. Wheat, flour, fish, furs, meats, planks and boards, wood pulp and copper all show a substantial increase and it is a hopeful sign that imports have begun to expand. The balance of trade in July reached the considerable figure of $16,082,000, bringing this balance up to $42,000,000 in the elapsed four months of the current fiscal year.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The old advice "Don't go bathing after a hearty meal" does not mean much to Marvin Nelson, the C.N.E marathon winner, who swam 15 miles in record time after eating enough to do an ordinary man for two days.

VACATION ESCAPADE

By ARTHUR SHUMWAY

CHAPTER 12.

Sally stared at the exploded shell. Then she looked up questioningly at Ted.

"Thirty-eight," he said.

She nodded.

"Old Proctor was snuffed out with a .38."

She nodded again.

"But what does it mean?" she asked. "They found the bullet in his own gun."

"I know it," Ted replied, cautiously, "but we found this one right under his own room."

"So that's what he was digging for?"

"That's it, all right. What's more, he found what he was looking for."

"Why—what do you mean? We have it. This is it, isn't it?" She stared at him in bewilderment.

"Sure, this is it. But he found one, too."

"Then there were three of them? How do you know? He didn't tell you?"

"I'll say he didn't tell me. Look, Sally, you don't want to be talking to me too long out here. It'll attract suspicion."

"Well, I'm not going to leave this garage till you quit being so mysterious." She lifted her nose defiantly.

Ted chuckled. "All right, all right. Only, walk out, look at your wrist-watch, then yell at me to hurry up and get this car ready for you to take. Then pace about a bit and come flouncing back in here, as if you were going to bawl me out."

"I am going to bawl you out if you don't open up and tell me all these secrets you're keeping," Sally threatened. But she did as he had told her.

"All right, then," he said, when she came back into the garage. "I found this cartridge. I was just taking a close look at it when I heard your boy friend. I ducked and saw him start to dig. Then I waited, as I told you, and finally sneaked for my clothes, dressed in the palmettos and cleared out.

"But, meanwhile, I dropped another exploded .38 in the sand for him to find. And I noticed that he was looking right where I dropped it. It couldn't have escaped him. He found it, don't worry."

"But I don't understand ——"

"Listen, baby, when I came over here last night I knew what I was looking for. Does that surprise you? I just had a hunch. What would, be outside that window? A coin, a scrap of paper, perhaps, or maybe a bullet. I put my money on a bullet. All right. What kind of a bullet? The old boy was killed with a .38—or so it seemed. But I didn' take any chances. I rounded up that city editor, got him to get me some cartridges. He happened to have some .32's in his own gun. We shot one and probably roused all his neighbors, and I took that. And a whole one.

"Then he drove me over to the police station and got .38's and .45's. I took the empty one and a whole one of each. We couldn't find any 22's right off the bat and time was flying, so I didn't bother. I didn't think I'd need any .22's. Been a good one on me if I had. I thought of that walking over the bridge.

"As you know, I found an exploded .38, so that was what I left—an exploded .38. Another Chandler hunch that paid dividends, sugar. And you can bet your upper plate that old Casanova found it, all right. So he thinks he's smart. And we know we are—so far."

"You do think of everything," Sally said, getting into the car and starting the motor, "but I still don't see exactly what it all proves."

"It proves Proctor was shot with a .38."

"Everybody knew that."

He shook his finger at her.

"Everybody thought that," he said. "It just didn't all fit together. It's a wonder the coroner didn't get it. But we'll go into that later. It proves he was shot with a .38, all right, it proves two .38's were fired, and that Casanova was after one of those cartridges for some reason. I've got my own hunch about that reason, but you'd better scram now."

Sally smiled at him and he winked and made the throat-cutting gesture as he watched her back the long, yellow roaster out and maneuver it around toward the road.

As she drove proudly toward the mainland she tried to digest and assimilate what Ted had told her. John Kemble Proctor had been shot with a .38 caliber revolver. His own revolver was a.38. It had been found with one chamber exploded. Yet another cartridge had been found in the sand beneath his window. Fred Proctor must have known it was there. Gus Vitelli must have known that something was afoot that night before as Sally had stood guard over Ted while he scooped in the sand for the cartridge. Else why had the old gargoyle come peering through her keyhole? What connection might there have been between Gus's spying visit just as Ted had gone and Fred Proctor had taken his place in the sand below?

Surely, Sally thought, as she drove the powerful car across the long bridge over the Halifax, this mystery was beginning to simmer, preparatory to boiling over one of these days with a big explosion. Just what that explosion might be like and who might be burned remained to be seen, and to worry about. She realized now that she would fear the hideous old man more than ever.

In town on the mainland side, Sally really did visit the department store. Coming to Florida in November necessitated almost a complete new wardrobe, and Sally had determined to replenish her own, item by item, as quickly as she could.

After she had finished shopping, she stepped into a telephone booth and called the house. Jasper answered the phone.

"Has Mr. Proctor returned?" she asked.

"No'm, not yet, he hasn't."

"Well, thank you, Jasper. I think I'll have lunch over here on the mainland, and then look him up at the boatyard before I come back. If he should happen to return before I find him, you may tell him that."

"Sho, ma'm, ah'll tell him," Jasper said.

Sally had lunch at a sea-food cafe on Beach street, and enjoyed the view of the sparkling river across the park in the noonday sun as she at delicious shrimps served with a sauce unlike anything she had ever tasted before.

The boatyard was a few blocks farther on in the residential district that bordered the river to the east and south of the center of town. Turning into the drive, she anticipated Fred Proctor's surprise. He would be tremendously flattered and that would not hurt.

She did not see either Proctor or the sedan about. She got out of the roadster and walked over to the office, winding her way between jacked-up boats and hulls of boats under repair or construction.

"Has Mr. Proctor gone?" she asked the young man in the office.

"Fred Proctor?"

"Yes."

"Why, he hasn't been here today," the young man said.

"Oh, I thought I'd find him here." Sally thanked the young man and left. Proctor had lied again. He lied frequently, it appeared. What had he been doing now that he had that .38 cartridge which he believed was the one he had been hunting for in the sand?

Sally drove rapidly back to the strange house on the peninsula and found that Mr. Proctor had not returned.

"But they's a man here," Jasper said. "Maybe you better see him." The little negro made a wry face and whispered, "He sho'ly looks mean."

THE C.C.F. MOVEMENT

To The Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—A Christian system or the chaos of the present—which?

Down through the ages there have been those who strove for a social order of fellowship and brotherhood, founded on the unversal Fatherhood of God. A land flowing with milk and honey, corn and all the blessings of rich production was promised to those, like minded and willing to give service without accentuation of self. Humble men of heart were the great prophets of old (thus only could they have contact with God) and they were full of the great assurance of the faithfulness of God.

The coming of Christ was heralded with the promise of "peace on earth to men of goodwill." Peace must always have the complementary blessings of plenty and goodwill. Absence of these blessings and there will be no peace in increasing degree, as we are witnessing now.

The word "chaos" shows that in economics and sociology we are not much better than our ancestors, though in science and invention we are incomparably superior. We should be better and our great tribulation continues because of hypocrisy, for we have seen and claim to be led by far greater light.

Never has the world seen such great plenty and never were so many in want in the midst of plenty. Never were so many so highly qualified to meet human greed and so little opportunity to put them to work, because the incentive in our industrial system is "profit" and not "human need" as it should be after nineteen hundred years of preaching the gospel of peace and love.

Because of our failure to bring community practice (sociology) in line with the preaching, many are falling away, saying that the Christian ideals cannot be attained. This is false, because they have never been tried yet and will not be until put into community practice. Christianity cannot be lived to oneself, but is the highest kind of socialism—contact with God on the one hand and on the other hand service to the brotherhood.

The objective, therefore, is a co-operative commonwealth and is what an ever-increasing number in Canada are striving for, that this wonderful country and high-minded people be the first in our empire to operate a system for the commonweal and not for self.

The English-speaking nations of Britain or America can never become either Fascist or Soviet. Our conception of liberty was established long before the Magna Charta of 1216 (one of its charters), and is too deep-seated to be content with the restrictions imposed by either form of government. Our belief in Theocrasy, the rule of God, ultimately is innate to the genius of our Anglo-Celtic-Saxon race and we, and not Russia, will lead the world out of chaos. We greatly sympathize with Russia and their struggles and know them to be a long-suffering people, but God cannot be ignored there or elsewhere.

The people want to know what the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation stands for, and through the courtesy and service of The Examiner, a series of articles on the planks of our co-operative platform will follow. We will show that revolution is now threatening, and we are for stamping it out in the constitutional way of the ballot and aroused public opinion.

With many in great want, a system which has been destroying great quantities of foodstuffs, destroying calves and hogs as is now being done, and trying to force restriction of crops, is a blasphemous system founded on worldly greed and which the C.C.F. is formed to displace. We plan to bring in a system, under the grace of God, founded on human need" where men will have work and a share of the plenty which abounds. The rights of all will be respected, but special privilege given to none.

If many call it the bringing in of Kingdom of God on earth, surely such enthusiasm is the natural outcome of that spirit of independ- which wants nothing for which we are not willing to give in equal measure, which is the spirit of this great movement under the name of Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

ANSWERS CHILDS

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—Referring to Mr. Child's letter in Monday night's issue of The Examiner, I might say that the words used are very like Mr. Holland's words, and anyone who has heard him talk will agree with me in this respect: that his weapons are principally bluff and his actions at times more like that of a madman; but who the author is, makes no difference. The main fact is a few half-baked references are made concerning me, which are absolutely untrue.

I now challenge Mr. Holland and Mr. Childs to come out in the open and name the party or parties they say I am in league with to injure the cause of the unemployed, either here or anywhere else. On the contrary, I have always worked for the advancement of the cause of the U.W.F. to make it what it started out to be; even going so far as to go to the Hon. G. N. Gordon to have Mr. Holland's bluff exposed when he said the U.W.F. would give the bailiff $10 of their funds if he proved he put a tenant out of Holland's house, because this question never was discussed at the regular meeting the Wednesday night previous.

No doubt people will wonder what is behind all this. They do not know the whirlwind campaign of bluff and blunder Mr. Holland has been carrying on. In Mr. Childs' letter, references are made that if Mr. Holland had the proper support he would be another Napoleon, but Mr. Holland did not say that Napoleon died in exile on the Island of St. Helena; so give Mr. Holland support from Mr. Childs and his type, and I doubt if he would have as good a place as Napoleon had to spend the rest of his days.

Mr. Holland was the first person to ask me to join the U.W.F.; in fact, he asked several times before I consented to join; the last time being down at the Exhibition grounds when they (the U.W.F.) were getting the seats from there for the U.W.F. Hall. Tom McMurray, at that time, according to Mr. Holland, was everything but a gentleman. I consented to join only when Mr. Holland said they were going to adopt such a glowing policy as co-operation with the authorities, more relief for the unemployed and a better understanding between the landlords and tenants. This policy would have been all right but it never was adopted. Less than a month after I had joined it he started to quarrel with the executive of the Fraternity and several of them quit, including the vice-president, Mr. Spinks and the secretary.

I was regularly appointed secretary at Mr. Holland's suggestion and approved by all present without a dissenting voice, not pro tem, as Mr. Asling has said. Mr. Holland's next step was to quarrel with all the authorities in general; he denounced the Mayor, City Council, Relief Board, Examiner, etc., as all were trying to injure the cause of the U.W.F. I told him he was using poor judgment, biting at the hand that fed him, but he kept on quarrelling until his name became a by-word and the U.W.F. a laughing stock in the eyes of the public (a couple of weeks ago).

I resigned as secretary in disgust. I never had been asked or even hinted at to resign by Holland, Childs or anyone else, but on the contrary he asked me, for God's sake, don't resign as too many have resigned now.

This was on one occasion when I threatened to resign because he was introducing politics into the meetings, but the crowning incident came when he told a reporter (it all appeared in The Telegram) that the Cooper case in East City was all bluff. I told him in front of the platform before the meeting opened that he turned traitor to the cause of the U.W.F. He said the paper got it all twisted. I told him if he said any part of it that he must be a yellow cur and a master stool pigeon. He then flared up; said the reporter was a liar; that he would make him prove that and that he should be tarred and feathered. During the meeting that remark was made again.

During my membership I have always opposed his policy of fighting with the authorities. I repeatedly told him he was killing the goose that laid the golden egg, not getting himself into trouble alone, but the Fraternity. I went to his house and told him how people were criticizing him—one person saying he did too much foolish talking, while others were saying he was trying to lead the Fraternity around in circles because he was denouncing one thing one night and upholding it the next night and that it was impossible to follow him; but he swallowed all this until I took action through Mr. Gordon, K.C., as it appeared in The Examiner, to have him prosecuted if he misappropriated any of the funds of the Fraternity.

I have been honorable and true in all my dealings with the U.W.F. I criticised Mr. Holland when he was trying to make himself foolish. I told him it would rebound on the Fraternity, but my criticism was nothing in comparison to what The Worker said, which I will make plain in next letter, if necessary.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space in valuable paper and trusting this will clear the situation.

Yours sincerely,
WILLIAM SMITH.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

A BIG DAY IN OTTAWA HISTORY

This day, September 1st, is an important date in connection with the House of Parliament at Ottawa. It was on September 1, 1860, that the then Prince of Wales (afterwards Edward VII) laid the foundation stone of the building which was to house the legislators of the Dominion of Canada, then only in the category of a dream which might some day come true. It was not until 1864 that the Confederation Conferences were held, so that there can be no doubting the confidence in the future of those statesmen who designed that wonderful building at Ottawa, hoping and believing that some day it would house representatives of a Dominion stretching from sea to sea, for, be it remembered, the Canada of that day comprised only Quebec and Ontario.

That building was first occupied by the Parliament of the Province of Canada from June 8 to August 15, 1866. By that time the Confederation movement was assured of success, so far at least as Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswck were concerned. The old Canada was dying; the new Canada was in its birth throes. And so it came that on November 7, 1867, the first Parliament of the Dominion of Canada met in the building which had had as its sponsor the Prince of Wales.

Years passed. With them the Dominion grew in breath and national strength. Every legislator, every official, every newspaperman whose duties called him to Ottawa for the sessions learned to love the beautiful building in which they did thir work. Then, on February 3, 1916 came disaster. Fire of unknown origin destroyed our Parliamentary home, taking with it the lives of B. B. Law, M.P. for Yarmouth, N.S., an unassuming gentleman, regarded with esteem by everybody, and of J. B. R. Laplante, clerk assistant of the House of Commons. As the flames crept up to the tower, old timers knew that a dear friend was passing, and in every section of the Dominion there were men who, when they read the news, felt as if they had been personally bereaved, so strongly did the memories of the past respond when disaster arrived.

Time passed. Again September the first came around, and the Duke of Connaught laid the corner stone of the building designed to replace that destroyed by the fire. Three other years went the way of all time, and again, on September the first, another Prince of Wales, grandson of he who had laid the first stone in 1860, presided at a cremony of laying the foundation stone of anew building, then practically completed.

To-day the old site is filled by another Parliament House, with, in its centre, the Victory and Peace tower, from which chime out the notes of the carillon spreading to the world notes of a united Canada, determined and valiant in war, confident and proud in peace.

Robbins Suspended As Deputy Minister

TORONTO, Sept. 1 (CP)—Harry M. Robbins, Deputy Minister of Hospitals for Ontario, has been suspended indefinitely, Hon. Dr. J. D. Monteith, Acting Minister of Health, announced to-day.

"We have made sufficient inquiry to feel justified in taking this action," he said.

Robbins faces charges of criminal negligence, driving an automobile while intoxicated and having liquor illegally in his possession. He was arrested at Brantford after allegedly seriously injuring a youth with his car.

El Lagarto Takes First Gold Cup Heat

DETROIT, Sept. 1 (A.P.). — El Lagarto, a brown-hulled speed boat from Lake George, N.Y., with Geo. Reis at the wheel, roared around the five-mile course in the Detroit River to-day for an easy victory in the first of three heats for the Gold Cup Trophy.

The Lake George craft got across the starting line almost at the crack of the starter's pistol, and held her lead throughout the six laps.

The Delphine IV., which won the trophy last year, was second, while the Delphine VII., piloted by Mrs. Delphine Dodge Baker, of Washington, was third.

A DRAWING CARD.

NORTH BAY, Ont.—An unprecedented influx of Southern Ontario jobless since the remuneration to trans-Canada highway workers was raised from $8 to $10 monthly has caused H. A. Desjardins, superintendent of the Ontario Employment Bureau here, to flash "filled up" warnings to the big centres of central and eastern Ontario. Mr. Desjardins particularly directed his warning to Toronto, Hamilton and Brantford, from which points four or five hundred young men have come this week.

BANDIT SLIPS UP IN HIS RAID UPON KITCHENER FIRM

Lone Robebr Arrives Before Payroll is Delivered From Bank.

GETS ONLY $70.

Owner Mistakes Small Cash Box For One With Larger Amount, in Excitement.

KITCHENER, Ont., Sept. 1.—(C P.)—An armed man who sought to get the payroll of the Boehmer Box Factory today held up the office staff of the firm and escaped with $70 from a money box. The payroll had not yet arrived from the bank. Entering the outer office of the factory at 11:40 this morning, the robber held up Clara Lane, stenographer and Alfred Scharlach, clerk. But Scharlach made a jump through the open window and ran to notify police.

From his inner office George Boehmer heard the noise made by the clerk scrambling through the window and opened his office door. He ran right into the robber's gun. Boehmer explained the weekly payroll had not arrived from the bank.

Asked what was in the office money box, Boehmer reached for one of the two boxes, believing it to be one in which only a small amount of cash was kept. It contained $70 and the holdup man seized this and fled.

Police were given a good description of the short, dark-complexioned robber. It was not escertained if he left the scene in a car should be a reduction of the salaries paid. Acting upon his suggestion the Association reduced the fees of the secretary to $400 per annum; and those of the treasurer to $50 per annum.

PEMBROKE CHIEF NEW PRESIDENT OF ASSOCIATION

THE PRESIDENT ELECT

While he claims Collingwood as his home town, Chief Dey is a native of Toronto. He spent his youth in the former town and entered service in Collingwood Fire Department twenty-five years ago. He was Chief of that Department for some years, before accepting his present appointment as Chief of Pembroke Fire Department ten years ago.

Joining the Dominion Association of Fire Chiefs in the year 1911, he has been actively interested in all matters pertaining to the welfare of the firefighters and has kept right in step with the latest developments in fire fighting equipment.

He was one of the applicants over ten years ago for the vacant position of Fire Chief of the City of Peterborough, and was runner-up for the present office as head of the local department that is now held by Fire Chief George Gimblett.

Acknowledging the honor which had been shown him, Chief Gimblett thanked his colleagues for electing him as treasurer of the Association. "I have always tried," he said, "to have the best interests of the organization at heart. I brought you here as guests of the City of Peterborough this year, and we hope your stay has been pleasant and profitable."

After he had installed his successor to office in the chair, Chief Guerin was presented with a past president's badge by Secretary Armstrong. He spoke briefly in acknowledgment, as also did the President-elect, after which Mrs. Guerin, Alderman J. A. McNabb, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and President Andrew Brown of Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club were called to the platform.

Alderman McNabb made the draw in connection with the contest arranged by the Lawn Bowling Club for the delegates to the convention, and declared Chief C. M. Brody of North Bay winner of a silver tea service, with ticket number 361.

Alderman McNabb took the opportunity on behalf of the city of extending to the delegates an invitation to return at some future date. He judged from comments he had heard from the various chiefs, that they were all well satisfied with the hospitality they had received in this city. They were almost unanimous also, he explained, in crediting Peterborough as being an attractive city and one equipped with an efficient and well-handled fire department.

On behalf of the ladies, Mrs. Guerin expressed deep appreciation of the efforts of Mrs. Chris Graham and her energetic committee, who had planned and executed with remarkable efficiency the program of entertainment for the lady delegates.

A Hunch

KANSAS CITY, September 1 (C.P.). — Over the telephone to the General Hospital came this question:

"What does a fellow do when the baby swallows a mothball?"

The necessary information was furnished, after which the man was asked if his child had swallowed a mothball.

"No," he replied "but we are packing some clothing and filling the pockets with mothballs, and we feel sure the baby is going to grab and swallow one any minute."

ALBERT DORLAND BACK AT HOME

Hesitates When Photographers Pose Him Outside Bank Building.

IS GOING "STRAIGHT."

TORONTO, Sept. 1 (CP)—Albert Dorland, one of the most publicized penitentiary prisoners of recent years, sat down to breakfast in his Toronto home to-day—the first time in three years. Dorland, released on ticket-of-leave yesterday from Portsmouth Penitentiary, where he had been serving a five-year term, arrived here last night.

Happy in his freedom, Dorland kept repeating over and again, "Sure, I glad to be out," when greeted by reporters, as he arrived by automobile from Kingston. He assured his interviewers that he firmly intended to "go straight."

"How about a picture?" Dorland was asked.

"Sure," he replied and right on the street corner he posed with his back to a building. Then as the photographer was about to "shoot" Dorland turned suddenly and looked up at the building.

"Say, this is a bank. What bank is it, anyway," he asked. Then before a reply came he grinned and said, "It's all right, it's not the Royal.",

Interpreter Wanted

Can you speak Rumanian or Russian? If you can you may be able to help a man out of a "tough spot," for John Verchu, a Rumanian who understands little English, is locked in the city jail on a charge of vagrancy while the police look for somebody who can speak one of his languages.

Verchu was arrested yesterday. Unable to understand the charge as read to him by Magistrate Langley in Police Court this morning, he was returned to his cell. If an interpreter is secured by tomorrow morning, he will be given a chance to plead, but otherwise he is certain to spend the Labor Day week-end in confinement without trial.

Archie Dettman, of Kinmount, charged with having mash and other materials for the manufacture of spirits in his possession, was remanded until next Friday. Bail was set at $1,000.

Religion Is Contest In India—No Politics

"There is no political problem in India—it is all religion" W. E. Hopkins, returned missionary from the American Telegu mission field in India, who provided an illuminating address on the Indian situation to the Rotary Club recently, told the Kiwanis Club at luncheon to-day.

"The Indian peoples are not interested in politics. They are concerned only with their ancient and deeply-rooted religious beliefs. The root of all the evil is the struggle of the Hindus under the leadership of Gandhi, to place their religion in control over all other religions. If they succeed they will drive out the British and all Christian missionaries, for Gandhi is by no means a Christian as some of the press reports would have him."

Mr. Hopkins was introduced by A. B. Gates. His home is in Rochester, Minnesota, and he is in the district on a holiday visit to Chemong Lake.

During the luncheon meeting, two vocal solos were offered by Stanley Willis, accompanied by Mrs. A. E. Kelsie.

POLITICAL BIAS THING OF PAST

Character of Canadian Newspapers Changing Rapidly Montreal Publisher States.

AT "EX." PRESS LUNCHEON

TORONTO, Sept. 1.—(CP)— The distinguishing feature of a newspaper is "character" and the more distinctive it is the greater the appeal to the thinking public, declared Major John Bassett, vice-president of the Montreal gazette publishing company, speaking at the Press day luncheon of the Canadian National Exhibition. Major Bassett said the character of Canadian newspapers had changed in the last few years.

No self respecting newspaperman would now permit his news columns to be colored by political bias as was the habit some years ago. Canadian newspapers showed a tendency to break away from slavish allegiance to political parties, Major Bassett said.

"Today, with our Shibboleths a myth, our most revered institutions crumbling to dust and our faith no longer a creed, people are crying out for guidance and courage in the editorial columns of newspapers," the speaker went on. In no forum could the truth be more clearly and forcibly preached than in the editorial columns. A free press meant free people and the freedom of the press was no myth.

Tracing the development of newspapers, Major Bassett pointed out that from small beginnings of political sheets supported by political parties there existed today self supporting institutions run on business lines. The real function of a newspaper was the independence to applaud its party when it did right and criticise when it did wrong.

One common object of the newspapers of the Dominion was an endeavor to build up a commonwealth of free and contented men and women, faithful to the political ideals believed to be the best but owing final allegiance to one throne and one king.

WATER FAMINE FACING ENGLAND

Long Queues Form Daily in Many Sections to Get Meagre Supply.

AFFECTING MILKING HERDS

(By George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Writer)

LONDON, Sept. 1.—(C. P. Cable) —Only a local drizzle in some sections is promised to parched England by the weather man today as the menace of a water shortage increases daily.

Macclesfield in Cheshire, with 10 days' supply left, is faced with the greatest water famine in its long history. Villages near Reading are getting their water from a brewery well. A village pump in Suffolk ran dry and the rector agreed to give a supply of water to those who attended church. In North Hertfordshire, and Leicestershire villages, long water queues are formed daily.

In the Lincoln area milk famine has developed owing to the shortage of moist herbiage for the cows, while village pumps at Aylesbury are dry for the first time in 20 years.

Windsor's Fair Wage By-Law Is In Force

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 1 (CP) — Windsor's fair wage by-aw, under which the city will boycott firms not paying employees living wages, went into effect to-day and simultaneously Mayor David Croll announced a minimum wage law for men will be asked of the Ontario Government by Mayors of the Province.

Endorsation of his fair wage policy had been given by the executive of the Provincial Mayors' Association, the Windsor chief magistrate said. He returned yesterday from a meeting of executive. A meeting of all Ontario Mayors had been called for next week, he said, either at Toronto or Hamilton. No date had been set.

Basis of the Croll fair wage scheme is the declaration by municipal purchasing bodies of refusal to make civic purchases from firms not paying living wages. At this week's executive meeting he discussed the question with Mayors of Hamilton, Brantford, Mimico and Burlington.

CUSTOMS RETURNS HIGHER.

TORONTO.— Total customs and excise returns for the month of August showed an increase to-day with the release of figures from the Toronto branch of the Dominion Customs and Excise Bureau. Total collections for August were $3,469,-169.97. This bettered the July collection by $135,864.30. Reports show that July, 1933, was the first month since June, 1932, that a gain was made. Collections of August, this year, show an increase of $56,539.72 over August, 1932.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO, Sept. 1.—(C.P.)—The Toronto stock market idled most of to-day but spurted a little shortly before the close with firmer prices ruling. The oil shares particularly came in for attention and the whole group closed substantially higher. The market will be closed until Tuesday morning.

Adoption of a code for the oil industry in the United States was a bullish note for the oil shares. Imperial closed up ⅝ at 14⅞, British American at 15, up ½ and International Pete at 20, up a point. McColl and Supertest also advanced.

Interlisted shares moved ahead a little, Nickel to 21.75, Brazilian ¼ to 14¾, Ford A ¼ to 16 and C.P.R. ⅛ to 17⅝. Smelters was down 1 to 133.

The approaching long week-end holiday, from the close to-day until next Tuesday, took the life out of to-day's market, due to fear on the part of he average trader that the unsettled economic situation might produce a surprise in the interval that would be costly to those holding market positions.

NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Sept. 1. — (AP) — Stocks dozed today as traders deserted board rooms for other points of interest. Market prices, however, maintained a steady tone and oils pushed moderately higher. Standard oils of New Jersey and California advanced a point each while other issues up fractions to around a point included American Telephone, United States Steel, National Distillers, General Motors, American Can and Dome Miles. Transfers approximated 1,000,000 shares

TORONTO MINING

TORONTO, Sept. 1 (CP)—A lagging, drifting mining market developed a little steam in the last hour of to-day's session and moved ahead moderately, impelled by a better volume of buying in anticipation of a strong opening next week. Some individual issues became quite bullish before the close, the strong spots including Ajax Oil, Eldorado and Ventures. The latter rose five cents.

High-priced gold shares turned over lightly but prices closed at the day's top. Dome at 34.25, up 25, Lake Shore (ex-dividend) at 46.50, up 25, and Teck and Wright Hargreaves lost 10 each.

Nickel and Noranda adding 20 to 50 cents and the smaller issues showed little change. In the silvers Eldorado pushed up 15 to 4.25.

Ajax was outstanding in the oil group, gaining 9 cents to 1.39 in active trading.

Even with bar gold selling in London at a record high price the gold stocks refused to move out of the dumps, most of the trades coming in broken lots and in barely steady quotations. There was no pressure of stock for sale and prices were allowed to drift.

International Nickel and Noranda showed moderate strength in the early trading and the other base metal shares drifted slightly lower.

DIES FOR MURDER.

WINNIPEG. — Peter Piwiak, 23-year-old Ukrainian of the Whytewold district, paid the supreme penalty on the gallows here to-day for the murder of Mrs. Martha Sparok farm-neighbor, last March. The trap was sprung at 7:30 a.m. and the convicted man pronounced dead one minute later.

DICTATORSHIPS FROWNED UPON

Trade Unions in Great Britain to Mobilize Forces in Opposition.

PLAN FALL CAMPAIGN.

(By George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Writer)

LONDON, Sept. 1.—(C. P. Cable) —The general council of the trades Union Congress has declared war on would-be dictators in the United Kingdom.

Trade unionism must oppose all dictatorships, whether of the right or of the left, is the unequivocal declaration by the general council today. "We must be constantly on our guard," it says, "to detect and combat any tendencies towards dictatorship of any kind."

Many people, the statement proceeds, do not perceive that the principle of dictatorship is the same whether it is of Communist or Fascist stripe "They do not realize that each suppresses its opponents ruthlessly No independent authority can be permitted by a dictatorship in any political or economic field, since dictatorship claims and must claim if it is to remain in power and complete authority".

The issue will come before the Trades Union congress in full next week ,and a vigorous autumn campaign against Fascism is to follow. The declaration comes at a time when the British Union of Fascists headed by Sir Oswald Mosley announces its ambition of having an empire Fascist organization.

BRITISH WOMAN LOSES IN GOLF

Enid Wilson Off Her Game and Falls to Miss Van Wie.

HER THIRD ATTEMPT.

EXMOOR COUNTRY CLUB, Highland Park, Ill., Sept. 1 (AP)—Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, defending titleholder, swept aside Enid Wilson of England with a 6 and 5 triumph to-day to enter the finals of the United States Women's Golf championship. It was the widest victory of the meet, as Miss Wilson was sadly off her game, while Van Wie shot par.

Miss Van Wie collected three birdies while the Briton took three 6's and 7. The American champion surrendered only one hole in the one-sided match. It was Miss Wilson's third try for the American crown and her third failure.

1,000,000 Sign Pledge Against Child Labor

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP) — Child labor was history to-day in hundreds of thousands of business establishments.

Every signer of President Roosevelt's re-employment agreement—estimated by NRA officials at around 1,000,000—was pledged not to employ children under 16 years. Other hundreds, functioning under codes and modified agreements, similarly were pledged, though in some instances allowed to employ children from 14 to 16 outside school hours.

SPORT OF KINGS

By ART MURRAY

(Special to Examiner.)

Stamford Park, Niagara Falls, are enjoying a wonderful meeting so far. There are plenty of horses, lots of capable jockeys, good officials and everything that goes to make a successful seven days of racing. Another thing that makes a hit with the fans is the twenty-five cent gate admission. In the good old days it was two dollars and a quarter to get into any race track and at today's rate a person can go nine times for that amount.

• • •

Rockingham Park, near Boston, opens its fall meeting on Saturday and will run for one solid month, also the new Fair Grounds track at Detroit. These are two new ventures and it will remain to be seen if there is any shortage of horses in Canada, as no doubt a lot of owners who formerly raced during the fall meetings at our tracks will be patronizing one of the above as they do not entail the heavy expense of moving every seven days like in Canada. Mr. Orpen, the owner of Kenilworth track at Windsor, has already called off the fall meeting as he knew it would be suicide to run in opposition to the Detroit meeting.

All the larger stables that are not racing at Niagara Falls have shipped to Thorncliffe and are resting their charges up there awaiting the opening of Saturday, September the ninth.

HOGARTY, the good sprinter, is at Stamford and should cop a six-furlong event before the week is over. ALTSHEB is another that is ready for the question as his good race behind Lace Shawl on opening day when he finished third should tighten him up nicely for a winning effort. They tell me that FREETHINKER will greet the judges first before they leave Stamford. Watch him in a Canadian-bred event.

Air warfare, the article declares, could commence sooner because factories are equipped for quick production and commercial planes have been especially designed for conversion into military craft.

The article says the German aerial network has been developed far beyond commercial needs and "the same applies to strategic roads, bridges and railways" which are especially adaptable for troop movements.

Should the Children EAT IT?

PARENTS, particularly mothers, are paying a lot of attention to children's diet these days. For it is far more economical and pleasant to keep a child well by feeding him correctly than by nursing and doctoring him back to health.

Of course in case of doubt the doctor should be consulted regarding what a child should eat and what he should not eat. But do you realize that the leading manufacturers of food now seek the advice and approval of the leading nutritional authorities in the country, relative to the claims they make for their products in their advertising?

In other words, food advertisements are reliable sources of information regarding diet. They are based upon the results of the latest approved scientific discoveries about vitamins, minerals and roughage, in relation to vigorous bodies, clear complexions, sound teeth and properly regulated systems.

So read these advertisements carefully. Consult your doctor about them. Very often the advertiser invites you to do this because he has asked authorities, whom your doctor respects, about statements made in those advertisements.

NO EARTH OR LIGHT NEEDED TO GROW BY NEW PROCESS

Fodder in 10 Days Equals Development Requiring Three Months

USED FOR MALARIA

Leeds.—One hundred men and their families will be chosen shortly from the ranks of this city's unemployed to work out an experiment on artificial meadows to be sown near Morley, Yorkshire.

A hundred acres of land is to be cut up into five-acre farms to work out a new method of cultivation of cattle fodder.

This process was demonstrated recently at the National Institute for Research, near Reading, by Dr. Spangenberg, its inventor, who claims that all crops grown from seed, such as maize, oats, barley, lupins, soya beans, cotton, rice, and ordinary grass can be grown in ten days to a height which would normally require about three months.

The seeds are sown in trays in an airtight cabinet from which light is excluded and are treated with considerable quantities of water containing a small proportion of chemical.

No earth is required. At the end of ten days each tray contains a closely-packed growth of the particular crop approximately 16 inches high.

The crop is then removed from the tray and used immediately as food for animals.

"It is by using this process that Hitler hopes to solve Germany's unemployment problem," Dr. Spangenberg stated.

"Experiments have shown that the crop at the end of ten days, in addition to being the finest fresh food for cattle, also makes a splendid salad and acts as a remedy for malaria.

Each cultivation plant is fitted with ten trays placed one above the other in two sets of five. Each tray is, in effect, an artificial meadow capable of producing a fresh crop every ten days, or 36 crops a year.

It is claimed that one plant can feed 30 cattle with fresh fodder all the year round. Forty plants housed in a barn 100 feet by 40 feet would provide about 4,320 tons a year, sufficient for 1,200 head of cattle.

"It is thus possible," added Dr. Spangenberg, "to feed cattle the whole year round. Cattle rearing is made independent of climate conditions and can be carried on either in town or country under tropical conditions or in the cold countries of the north.

"Tests with cattle fed with seed fodder show an increase in weight of 25 per cent. over that of cattle fed in the ordinary way, and the meat is better in quality.

"It has also been found that milch cows give an 18 per cent. larger yield of milk of a superior quality; the content in fatty substance of their milk being increased in like proportion.

"Food grown by this process possesses all the qualities of the best spring pasture. It has the same alimentary substances and the essential vitamins. The food also prevents and combats disease in cattle, and even cattle seriously affected can be cured by this method of feeding.

"The benefits apply equally to sheep and pigs. The wool of sheep shows a marked improvement.

"Hens fed with the food lay more eggs, and eggs should become in the depth of winter as plentiful and as savory as in spring.

"For market gardeners the process will be of value because all kinds of plants that grow from seed can be got ready for transplanting in about eight or ten days instead of the normal period of four to six weeks."

NEW POLICE PROGRAM HITS SCOTLAND YARD

National Detective Office and Headquarters is Planned

London.—The fate of Scotland Yard is in the balance. This institution—home of the flying squad, terror of criminals, stock-in-trade of thriller writers—is intended to give place in the near future to a national police headquarters.

If the plans now in preparation mature the old British principle of purely local police control, each community keeping the peace in its own way without interference by London officials, is doomed to pass away.

A detective headquarters for England and Wales is visualized.

SCOTS SMILE AGAIN AS STILLS REOPEN

Scotland Holds Almost Complete Corner on World's Whiskey Supply

Glasgow.—Scotland is preparing for a whiskey boom which will synchronize with the lifting of the remaining ban of U.S. prohibition on January 1.

Plans have been made to reopen a number of the Scottish stills that have been closed on account of the decline in the consumption of whiskey.

Of the 116 distilleries in Scotland, only four have been working this year.

Almost every day distillers receive inquiries for options on anything from 1,000 to 100,000 gallons of matured spirits at a fixed price. No agreements have been signed by British distillers.

"The reason is," one distillery said, "that there are in bond about 185,000,000 gallons of whiskey of which only a fairly small percentage is matured.

"Only 36,000,000 gallons is in the hands of independent distillers, so that Scotland holds an almost complete corner in the world's supplies.

"When prohibition finally goes there is bound to be enormous demand for supplies and the distillers are holding their hands till the time comes."

WHOLE TOWN IS SOLD 1,000 LEASES SWITCH

Tenants Getting Chance to Buy Homes

Bradford.—Saltaire, England's first model village, has been sold by the wool textile firm whose employees practically comprise the whole village, but the tenants are not to be disturbed. They will be given the opportunity of acquiring their homes.

The purchaser is F. Cresswell, a Bradford estate agent.

The deal comprised more than 1,000 houses and shops, and was one of the largest purchases of industrial dwellings in the annals of the country.

MACLEODS IN CAIRN HONOR THEIR PIPERS

Unveil Monument to MacCrimmons on Shore of Loch Dunvegan

Dunvegan.—Macleod of Macleod, twenty-seventh chief of his clan, recently unveiled a memorial cairn to the great piping family of MacCrimmon, on the shore of Loch Dunvegan, in Skye. The MacCrimmons for at least three centuries were the hereditary pipers to successive chiefs of the Macleods, and so pre-eminent were they in their musical art that Highland chiefs from far and near sent their pipers to the MacCrimmon College of Music.

The cairn unveiling was a picturesque and inspiring reminder of old times. It was a gray misty morning when MacLeod left his castle at Dunvegan and sailed across the loch to Borreraig, where the cairn stands. The greatest pipers of the day had come to take part in the ceremony, and during the sail across the dark loch the strains of the pipers carried far across the sea and land.

Pipe-Major John Macdonald played an historic MacCrimmon composition, nearly 300 years old. The name of the pibroch is "I got a kiss of the King's hand," and, as Macleod reminded his hearers, it commemorates an episode of the year 1651, when Charles II. was encamped outside Stirling.

One morning, when the King went out to review his troops, he saw all the pipers, to the number of 80, standing together uncovered before an old piper. The King was told that this was MacCrimmon, the king of pipers, and calling up MacCrimmon, he gave him his hand to kiss. MacCrimmon then and there composed the classical pibroch, "I got a kiss of the King's hand."

PATH USED 58 YEARS CLOSED BY COUNCIL

But "No Footpath" Notice Is Removed by Angry Villagers

Chelmsford.—Angry villagers have removed, for the second time, a "No footpath" notice which had been erected at Rivenhall, near here.

barbed wire, which had been placed across the land in dispute in the "footpath war," was dragged aside.

The rector of the parish, the Rev. Andrew O. Hunt, is supporting the villagers in their claim. He has communicated with the Essex County council, demanding a public inquiry.

The land concerned is opposite the rectory, it was recently bought by the Essex County council, in connection with their small-holdings scheme.

Although people have used the footpath over the land between the main road and Olivers Lane since 1900, the county council now contend that there is no right of way.

WHITE SMOCKS AT FUNERAL

Barcombe.—Farm workers clad in white Sussex smocks were the bearers at the funeral here of the second Lord Monk Bretton. Earlier in the day the casket was borne across the fields from Conybore, Lord Monk Bretton's Sussex home, on a farm wagon lined with evergreens to the parish church of St. Mary.

PRINCE'S ESTATE TO HAVE OWN CHURCH

A. H. Gerrard, young British sculptor, assigned the carving over the door of St. Anselm's church on the Kennington estate of the Prince of Wales. Although the foundation stone for the church was laid over 20 years ago, work of building the edifice is just being completed. A curious fact is that the church faces the unorthodox direction, having the altar at the west instead of the east end. This is to permit the great romanesque doorway, being done by Mr. Gerrard, to show to the best advantage.

FEELS TAME PARROT WANTED SO HE RESIGNS FROM PULPIT

Rather Earn Living With Pick and Shovel, Says Kentish Minister

FLAYS CHURCHMEN

Sandwich.—"I am voluntarily resigning the pastorate of this church because my occupancy of its pulpit is an embarrassment to the church."

This was the opening sentence of an attack delivered by Rev. Raymond E. Young, pastor of the Congregational church, on churches of all denominations.

"I am not an irreligious man," he said, "but a distaste for church work has grown upon me.

"What the average church seems to want to-day in the pulpit is a sort of tame parrot, who will twitter forth pretty platitudes Sunday by Sunday and fit from house to house making itself pleasant for the rest of the week.

"The quarrelsomeness, the petty-mindedness, the vindictiveness, and downright dishonesty of many Free church members nowadays is almost incredible.

"I am a young man of 32, and if events take their normal course I have at least another 30 years of active life before me. Would you choose to spend those years trotting around trying to please and pacify disgruntled and petulant churchgoers?

"I don't think you would, and I for one am not going to try. I would rather earn my bread with pick and shovel. The position of a minister is no longer consistent with the dignity of man.

"All over the country ministers are restless and unhappy, and not a few of them are bordering on nervous prostration on account of the strife and general unpleasantness in the churches."

CAR GOES GATE-CRASHING

Bedfont.—A motor car in which Col. Bertram Forbes, brother of the Earl of Granard, was travelling with a friend and a chauffeur skidded in trying to avoid a cyclist here in Middlesex, plowed through the gardens of four cottages, smashing down the fences. The occupants of the motor car escaped serious injury.

DROVE OFF 3 THUGS BUT LOST HIS TEETH

Shots Fired at Sixty-Five-Year-Old Man

Upminster.—A 65-year-old man drove off three armed thugs who attempted to rob a post office near this Essex town but suffered a severe gash on the face and lost several teeth in the fight. Three shots were fired.

In describing his adventures, James Bateman said: "One of the men picked up some mineral water bottles and threw them at me. Another struck me on the chin with a large bottle of sweets."

The trio got no loot but made their getaway in a waiting auto.

POACHERS PURSUED BY FLYING SERGEANT

Men Seeing Blue Uniform Scamper Hurriedly to Safety

Southampton.—A policeman has just done what no policeman has ever done before.

He has chased poachers in an aeroplane.

The flying policeman is a sergeant stationed at Eastleigh, Hampshire, and he heard that men with dogs were behaving suspiciously in a field near Southampton aerodrome.

He went to the field, but the suspected poachers had disappeared.

Then a light aeroplane belonging to the Hampshire Aeroplane Club landed near, and the sergeant told the pilot what he was after.

"Jump in," said the airman, and the sergeant climbed into the cockpit and soon the machine was zooming over fields and trees.

Suddenly the sergeant sighted the poachers, and the aeroplane swooped over them.

As it circled low the policeman obtained a good description of the men, who, seeing his blue uniform, scattered and fled.

DIVE DIDN'T SAVE DIVER

Hastings.—Said to have been champion diver of the Mediterranean fleet, Charles Offer ran to the sea and dived in when a policeman and a civilian chased him. He was charged with driving a car without the consent of the owner, and was bound over for two years.

BUTLER HIRES SAFE-OPENER TO GET EMPLOYERS' GEMS

Then Sets Himself Up in Mayfair Mansion As Perfect Host

NOW "ROYAL GUEST"

London.—Richard G. Brodie, a butler with a longing to be a gentleman, is a guest for a year at one of the King's prisons while all Mayfair is still trying to get over the shock of his downfall.

The red wine flowed at Brodie's whoopee parties in a Mayfair mansion. Gaiety was made gayer by laughter and dancing enhanced by choice foods and rare wines.

But, until the day that police officers unfolded certain charges in a police court, few of the guests knew that the handsome host who entertained them so lavishly was just the butler-caretaker. Or that the wines—old brandies, rich ports and vintage champagnes—were taken from his Belgian employer's excellent cellar.

Mr. Brodie threw into these parties all his longing to be a gentleman—and his pose was perfect.

His excellent character as wartime machine-gunner in France, South African cop and Indian military prison official got him a job with Madame de Gooreynd, a woman with large estates in Belgium, and he was appointed butler-caretaker of her West End mansion.

During her frequent absences in Belgium Brodie was left in sole charge of the mansion. He was tempted and fell.

Representing himself as Madame de Gooreynd's secretary, he engaged safe breakers to force madame's safe "because she had lost the key." He then cleared the safe of antiques, old silver and jewels to the value of $25,000.

Then he set out to enjoy himself. He ransacked the wine cellar to provide drinks for his parties, made gifts of madame's jewelry to his friends, and generally made whoopee in the old mansion.

Eventually he fled to Cardiff, the Welsh seaport, where he was arrested and brought back to London for trial, getting one year's hard labor.

QUICK WORK OF BOY SAVES ROYAL COACH

Father of Lad First Fireman to Answer Alarm

Wolverton.—A father and his 16-year-old son—drawn into co-operation by coincidence at four o'clock in the morning—saved the royal train from being destroyed by fire here.

The lad, Douglas Baynall was asleep in his home when leaping red shadows on his wall awoke him. He looked across to the railway sheds and saw the glare of fire.

He jumped out of bed in his pyjamas and, calling out to arouse the household, ran across the street and sounded the fire alarm.

Soon a fire engine dashed up. The first fireman off was Douglas Baynall's father.

The fire burned 27 coaches and three railway sheds. But for young Baynall's warning the royal coach must have perished also. As it was, a slight blistering of the paintwork was the only damage done.

A HOME-MADE 'PLANE NEARLY WINS RACE

Amateur Builder Led in Contest Until Close to Finish

Folkestone.—An aeroplane built in spare time from spare parts was only defeated in the last lap of a cross-country race at Lympne.

Some of the best light machines in the world had to go all out to head the home-made "bus" built and flown by H. Chater of Eastbourne.

It took Mr. Chater two years to construct his aeroplane, and he was first away on the 43-mile course with another machine in a field of ten, all keen to carry off the Cinque Ports cup.

He took the lead and held it nearly all the way, engaging in several neck-and-neck duels with all comers.

It was only in the last seconds of a great race that he was robbed of victory and had to take sixth place.

RADIUM, PALLADIUM CAUSE PANDEMONIUM

Taxi Driver Mishears, Delivers Costly, Dangerous Packet to Theatre

London.—An attache case containing radium, whose disappearance had thrown Scotland Yard into turmoil for several hours, was found at the London Palladium, where it had been delivered by a taxi-driver.

The driver had been given the case to return to Dr. Bertram Shires, a radiologist, who had lent it to the Children's Hospital, Great Ormond St. The driver had evidently mistaken his instructions, and, hearing the word "radium," had delivered the box at the Palladium.

In delivering the parcel to William Simpson, box-office manager at the Palladium, the taximan had said "it was just a box."

"As he was leaving," said Simpson, "I jokingly remarked, 'Supposing it is a bomb and it goes off?' I did not dream then of the dangerous nature of the contents.

"I tried to open the case to see what it contained." Mr. Simpson continued, "but fortunately for me it was locked and sealed, so I was saved from what might have been a serious burn. I put it in the cupboard and heard no more until a detective called and amazed us all by telling us what the box contained."

The loss of the case was discovered by Dr. Shires, who had been in the habit of loaning the radium to the hospital every week. It was customary for it to be returned in the evening, and when the doctor did not receive it he got into touch with the hospital and was informed that it had been dispatched in the care of a taxi-driver. He immediately got into communication with Scotland Yard. The number of the taxi had been taken.

OFFICERS GO TO JAIL ON EXTORTION CHARGE

Threatened to Accuse Confectioner of Receiving Stolen Goods

London.—Two detectives were sent to prison at the Old Bailey for conspiring to extort money by threats from Albert Victor Fieldhouse, a 21-year-old confectioner of Walthamstow.

Detective Sergeant Cyril Bostle, was sentenced to 18 months and Detective Constable Jack Wastall to nine months.

The jury were absent 30 minutes.

The recorder said: "You know the penalty that the law allows me to impose for this form of blackmail. It is penal servitude for life. I shall pass upon you what is really a lenient sentence considering the responsible position in which you stood."

The case for the prosecution was that the two police officers had agreed together that if Fieldhouse did not pay them money they would accuse him of receiving stolen goods.

FRESH LEASE OF LIFE GIVEN HEART VICTIMS

Drug Has Revived People Practically Dead, Says British Doctor

London. — Sufferers from heart trouble have been given a new lease of life by the discovery by Dr. S. Smith in Sir Thomas Lewis' London laboratory of a new drug which he has named digoxin.

Digoxin, like the well-known drug digitalis, used for heart troubles, comes from the foxglove. Dr. Smith experimented with every known variety of the flower and, finally, from a variety known as "laminata," he distilled the new drug.

Dr. E. J. Wayne of University College hospital tested it on 14 patients, first by mouth and then by injection. It was successful in every case and where injection was used the effect was doubled and instantaneous.

"The discovery of digoxin promises to go far towards the solution of this problem," said Dr. C. H. Hampshire, chairman of the British Pharmaceutical Conference, in his address to the delegates.

One of the greatest living authorities on heart disease said the full uses of digoxin were not yet known.

"At the moment," he said, "it is being used in that particular form of heart disease known as auricular fibrilation — a condition where the mechanism of the heart does not work rhythmically and from which rheumatic people suffer.

"It is a peculiarly fatal form of the disease. Practically nothing can be done for it.

"This drug has already brought back to life people who were practically dead and who, but for the drug, could never have lived."

DISLIKES CLERGY SMOKING

Bishop Also "Hates" Confetti Near Church Entrance

Durham.—A list of "hates" compiled by Dr. Hensley Henson, the bishop of Durham includes:

Confetti in and about the entrance to churches.

Posting names of preachers outside the churches, sometimes in letters.

Thanking the choir for "their kind help."

Clergymen smoking in the streets.

KEPT "YACHT" ON $7.50

STOWS AWAY ON PRISON SHIP JOINS HIS PAL IN DEVIL'S ISLE

Gangster Given Few Years Breaks Jail to Go With Mate

ASKED LIFE TERM

Paris. — Along with two companions, Raoul Henri Davout was found guilty of a series of offences in the south of France last year, and while his two comrades were given life sentences on the Devil's Isle group of settlements, he was let off with a five years' term to be served in the local prison.

He pleaded with the judge to revise his sentence so that he could accompany his two companions, particularly the one he called his "blood-brother," Simon Leval.

The judge refused this strange request, and, throwing himself into the arms of the other prisoner, Davout declared that he would sooner or later join him.

Knowing that Davout was an inveterate prison-breaker the authorities had special watch kept, but despite this he made his escape from the jail at Nimes a few days before the time fixed for the departure of the notorious prison hulk, Le Martiniere, with its cargo of human beings destined for the jungle in which France keeps her criminals.

Risked Life to Get to Island

The night before the vessel sailed he stole aboard, and hid himself until the departure, when he made himself known to his comrades, and by them was nourished until they came in sight of their jail.

Chance revealed the presence of the stowaway, and he was placed on board a homeward bound ship with instructions that he was to be handed over to the civil authorities at the first French port touched.

At Jamestown, Jamaica, however, Davout made his escape, and hid himself on shore until an opportunity presented itself for making his way to "Devil's Isle" on a native canoe.

When the chance came for the first time it was disastrous, the boat being capsized and the would-be convict was cast ashore on the Brazilian coast.

His second attempt landed him in the forest on the fringe of the island, with only the broad river separating him from his goal.

In that forest he lay for days and nights, tortured by fever, hunger, thirst and mosquito bites, haunted also by the fear that in the night one of the monster spiders, whose bite is death, would drop on him from the trees.

Swims Shark-Filled River

When almost exhausted, he decided to make a last gamble on the waters of the river, though they are infested by sharks, and finally he landed on the island close to the compound in which his companions were housed.

For four months he remained hidden there, a voluntary prisoner, housed and nourished by the other prisoners, and there is no telling how long he might have remained to make Devil's Isle history had it not been that chance brought near him one day a prisoner who had "double-crossed" him in the old days when they "worked" together in the Marseilles underworld.

Regardless of the warnings of his friends that he risked discovery he flung himself on the rival, and the cries of the attacked man brought guards to the scene.

At once they were astonished by the fact that they had in their hands a prisoner who had no official badge, and an inquiry followed.

The facts came out, and after he has been punished for the offence committed on the island, Davout must return to Europe to serve his sentence in the regional prison.

CHINESE TRADE INCREASES

Shanghai.—Marked by a few recessions, China's import and export trade has inclined upward each year since 1900, the year which witnessed the beginning of China's rapid commercial expansion. Imports of merchandise into China, which amounted to 32,129,000 Haikwan taels in 1900, have increased consistently until the peak was reached in 1931, when purchases from foreign sources totalled 448,187,000 Haikwan taels.

MAKE-UP FOR WAX MODELS

Paris — Even the wax or wood model must wear make-up in Paris. Her complexion is as carefully studied by beauty experts as that of the women who will eventually wear the pretty hat or frock she displays. Large department stores in Paris now have a special beauty staff which attends to such details.

PRINCE DROPS PLAN FOR ATLANTIC HOP

Nicholas of Roumania Yields to Mother's Plea

Vienna. — Prince Nicholas, King Carol's brother, has given up his plans to fly the Atlantic at the special request of his mother, Queen Marie of Roumania. Some time ago it was announced that Prince Nicholas intended flying from Ireland to North America.

Queen Marie has been disturbed by the numerous aviation accidents recently.

NEW "DEATH" DECREE ADOPTED IN GERMANY

Plotting Against Nazis and Treasonable Literature Capital Crimes

Berlin. — "I am resolved to use the mailed fist."

In these words Captain Goering, the Prussian dictator, explained the significance of a drastic new death decree, which threatens the extreme penalty for almost every kind of opposition to the Nazi state.

The new law, which will come into force as soon as its drafting is complete, inflicts the death sentence, life imprisonment or 15 years jail (the minimum sentence) for:

Attacks with intent to kill on government officials or Storm troops, or members of the Steel Helmet League, and for the plotting of such actions.

The introduction into Germany of printed matter of a treasonable nature, or which offends against the decrees for the protection of the state.

The second head, Captain Goering explained, will be extended to deal with the circulation of "atrocity propaganda."

The offences under the new decree will be tried by summary courts, which will not only be empowered to pass the death sentence, but expected to do so.

"They will lose no time," it is stated, "so that in future the burial of the assailant and his victim can take place on the same day."

Though Captain Goering claims that the new law is directed against Communism, a decree simultaneously addressed to the Nazi forces, and threatening ruthless punishment for illegal acts makes it plain that it is intended as a warning to rebellious Storm Troopers as well.

BOYS GIVEN GALLEON BY U.S. PRESIDENT

Olmstead Falls, O.—Two eight-year-old boys here are glad that President Roosevelt remembers when he was a youngster.

They have in their possession a three-foot model of a Spanish galleon, once the prized treasure of the president.

While visiting him in Albany, when he was governor of New York, the lads expressed their admiration for Roosevelt's boat. Recalling the incident, recently, the chief executive ordered the model sent to them.

They are Raymond and Malcolm Moley, twin sons of Prof. Raymond B. Moley, head of the Roosevelt "brain trust."

FUTURISTS WEARING HATS OF ALUMINUM

New Designs Give Plenty of Air for Hair

Milan.—Futurist hats are being shown here through the efforts of Filippo Marinetti and other futurist artists. They are exclusively for men's wear and made not only of felt and straw but of celluloid, tin plate and aluminum, possibly to be the better worn with aluminum ties.

The most colorful one is a celluloid fitted with small electric bulbs which can be varied to please the wearer's mood. This type is recommended for dark country roads. A sun hat is in cork and dome shaped made of layers which are connected with tiny zigzag "hemstitching" of cork, giving unlimited air for the hair. This is designed to please Italians who have altogether discarded hats and thereby brought a national industry to the brink of ruin.

SEAWEED IS MISSING FISHERIES FALL OFF

French Worried by Sudden Clearing of Coastal Waters

Paris.—French authorities in charge of agriculture and fisheries are becoming alarmed over the serious loss of sea-weed round the French coasts. Scientists asked to make an investigation have discovered that "zostere," a kind of sea-grass, has been attacked by a microbe, the nature and origin of which have not yet been identified.

The disappearance of this grass from fruitful fishing-grounds, has been marked by a notable diminution in the catches of certain varieties of fish. Shrimps will live only where this plant is to be found in abundance and several other kinds of sea life chose its tangled growth as a depositary for their eggs. "Zostere" also makes valuable manure, for it is rich in potash and iodine.

SPAIN BUILDS MANY ROADS

Madrid.—Approximately 4,000,000 pesos will be spent by the Spanish government this year on road construction work in various provinces. More than 582 projects have been prepared for execution this year.

KING CLIMBS PEAKS

Brussels.—Albert I of the Belgians, acknowledged king of the kings, when it comes to sports, has recently added a new star to his crown by climbing certain difficult peaks in the Dolomites. Some of these have even proved formidable to the best mountaineers of the Alpines.

OLD BOOK REVEALS FLIGHT BY PORTUGUESE IN 1540

Flew With Wings of Calico Worked by Arms and Legs

FELL WHEN LANDING

Lisbon. — Flying is not so modern a science as many people think. The Portuguese claim that a compatriot was the first man to fly a heavier-than-air machine. The memoirs of Donna Maria da Gloria say so. The name of this pioneer was Joao Torto. He flew at Vizeu, in Portugal, nearly 400 years ago.

On June 1, 1540, this woman writer of the 16th century recounts, Master Torto, a teacher of Vizeu, sent the town crier round with the following announcement:

"Be it known to the inhabitants of this town that this month will not end without the greatest of miracles being seen—which is a man with magic wings flying from the belfry tower of the Cathedral to St. Matthew's Fields!"

Donna Gloria goes on to describe the machine, the motor power of which was supplied by the muscular strength of the aviator.

It had four wings of calico, the lower smaller than the upper pair. They were joined by iron hoops lined with rags. Through these the intrepid flyer thrust his arms and legs. He carried the whole superstructure on his back.

On June 20 Master Torto donned his "flying kit"—the main feature of which was a cap designed to represent the head of an eagle with a gaping back, through which he peered out upon the magnetic earth. Up to the top of the belfry tower this strange machine was hoisted. Below, in the town square, townsfolk and people from the neighboring countryside assembled in such numbers that "not a drop of water could have fallen between them to the ground."

As the hour of five tolled, Torto launched himself into space above the astonished upturned faces of the crowd below. "As though, indeed, a miracle had been vouchsafed." It is recorded, "did Master Torto cleave his way through the impenetrable air towards the field of St. Matthew."

Unfortunately, at that critical moment the eagle's head slipped down over the airman's eyes. Blinded and confused he hovered for some seconds of agonising doubt, his arms and legs beating frantically . . . Then he dived, beak first, upon a roof.

There appears to be no record of a second attempt to conquer the air on the part of Master Torto, though, happily, he escaped with his life.

TEN GERMAN CITIES IN 500,000 CLASS

Berlin.—Germany has ten cities with a population of more than half a million according to the recently completed census of June 16, 1933.

Berlin leads with 4,202,000. Then follows Hamburg with 1,082,400. Next in order come: Cologne, 750,000; Munich, 726,000; Leipzig, 702,000; Essen, 650,000; Dresden, 643,000; Breslau, 623,800; Frankfort-on-the-Main, 548,500; and Dortmund, 534,800.

Fifty-two cities have a population of over 100,000.

WILL FORCE GIGOLOS TO RETURN ALL GIFTS

Husband Can Charge Him With Theft, French Ruling

Paris.—The courts here have just confirmed a magistrate's decision that has caused consternation among the whole tribe of "gigolos" or professional dancers.

For the effect of it is that any husband who finds his wife carrying on with a gigolo can not only claim from the latter the return of all gifts in cash or kind, but can also force the latter to pay the entire expense of vacations and outings which the wife has taken — and paid for — in the company of the "gigolo."

There is the further appalling prospect that when the wife takes money from her husband to defray the cost of outings with the "gigolo," the latter is indictable for theft, whereas the woman cannot be, because in French law a woman cannot be held to steal from her husband.

NUDISTS PROTEST NUDE

Dances of Gay Paris Resorts Held Anti-hygienic

Paris.—Nudists in Paris are protesting against the nude. The nude, they declare, is perfectly proper in its right place, but this place is not the gay night cabarets of Montmartre and the music halls of the Grands Boulevards.

"Nudism," reads their declaration in the review, Vivre, "was not intended to be served up in such form to old men who would be far better off in their beds, or to middle-aged women excited by a glass or two of champagne. All this is anti-hygienic and very much contrary to the laws of the true nudists."

SON LEGALLY 'DEAD' WED GERMAN GIRL

Youthful Sculptor Loses Share in $150,000 Estate

London. — "If my son John shall either in my lifetime or after my death marry Dorit Keller, late of Berlin, my will shall be construed as if he had died in my lifetime without issue."

This codicil appears in the will of Sir Percy William George Sargent of Harley St., London, consulting surgeon in the ministry of pensions, who died last January leaving £42,386 with net personalty £37,360. Probate has been granted to Sir Percy's three brothers.

The announcement of the marriage of John Sargent, who is a sculptor, to Fraulein Dorit Keller at a Cambridge register office was made last February. At the time the bridegroom said his father had been furious with him for falling in love with Miss Keller, who is the daughter of Professor Siegmund Keller of Berlin, and told him that there would be everlasting sorrow if he married a German.

HONOR SLAVES' CHAMPION

Hull Remembers Wm. Wilberforce Who Died Century Ago

Hull.—This English city has just honored the memory of one of its most famous sons, William Wilberforce, who championed the cause of the slaves.

The great liberator died a century ago on the eve of the passage through the House of Commons of the Abolition Bill. He did not live to see the triumph of the campaign that he had fought for long and weary years. A year after his death 800,000 slaves became free men.

RELIEF WORKERS GET ONE-THIRD OF PAY IN CASH

Board Decides to Change Way of Paying Relief Workers.

NUMBER OF RELIEF UP.

Under Old System Some Workers Failed to Get Full Pay.

A decision to pay all relief workers for the city in cash for one third of whatever time they work rather than on a basis of two days in six, was reached by a meeting of the Board of Works last night. The resolution will take effect retroactively to the date on which cash payments were first inaugurated.

The new arrangement was made as a result of confusion and also injustice to the workers suffered under the old arrangement. Occasionally rain has cut short the normal working week of the men to five and four days and, only working on occasional weeks, many have been unable to secure their full due on the basis of cash for two days in six, members of the Board reported.

The construction of a flight of cement steps from the west end of the new bleachers in the Bowl in East City up to Hunter street was authorized. A suggestion by the Peterborough Automobile Club that traffic control lights be placed at the intersection of Charlotte and Park streets was considered but no action was taken. The necessity of the lights was generally agreed upon but the cost was considered prohibitive in the present circumstances.

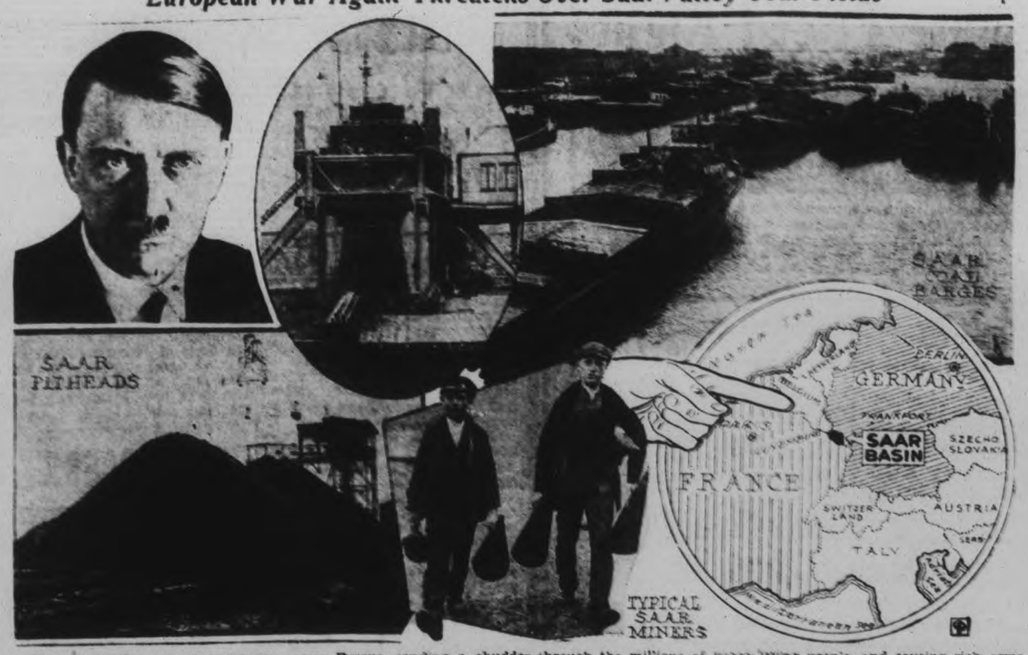
European War Again Threatens Over Saar Valley Coal Fields



Once more the war scare sweeps across Europe, sending a shudder through the millions of peace-loving people, and causing rich armament manufacturers to smile at prospect of bloodshed. Again storm centre is Germany, this time the Saar valley, rich coal fields taken by France from Germany under the provisions of Treaty of Versailles. The people in the Saar valley, long accustomed to German rule, are almost German in allegiance. This France views with alarm, and has kept troops constantly on the scene, ready for trouble. Now Adolph Hitler wants to secure complete control of the rich coal fields, and France protests. The layout, above depicts scenes from the coal fields, and a map showing its strategic position between France, Germany and Belgium.

FURTHER SLASHES IN NAVY ARE SCORED BY ADMIRALTY

Sir Eyres - Monsell States England Has Reduced Tonnage 47 Per Cent.

"CHEAP INSURANCE"

By HUGO SPECK
(Central Press Canadian Writer)

LONDON, Sept. 1.—England has closed the door against further naval reductions.

While she has not yet announced her intention to launch big naval building programs similar to those of the United States and Japan, the country "will have nothing more to do with one-sided disarmament" as it is called by Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsel, first lord of the admiralty. He said:

"People complain of the expense of the navy" which costs about $250,000,000 a year, but they should remember that in 1925 the value of our overseas trade was over $10,000,000,000. The annual cost of our navy is just about two and one-half percent. of that, and I suggest that two and one-half per cent. is not a high rate of insurance.

"But it is not only the cost that tends to blind the country to the true value of the navy. There is the propaganda that says navies ought to be 'replaced by universal brotherhood. If this is true, the only people who have taken any such step toward universal brotherhood are ourselves, for we have cut our navy to the bone.

"But we have had no response from others. Since 1914, we have reduced our naval tonnage by 47 per cent., but in the same period Italy has increased by 20 per cent., the United States by 29 per cent., and Japan by 37 per cent. It is true that France can point to a small reduction of 10 per cent., but the French navy of 1914 included much tonnage which for practical purposes was obsolete.

"In spite of all this, there are people who urge that we should reduce our navy still further—who accuse us of standing in the way of further world disarmament. I believe that many of these people mean very well, and they must be told the truth.

"We cannot have any more one-sided disarmament. We cannot always be idealists. We must face realities and remember that it is not the peace-time navy estimates that cost money. It is wars, and wars are not made by a strong British navy; they are prevented by it.

"The British navy is the guarantor of peace, not for ourselves, but for all the nations."

VERIGIN PLANS EUROPEAN TRIP

May Attend German Mineral Resort at Carlsbad for Rest.

WILL RETURN TO CANADA.

SASKATOON, Sept. 1. (C.P.)—Peter Verigin, spiritual leader of 15,000 Doukhobors in Western Canada, probably will go to Europe, possibly to the German mineral resort of Carlsbad, he revealed in an interview here. But he intends to return to Canada.

Twice faced with deportation following a prison term served in Prince Albert jail, Verigin will seek relief from a nervous condition and an attack of Eczema.

The Doukhobor leader also revealed that his will contains a provision, should he die outside of Canada, that his body be brought back to the Dominion to rest beside that of Peter the Elder, his father, in the rock-hewn tomb at Brilliant, B.C.

In the interview here last night, Verigin said his people were satisfied to remain in Canada and declared they had faith in Canada's people and constitution. They would remain, he added, as long as he had any influence with them.

SEEK TO CHECK GAS IN SEWERS

Fire Chiefs Would Have Provincial Fire Marshals Tighten Regulations.

PAID SECRETARY.

With a view to the possibility of having the Provincial Fire Marshals tighten up on regulations relative to the dangers and hazards of inflammable substances entering sewers and subterranean passages, the Dominion Fire Chiefs in convention here yesterday afternoon adopted recommendations of a special committee appointed to deal with a paper previously presented during the present sessions on the subject of "The Dangers of Sewer Gas."

The committee under chairmanship of Chief Blackler of Ottawa, brought in the following recommendation: "Speaking on behalf of the committee appointed to deal with the paper relative to the danger and hazards attending inflammable substances entering sewers and underground structures, your committee recommends to the association that this subject be referred to the incoming executive or to a committee appointed by this association, or that the committee be empowered to act and to draft such regulations governing the elimination of dangerous gases entering sewage systems, and that the co-operation of the various fire marshals be sought to assist in the matter."

A motion, notice of which had been given by Fire Chief Handley at the morning session yesterday, and which sought to effect certain changes in the constitution of the association relative to making the office of secretary an honorary one, instead of a paid office, was defeated upon a standing vote.

Prior to the vote warm debate on the subject took place. President Harry Guerin in the chair objected that the motion was out of order for several reasons.

Past President Chief F. E. Thompson of New Liskeard appealed to the members of the association to work together in co-operation and harmony for the good of the association.

Chief R. P. Dey of Pembroke, as prospective president for the next term, said he would not accept office under "existing conditions." The same question, he said, had been a subject of contention at the Halifax convention last year. He promised that if he was appointed to hold office as head of the association, he would run the association with a view to economy.

The motion which was defeated by a large majority vote, proposed that no salary, commission or travelling expenses be paid to the secretary of the association, and that in the case of the treasurer of the association a bonus might be paid at the discretion of the Board of Directors.

During the afternoon 2nd Vice-president Chief J. W. Churchill of Halifax, tendered a brief verbal report of the Maritime Fire Chiefs' Association, which he had attended as official delegate from the Dominion body.

DAUGHTER HAD CRYING SPELLS

"Nerves" Brought On by Worrying

AFTER KRUSCHEN "A DIFFERENT GIRL"

A mother writes:—"Early this spring my eighteen-year-old daughter had a nervous breakdown. She had crying spells and fits of the blues. So I decided to give Kruschen Salts a trial, starting with a large half-teaspoonful in hot water first thing in the morning, and the little daily dose in her tea for lunch and supper. In less than a week the crying spells had stopped and she began to sleep better. That was three months ago. To-day she is full of pep, and sleeps and eats well. She is a different girl. I am still giving her the little daily dose."—(Mrs.) M. L.

The commonest cause of depression is partial constipation—an insidious complaint, because the sufferer is seldom aware of it. It means the gradual accumulation of body poisons which dull the mind, damp the spirits, sap the nervous strength and lower the whole vitality.

Kruschen Salts make constipation impossible. They help the liver and kidneys to perform their natural duties in a natural way; they clear away gently, but completely, all poisonous waste matter, and ensure an uncontaminated blood-stream. Therefore, if you keep to Kruschen, you need never know the meaning of melancholy; never feel "nervy" or depressed.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.

Ford V-8 Triumphs IN COMMERCIAL TRANSPORTATION

AMAZES CANADIAN BUSINESS FIRMS WITH ITS ECONOMICAL OPERATION—SOLVES TODAY'S HAULING PROBLEMS

FOR the first time the performance that can be had only with a V-8 engine has been made available in a low-priced car.

This is the answer to today's hauling problems. Some firms have adopted lighter trucks. They need Ford V-8 power. Others now carry lighter loads and make more trips. They need Ford V-8 speed. Others run fewer trucks, with heavier loads. They need Ford V-8 power and speed and stamina. These things mean a new trend in commercial haulage, met perfectly by Ford V-8 equipment at low cost.

Ford V-8 trucks are not only low in price, but economical to operate and maintain. Their full 80 horsepower costs you nothing when not used; 35 to 45 miles per hour, at which trucks are usually driven, is the V-8's most economical range. This economy is so high as to place Ford V-8 performance within reach of any Canadian truck owner.

The Ford V-8 offers you most for your money, in first cost and running expense. There are two truck chassis, 131½ and 157 inch wheelbase and the commercial car chassis, 112-inch. Bodies meet every transportation need. See your Ford dealer. "The Canadian Truck"

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Grains hopped around nervously yesterday, and managed to finish with moderate losses.

The market was decidely erratic and studded with sharp bulges and breaks over a range of little more than two cents a bushel in wheat. The course of wheat was closely followed by other grains. Prices worked irregularly higher after the opening downturn, only to ease again at the finish.

Wheat closed unsettled, ¼c to 1c below Wednesday's close; corn easy and ⅜c to 1⅛c off; oats, ¼c to ⅜c down; rye, ⅜c to ⅝c higher, and provisions mixed, 8c lower to 10c advanced.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Sept. 1.—Stocks of butter, cheese and eggs in storage at Montreal at the end of August were announced by the Montreal Board of Trade yesterday. Cheese stocks were shown to be away ahead of a month ago and a year ago as a result of the light exports of late. Storage eggs and butter supplies are also greater, while fresh eggs showed decreases from a year ago.

The total follow: Aug. 31—Creamery butter, 184,688 boxes; dairy butter, 2,029 boxes; cheese, 261,863 boxes; fresh eggs, 9,603; storage eggs, 112,228 cases. For the month ending July 31, 1933—Creamery butter, 146,734 boxes; dairy butter, 2,004 boxes; cheese, 162,291 boxes; fresh eggs, 10,937 cases; storage eggs, 111,313 cases. For the month ending Aug. 31, 1932—Creamery butter, 199,232 boxes; dairy butter, 714 boxes; cheese, 198,218 boxes; fresh eggs, 14,316 cases; storage eggs, 92,265 cases.

Prices on the Montreal dairy and produce market generally remained unchanged to-day. No. 1 grade butter continued at 17¾c to 17 7-8c a pound for carlots or less. Receipts totalled only three boxes.

On the cheese market Ontario held at 9½c to 8¾c a pound, while Quebec sold for 9 1-8c to 9¾c. A total of 800 boxes was offered for sale.

Graded shipments in carlots or less of eggs remained at 21 to 23c a dozen for extras; 17c to 18c for firsts, and 14c to 15c for seconds. Arrivals amounted to 412 cases. On the potato market, New Quebec potatoes continued to be quoted at 80c per 90-pound bag.

WINNIPEG, September 1. — A better export demand was insufficient to absorb heavy hedging sales that entered the pit during yesterday's session on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange and values eased shortly after the opening, finally closing 1 to ⅝ cent under the previous close.

October wheat at 70¼c was only ¼ cent removed from the minimum level, December finished the month at 72⅝c, and May at 77¼c. Strong Liverpool cables gave prices a good start, but the movement from farms on Wednesday was the heaviest since the new crop harvest began, and hedging sales increased relatively, driving prices lower.

United Kingdom a Buyer.

This pressure was partially offset by an export business estimated at about 1,500,000 bushels. United Kingdom was reported to be a good buyer. Wheat finished strong at Liverpool, up 1⅝d to 1⅞d.

Volume of trade through pit was appreciable although there were quiet spells in the course of the day. Outside markets were all strong and Western Canada weather was bright, with fairly heavy rains reported at scattered points.

The tonnage situation on the lakes is in better demand and rates are up to 3¼ cents per bushel, Port William to Montreal for spot loading, indicating good sales from seaboard stocks.

HYDRO DEMANDS H E PBURN GIVE AN EXACT STAND

summarized in the Commission's recent statement as follows:

"'Mr. Hepburn is reported in different localities publicly to have stated that a Hydro-Electric power "surplus" exists, or will exist, variously amounting to 350,000 horsepower, 1,000,000 horespower, 1,500,000 horsepower, and 15,000,0000 horsepower. He has, without regard to consistency, dated his fictitious figures of surplus variously at 1932, 1933 and 1937. He has variously stated that 4,000,000 horespower and 1,000,000 horsepower of unneeded power was contracted for by the Commission, whereas the total eventual quantity to be delivered for the Niagara system under all contracts negotiated since 1927 amounts to only 471,000 horsepower, and all of this power, and more, was needed to provide for established trends.'

Challenge Not Heeded

"The challenge was presented to Mr. Hepburn either to substantiate his statements or definitely to retract them. This he has failed to do.

GRAFTON FALLS TO CAMPBELLFORD 3-2

Win Puts Campbellford in Third Place and Concludes Schedule Games.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 1. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—Playing the final game in the East Northumberland Baseball League schedule, Campbellford snatched a 3-2 victory from Grafton and put themselves in the third position in this five team series, entitling them to participate in play-off games. It is understood that Colborne and Brafton, with Grafton falling to Campbellford, are now tied for first position.

The game was a tight one, with Richardson on the mound for the Hometowners, pitching a fine game of ball. Grafton took the lead by counting one run in the second frame of the game. The Hometowners left their counting until the fifth innings, when they drove home three runs, giving them one of a lead, which they retained. Only seven innings were played. Whitton, DeCarroll and Hendy counted for the entertainers. DeCarroll made a homer as well as Hendy.

The teams:

Campbellford—Whitton, ss; DeCarroll, 3b; Stuart, rf; Christie c; C. Ewbell, 1b; Richardson, p; Bush, cf; Holmes, 2b; Hendy, cf.

Grafton—Sabin, 3b; Landynox, p; Cochrane, c; Immel, cf; Reymes, ss; Cocke, 1b; McMahon, 3b; Remmet, cf; Flint, rf.

Score by innings:

Campbellford ..... 00 030 x—3
Grafton ..... 010 000 0—2

16½-Lb. 'Lunge Is Caught Crow Bay

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 1.—And still the big ones are being caught in Trent waters as was demonstrated last evening when Mrs. Geo. Shaw of Campbellfor landed a 6-teen and a half pound lunge from the swift running waters of the river in front of Dick Cole's cottages at Cole's Point, Crow Bay. The fish, which was caught on a June bug spinner, single hook, with live minnow, took over thirty minutes to land and proved real live sport for this ardent fisher. The catch, which is on display in the local Dominion Store measured 47 inches in length.

S. PALMATEER CHAMPION MARMORA STEP DANCER

MARMORA, Sept. 1 (Examiner Correspondence)—Keen competition was seen in the step dancing contest held in connection with Marmora's street dance on Wednesday evening. Judged by the applause of the crowd Sherman Polmateer was the successful entrant out of ten. In the lucky ticket drawing in the street admission, Anna Crawford of Marmora Township secured the prize. The lucky number in the dance admission was held by Gordon Scott of Marmora. The boat drawing, under auspices of the Marmora Booster Club, also took place, with John Jones of Marmora being the lucky winner.

FAIR SUCCESS IS FORECASTED

Increase in Speeding Purse and Alteration of Rules Will Add to Fair's Success.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 1 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — With entries coming in very fast, prospects for the annual Campbellford Fall Fair, staged by the Seymour Agricultural Society, and to be held on September 26 and 27, are more than bright, and if the weather man should favor the community this year, there seems to be no reason why this year's function should not exceed many years past.

The board of directors have worked hard this year to give to the public every encouragement to appreciate what is the annual event in this district. Several alterations this year have been made in the prize-list, which will prove advantageous to the exhibitors and should tend to increase the popularity of the Fair.

One of the chief attractions this year will be the track events, and for this particular activity the board increased the prize money for 1933 by $75, making a total purse of $300. This was upon the recommendation and urging of T. J. Horkins, chairman of the sports committee, who feels that any fair that staged first-class track events will draw large crowds and materially add to the success of the enterprise.

Mr. Horkins has also made different arrangements as to credits to be given horses. There will be three races, and a proper selection will be made of the horses eligible for each race. In each race there will be three heats and four prizes. Every heat will be considered a race and a horse must win every heat to get the maximum prize. If a horse wins first in one heat, he gets first money, and if in the second heat he gets third place, he gets third money. The advantage of this system lies in the fact that it will be to the advantage of the driver to make his horse do the best every time. A unique event in the speeding contests will be a ladies' race once around the track, for which a purse of $10 is being offered.

In the foal club there are fifteen entries, and many special prizes are being given as well as the very generous awards of the list.

Cattle classes are also up to their usual standards, and this year a class of Guernsey cattle is included in the list. In beef cattle there will be two classes this year, Shorthorn and Hereford, instead of the one class.

In the hog class, there will only be one type this year—the bacon type—and the prize money for this class has been greatly increased in view of the fact that a grant of $15 is given by the Government.

A fine program of entertainment is also being arranged for, which will be made public in due course.

Jack Meiers Wheels To Toronto And Back

Visits C.N.E. For First Time—Makes Return Trip in 8 Hours.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 1.—(By Examiner Staff Correspondent.)—"The Exhibition is fine—yes. I had a good trip and don't feel at all tired." In these few brief words Jack Meiers, Campbellford peddler of note, described his trip to Toronto over the week-end, which he made on his bicycle, a distance of approximately 120 miles each way. Starting out at 3.15 a.m. on Saturday morning, Jack peddled for ten hours, working rather against odds with a new gear on his machine, but got into the city at 2 p.m. the same day.

The trip coming home, however, was much better, for he was able to reduce his time by two hours, getting into Campbellford at 7.13 p.m. Wednesday evening. And Jack states that he made many stops, besides carrying a heavy load on his machine both ways.

This is the first time this young man, who is a native of Switzerland, has visited the C. N. Exhibition, and expressed pleasure with all he saw. Two happy days he spent there, staying with fellow countrymen in Toronto.

Jack is a cyclist of note in this district, and made many fine trips. It is one of his hobbies, and one in which he is very proficient.

Gasoline and Oil Stolen At Thomasburg During Night.

HURT IN SHINGLE MILL

TWEED, Sept. 1. — The general store and garage at Thomasburg, owned and operated by Mr. Oliver, was broken into Monday night. Money and merchandise were stolen apparently by persons in an automobile, as gasoline and oil were taken from the garage. The robbers obtained an entrance by a rear window. The robbery took place between midnight and 7 a.m. Tuesday morning. Provincial police are investigating.

While operating a saw at his shingle mill at Bancroft on Tuesday, Mr. B. Vader had his left hand badly lacerated. Part of the index finger was completely severed. He was fortunate in escaping permanent injury.

Wilson—Carleton.

A pretty wedding took place at the Anglican Rectory, Roslin, on Saturday morning, when Frances Marguerite, only daughter of Mrs. M. Carleton and the late Charles Carleton, became the bride of Keith Trenor Wilson. Rev. F. C. Beazer performed the ceremony. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Montgomery. The young couple have many friends in Tweed, who wish them the best of success in married life. They spent a brief honeymoon in Toronto and Niagara Falls on their return. They will reside in Tweed.

Speck—Mimie.

At the United Church Parsonage, Tweed, Ont., by Rev. R. R. Nicholson, George Robert Speck and Margaret Florence Mimie, both of Actonolite, Ontario.

Mr. Joseph Meraw was called to Rock Island on Tuesday owing to the death of his sister-in-law Rev. Mother Gabriel of St. Anthony's Hospital. Mr. Meraw left immediately for that city. Burial was at Rock Island. The deceased was a former resident of Hungerford Township.

Death took place at Hotel Dieu, Kingston, of Mrs. Louis Probert, a former well-known resident of Hungerford Township. The late Mrs. Probert was well-known in Tweed.

Word has been received by her parents at Stoco of the death of Mrs. J. F. Williams. The late Mrs. Williams was a resident of Belleville for some time before her removal to Detroit about 10 years ago. She is survived by her husband and several children.

CAPITOL THEATRE
Yesterday a quantity of new equipment was installed in the Capitol Theatre at a cost of several thousand dollars. This is the very latest method for projection of motion pictures, and is designed to improve by about one hundred per cent, the lighting of the screen, giving a fine additional brightness and lightness to the pictures. The Capitol management keeps step with modern advances in such equipment, by installation of this new equipment.

Weddings

GAYNOR—BENSON
A quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of bride's aunt, Mrs. Geo. Beavis, 119 James street, on Wednesday evening Aug. 30, when Mary Carson Benson was united in the bonds of matrimony to Norman Victor Gaynor, of Timmins, Ontario. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, pastor of Murray street, Baptist Church, in the presence of relatives and immediate friends.
The bride entered the drawing room which was tastefully decorated to the strains of the Wedding March played by Miss Alma Beavis. Following the ceremony a dainty luncheon was served the table being centered by the bride's cake.
Mr. and Mrs. Gaynor left by motor for their home in Timmins the bride travelling in a brown swagger suit with matching accessories.

HEARD—ABBOTT.
The Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, was the scene of a wedding when Grace Mae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Abbott, of Lindsay, and a member of the college faculty, became the bride of Dr. Robert Donald Hoskin Heard, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Heard, of St. Thomas, and a member of the staff of the University of Toronto.
The ceremony took place in the spacious main hall of the college, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Dr. Wynne, of Toronto, the bride descended the college staircase with her father and advanced to the front of the hall, where, with a bower of flowers as background, Rev. D. C. R. Carscallen, principal and governor of the college, performed the ceremony. The bride wore a gown of white satin and seed pearls made on princess lines, white tulle veil caught with pearls and orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of butterfly roses. Her bridesmaid, Miss Kathleen McKinnon, of Napanee, was in maize yellow georgette with large mohair hat and carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses.
The groom was attended by Mr. Wilfrid Kennedy of St. Thomas. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. F. C. Stewart, of Lindsay, and the groom responded. Later Dr. and Mrs. Heard left on a honeymoon trip to Muskoka, the bride travelling in a costume of French grey with dark blue hat.

Largo is a word used in music to denote the slowest of all the tempi and especially in compositions where the sentiment is quite solemn.

IN MEMORIAM
DARLING.—In loving memory of our dear Mother, Mrs. C. J. Darling, who departed this life, Sept. 1, 1924.
We are lonesome without you, dear Mother,
And sad the weary way;
Our life doesn't seem the same to us
Since you were called away.
Sleep on, dear Mother, your pain is ended:
Rest in peace, your work is done;
You have gone where those who love you
Will meet you one by one.
—Ever remembered by her Husband, Sons and Daughter.

IN MEMORIAM.
GOODWIN. — In loving memory of Tom, the dearly loved and only son of H. and A. Goodwin, who passed from the battlefield of France to the Higher Life, September 2nd, 1918.

Even death has a wonderful mission,
Though it robs us of those we love;
It draws us from our surroundings
To dwell on the things above.

No matter how heavy our loss is,
No matter how great our despair,
Doesn't Heaven seem nearer and dearer,
To know that some loved ones are there.

—Lovingly remembered by Father, Mother, and Sisters, 72 Park Street South.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterborough's Leading Handwriting Analyst for the Readers of The Examiner.

NOTICE: Absolutely NO delineations will be printed for those who do not send full name and address. Initials will be ignored, and if requests are enclosed for extra delineations, they must be given their correct name, otherwise they will NOT be attended to. Pen names will not be used without the correct surname because several people have already chosen the same.

Blanche A. Draper.

Mrs John Francis,
Peterborough, Ont.

Your long, flowing, graceful capital 'J' shows me that you are a person with a decided leaning towards the social side of life. You enjoy meeting people; you like to express your views and generally have your 'say' in any matter pending. Self expression is as necessary to you as fresh air and sunshine. You are a happy, well-meaning individual. I can imagine you singing or humming while at work. The peculiar little artistic flourish with which you cross your 't' indicates a happiness which is characteristic of you when an especially difficult task has been successfully accomplished. The dotting of your 'i' denotes a careful precision about your work. You strive so faithfully for perfection, that if one small detail should go amiss, you are deeply hurt. Good, well-fitting shoes appeal to your sense of good taste.

James Patter Whitney,
R.R. No. 1, Round Lake, Ont.

Your handwriting shows that you are very seldom in the same mood twice in a day, and that you are undecided and a little at a loss as to what you want to do in the future. Your long capital 'J' being even above and below the line indicates that you could by careful study be a leader. Your other capitals clearly indicate the desire to lead, although the remaining letters which are of different size and shape, express the fact that you are a trifle afraid to put your best foot forward and let others know what you can do. You will overcome this natural shyness once you have made yourself use your own initiative. I feel sure you can accomplish many worth while objectives if you put you decide effort with whatever you decide definitely upon to do. At present your writing seems nervous and uncertain. You are openhearted and love doing kindnesses for others. Above all else you wish to be loved for yourself.

Yvonne Hagan,
Peterborough, Ont.

Your handwriting shows that you are an individual of discriminating taste. You desire perfection in everything: food, clothing and household appointments. You like to mould and build things. This tendency may be either in an artistic line or mentality or, it may be the building up of a business. Your type usually prefers to organize systems of routine for others to follow. You are creative and can suggest all manner of worthwhile ideas which should bring you monetary compensations. You are kind hearted yet at times when you find it necessary to remonstrate with someone, you do so firmly and with finality

Mary Fitzgerald,
Peterborough, Ont.

Your writing shows very decided characteristics. You usually know what you want and see that you get it. You are not disagreeable about it, because you are sensible and know what is best for you to have. You are very methodical and painstaking and should make an excellent housewife. When you give orders, you see to it that they are obeyed. You have a faculty of thinking ahead of other people, and seem to be able to read their thoughts, and I can picture you after listening intently to a conversation, saying, with a lift of your brows.... "It that so?" You do not believe half of anything you hear and you detest gossip. If it should be necessary for you to undertake the arrangements of any particular affair, be it household, society, school or church, you would see to it that every detail is in order, before you are satisfied with your task. You have many intelligent thoughts, but you keep them to yourself. You are undemonstrative in your affections yet you are faithful and loyal to those whom you love.

THIS FURNACE SUPPLIES MOISTENED, CLEANED AIR

An Amazingly Simple Method... The First Development of its Kind to be Offered the Canadian Public.

McClary Warm Air Furnace System Greatest Advancement in Years—New Economies Offered to Home Owners.

Toronto, Ontario:—Scientists and doctors have repeatedly warned the world of the dangers of living in homes heated with dry, dust-laden air. Now comes the news from the foundries of one of Canada's oldest furnace manufacturers, of a new development—a McClary furnace that automatically moistens the air it heats, after it has thoroughly filtered it of its dirt and dust and bacteria.

Air Filtration

Filtered air! The air descends to the furnace from all the rooms of the house, where it is drawn through web-like filters which are treated with a substance that effectively removes every particle of dirt, dust and pollen.

Automatic Humidification

This cleansed air next passes into the furnace for heating. Located in the cone top of the furnace, the McClary Automatic Drip Humidifier performs the vitally important work of moistening the filtered air, while it is being heated.

An ingenious drip pan affords quick evaporation. The water drip is guarded, regulated and controlled by an automatic thermostat. The warm air is then conveyed throughout the home—pure, clean and as fragrant as a balmy June breeze.

Cleaner Homes Result

"What benefit", you may ask, "does one get from this air cleansing and moistening other than personal comfort?" Many, many things. For once in your life you will experience a home where furniture does not dry out and crack—where draperies and curtains stay clean and last longer—where walls show no dust streaks—where housework is cut to a minimum because the air is clean!

Less Illness

But more than dust is removed in the filters of this amazing McClary furnace. Tests conducted by Dr. E. Vernon Hill show that the filters remove over 90% of the pollen content of the air—a boon to hay fever sufferers. In addition, these filters have a "bacteria-removal efficiency" of 90.3%. That means the air in your home is pure—free from bacteria. No more unclean dry air to bring on throat troubles and colds.

McClary Burns Any Coal

Let's turn now to the marvelous economy features of this furnace. The McClary furnace will burn any kind and any grade of coal you buy, expensive or cheap—and burn every pound of it. Rugged and as stoutly built as any furnace you've seen—equipped with the exclusive Venti-Blast Ring—this furnace will definitely economize on fuel cost.

Venti-Blast Ring

Literally feeding fire with fire, the McClary Venti-Blast Ring introduces a tried and proved principle of combustion. Super-heated air—blasted over the top of the fire-bed—igniting all combustible gases—allowing no valuable heat units to escape up the chimney—that describes the function of the Venti-Blast Ring, found only in McClary furnaces.

SEE YOUR FURNACE MAN

Installed at today's low prices, the McClary furnace means a saving of many dollars. See your furnace dealer now! McClary dealers will make a thorough survey of your heating system with recommendations and estimates. Don't fail to see this new development.

"A 'moon' was in the tree tops—the radio in the tree hummed out its music over the air—the tall and stately timbers with dark green foliage not yet colored with autumn tints, lent an overhead shade to implement the lights hung across the "flat"—a bonfire of pine knots sent its flames high, with accompanying shadows—chairs and hammocks were invitingly strewn around and betwee ntrees, with the "swing for the young 'uns." Th s was the setting last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hurrell Dodds Engleburn Avenue, with the peaceful waters of the Otonabee and canoes giving an added charm to the event. The choir of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, with a few friends to the number of eighty-five, were guests of these good folks, and the executive of the Men's Association of the church. Everything was carried out splendidly—the enjoyment of the assemblage was full—and the evening passed all too quickly. A program of music and song was rendered, with the grand march, with flags and the skirl of the bagpipes, Piper Sam Thompson playing stirring Highland martial airs; community singing contest, with two choirs, and the combined choirs rendering several choruses on the "hillside." Judgment was passed on the merits of each choir. Games including the horseshoes were on the program, and with Martin B. Chenhall at the organ, "the time flew by wi' tentless heed." About eleven o'clock, corn on the cob was partaken of by all, followed by the service of sandwiches, doughnuts, and coffee. What a glorious time—faces plastered with butter! A lull in the proceedings was the occasion for a birthday presentation to Mr. Thomson-Currie. On account of his youthful spirit, he was presented with a set of "boy's garden tools," to which the "modest youth" just bowed, almost overcome with the kind thoughts of his friends. A song, votes of thanks to Host and Hostess Hurrell Dodds and the Men's executive for a delightful event, and "Auld Lang Syne," brought the departure of the happy party from the pleasant surroundings of this East City home."

Mrs. E. Hamblin, Mrs E. M. Welch, and Miss Doris Inkpin were joint hostesses at a miscellaneous shower on Tuesday evening held at the former's home, and given in honor of Miss Pearl Welch, a bride-elect of early September. The rooms were tastefully decorated with pink and white streamers pink gladioli, and a large white bell suspended from the archway. The evening was pleasantly spent in contests, games, and music. Prizes for contests were won by the Misses Bertha Edmondson, Margaret Loucks, and Chrissie Milby. During the evening a large basket decorated in pink and white, and laden with pretty gifts, was drawn in by the little Misses Barbara and Betty Hamblin, dressed in dahlia pink frocks. Miss Bertha Edmondson read the accompanying address, to which the bride-elect made a suitable reply, and which read as follows:

"Dear Pearl,—We are met together this evening to express in a tangible form our feelings of good will and friendship, which although about to be severed by distance, will still remain linked by memories of good times past. We wish you bon voyage on the sea of life you are about to cross, and pray that the Pilot Who rules all our destinies, will steer your craft to that harbor where awaits you,

Health to live,
Wealth to spend,
A happy life,
And a peaceful end.

"We also hope each gift in your home will act as a reminder of the givers and well-wishers left behind in Peterborough."

Later, dainty refreshments were served by the hostess. Guests present included Mrs. E. Hamblin, Mrs. E. M. Welch, and the Misses Bertha Edmondson, Isabel Donaldson, Gertrude Inkpin, Margaret Loucks, Joyce Harris, Zetta Davis, Zetta Wood, Cora Davis, Viola Sanders, Eva Johnson, Anna Edmondson, Chrissie Milby, May Welch, Barbara and Betty Hamblin. Those sending shower gifts but unable to attend were: Mrs. H. Clare, Mrs. M McIntyre, Miss Marion Freeman, and Miss Fern Cruikshank.

The following clipping from one of the Toronto papers is of local interest: "Every place you go these nights to dance you run into members of Ferde Mowry's band who are out, crowding their season's dancing into three nights . . . Has it ever occurred to you how sad is the life of the dance orchestra member who, night after night, plays bewitching music for dancing and never gets a chance to dance himself? (Sob, sob) . . . Anyway, the nine lads finished an engagement on Saturday and are taking on another to-morrow and that left them three nights to dance . . . Maybe they're not stepping . . . They fairly burned up the floor at the Silver Slipper on Monday, the Terrace at Hamilton last night, and this evening, their last, they plan to take in as many places as possible . . . Then they'll go on their dance diet until next spring."

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

The world meets people as the people meet the world!

* * * * * * *

This is a truth which it is well to remember. It is not alone in the crisis of life that this is true. It is in the daily routine of existence.

* * * * * * *

For example in the home, good cheer in one member of the family finds a sympathetic chord of good cheer struck in the other members. Sometimes the response is immediate, sometimes it takes a little while for others to get into the same mood, but nevertheless there is a ray of cheer which meets the cheerful countenance, and the ray expands under the glow of the good humor.

* * * * * *

Persons who are dissatisfied find the dissatisfied side of the world turned to them. They find an expression of complaint draws forth a similar expression both in looks and words.

* * * * * *

This doubles their impression that the world is not right. They are blind to the good things and they fail to see or to comprehend them.

* * * * * *

The person who looks at the world with a smile finds a smiling world. Try the experiment of smiling across the table to some one in the family who seems to need the world to smile at her.

* * * * * *

See the countenance lighten, the eyes grow brighter and the corners of the mouth begin to turn up. Your smile has created a smile of greeting. It seldom fails.

* * * * * *

A pleasant world lies before a pleasant face. Many of the creases of life are smoothed out, and difficulties averted, for the person who meets them with a smile.

* * * * * *

The people who crave pleasant pathways through life must meet life with pleasantness. Jealousy meets jealousy, courage meets courage, etc.

* * * * * *

Life is many sided. It will turn the hard or the soft side, the happy or the miserable side, the gay or the sad side to those who pass through it, according to the spirit called out by individuals.

* * * * * *

It is for them to choose what they want and express it not alone by words, not alone by facial expressions, but by the spirit which is back of them, by the thoughts which go out from them.

* * * * * *

Do not blame the world entirely for what it means to you of heaviness nor credit it alone for what it brings to you of joy. It meets you as you meet it.

* * * * * *

You have a hand on the wheel which turns the side toward you which corresponds to the one you show it!

NO SALARY INCREASES.

OTTAWA, Aug. 31—(C.P.)— Increased judicial salaries will not be urged upon the Dominion Government this year by the Canadian Bar Association, but the convention, nevertheless, reaffirmed to-day the principle adopted by the Association in 1927 for greater remuneration to Judges in Canada.

JUST AMONG US GIRLS

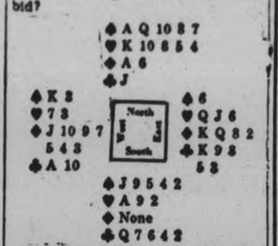
CONTRACT BRIDGE

Written for Central Press

By E. V. SHEPARD

HOW HIGH SHOULD THEY BID?

THE FOLLOWING hand appeared on the opening game of a rubber. How high should each side bid?



Curiously enough, just before the hand appeared I had been asked the relative frequency with which different scores could be made. Four-odd can be made 500 times, 5-odd 125 times, a small slam 16 times, and a grand slam 16 times, and a grand slam once, in the same number of deals. With those facts still in mind, North made an opening bid of 1-Spade, as third hand. Bidding then went: East, 2-Clubs; South, 2-Spades; West, 3-Diamonds; North, 3-Hearts, merely to show his second suit of equal length to the first suit shown; East, 4-Diamonds; South, 4-Spades; West, 5-Diamonds; North, 5-Spades, holding the contract.

When missing a first winner in your own suit it nearly always is better to open a suit bid by partner, as his suit may win immediate tricks, so the opening lead was the K of diamonds. One of dummy's hearts was discarded and the declarer won with the Ace. Dummy ruffed a return lead of diamonds. The J of spades was led. West covered with his K. Declarer's Ace won the trick, and his Q of spades took out the last missing trump.

Dummy's Ace of hearts won the first trick in that suit. Declarer's K won the second heart trick. Dummy ruffed the third round of the suit, leaving two long hearts established in declarer's hand. All North and South could lose now was a single club trick. There was no possible way for the declarer to rid his hand of the J of that suit, so he spread his hand, claiming the small slam which could not be missed. It is boring to the rest of the table to have a declarer insist upon playing for a trick or two that no opponent can lose.

Bidding went just high enough. Had East and West bid 6-Diamonds a double would not have harmed them, but forcing North and South into a small slam that neither adversary was prepared to defeat would have been abominable strategy. Neither North nor South could know that they might readily make a small slam, and it would have been stupid for them to overbid without reason, when 5-odd looked to both of them as quite high enough. Only the fact that North held the Ace of South's void suit enabled 6-odd to be made.

MENU HINTS

Salmon Loaf Horseradish Sauce
Baked Potatoes
Carrot and Apple Salad
Golden Cornstarch Pudding Tea

The cornstarch, fluffy rice and other similar puddings that can be made some time before the meal—in the morning, preferably—and served cold, are a boon to the housewife, especially in the families where there are children. They are healthful and inexpensive.

To-day's Recipes

Horseradish Sauce—One-half cup thick sweet or sour cream, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon sugar, three or four tablespoons fresh grated horseradish. Whip the cream, salt and sugar, and gradually add the horseradish. Serve with meat or fish.

Carrot and Apple Salad — One and one-half cups raw carrots, grated or finely shredded; one and one-half cups tart apples, chopped; one-half cup nut meats, chopped; one-half teaspoon salt, three tablespoons lemon mayonnaise. When carrots are shredded make them crisp in ice water. Mix ingredients lightly together. Arrange on crisp lettuce.

Golden Cornstarch Pudding — Three and one-fourth cups milk, four and one-half tablespoons cornstarch, two eggs, one-third cup sugar, salt, one-half teaspoon vanilla. Scald thre cups of milk. Mix the cornstarch with the remainder of the cold milk and add to the scalded milk in a double boiler; stirring constantly until the mixture thickens. Cover and cook for at least 20 minutes. Beat the eggs and add the sugar and salt. Stir some of the hot mixture into the egg mixture very slowly and add to the mixture in the double boiler. Cook three minutes, add vanilla and pour into molds to cool. To make a light, fluffy pudding the yolks and the whites may be beaten separately, the yolks mixed with the sugar, and the whites folded in after the pudding has been removed from the fire.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Keep Foods Fresh

To keep part of a lemon or or an onion from drying, place in a piece of waxed paper and give the ends of the paper a twist. Keeps perfectly and odor does not mingle with other things.

French Curd

This is uncooked curd or French cottage cheese. The sour milk is not heated. It is simply poured into earthenware molds with holes in the bottom. A very fine sieve may be used instead of the molds. The whey drips out and the curd assumes a custard-like consistency and takes the shape of the mold. When sufficiently stiff the cheese is chilled and is eaten with sweet cream and sugar, fruits or preserves.

1934 Winter Modes Are Favoring Capes

PARIS, Sept. 1.— (A.P.)— Capes, long and short, on sports clothes and street clothes, have returned to the 1934 winter mode. From brief waist-length models to hip-length designs they appear in wools and flat furs.

"Spinach" is the name of one striking cape costume displayed for sports wear. It combines a green ribbed wool skirt with brick colored blouse and a hip-length green cape with button-trimmed tabs accentuating the shoulder line. Shorter capes appear with street frocks.

Both shoulders and hems are made prominent on the slender frocks displayed by Mirande for daytime and evening wear. Shoulder lines hold the limelight with epaulettes, upstanding fins running along the top of the shoulder and fan-like extensions standing out from the upper arm.

Championship Sculling Race May Attract 75,000

PEARCE GIVEN FAVOR TO WIN OVER PHELPS

Interest at Fever Pitch For Great Sculling Race To-day.

SECOND HANLON.

His Long Sweeping Strokes Expected to Leave Phelps Behind.

(By Elmer Dalmage, C. P. Staff Writer)

TORONTO, Sept. 1. — (CP) — There will never be another Ned Hanlan, of course, but when Bobby Pearce digs his blades into Lake Ontario tonight within sight of the Toronto island birthplace of the immortal Ned he may be setting out on a journey that will carry him to sculling heights almost as great and to where gold is just as plentiful.

Ned Hanlan, a five-foot, eight-inch, 152-pound marvel in a shell, was the greatest oarsman who ever lived. Pearce, six feet tall and weighing 190, is favored to defeat Ted Phelps and thereby join the dynasty of fine oarsmen who have come after.

Close to 75,000 people will watch the big blond Australian, 20 years of experience as an amateur behind him, attempt to wrest the world's professional singles sculling title from Phelps and lift the sport back on the gold standard. They are quoting odds of around 10 to 6 he will do it.

The race has caused less argument than any pro title duel in years. The reason for this is given because Teddy from the Thames, England's best sculler and a professional since boyhood, came here for the race with little to say and only a small group of supporters to say it for him.

Regarded as unbeatable by the great majority of Canadians who have seen him polish off the best amateur opposition without half trying, Pearce has carried his following into his first money venture.

Even the more expert observers who have closely watched the training of the champion and challenger predict Bobby's long, sweeping stroke will be too much for the shorter-stroking Phelps. Both have endurance for the three - mile stretch and neither is conceded an edge in ability to handle a shell in any kind of water.

Prospects today were they would duel on calm water. A light breeze is unlikely to stir the water inside the breakwater off the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds.

Babe Ruth Hasn't Made Up His Mind On Retirement or Future Plans

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The ink on the pages telling of his retirement scarcely was dry today when Babe Ruth indicated he may have been a bit premature in announcing he planned to call it quits at the end of the 1933 season.

Baseball's great and only one, asked what he would most like to do next season, roared as though some one had broken his favorite bat, and said:

"Now ain't that a swell question? Asking a guy what he's going to be doing next year! How do I know what I'm going to be doing. Do you know what you're going to be doing next year? Naw, and neither do I."

"But you said only this morning that—"

"I know, I know," the Babe snorted, "but things might be different. A fellow never knows how he's gonna feel six or seven months from now. Right now I don't see how I could last another season in the outfield, because my legs ain't so strong. But I don't know how they'll feel next Spring. They may be good enough for me to keep going, even if it was at first base."

ONE-HIT GAMES HURLED BY TWO FOR LOW TEAMS

Frank Henry and Mike Meola Turn Trick, for Wins.

LEAFS' LEAD INCREASES.

Henry Might Possibly Have Had a No-hit Game on Performance.

(By Herbert Barker, A.P. Sports Writer.)

The veteran Frank (Dutch) Henry of Rochester and youth Mike Meola of Jersey City have picked the tail-end of the International League season to turn in their finest pitching performances.

Both posted one-hit masterpieces yesterday as Henry stopped Buffalo iBsons 7-1, and Meola blanked Baltimore Orioles 1-0 in the seven-innings second game of a double-header. Henry's performance was over the full nine-inning route.

The Rochester veteran might have had a no-hit game, for the only safety off him was a slow roller down the third base line in the first inning which Wally Gilbert did not field because he thought it would roll foul. Henry walked seven men and the only Bison run came in the fourth without the aid of a hit.

Meola was even more impressive for he blanked the hard-hitting Orioles, the only hit off him being a scratch affair by Joe Spring. Earl Mattingly allowed only six hits himself and blanked the Skeeters until the seventh, when Larry Merville clouted a homer for the only run of the game. The victory gave Jersey City a clean sweep of the double bill, for the Skeeters had overcome a 7-2 lead to win the opener 8-7 in 10 innings. Baker's home with two on in the ninth tied the score and sent the game into extra innings.

Albany broke its seven-game losing streak and halted Newark's victory string after eight triumphs in the first game of a double-header, 6-2, but the champion Bears came back to take the second 4-3. Albany won the first game with a four-run rally in the seventh, and last, inning.

Toronto was idle along with Montreal, but the Leafs' lead in the race for the second northern qualifying position was strengthened by Buffalo's defeat. Toronto now leads the Bisons by two games, with Montreal only another game behind.

BRAVES OPEN CRUCIAL SERIES WITH 7-3 VICTORY OVER GIANTS

Courageous Boston Team Reduces Opponents' Lead to Five Games.

PITCHERS ON EDGE.

By OROLO ROBERTSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Both crippled by serious casualties, Boston Braves and New York Giants resumed their vital series at Boston to-day with much depending on untried reserves.

Victorious yesterday 7-3 in the first of the six-game engagement, the Braves trailed the pace-setting Giants by only five games with the knowlege that their well-rounded pitching staff was intact while New York's big four had begun to show signs of overwork from the many doubleheaders played during the last two weeks.

The rival managers were forced to call out their replacements, however, as the result of accidents, which will keep two of their star players out of the game for the remainder of the season.

Player Injured

Randy Moore, one of Boston's slugging outfielders, was out for the year with a fractured bone in his right hand, received when he was hit by one of LeRoy Parmelee's pitches; John Verges, the Giants' star third baseman, was recovering from a hurried appendix operation last night.

Both Verges and Moore played important roles in yesterday's contest. Verges accounted for the Giants' first run with a homer and later singled. His error in the eighth, however, opened the way for the Tribe's five-run rally. Moore, who was hit in the first inning and then forced to leave the game in the fifth, cut off a New York run in the first inning, nailing Hughie Critz at the plate on a beautiful peg from deep right field.

The Giants-Braves game completely overshadowed the remainder of the abbreviated major league program although Pittsburgh Pirates completed their sweep of the Phillies to remain 1½ games back of the Braves and St. Louis Cardinals closed in with a double victory over Brooklyn Dodgers.

Fifth Straight

In contrast to their previous pitching duels, the Pirates took a 13-11 slugfest from the Phils for the Corsairs' fifth straight victory. Nineteen hits rang off the Pirates' bats, including four by Pie Traynor and three by Paul Waner. Chuck Klein hit his 25th home run to keep pace with Berger.

The Cards had little trouble beating the Dodgers 10-3 and 10-4. In the first game they were aided by three errors by Linus Frey, Southern Association recruit shortstop, as they scored six runs in the first inning and four more in the eighth.

In the American League, Boston Red Sox finally succeeded in winning their first game at the Yankee Stadium, walloping the champions 15-2 to drop them 8½ games back of the idle Senators. Dusty Rhodes, ex-Yankee hurler, held his former teammates to six scattered hits while the Sox collected 18 off three New York pitchers.

Bunching seven of their 12 hits in two innings, Cleveland Indians won the opening game of the series from Chicago White Sox 4-1.

All of the other teams were idle.

MACDONALD LEADS.

Kingston's ability to hit the ball, and especially with runners on base, gave them the C.O.B.L. championship this year over the Petes. In the six play-off games, fifty-five Peterborough runners were left stranded to Kingston's thirty-nine. The Ponies' team batting average was .274 against .242 for the losers.

Of the latter only Macdonald and Batten did better than .300, while Kingston had five hitters in the charmed circle. Jamieson led the pitchers with two wins; Fournier, Calladine and Kitchen each having one, the other one being a tie with Calladine opposing Fournier. Following are the batting averages of the two teams for the playoffs:

Bull Fights Hit By Depression And Mexicans Prefer Movies

By DOUGLAS GRAHAME
(Central Press Writer)

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 1—Foreigners who visit Mexico soon discover that while bull fighting is this country's traditional diversion, it is far from being Mexican's most popular entertainment. Official figures prove that the movies are much more favored—nearly 16,000,000 tickets were sold last year for 102,606 shows in the public's 547 cinemas, against less than 150,000 paid admittances to 724 functions in the 140 blood and sand arenas.

Bull fight ring managers admit that they can look to but a few foreigners for their patronage, and that those few are invariably one-time spectators. Very many Mexicans have never seen an exposition of the bloody doings that are supposed to be their land's big sport.

Impresarios of bull rings are moaning about the depression. They estimate that business last season is some 25 per cent. less than it was during the 1931-'32 session. They have been introducing novelties in an effort to attract the jaded public.

Two women toreadores: the first of their sex to obtain bull fighters' licenses in Mexico, appeared at a couple of minor arena shows here. They knew their stuff and did very well. But the fans razzed them.

The management dared only charge some 35 cents per grandstand seat for shows featuring the lady bull slayers against the $3 easily obtained for such accommodations when stellar male matadores perform.

The girls each got $17 for two hours' work, seemingly big money, but no pay at all for bedeviling and killing bulls in public. Some matadores, the highest rank of bull fighters, each command from $1,500 to $2,500 per matinee and earn between $12,000 and $17,500 for a very short season.

Even such humble fighters as the picadores and banderilleros (those who jab gay ribbon-be-decked darts into the charging bull's back) are each paid $85 for their share in the sanguinary show.

Foreign spectators agree that it is the pageantry aspects which enable bull fighting to cling to its lessening popularity.

There is always a big thrill in beholding the fighters' march onto the sands, the frenzy of the crowd as they spot these lithe and grinning youngsters in comic opera suits of purple and gold—ex-soldiers, butchers, slaughter house workers, newsboys and bootblacks, lured to this dangerous business by much money and a rather dubious glory—stride to their positions in the arena. It is breath taking to see the bull bound from the gate and the fighters tackle him.

And, there is always the menace of sudden death or a goring that will send the fighter to a hospital for many painful weeks. Two surgeons, each a specialist in bull horn wounds, head the staff of the ring's emergency hospital.

The arena management pays all the costs of repairing a fighter. But casualties among fighters in the Mexico City ring are very few. Only one matador was gored this season, but was able to perform at the next show. Since 1907 only two fighters have died of injuries received on the crimson sands. None have been killed outright in the arena in more than a century.

JOTKUS REMAINS WITH MONTREAL

Winged Wheelers Are Already Hard at Work for Rugby Season.

MONTREAL Sept. 1 (CP)—Pete Jotkus the giant line-crashing middle wing who has starred for the Montreal football club for the past two years, will appear in a Montreal uniform again this year. He says so himself, thus setting at rest rumors that—like Tommy Burns—he might forsake the local Big Four team for the Argonauts.

Big Pete appeared yesterday on M.A.A.A.'s Westmount grounds and watched a band of 15 candidates for this season's squad work out under Coach Clary Foran in the third practice of the year. Pete said he would report for practice next Tuesday bringing along his young, but equally large brother Mike, for the workout. The younger Jotkus has been a middle wing in Junior campaigns for the last few seasons.

Others expected to join the team for the first time on Tuesday are Len Hutton, Captain Wally Whitty, Ernie Hempey, Gordie Perry, Lou Newton, Fred Coulson, the tackle from Princeton University, and Lyman Abbott, new quarterback from the University of Maine.

PAUL DEAN, brother of the St. Louis Cardinals' Dizzy, is one of the best looking major league mound prospects now pitching minor league ball. He has won a score of games for Columbus.

BOWLING NOTES

(By Herb Martin)

There are only about three more Friday nights left and then—as far as bowling is concerned—we will be through for the season. The race to see who will cash in for the special prizes is becoming very interesting and while George Coleman, Jr., leads with 20 points there are several who can easily catch him. So you might just as well come out and bowl, enjoy an evening's fun, win a basket of peaches—and you get all this for the small fee of 25c. Remember, 7.30 is the hour. AND BE ON TIME!

In the central Ontario play-offs last night Mayneord defeated Braund by 25-14 and Allan was successful in wining from Mahood by the close score of 15-13. Now Mayneord and Allan will hook up on Tuesday night to see which one will enter the finals.

TONY CUCCINELLO won't break Lou Gehrig's consecutive game record. Tony played in more than 500 straight games for the Dodgers when, just recently, he was benched with an injured leg.

Gar Wood Thinks Something in Race

ALGONAC, Mich, September 1 (C.P.). — Gar Wood, preparing to defend the Harmsworth Trophy on Saturday with his immensely powerful Miss America X., is not taking Hubert Scott-Paine's challenge with Miss Britain III. lightly.

"He may have something," Wood said. "You know, Segrave's boat was small and light, and it certainly gave a good account of itself."

Wood was talking about the late Sir Henry Segrave, who was killed when his boat crashed up on Lake Windermere several years ago.

Millbrook Shooters Fourth At Ottawa

MILLBROOK, Sept. 1 (Examiner Correspondence). — The rifle team from Millbrook competing in the recent D.C.R.A. events at Ottawa were successful in securing fourth place among keen competitors from all parts of the Dominion. The four cadets in the local team were Russell Reid, who took an individual prize in the Green Shot; Norman Armstrong, who with Cadet Reid, won a prize in the open competition; Gordon Muspratt, and Joe Thorndyke.

Lieutenant B. B. Dawson, Cadet Instructor, and Mr. Walter Widdis accompanied the boys to the Capital. The match took place at the Connaught Ranges, Winnipeg team taking first place, Montreal South, second, St. John's Quebec, third, and Millbrook fourth. The community is justly proud of the way its Cadet Corps keeps the name of Millbrook well to the fore in the national and international competitions.

THE NEW YORK GIANTS' improvement over the 1932 form can best be judged by the fact that they have already won as many games this year as they did all last season. And they have a month more to go.

AT THE CAPITOL

Yip! Yip! Wow!! Cowboys to Appear in Person Here at the Capitol Friday and Saturday

To-day and to-morrow you will see ten gallon hats, boots, loud shirts, on the streets of Peterborough. Why? Because Ken Hackley and his Oklahoma Cowboys are now appearing in person with their stage show at the Capitol Theatre. You have probably heard this group of novel, wild, western cowboy entertainers from one of the many radio stations from which they have been featured, or on the network of the National Broadcasting Company.

They have made themselves very popular by just being natural in offering the public their ideas of entertainment, which are different, unique, as well as novel and comical. They have and are lassoing many new friends to their many radio and record followers, with quaint plainsman fun, music and songs.

Their home-spun brand of entertainment is the same kind of fun enjoyed among themselves on the ranch. Their instrumental and vocal versions of the folk songs and ballads tell of the cloak of romance that is woven around the lives of these western plainsmen.

Manager Stewart of the Capitol Theatre expects a large crowd today and Saturday. There will be a continuous performance on Saturday 1 p.m. to 11 p.m. Come early.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Number 85

ALEX MORRISON says:

The left hand is generally the one that has to stand the most abuse.

This hand during the struggle to maintain a tight hold on the club invariably becomes marked with blisters or sore spots.

Something should be done to protect it, for a comfortable grip with the left hand is the most valuable thing for a player to acquire about his hands.

One thing that will protect this hand, as I have suggested before, is the wearing of a glove.

Virtually the same protection can be had by placing rings of tape around the thumb, first and little fingers. These rings will also serve to strengthen the action of this hand during the swing.

BRILLIANT WORK OF TWO GOALIES BLANKS SQUADS

One of Dyer's Shots Beats Bolton But Hits Post.

McMASTER COVERED.

Game Was in Semi-final Round of the Peck. Trophy Play.

C.G.E. and Caledonians' Peck Cup semi-final game here last night, before a small gallery, ended in a scoreless tie. It was a fine, hard but clean contest, with both sides showing some excellent play to battle back and forth from start to finish without scoring a point. Caleys at first combined well to threaten, bot couldn't beat Bolton, and his teammates soon had the other goalie jumping to keep the ball out. Several times the goal was just missed at either end on fine tries, one of Dyer's beating the goal-minder but hitting the post.

C.G.E. pressed hard but lacked system, while Caley's dangerous threats were turned aside by the sparkling Bolton. He had his hand badly hurt just before half-time, and Hotson replaced him to start the next half, Blowers coming in at inside left. Carmichel took Ward's place for Caleys, Ward having strained himself. C.G.E. again put on the pressure but failed to tally. Hotson later made a great save of a sure one, and the game wound up without a score.

A feature of the game was the brilliant display of Dinesen at left back for the Scots. He kept McMaster well in hand and give him few chances in getting in his deadly shots. The teams:

C.G.E.—Goal, Bolton; backs, J. Mitchell and A. Mitchell; half backs, Clark, Jones and Bolam; forwards, Quinn, Hotson, McMaster, Earl an Burgess; sub., Blowers.

Caledonians—Goal, Curtis; backs, Agnew and Dinesen; half backs, Whatman, Craig and McPhate; forwards, Downer, Ward, Leggitt, Dyer and Adkinson; sub., Carmichel.

Referee, A. Frick; linesmen, W. Grant and G. Lamport.

Electrics Defeat Cobourg Maidens

The C.G.E. girls vanquished the smart Cobourg team last night at the Bowl in a nifty exhibition struggle that was late in starting and was brought to a close in the middle of the sixth frame on account of darkness with the locals on the big end of a 6-1 count.

Cobourg outhit the winners six to two but played poor ball in the infield and the locals capitalized on every miscue as well as showing plenty of speed on the runways. Marg. English with a triple and single in three trips was the big hit getter for the Electrics. Austin af short for Cobourg hit a double while Turpin at first biffed out three singles in four trips. Margaret Snowden, pitcher for the winners, twirled smart ball, fanning three in five frames. Her opponent, Oliver, sent two out swinging but displayed poor control, issuing four free passes.

These two teams meet again on Labor Day in Cobourg in a return game which is part of a sports program sponsored by the Cobourg Chamber of Commerce to raise funds for a new grandstand.

The teams:

Cobourg: Austin, ss; Ovens, lf; Turpin, 1b; Oliver, p; Hoskins, cf; Perrin, 3b; Riley, 2b; Spry, rf; Smith, c.

C.G.E.: M. English, lf; M. Hallahan, 2b; W. Snowden, ss; D. Millar, c; Creighton, cf; M. Todd, 1b; M. Snowden, p; L. Bosley, 3b; D. Self, rf.

Cobourg ..... 00010—1 6 5
C.G.E. ..... 10212—6 2 4

Umpires—Alex Warren of Ottawa at the plate, Cliff Cadd of Peterborough on the bases.

GIRLS' SOFTBALL FINAL STARTS AT THREE O'CLOCK

The Girls' Softball League playoff game at the Bowl here Saturday will start at three o'clock in the afternoon, and a large crowd is expected. Keene and Westclox have both won a game to date, besides tying one and starting another which was not completed. Two out of three games remain in this series.

Westclox, by upsetting the dope and soundly walloping the classy Keen team in the village the last encounter, won over a still larger following and appear an even bet to cop the series and the Bond Trophy, now held by the Keenesters. The latter, however, are far from through and may win the next two in a row to again cinch the title. Some more sparkling girls! softball is expected to be seen when these two rivals clash in the Bowl.

NO EAGLES TO-DAY

After a few words of explanation, however, the blue eagle joined the flock.

Jean Wilson, one of Canada's most popular girl athletes, and world and North American speed-skating champion, lies seriously ill in a Toronto hospital suffering from a mysterious malady which has so far baffled medical science completely. But Jean shows the same fighting spirit in her life and death struggle as she showed at the last winter Olympic games when, wearing the Maple Leaf of Canada, she flashed home to two new world's records, and won individual honors from the world's best feminine skaters. She has never skated since, and to-day lies at death's door.

Westclox and Keene gals play their next game at the Bowl here Saturday afternoon at three o'clock—remember it's afternoon, not evening. To date, both clubs have won a contest, another being tied and still another stopped by rain. Whichever outfit cops two out of the next three tilts totes home the bacon in the shape of the Bond Trophy. Should be quite a mob of followers of the fair ones parked on the new grandstand which lines two sides of the Ashburnham amphitheatre. The next game after that will probably be Wednesday here, and again on Saturday at the Bowl.

Greetings, September, we hate to see you coming but can't do much about it! Means summer is about over, and summer sports are finishing up fast now. For instance, the City Carpet Ball League is already bestirring itself and has set the date of its annual meeting for next Wednesday, September 6th. The session will be held at eight p.m. in the parish house of All Saints' Church. Any team club or organization thinking of entering this year should have a representative at the annual meeting.

• • • • • • •

The Carpet Ball League started in February, 1929,, with just four clubs represented by ten teams: St. John's, All Saints, Knights of Pythias and Sons of England. Last year the loop had grown to twenty teams representing these clubs: St. John's, St. Luke's St. George's, All Saints, K.O.P., L.O.L., Foresters, S.O.E. and W.O.W. The Hope Cup, given by A. Hope four seasons ago for annual competition was won first by H. Coombs, All Saints, then by G. Mathews, St. John's, next by A. Sims of St. George's, and last season by G. Mathews again. They're figuring on a bigger and better year than ever in 1933-34.

City Lacrosse League playoffs, between Selkirks and Orde's, start Tuesday the 5th, second game being the 7th and third, if necessary, on Sept. 12th. They're playing for the Capt. Hill Memorial Trophy and the city championship, and this should be quite a series since both teams have several of last year's star intermediates on their lineups. Orde's won the title in '32. Referees appointed are J. Ward and V. Reynolds, goal umpires being J. Hope and J. Olaveson. Harry Tudhope is timekeeper, and all games start at six o'clock.

A combined all-star team of Harrison's and Sugar Bowl softballers are challenging the Peterborough senior baseball team to a game at Riverside some of these days when it won't interfere with O.A.S.A. or O.B.A.A. playdowns—proceeds to go to relief. They want to play softball, or else half-and-half, that is four and a half innings of baseball and the same of softball. Seems the softball players figure that at either their own game or in a mixed contest they can wallop the Petes and show the public that theirs is the better game. It's up to the Petes to answer the challenge if they're interested.

The softball Benefit Fund here now totals $78.17 with none of the bills paid as yet. Pete McGillen and Fred Scates have been named as custodians of this dough and will sign the cheques to meet bills for injured players. Most of the doctors have generously sliced their bills considerably, and the fund is expected to cover expenses incurred this season.

• • • • • • •

There's a men's softball double-header at Central Saturday evening, starting at 5.30 with Harrison's meeting the Prince of Orange team, now in the Toronto intermediate playdown finals. The second game will see this Toronto squad tangling with Sugar Bowl and both tilts ought to be worth seeing. Incidentally word was received this a.m. that Oshawa Tuxis, undefeated champs of Oshawa, would meet Sugar Bowl at Stevenson Park here next Wednesday in the first game of their O.A.S.A. series. Second one will be back in Oshawa a few days later. The Bowlmen, fresh from a rather easy win over Lindsay hope to go farther than they did last year, when Oshawa stopped them.

• • • • • • •

Both our minor league baseball teams are billed to play in Toronto tomorrow, Kiwanis Bantams clashing in their second game with Arlingtons, and Terrier Juveniles meeting Euclids in the first of their O.B.A.A. series. Euclids then return here for a Labor Day game in Stevenson Park at three bells, and from what we hear this Toronto bunch of young stars should give Herb Ralph's team a real battle. So far, the Cogs are still waiting word of an opponent.

GIRL OLYMPIC STAR WEAKENS IN LIFE BATTLE

Jean Wilson, World Champion Speed Skater, Stricken With Mysterious Malady.

SCIENCE BAFFLED.

(By Marcus J. Addams, Special to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Sept. 1.—This is the tragic story of Jean Wilson, champion of the world's feminine speed skaters.

Stricken at the height of her career by a dread disease, this pretty 23-year-old Canadian girl lies in hospital here at death's door.

The baffling, mysterious disease which struck down Toronto's most popular girl athlete, is known to medical science as myasthenia gravis, which takes the form of weakened muscles. And the name of the disease is about the limit of medical science's knowledge.

More than a year ago, at Lake Placid, New York, where the winter Olympic games were being held, Jean Wilson, wearing the Maple Leaf of Canada, flashed home to two new world's records, and won the individual scoring honors against the best feminine speed skaters the world could produce.

Fighting for Life

To-day, she lies in her bed, fighting for air, struggling against the malady that robbed her of her physical strength.

But no malady could rob Jean of her courage or dim the hope that some time, health will be restored to her.

An instance of Jean's unselfishness even in adversity, was shown recently when a radio appeal for money to send little children to fresh air camps was broadcast. Jean Wilson was the first person in Toronto to subscribe. It was only a dollar, but it meant one dose of a rare drug on which the doctors were depending to pull her through.

And an instance of her popularity was shown last winter when a local theatre ran a contest to find Toronto's most popular girl athlete. Jean Wilson topped the polls by almost twice the number of her nearest rival.

From this contest, Jean won a trip to Bermuda and the West Indies. It was arranged that she should make the trip in August, and during the summer months, her condition so improved that she was looking forward happily to the long cruise.

Cannot Make Trip

But it was not to be. She suffered a relapse, and is now in a serious condition, doctors having found that lung muscles have become affected with the disease, and oxygen treatment are now necessary so that she may even breathe.

Home from her Olympo triumphs at Lake Placid, Jean went back to her job as a telephone operator, happy in the knowledge that she had realized her life's ambition—to be a world's champion speed skater.

But she was destined never to skate again.

One day she noticed that her voice was getting weak—a calamity to a telephone operator. Then she began to feel drowsy, and weak. Soon she realized that something serious was wrong, so she sought medical advice.

Dr. Harris McPhedran, of St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, ordered her to the hospital. The courageous girl went from bad to worse, and grave fears were held for her life.

Then the attending doctors read of a similar case in Texas, where a woman doctor told of administering a little-known Chinese drug called ephedrine. Immediate they sought it, and found that it gave relief to the skater. Larger doses were given, and soon the still cheerful girl was able to walk a few steps and talk for some length.

But it didn't last long, and she needed glycine, a medicine for the strengthening of the muscles. Little was available in Toronto, and the drug was expensive, costing five dollars an ounce in the United States.

A call went forth to Toronto sportsmen and women, and they rallied to the cause and supported the unfortunate girl in her brave struggle for health.

Now even this drug has ceased its strengthening effect, and Miss Wilson is back in bed, sleeping most of the day from sheer drowsiness, unable to speak, and finding breathing so difficult that doctors have been forced to apply artificial respiration.

That is the condition of Jean Wilson to-day—lying at death's door, but still fighting.

For courage under fire is one of Jean's most prominent characteristics. Once, when a stable of horses was burning, she risked her life eight times by dashing into the flaming structure, each time to lead a frightened horse to safety. For this act of bravery she was presented with a Humane Society medal.

Splendid Record as Skater

Jean's record as a skater is almost unparalleled. She is undefeated champion of North America, world champion, and holder of at least five world's records. She first sprang into prominence at the age of 21 when she defeated Lela Brooks-Potter for the North American championship. From that, she rose to the heights of fame at the last Olympice Games where she gathered more points than any other of th world's best skaters, established two new world's records and won three out of five races.

She has never raced since that memorable occasion. It is probable that she will never race again.

"Gossip and Such"

THE ONE THING that could bring back general prosperity to major league baseball has happened. Whether it will bring back said general prosperity cannot yet be determined.

Unless all signs, omens, indications and statistics are wrong we are embarking on an era of one-year major league champions.

To have two new clubs leading the races each year is the one thing that can bring back the crowds and unless baseball in general and some major league clubs in particular get back some of the old-fashioned crowds, its future as a great sport would be endangered.

THE ONE-YEAR championship era was inaugurated last season In 1931 the Philadelphia Athletics and St. Louis Cardinals were the winners. But they had won the year before. The Athletics had also won the year before that.

Last season two fairly new groups of baseball faces adorned the world series—the New York Yankees and Chicago Cubs. Fairly new because the Yanks had not won since 1928 and the Cubs since 1929.

This year the Washington Senators and New York Giants are just about it. Cataclysm or miracle only can stop them.

WASHINGTON has not had a pennant since 1925. The fans of the Capital City have come back strong, now that their club is once more giving them something to cheer about.

The Giants last won in 1924.

In the eight years immediately following they lost a great many of their followers to the Yankees. But this year the crowds came back.

This has been a great thing, of course, for the Senator and Giant house treasuries, but not so good for the rest. However, two more clubs have been made prosperous and that's always a break for new champions bring better attendance than old champions winning again.

NEXT YEAR, if the cyle of new champions continue, such teams as the Pittsburgh Pirates or Boston Braves and Cleveland Indians may be setting the pace. This would be ideal, especially because Cleveland has not had a pennant winner since 1920 and Boston since 1918.

By 1935 the American League shoud see the two Sox teams, Boston and Chicago, up in the running if their improvement continues at the rate that was evident this season.

As for the National League—five and six-club races may again be the rule. In fact, they probably will.

THE AIR RIFLE GALLERY.

CLOSEUP OF PEDESTAL SHOWING PACKAGE OF CIGARETTES OVER BUT NOT OFF. PACKAGE OF CIGARETTES STANDING WELL FORWARD ON PEDESTAL MUZZLE OF GUN WITH CORK INSERTED, SHOWING OFF CENTRE BORE.

By HERSCHEL DEUTSCH
(Central Press Canadian Writer)

(The operator of a crooked carnival game is called a "grifter." Although the sucker—the paying customer—doesn't know it, practically every game of skill and chance at the average traveling carnival or resort can be fixed by the operator so that the player can't win.

This is not usually true, however, of legitimate amusement parks, which have large investments in permanent equipment and are interested in keeping the good will of their patrons. Such places do not permit grifters. But beware the fly-by-night joint!)

By HERSCHEL DEUTCH
Central Press Canadian Writer

THE SUCKER aims the cork-loaded air rifle and pulls the trigger. If he can knock the package of cigarets or the box of candy off the shelf, it will be his. This is an innocent enough game, and since the sucker is getting the thrill of sport out of it, perhaps there is some justification for the fact that he seldom, if ever, wins. He gets his money's worth in fun.

The package of cigarets he hits seldom does more than tip over; and it must fall off the stand to belong to him.

He does not notice, of course, that the package is placed so far forward on the stand that when it tips over — and it won't do more, since the rifle spring is shortened—it won't topple off the edge.

Moreover, to prevent any slipups, the gun is fixed so that over-accuracy is prevented. The discreet application of a little sandpaper or a file to the inside of the gun muzzle makes the cork fly out just enough off true to spoil the best aim.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, September 2

THE PRIVATE affairs may be those most happily engaging the attention on this day, according to the augury of Moon trine Venus, gracious ruler of all romantic, domestic, social and artistic activities. These should prosper and bring much pleasure, proving a compensation to a difficult and depressing situation in other affairs, in which it will be hard to progress. Unusual news may give concern.

Those whose birthday it is may plan to devote their best energies of the year to the realm of the domestic, affectional, social or artistic, as there are signs of difficulties and impediments in other affairs, with obstacles and disappointments. There may be word of serious import causing sorrow.

A child born on this day may be gay, lively, gracious and given to social, artistic and romantic doings, but at the same time serious, studious and profound.

HOLLYWOOD

Sense and Nonsense

A long search has ended. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will team May Robson with Polly Moran in the comedy series that was interrupted when an over-taxed Marie Dressler had to limit her camera-work to three hours a day.

May Robson

The first picture of the new team will be "Hill Billies," the story of a farcial feud between two mountaineer women in Kentucky.

Conceived originally as a Dressler-Moran vehicle, "Hill Billies" appeared to be headed for the shelf when doctors advised Marie to take a three months' vacation from studio life.

Then Harry Rapf had the bright idea of using May Robson as a team-mate for Polly.

The plan has been enthusiastically received at M-G-M and authors Robert Hopkins and Laurence Johnson are whipping the script into shape for early filming.

One of the better drunk stories is told by W. S. Van Dyke, the director.

It seems that a guest at a local speakeasy began to get ugly and to want to fight. Finally, he picked upon a fellow.

"Shay," he growled, "I don't like you. As far as I'm concerned, you can go straight to the devil. And I'm just the man who can do it!"

If Greta Garbo marries it will be for just one reason—children. And, although marriage for this reason means the end of her career, the Great Garbo has seriously considered it.

This, among other revlations, is made in a new biography of the famous screen star. "She wanted," it says "no small, modern family. But many sturdy sons and daughters. . . ."

Today, in her solitary grandeur, she may regret her decision, but if she does no one would know it. In no way does she show she feels the cruelties of a fate that gave her everything a woman could want except—children.

The man for whom she wanted to bear these children was none other than John Gilbert. In a current issue of True Story, the writer goes on to say that this couple debated the question of marriage in 1928.

Love, position, adulation, riches—all of these were hers. She didn't give a rap for the conventions. There was just one consideration for her in marriage—children. But Garbo knew she dared not do it.

"She would not cheat either her husband and children, or the art to which she was bound with bands of steel."

They went their separate ways alone.

Did you know Wallace Beery is a lieutenant commander in the U. S. Naval Reserve, a battalion chief in the Los Angeles Fire Department, an inspector of the Immigration Department, a lieutenant in the L. A. Air Police, a deputy fish and game commissioner, a deputy U. S. forest ranger and a licensed U. S. transport pilot?

Has it been reported that John Gilbert's daughter is named Susan Ann? . . . Jimmy Durante is upset over a Mexican paper which informed its subscribers that he was dead. They called him: "El extinto senor Durante." . . . Hollywood's two newest bachelors, Adolphe Menjou and William Powell, were colony-clubbing it alone the other evening. It was Bill's first appearance in a late spot since his divorce. . . . Blonde Claire Windsor, who still is so beautiful, was there with a Mr. Anderson of New York.... And Bolton Mallory with Nancy Carroll, revealed he'll stay on in Hollywood for a week at least.

The networks are hot after Mae West. The star of "She Done Him Wrong" turned down an offer of $5500 each for 13 weekly broadcasts of 15 minutes. Mae believes in doing one thing at a time.

The domestic affairs of the royal Roumanian family have been returned to the European spotlight following the report that King Carol III, shown at the left with Crown Prince Michael, is preparing to marry Mme Magda Lupescu, right, who has long been the sweetheart of the ruler, early next year. King Carol, who has been divorced by the former Queen Helene, inset, is said to be preparing to have Mme. Lupescu elevated socially to the standard required for a marriage to a king by having her "adopted" by an unnamed European price as a princess.

VOL. LXXI., No. 53 — PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, CANADA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1933 — PRICE THREE CENTS

ALLEGED HOLD UP MAN GIVEN BEATING

Body of W. J. Crowe Found in Canal

GRUESOME FIND MADE BY GIRL DEAD FOR DAYS

Body Unknown at First is Identified as That of W. J. Crowe.

WORKED IN DUMMER.

Had Plenty of Money When Left Farm But None Found on Body.

While the body that was recovered from the Trent Canal yesterday afternoon, has been positively identified as that of William J. Crowe of this city, the baffling question still remains as to the circumstances under which the man met his death.

Identification of the remains, was made at Comstock's Funeral Home this forenoon by George Wall a nephew of the deceased.

Was Drowned

Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young granted a burial certificate and certified that the deceased had been "found drowned". He expressed the opinion that it was almost impossible to find out under what circumstances the man met his death. There were no marks of violence on the body.

It is learned by The Examiner that Crowe had been employed throughout the summer by Richard Cluff, whose farm is located midway between McCracken's and Crowe's Landing in Dummer Township.

With the season's work completed, Mr. Crowe is said to have left the Cluff farm on Friday of last week, with the purpose of coming into Peterborough to buy some new clothes. He is stated to have had "plenty of money" with him when he left Dummer Township just over a week ago, despite the fact that when the body was recovered, he had no money in his pockets. The deceased man had intended to return to Dummer Township after a few days stay in Peterborough to work for another farmer in the vicinity of his old place, with whom he had been engaged.

Girl Discovered Body

The gruesome discovery of the dead body was made by a 14-year-old girl when she was in the canal swimming with some other children.

LIGHTNING KILLS THREE IN CROWD

Eight Others of 20 in Soft Drink Stand Hurt as Lamp Explodes.

MANY STUNNED.

CABOT, Ark., Sept. 2 (AP)—Three persons were killed and eight injured when lightning struck a cold drink stand here early to-day. The dead are George Snyder, 35, Little Rock; Gerald Pickard, 78, Cabot, and Earl Sneed, 20, Cabot.

The bolt struck the building a few minutes after a crowd of approximately 20 persons had sought shelter there from a rainstorm.

Some of those injured were burned when the shock exploded a gas lamp hanging in the building.

Physicians who treated the injured said all would probably recover.

The three men killed were burned badly, their clothing set afire, and their shoes torn from their feet.

Several other persons in the building at the time were uninjured but stunned so they could not render aid.

HENDERSON ELECTED

CLAY CROSS, Derbyshire—"Uncle Arthur" Henderson, former Foreign Secretary and at present chairman of the world disarmament conference today got back into the House of Commons through the medium of a by-election in one of Labor's safest constituencies with a majority of 10,000 over his two opponents. He will lead the Labor party again.

Thirty-Five Pound Muskie

One of the largest muskies to be caught this season was landed recently by George Green, 526 Gilmour Street. The muskie was caught in Clear Lake, near Kawartha Park, and weighed 35 pounds. It took one hour and a half to land the big fellow. George Green, with his brother, Dr. J. C. Green, is shown above surveying the catch.

THOUSANDS LINE ST. CLAIR RIVER FOR GREAT RACE

Wood Thrills Crowd as He Hurls Racer Once Around Course on Test.

PAINE WAITS START.

HARMSWORTH COURSE, St. Clair River, Mich., Sept. 2 (CP)—Under perfect weather conditions, thousands of spectators, on land and in scores of gaily-colored boats, lined the seven-mile course here today for the 1933 Harmsworth Trophy race, with the high-powered speedboats of Gar Wood, defender, and Hubert Scott-Paine, British challenger, in readiness, and a third entry in the offing.

Skies were clear and the wide river course was smooth as a millpond, with all indications that the same conditions will prevail at race time, 3 p.m. E.S.T.

Early arrivals were afforded an unexpected thrill when Gar Wood, with his mechanic, Orlin Johnson, took the big Miss America X. onto the course this morning for a final check on the 6,800-horsepower plant. Wood roared around the course once, while he made final tests, then returned to his boatwell at Algonac.

The British challenge boat, Miss Britain III, was taken by Scott-Paine to the United States Customs base at Marine City and hoisted out of the water, to remain until just before race time.

The third entry, still doubtful in the opinion of officials, was Horace Dodge's Delphine V. While Dodge's entry is officially completed, race managers were uncertain whether the boat will arrive for the start of the race.

To-Day Concludes Saturday Holidays

TORONTO, Sept. 2.—(CP)—Canadian stock and commodity exchanges were closed today and also will be closed on Monday, Labor Day. The big U.S. stock and commodity markets are likewise closed until Tuesday morning.

Today's market closing concludes the run of Saturday holidays in Canada as well as in the United States, all important markets resuming Saturday sessions on September 9.

WOMAN TOURIST'S AUTO KILLS GRIMSBY FARMER

WINONA Ont., Sept. 2.—(CP)—Joseph M. Steward, 69-year-old North Grimsby farmer, was killed instantly today when he was struck by an automobile while crossing the highway here.

The car was driven by Miss Mary Macdougall, 35, of Newport, N.Y. When the fatality occurred Steward was walking towards his car which was parked across the street where his son Lorne was waiting for him.

It is thought that Steward became momentarily confused while crossing the busy section of the highway and failed to see the approaching automobile. The New York car, after striking him, swerved over to the side of the road, grazed a telephone pole and came to a stop against a fence.

Miss Macdougall is being held by police pending investigation.

FAMOUS ITALIAN FLIER PERISHES IN BLAZING SHIP

Craft Refusing to Rise With Heavy Gas Load Crashes Into Fence.

AT BROOKLYN FIELD.

Gen. de Pinedo's Goal Had Been Set at Bagdad, Hoping for New Record.

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Sept. 2 (AP)—General Francesco de Pinedo, one of Italy's most famous airmen, met flaming death shortly after dawn to-day when his huge plane crashed and burned up at the start of a take-off for Bagdad, Iraq.

A tremendous load of gasoline, 1,027 gallons, caused his giant red, green and purple plane to swerve from a concrete runway and hit a fence at Floyd Bennett Airport. In a second it was a roaring mass of flames, and the flyer was burned beyond recognition.

The start of what the gallant flyer had hoped would be a non-stop record flight became a scene of horror. Spectators shuddered and covered their eyes as they saw fire engulf the airman.

Attendants rushed to the scene and tried to pull him out, but the flames forced them back. Michael Hicks Beach, a naval machinist's mate, was badly burned about the face trying to reach De Pinedo with a fire extinguisher.

Burns Only Few Minutes

The plane burned only a few seconds before it was a mass of metal wreckage. The body was found lying beside it, and field officials said the flyer had jumped and attempted to crawl away before the fire killed him.

De Pinedo's plane was travelling about 70 miles an hour when it hit the steel wire fence at 6.02 a.m. E.S.T. He had covered about 2,000 feet of the mile-long concrete runway before disaster overtook him. The plane, lurching under its great load of fuel, refused to rise. One wheel got off the ground but fell back, then the plane swerved into the dirt along the runway.

De Pinedo, going perhaps 100 miles an hour, got the craft back to the concrete again, but a moment later it swerved again and dashed toward the fence as De Pinedo applied his screeching brakes.

BAND OF GUARDS 250 YEARS OLD

Stationed In Paris While Scots Guards Fought At Waterloo.

WILL PLAY AT "EX."

The Band of His Majesty's Scots Guards, which will be heard in three programs during the Peterborough Exhibition, has a history extending over nearly 250 years.

The first bandmaster of the Scots Guards of whom there is any record was John Mahon, an eminent clarionettist. Mahon led the band until 1797, in which year Edward Hopkins, recognised as one of the most brilliant clarionettists of his day, was appointed. Hopkins was in charge of the band in Paris in 1815 where the musicians were stationed while the Scots Guards were fighting under Wellington at Waterloo.

In the middle of the last century, Carl Boose, one of the greatest bandmasters in the history of the British Army, was appointed director of music. Boose was in many ways the founder of the modern regimental band. He was also the founder of the first musical journal dealing with band music to be instituted in Great Britain.

Lieut. F. W. Wood, who retired recently as bandmaster, was another great name in the history of the Scots Guards Band. Mr. Wood trained the famous York and Lancaster Band which won first prize in the competition of army bands held in London in 1897. In 1921, Mr Wood succeeded Dr. Williams as senior director of music of the Brigade of Guards.

Lieut. H. E. Dowell, the present director of music for the Scots Guards will be in charge of the band during the present tour.

Just a "Crick"

ALLERTON, Ill., Sept. 2.—(C.P.)—"Doc," said Adolph E. Adkins, "there's a crick in my neck." He explained that it got there after a motor car collision.

"Just running around and working a bit, why?"

"Your neck," replied the doctor, "is broken."

OMEMEE YOUTH CAUGHT IN BELT INSTANT DEATH

Edgar Jones, Omemee, Instantly Killed While Threshing.

OILING MACHINE.

No Eye Witnesses Saw Accident—Boy's Father Finds Body.

OMEMEE, Sept. 2.—(Examiner Correspondence)—Edgar Jones, 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Jones of Omemee was instantly killed at eleven thirty o'clock today, while operating a steam threshing engine. The fatality occurred at the farm of Roy Windrem located about half a mile north of the village.

No Eyewitnesses

While there were no eyewitnesses of the tragedy, it is believed that the young man, had been in the act of oiling the engine when he slipped and grabbed at the reverse lever. His body was caught on the belt of the machine and was thrown for a distance of 20-feet up the gangway towards the barn. The youth's head was badly crushed and death must have been almost instantaneous.

Noticing that the machine was runing in reverse gear, the boy's father made the terrible discovery of the mangled remains of his son. The remainder of the men on the outfit which was owned by Mr. Jones, were in the barn at the time of the accident.

Coroner Dr. G. N. Earl of Omemee decided that an inquest will not be necessary.

Besides his parents, the deceased youth leaves two sisters, Ruth and Doris, and a brother, Bert. He was the eldest of the family. Funeral arrangements were not complete at the time of going to press.

FIRE HAZARDS FAR FROM OVER

Officials Fear Drying Winds in Claybelt Will Undo Rain's Effect.

LIGHTNING WORST CAUSE.

TORONTO, Sept. 2.—(CP)—In general the forestt fire hazard throughout Ontario has been very high throughout the summer with unusual lack of water in the swamps, streams and lakes making fire extinguishing extremely difficult, E. J. Zavitz, Deputy Minister of Forests in the Provincial Government stated today.

The northwestern portion of the province west of Lake Nipigon has had severe drought and an unusually large number of fires caused by lightning have occurred during the early summer. Rainfall during the recent weeks has made the situation less serious, he said.

Throughout the northeastern claybelt the fire hazard was high during July and early August; but enough rain fell during late August to improve conditions considerably. It is feared however that drying winds may increase the hazard if more rain does not fall.

Algoma region did not have an extremely high fire hasard the early part of the summer but at present weather conditions have made conditions dangerous and numerous small fires have broken out.

In North Bay, Parry Sound and Trent regions rain has been frequent and conditions now are not dangerous.

Service Station Operator Proves Tough for Thug

Clifford Curtis, Park Hill Road Service Station Operator, Beat Up Attempted Hold Up Man Who Is Later Taken To Hospital

WILLIAM J. MONTGOMERY WILL FACE CHARGE FOLLOWING RELEASE FROM THE HOSPITAL

Attempted Hold Up Occurred Shortly After Curtis Had Closed Station For Night—Carried $250 In Cash

With the frontal bone in his skull fractured and his body bearing extensive bruises and cuts, William J. Montgomery, a local man with a "police record", was admitted to St. Joseh's Hospital early this morning.

Upon his release from hospital, which according to Dr. Herbert N. Young will probably be in the course of a few days, he will face a charge of "armed robbery with violence".

Montgomery sustained his injuries, when it is said he attempted to hold-up A. Clifford Curtis, Park Hill Road service station operator, at the point of a gun shortly before midnight.

Mr. Curtis had just closed his service station at eleven-thirty o'clock and was going through the gateway in the fence, which separates his station from his George Street residence, when it is alleged he was faced by Montgomery. Armed with a .38 revolver, the stick-up man commanded, Mr. Curtis to "stick 'em up". He added a warning, according to Mr. Curtis that the gun was loaded with one blank cartridge and other live cartridges.

Carrying approximately $250 in bills and change on his person, Mr. Curtis fearlessly closed with his assailant. A scuffle ensued in which Montgomery succeeded in breaking loose and making a short dash in a hopeless attempt to get away.

Still carrying the revolver, with which he was armed, Montgomery reached the sidewalk on Park Hill Road. Here Mr. Curtis again grabbed him, bearing him down to the pavement. Meanwhile he shouted for help.

J. T. Braund, a neighbour of Mr. Curtis hearing the cries for assistance as he was preparing to retire for the night responded. He disamed the hold-up man, and gave his son Ernest Braund instructions to telephone the police.

Handcuffed, Montgomery was taken into custody by the City Police and was later admitted to hospital, where he is being attended by Dr. Young. His injuries are described by the doctor as consisting of a fracture of the frontal bone of the cranium; bruises on the forehead, and knees. "The man is fully conscious", Dr. Young said, "and gave me his age as forty-three years".

Police Chief Samuel Newhall was reluctant to discuss the matter with The Examiner this morning, but stated that a charge of armed robbery with violence would be preferred against Montgomery, whom he stated, had a lengthy police record.

Havana Sufefrs — 2 Looters Smot—Many Ships in Distress.

(By John P. McKnight)

HAVANA, Sept. 2. — (AP) — A swift, fierce hurricane visited its wrath on western Pinar Del Rio province today after causing at least seven deaths and 64 injuries and uncounted property losses in three West-Central Cuban states.

As communication lines were repaired reports came from communities—isolated four hours by the 92-mile wind, huge waves, and the deluge —of shattered houses, looting, broken power lines, and damaged crops.

Havana spent much of last night in darkness, which meant looting in many districts. Soldiers, police and members of the ABC and OCRR revolutionary societies acted to prevent robbery and, under orders to shoot looters at sight, killed two men caught pillaging ruins in the Vadada section.

The capital had been warned of the storm's approach by observatories' bulletins, but nevertheless an unidentified man was killed and more than 60 hurt here as the gale tore at signs, trees, buildings and walls. In Santa Clara six were killed and an undetermined number hurt.

CRASH AT SEA SINKS TANKER CREW RESCUED

36 MEN PICKED UP.

Smaller Craft Bursts Into Flames Before Founde ering.

NEW YORK September 2 (C.P.)—Thirty-six men were saved from death by fire or drowning when the tanker Coldwater burst into flames and "presumably sank" after collision with the liner President Wilson, wireless messages announced early to-day.

The coastwise tanker and the liner, bound for the Orient collided about 200 miles off the coast of North Carolina at 11 p.m. last night, a message from the master of the latter veassel to Radio Marine Corporation, said:

"On September 1 about 11 p.m." the message said, "S.S. Coldwater caught fire after collision with the steamship President Wilson and presumably sank."

The position given was latitude 33 51 north longitude 75 45 west, which is approximately 200 miles off Cape Fear, N.C.

The first message did not say what happened to the tanker's crew but shortly afterwards the vessel's owners announced at Savannah, Ga., that she had saved all of them and was taking them to Norfolk, Va.

The liner owned by the Dollar Steamship Company of San Francisco was en route from New York to Caribbean ports Honolulu and the Orient when the accident occurred. The Coldwater, a 390-foot vessel, sailed from Jacksonville, Fla., on August 26 for a trip up the Atlantic coast. Her home port is Savannah, Ga.

The Captain's Version

(Editor's Note.—The Associated Press wirelessed Commander Makepeace Ridley, Master of the S.S. President Wilson, for his own story of the collision between his vessel and the Coldwater. Following is the account of the accident received from the President Wilson.

S.S. PRESIDENT WILSON, en route to Norfolk, Sept. 2, (AP)—Last night, about 11.00 p.m., 80 miles south of Cape Hatteras in a very sudden and unexpected cloudburst of rain the S.S. President Wilson collided with the S.S. Coldwater.

The latter vessel's cargo on deck and in the holds immediately took fire and soon the ship was in a mass of flames, sinking within an hour.

All on the vessel were saved, including one lady passenger and two children.

The vessels, Gulf Breeze, Christy Payne and J. C. Donnell arrived and stood by until assured of all being saved and that no help was required.

The President Wilson's bows are damaged and the ship is now proceeding towards Norfolk safely and expects to arrive this evening.

MOSCOW, Aug. 19.—Dreiser said once that if a man strapped a mattress around his waist by way of a gown and put a silk hat on his head and thus accoutred fared forth into the streets of Moscow, he would scarcely attract any attention. It may have been so in 1929 when the great American writer was over here; it certainly is different now. At this very moment I personally am the course of a good deal of hilarity on the part of the Soviet population on account of my socks. My socks namely are of a particularly attractive design, terra-cotta with a green block, but they are, alas, visible to the public at large by reason of the fact that I wear a pair of rough tweed knickerbockers.

Duck Hunting Season Opens September 15

Price of Gold Hits New Record High

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(A.P.)— The price of gold, which at 130 shillings 8½ pence yesterday reached the highest point in history, took another jumy to 131 shillings 3 pence a fine ounce to-day and set a new record. This represented an increase of 6½ pence.

The highest previous price, that of November 30, 1932, was 130 shillings 8 pence.

Price of U.S. Coal Increased 50 Cents

The increase of 50 cents in the price of coal, which went into effect to-day, is a direct result of President Roosevelt's National Industrial Recovery Act in the United States, local fuel dealers explained to-day.

"The price went up at the mines and was passed on through the trade in both the United States and Canada" one dealer said. "I thing the public understands that the N.R.A. was intended to increase employment, wages and buying power in the United States. The mines signed the industrial code, and as costs have begun to mount, the consumers have to support the new policy which simply means that they have to pay more for commodities to bring about the recovery of prosperity planned by President Roosevelt. Unfortunately, we are affected by this increase and there is nothing we can do about it."

O'DUFFY TO JOIN WITH COSGRAVE IN SINGLE PARTY

Executives of Both Groups Get Supoprt of Centrists in Move.

CONVENTION SEPT. 9.

Word That O'Duffy Will Be Leader Comes as Surprise to Ireland.

DUBLIN, Sept. 2. —(AP)— The Centre party and William T. Cosgrave's Cunmann na nGaedheal, in separate meetings last night, agreed to accept proposals to merge with General Eoin O'Duffy's banned National Guard, thus taking definite steps toward establishment of a new United Ireland party.

Last night's action came at conferences of leaders of the two parties and it was subject to ratification by the respective general party conventions. The executives recommended party conventions be held September 9.

Under the plan, General O'Duffy would head the new party and Cosgrave would serve as the party's chairman in the Dail Eireann. Frank McDermott, head of the Centre party, was designated as vice-president of the new organization.

The three old parties would have equal representation on an executive committee of 12 members.

Word that O'Duffy would head the new party created a sensation here because it was generally believed that any amalgamation would result in Cosgrave emerging as leader. It was understood that O'Duffy plans to meet heads of the Cosgrave and Centre parties Saturday for discussion of details of the projected fusion.

Meanwhile, detectives, for the second time within a week, raided National Guard headquarters yesterday and seized several documents.

HARD ON LOVERS.

DURANT, Okla. — The N.R.A. could do little for six gentlemen who lost their jobs yesterday. The six, known in this Oklahoma-Texas border community as marriage solicitors, had worked for four years directing Texas couples, fleeing from a stringent marriage law, to local peace justices and pastors.

BLAME FIREBUGS FOR SOO BLAZES

1,000 Acres Already Burned Over as Pall Covers Algoma.

CONVICTIONS SOUGHT.

SAULT STE. MARIE. Ont., Sept. 2 (CP)—A series of serious incendiary fires, in addition to many bush conflagrations, is adding to the worries of the Forestry Branch here.

Five incendiary blazes, all close together and being held by rangers, were started in Aberdeen township, and several blazes attributed to bush firebugs have started near Lake Lauzon in the Blind River area. Already 1,000 acres have been burned over.

"We have stopped and controlled this fire on several occasions," Chief Forester N. M. Kensit said yesterday. "But it invariably breaks out again beyond the fire lines. We had it stopped at the east end Thursday and in the night someone started another fire half a mile beyond it in the bush. Steps are being taken to secure convictions," he said.

The Forestry Department has insisted the township of Plummer take action on a fire of some extent there which has now burned over several hundred acres.

Several new fires were reported yesterday. One in Parkinnson is burning over a cut, two small fires started in Striker township and other fires were burning in several organized townships. A heavy pall of smoke hangs over the whole district, making visibility for the air patrol and towers almost negligible.

ABSENT.

PITTSBURGH.—William C. Eckert, 53, assistant cashier in the city treasurer's office, rarely took a holiday, and was always first at the office. Alarmed over not finding him at the office yesterday, employees investigated and found him dead in his home.

SHOTGUN, RIFLE SOON REPLACE FISHING GEAR

Trout Anglers Have Only 2 Weeks, October 15 Ends Bass, Muskie Days.

DUCK HUNTING SEPT. 15.

No Official Decision on Open Season for Partridge and Pheasant.

Ardent followers of the ancient sport of angling must soon put away their rods and fishing gear until another season, as the present one is fast drawing to a close. Regulations of the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries stipulate that, for many of the choice varieties of fish, the fishing season closes on Sept. 15.

That means that fishermen who are willing to brave the cool night air may fish until midnight of Sept. 14. The fish which may not be caught after that time, until another season rolls around, include speckled trout, brown trout, aurora trout and rainbow trout.

Those anglers who prefer black bass and muskellunge have more than a month yet in which to display their skill. The season for these types does not close until Oct. 15, except in Lake Erie waters fronting on Essex County, where the season is open until May 24 next.

Lake Trout Till Nov. 16

After this date, should there still be those who wish to answer the urge of the reel and rod, lake trout are still available. In Lake Nipigon the Bay of Quinte, Georgian Bay and the Great Lakes, as well as the St. Lawrence River, there is no closed date for this species of the finny tribe, and in Northern Ontario the season for lake trout is open until Nov. 16.

However, there are compensations for the closing of the fishing season, provided that the fisherman is also a hunter. For many it merely means the putting away of the rod and the taking up of the gun, with four-footed game forming about as elusive a quarry as the one which refuses to be tempted by fly or worm. For the hunting season opens simultaneously with the closing of the fishing season.

For deer and moose, hunters may lie in wait on the morning of Sept. 16 in that portion of Ontario lying north of the Canadian

ST. JOHN'S ORGAN TO BE SEEN AT "EX."

Recital is Given to College of Organists at Toronto Exhibition.

Built to specifications and plans prepared by Frederic G. Mann, L.Mus., by Franklin Legge Organ Company, Ltd., of Toronto, the new organ shortly to be installed in St. John's Anglican Church here is on display in the Automotive Building at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Mr. Mann, who is organist and choirmaster of St. John's, was in Toronto recently and was well pleased with the tests he made with the new instrument. "It is a really beautiful organ," he stated, "and its design embodies many features of organ construction that are not contained in any other organ in this city."

A unique feature of the organ, Mr. Mann explained, was the all-electric draw knob consol, which he claimed was the first ever to be built in Canada. At the organ recital which he gave in public, Mr. Mann had with him three boy soloists of St. John's Church Choir in the persons of Leslie Sage, Fred Fowler, and Orville Wainman.

According to Mr. Mann the organ will be installed in the church and ready for use on September 24, at which time it will be dedicated. Consecration of the instrument, he said, would follow subsequently.

On Thursday of this week, the Canadian College of Organists held one of their meetings in the Automotive Building at the invitation of the Franklin Legge Company, and a recital on the new organ was provided by Charles Peacker, F.R.C.O., assisted by St. Thomas' Boy Choristers.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

STAMP CORNER

By M. A. BESSEY

This latest issue from Newfoundland commemorates the annexation of Newfoundland by Sir Humphrey Gilbert in 1583. It perpetuates the life and adventures of one of Elizabeth's sea-dogs, "Good Sir Humphrey," the same that was half-brother to Sir Walter Raleigh, whose career was dogged by disaster and ended in tragedy.

Illustrated are the nine low values of this new issue, and following we describe the complete set.

One cent, portrait of Sir Humphrey Gilbert taken from an old engraving in the "Huroologia" an old Dutch book of travel, artist unknown. Color, gray.

Two cent, Compton Castle, the old home of the Gilbert family, near Torquay, Devon. Originally built in the twelfth, it was the scene of Sir Humphrey's upbringing, though he was actually born in a small house at Greenaway, which no longer exists. The house is in an excellent state of preservation and is now the residence of Sir Walter Raleigh Gilbert, R.N., a direct descendant of Sir Humphrey. Color, green.

Three cent, coat-of-arms showing the family crest, a squirrel, after which he named one of the ships composing his squadron of exploration. Color, orange brown.

Four cent, Eton College, where Sir Humphrey was educated; he joined the school in 1551. Color, dark rose.

Five cent, "The Token"; a representation of the gift made to Sir Humphrey by Queen Elizabeth before his departure on his voyage of 1551. It is referred to in a letter from Sir Walter Raleigh written to his half-brother from the court at Richmond in the year 1583, in the following terms: "I send you a token from Her Majesty, an anchor guided by a lady as you see." Color, purple.

Seven cent, "The Commission." This represents an episode in the life of Sir Humphrey which took place in the year 1578 and shows him receiving his patents for colonization from the hands of Queen Elizabeth. Color, light blue.

Eight cent, "Start of the Great Adventure," showing the squadron leaving Plymouth, 1583, the ships being the "Delight," flagship, under Captain Maurice Browne. "The Raleigh," "The Golden Hinde," "The Swallow," and "The Squirrel." Sir Humphrey was a member of parliament for Plymouth in 1571. Color, brick red.

Nine cent, "Arrival at St. John's." Sir Humphrey Gilbert's squadron passing through the Narrows on August 5, 1583. Color, bright blue.

Ten cent. The annexation of Newfoundland in the name of Queen Elizabeth, showing the hoisting of the banner and the tablet for the Royal Arms, the whole ceremony taking place place before the assembled group of settlers. Color, maroon

Fourteen cent, the Royal Arms of Queen Elizabeth with the words of Gilbert's report, "I have engraven thereon the arms of England," referring to the tablet shown in the annexation scene. Color, black.

Fifteen cent, Sir Humphrey had transferred to the smallest ship the "Squirrel" and a gale had overtaken the squadron. The "Golden Hinde" approaches in the hope of being able to render assistance.

Sir Humphrey sits on the poop and calls out to the "Golden Hinde," "We are as near to Heaven by sea as by land." Shortly after this his vessel was overwhelmed and her company lost. Color, magenta.

Twenty cent. Map of Newfoundland, as published in "The Golden Fleece," in 1624. It represents roughly the extent of the survey of Newfoundland at the end of the 16th century. Color, olive green.

SIX ARE JAILED IN POISON PLOT

Elderly Men Wed Each Other's Young Daughters in Queer Pact.

ONE FOUND DEAD.

PAULS VALLEY, Okla., Sept. 2— A 67-year-old man and six others, including the elderly man's 11-year-old bride, were held in jail here last night in connection with an alleged poison death and a strange marital agreement.

Sheriff L. W. Barnhill spent most of the day rounding them up. They had scattered after T. J. Taylor, 55, had been found dying from poison. No charges had been filed.

J. T. Halsell, 67, and 11-year-old Dorothy Taylor, were married in Tulsa by a negro preacher a fortnight ago at a double ceremony in which Carrie Halsell, 15-year-old daughter of the bridegroom, was wedded to Taylor, the father of the 11-year-old bride.

Mrs. Mabel Bessett, State Charities and Corrections Commissioner, heard of the marriage. She spent two weeks investigating. A search for the newlyweds was started. Taylor's death gave the first clue as to their whereabouts.

Mrs. Bassett had found birth certificates showing the girls were not old enough to marry even with the consent of their parents. She also learned of the strange pact between the men for marriage to each other's daughter.

Halsell and his child were found in a pasture south of Lindsay, where the man was chopping scrub oak for a farmer. Their only shelter was a sheet thrown over a jack oak tree.

The Golden Text

1 Samuel 16:7—"Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart."

New Task For The Church

"LABOR SUNDAY MESSAGE VISUALIZE ERA OF WORLD BROTHERHOOD."

By
Rev. George S. Hamilton, St. Catherines, Ontario.

The labor Sunday observance tomorrow in the churches throughout our Dominion and America will mark the event and spirit of a new outlook for peace, justice and brotherhood. Special sentiments and utterance will be expressed, bearing upon political, economic and social issues for the common good.

The Federal Council of the Churches of America have issued a special message to be preached and read from the pulpit. It is gratifying to note that this year's message deals not only with the underlying and basic christian values, but points out as well specific, economic applications for which the church may strive in its future task. Among these are:

Social planning and control of the credit and monetary system and economic process of the common good. Social assurance against sickness and accident; the old age pension; abolition of child labor; adequate provisions for the protection of education; spiritual nature and wholesome recreation for every child. Particulary, we are pleased to observe that the labor Sunday message will plead for the recognition and maintenance and responsibility of free speech, free assembly, free press; the encouragement of free communication of mind with mind as essential to the discovery of truth.

(1) The call of the church to action. The science of political pathology calls for an enquiry into the causes of political and social unrest and the epidemic fever for nationalism. The alarm call to action is here offered to the christian church for the reconditioning of its ideals and teachings to the urgent mood of the times, believing that spiritual and moral persuasion is too slow and impatient and thereby must resort to the tactics of the class struggle and of the force in social relationship.

(2) The age of Social Questions behind all the extraordinary achievements of modern civilization, its transformation of business methods, its miracles of scientific discovery, its mighty combinations of political forces, there lies at the heart of the present time a burdening sense of social malajustment which creates the social question. "The Social Question" come of the consciousness of a contradiction between economic development and the social idea of liberty and equality which is being realized in political life. This is what gives its fundamental character to the present age.

(3) The Church and the Social Question, is an inquiry which, in one form or another, forces itself upon every mind which has, on one hand, any reverence for the teachings of Jesus, and, on the other any understanding of the present age. Never before were so many people concerned with the problems of social amelioration and programs of social transformation; never before were social solutions so free proposed or social panaceas so confidently prescribed. Social institutions which for centuries have been assumed to be rooted in human nature or ordained of God are frankly discussed as social expedients or experiments to be reformed, transformed or abolished. Is the institution of the human family to survive the present movement toward disruption? Is the institution of private property to be maintained among the economic changes of the future? Is the new social order to arrive by peaceful processes of evolution, or must the pain and travail of social revolution attend the birth of a better world?—such are the questions which confront the church in its new task and all thoughtful persons who observe the signs of times.

Those of us who are close to class struggle are keenly appreciative of the words of the closing paragraph:

"If violence and bitterness are to be avoided in the process of social change, the privilege must actively participate in the movement toward economic justice."

Cathedral Musings

Dreaming—I said,
The World's a smoky taper,
And Man's a feeble frank;
Life's a careless caper,
And Love a mountebank!

Awake—I cried,
The World's a candle, burning
On Heaven's high altar-piece
Where planets swing like censers
To the beat of circling seas!

Man is the shrine of Ages
The sun of all his prayers
And Life's a linked progression
Up Heaven's high altar-stairs.

And Love's the selfless glory
Enfolding star and clod
Flame of that vast, white Splendour
Angels and men call—GOD.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Religious and Social Questions Answered
By DR. WYLIE CLARK

Am teacher of Men's Bible class. We have just had a discussion of what the church is. There was a great difference in the opinions. I am writing you for your definition of what the church is and will be glad to receive your answer through our paper. T. W. B.

The church is a great number of men and women and children. Some of these are members and some adherents. These are divided up into denominations and sects and subdivided into congregations and groups. They own a lot of property—churches, schools, halls, hospitals and other buildings. They meet together for worship, instruction, fellowship and the receiving of sacraments. According to their own ideas they have different forms of government and methods of procedure. They aim to be missionary and increase their numbers. They seek to do good works and live good lives. They have a sacred literature and centuries of church history. They have a long list of martyrs and heroes and heroines of the faith.

All these things and more the church possesses—but there are not the church. The church is a life—the Spirit of Christ in the hearts of those who believe. We may be in the midst of the things of the church and take part in them and yet not belong to the church—not be Christian.

In a sermon by our minister last week he said, "Religion was as necessary for life as bread and meat" I do not see how that is true. Would be obliged if you would say if you think he is right and why. R. W.

Your minister was evidently thinking of the complete life. I saw a few days ago a man who had lost an eye, an arm and a leg. He was still a man; but very incomplete. I saw another who had been ill and helpless for twenty-four years. He was still a man; but almost useless. The first man was able to eat all kinds of foods; but it could not nourish the eye, the arm and the leg which were gone. The second man could only eat certain things. He could not take the food of a healthy man.

A man is not merely physical. He is also mental and spiritual. To be fully developed he must be complete in all. If he is denied food he must suffer in his body. If he has no chance to secure any kind of an education his mind is not equipped to meet the needs of life. If he has no religion then his spiritual nature has no chance to mature.

Man is such a complex being, so much is possible for him to be and to do, that to attain first class honors in all departments of his make up is almost impossible—and yet the intention of the Creator is that man should come to his best. That is why there is a cross.

I was reading a book in which the writer said, "Jesus is the root of the Christian Religion." I am not able to understand the exact meaning of this. Perhaps you might help me putting the answer in our paper. P. T. A.

Visitors to a garden are concerned with the flowers which are in bloom. They admire the showing made by the different varieties. They delight in the things they can see.

The gardener sees the roots and knows that they are responsible for all the visitors see. Without the living roots there would be no flowers. Separate the flowers from the roots and they wither and die.

It was from Jesus that the Christian religion sprung. Men and women who believed in His life, death and resurrection lived differently. They found in His Spirit a living power which produced in them new desires and new hopes. He was the root which made the flowers of the spirit possible.

Any religion which leaves Jesus out is one trying to grow flowers without roots.

If we only understood the possibilities of what Jesus, the root, is able to perform there would be flowers in all our hearts and lives.

I know some men who are sceptics, but they are really fine men and I know some who profess to be Christians, but they are poor specimens of humanity. How do you account for this?—M. E. B.

There is a natural fineness about some men just as there is about a horse or a dog. They are well set up. They have special natural gifts which are an inheritance from the past. If we travel to their prime source their conceptions of nobleness of character we will discover they do not get them from their sceptical creeds; but from the standards of morals as taught in the Scriptures and imbedded in Christian teaching. The very qualities which put them in favorable contrast with many nominal Christians run back their roots, not unbelief, but to the ethics and the diffused spirit of Christ.

Many of the so-called sceptics had a Christian ancestry behind them and grew up in an environment saturated with influences from believing homes.

On the other hand there are many who claim to be Christians, who are narrow-minded, mean-hearted, close-fisted and self-seeking. These are really only religious humbugs and should not fool anybody. They are so self-preserving that no one should be deceived by their pretentions. Because thieves pretend to be honest men does not make honesty a crime.

Nature's Faces

ALAS! How few of Nature's faces are left to gladden us with their beauty. The cares, and sorrows, and hungerings of the world change them as they change hearts; and it is only when those passions sleep, and have lost their hold forever, that the troubled clouds pass off and leave heaven's surface clear. It is a common thing for the countenances of the dead, even in that fixed and rigid state, to subside into the long-forgotten expression of sleeping infancy, and settle into the very look of early life. So calm, so peaceful do they grow again, that those who knew them in their happy childhood kneel by the coffin's side in awe, and see the angel even upon the earth. Dickens.

Haste Makes Waste

IN such an interesting world where there is something to surprise the observer at every turn, it is hard to believe that there are people who complain of the dullness and drabness of their lot. But now and then you hear the loud lament that nothing is worth while Perhaps if they were not in too much of a hurry they might find more to interest them. There is solid truth in Emma Pierce's lines:

So much of beauty must go to waste,
For men must hurry, and men must haste;
And what would appeal to their higher selves,
Gives way to things on 'lower shelves.

Co-operation is not a sentiment; it is an economic necessity.

David

(The International Uniform Lesson on David for September 3, the tenth in a series on early leaders in Israel, is based on I Samuel 16: 1-13 and Psalm 78:70-72, the Golden Text being I Samuel 16:7, "Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart.")

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

Great in his piety, great in his poetry, great in his psalms and in his sins, great as shepherd and as statesman, great in courage or in contrition, David did nothing by halves. He is the Bible's greatest saint and one of its greatest sinners.

The aged Samuel trembled in fear at Jehovah's command to go to Bethlehem to annoint one of Jesse's sons to be king while Saul the rejected king still lived. But God permitted the real purpose of the prophet's visit to be hidden in the sacrifice to which he called the villagers and in the course of which one of their number was to be annointed for some divine service not to be disclosed to those who witnessed it or as yet even to the annointed one.

Jesse rought his sons before the prophet Samuel beginning with the eldest, Eliab. At sight of Eliab Samuel felt, "Surely the Lord's annointed is before him." Even Samuel would have fallen for looks as the whole nation had done in the case of Saul. But personality is not solely or even chiefly physical, but rather spiritual. So Samuel is directed to look further for the qualities with which God is impressed. "The Lord said unto Samuel, Look not on his countenance or on the height of his stature; because I have refused him; for the Lord seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart."

Even Jesse entertained no idea of the fitness for God's purpose of his eighth son, David. He did not even think it worth while to call him in from the sheep fold and from watching the flock. In his estimation it was all over when seven sons had failed to qualify, until Samuel inquired in perplexity, "Are here all thy children?" Then David was brought in "And the Lord said, Arise, annoint him; for this is he ....And the Spirit of the Lord came upon David from that day forward."

The Shepherd King

Thus "He chose David also his servant, and took him from the sheepfolds: from following the ewes great with young he brought him to feed Jacob his people, and Israel his inheritance. So he fed them according to the integrity of his heart; and guided them by the skillfulness of his hands." Homer says, "All kings are shepherds of the people." This is clearly Jehovah's ideal, for God himself in the person of his Son is not ashamed to say, "I am the good shepherd; the good Sphered giveth his life for the sheep." In the schooling of the shepherd life the king after God's own heart had time to meditate "beside the still waters." Here the courage of faith was born in conflict with wild beasts and in behalf of the lambs of the fold that prepared for the conflict with Goliath and the Philistine giant. In this humble calling he cultivated the gentleness that made him great. To this shepherd life and its memories the prophet Nathan went for his parable of the one little ewe lamb to point out to the king his great sin and say, "Thou are the man." From this shepherd life the poet-king gives us the nightingale of the psalms, "The Lord is my Shepherd," a picture fulfilled only in the son of David, the "Shepherd and Bishop of our souls."

A Chat with Young Peterboro

ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR SEPT. 10

Some folks seem to get a pretty raw deal in life and yet you can't exactly feel sorry for them. They seem to stand out all the finer because of it. Take Jonathan for instance. If ever a fellow was fit to be king he was. He had just about 99 per cent more of the stuff in him to make a good king than his father Saul, the Washout. Here he was, the Prince of Wales of the Israelites, yet his pal got the throne and he came to a sad end. And the bg thing was that he was the faithful friend of his pal, David, who became king. He was certainly a true friend with a capital F, the best I ever heard of except one, the Saviour. Maybe that's the reason we have the story of his friendship for David. It's what the ministers call a type, a picture to make us understand something bigger and more perfect. Here's Jonathan, a king's son, who wasn't ashamed to take up and make a friend of a plain shepherd lad such as David was. I imagine some of the big noises in Saul's court would kind of sneer at the prince palling around with David. That's like the Saviour, isn't it? Lays aside His glory and dresses us up in His own righteousness and helps us to fight the battle of life. But the picture fades out in one spot. Jonathan does all he can to make his father, Saul, treat David right, but can't do it. I guess he'd have given his life to save him if he could. But the Saviour came to bring us to His Father and laid down His life to do it. He's the friend that sticketh closer than a brother, and that shows us the different between the best friendship on earth, and the kind of friendship the Saviour brought down from heaven.

Affairs

In all the affairs of human life, social as well as political, I have remarked that courtesies of a small and trivial character are the ones that strike deepest to the grateful and appreciating heart.—Henry Clay.

Patience

Patience should manage our fortune like our constitution—enjoy it when good, have patience when bad, and never apply violent remedies but in cases of necessity.

It is only by the indwelling of the Holy Spirit that the Christian life becomes possible to any one.

Visions are God within the soul, come to lead man away from sin and sorrow and to guide him to his heavenly home.

David

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scriptures—I Samuel 16:1-13; Ps. 78:70-72.

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

In Samuel's old age God sent him to Bethlehem to anoint a successor to Saul whom God was about to depose. This successor was to be found among the sons of Jesse. David, the youngest of Jesse's eight sons, was guarding his father's sheep when Samuel came, for he was a shepherd lad.

Jesse caused his sons, beginning with Eliab, the eldest, to come before Samuel, who was inclined to anoint Eliab because of his fine physical appearance. But God was looking not on the outward appearance but upon the heart. So seven sons failed to qualify and David was brought in and anointed to be Saul's successor.

David's older brothers were in the army and their father sent him to visit them. He arrived to find the entire army in fear of the Philistine giant Goliath. David secured Saul's permission to go forth to battle with Goliath and slew him with a stone from his shepherd's sling.

As a shepherd David received an excellent training to fit him to become God's shepherd over the nation to lead it in paths of righteousness. He wrote many Psalms for the people to use as hymns and prayers in their worship of Jehovah, the best of which we call "The Shepherd Psalm".

LABOR DAY.

On the eve of the day set apart in Canada as a tribute to labor, it is gratifying to feel that this year it is possible for the workers of the country to face the future with at least a degree more confidence than for the last two or three years.

There are signs—definite signs—that a gradual betterment in conditions is being achieved.

The carefully calculated estimate of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics that some 200,000 Canadians have been taken out of the unemployed list in the past four months and are now gainfully employed is good news.

It is important in itself and it is doubly important because there is bound to be increasing spending power as a result of this increase in employment, and that in time will mean opportunities for other unemployed to find work.

The outlook then on Labor Day this year is distinctly encouraging.

That is most pleasing, because Canadian labor by its steadiness in the time of stress, by its refusal to be stampeded into adopting radical measures, by its courage and patience under trying conditions has surely earned for itself the right to be given work.

The morale of the Canadian workers has been maintained despite the prolonged depression that found them the chief victims, and it is well that the whole country should remember that fact gratefully and appreciatively on the holiday designated to do honor to labor.

PREPARING FOR WHAT?

Concluding an inspection of new fortifications on the Franco-German border, Premier Edouard Daladier of France said:

"We are French and we are determined to remain French. France provokes no one, but she is resolved to remain a free France, come what may. I appreciate the work that has been done here to place France in shelter from sudden attack."

Doubtless great Paris newspapers controlled by the armament makers applauded this talk. But there may be Frenchmen who will read it in the light of last week's news that France is unable to balance her budget, that demands upon the treasury (75 per cent. of them for or because of armaments) call for heavier taxation. They may reflect, too, that all the fortifications on the Franco-German border did not shelter France from sudden attack, nor all the glitter of her brilliant army staff.

Yet it is in this way that nations have begun to talk—and act—throughout most of the world. With the World Disarmament Conference upon which such high hopes were pinned in tragic adjournment, there has come a shocking surge of the attitude which prevailed before 1914. Japan, France, the United States and Britain—all are building more armaments. Locarno and all the peace pacts of the past ten years have been strangely forgotton.

Some may say that these things are remote from Canada, that we needn't much worry about them. But in 1914 a certain Serbian town was remote from Canada, too.

MORE DEMANDS FOR AN INQUIRY.

Further evidence of the general dissatisfaction over the administration of the penal institutions of the country has been furnished by the action of the Social Service Council of Canada in passing a resolution urging the appointment of a non-partisan commission to conduct a thorough investigation into the whole system.

The Social Service Council as a matter of fact is so concerned over recent revelations that it has appointed a committee to wait upon the Dominion Government to press for the immediate appointment of an investigating body.

Nothing short of this will cause the rising tide of indignation to subside.

When such men as W. R. Givens, of Kingston, who is closely in touch with the whole situation, and Ven. Archdeacon Scott, the beloved war padre of the C.E.F., are moved to pen stirring demands for the reform of the penitentiary system and for the bringing to light of the truth in connection with these institutions, it is clear that the public has not been appeased by the issuing of a statement by General Ormond.

Ven. Archdeacon Scott's declaration that nothing but a Royal commission "will satisfy the natural desires of a roused and indignant public," is absolutely right, and it is to be hoped that now that Premier Bennett is back in Ottawa, he will be quick to sense the seriousness of the situation and to take steps to deal with it.

Public uneasiness over the glimpses that have been given of brutality in the treatment of prisoners demands that the truth must be revealed and the conditions remedied.

WELCOME, IRON SECONDS.

It is with genuine pride and satisfaction that this city welcomes to-night the veterans of the famous 2nd Battalion of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces who are holding a battalion re-union to-night.

The Iron Seconds will always occupy a warm corner in the hearts of the people of this community as long as the great war is remembered, for it was as members of this crack unit of the first Canadian contingent that Peterborough's first infantry volunteers went to France, in fact the local quota made up the greater part of the original A Company of the 2nd Battalion, and many of them fought gloriously and died bravely in the battalion's initial blood bath at Ypres.

Throughout the war Peterborough officers and men continued to go forward to the 2nd Battalion, and from the days at Valcartier in the late summer of 1914, until the battalion was demobilized in 1919, there were always local men serving with the Iron Seconds, a condition that makes the battalion a part as it were of Peterborough and surely entitles this city to share in the group and to take pride in the traditions of this Eastern Ontario battalion, whose history is as illustrious as that of any unit in the Canadian army.

It is a fine thing that the former members of such a force should get together occasionally to live again in the past and to keep alive the memories of a great adventure. The Examiner hopes that their re-union here will be a joyous success and that there will be frequent opportunities to welcome the veterans of the 2nd to Peterborough.

THE PREMIER MAKES IT PLAIN.

The predictions that when Premier Bennett returned he would announce the launching of a scheme for national recovery in Canada somewhat along the lines of President Roosevelt's plan in the United States have been completely discredited by the Premier's Montreal speech.

On the night of his first day back in Canada Mr. Bennett made it clear that he did not believe that a plan of shorter work hours and higher pay could be successfully adopted in this country.

Canada, he intimated, was not a self-sufficient unit; she had built up a big industrial machine and therefore had to depend to a large extent upon export trade.

That being so, and the Dominion being freed to compete with the highly specialized, highly organized and highly efficient methods of production of the countries of the Orient and of Europe, Mr. Bennett declared that Canada could not hope to compete successfully in the world field if she increased the cost of production.

In short, the Prime Minister is convinced that it would be a mistake for this country to jeopardize her exporting position and therefore he has no intention of attempting to emulate the Roosevelt recovery plan.

Whether or not this decision will be popular, at least Mr. Bennett deserves credit for clearing the air by losing no time in setting his views before his fellow-countrymen.

SOME NRA REFLECTIONS.

The United States National Recovery Act reaches a crucial stage at the end of this week. For by next Monday, Labor Day, if the President's schemes have not fallen short of their objective, there will be six million people back at work who were out of employment, say, on March 4, when he assumed office.

When the administrators began their task we suggested that there was a certain similarity between what President Roosevelt is trying to do and what Stalin is trying to do in Soviet Russia. Both plans, we said, were gambles, and the odds are against success. In this statement we found ourselves backed up the other day by the New York Herald Tribune which declared that Mr. Roosevelt is trying to do in five weeks what Stalin set himself to do in five years. The main difference between the systems, which both countries are heroically struggling to put into effect, is that Russia has to build up industries from the bottom, and the United States has to reorganize and control an existing industrial system. The Herald Tribune thinks the American objective is the harder because the over-mechanized industrial system makes the control of production, prices and wages such a complex problem. There are so many conflicting interests. Added to that is Mr. Roosevelt's surrender to inflationists last May, the result being that wages will have to increase for everybody very quickly, else increased production will inevitably require a re-lowering of wages. Then the whole scheme would collapse. To say that the NRA is living over a volcano is not an exaggeration.

The "codification" of industry is supposed to be practically complete by next Saturday. After that comes the "policing" of industry to see that the bargains are kept.

Many interesting points will come to light within the next few weeks. Here, for instance, is something that will give General Johnson something to think about, and it is difficult to suggest how he can prevent it.

A New England manufacturer who signed the NRA schedule asked each of his employees how they intended to make use of the extra money that is being tacked onto their wages. A few replied that they would buy certain things they had wanted for some time, but the majority of the answers were along this line: "We intend to bank the extra money. We have had to draw on our savings, and we intend to build them up again to prepare for the rainy day which we were insufficiently prepared for four years ago. We spent too freely when we had it. We have learned the wisdom of thrift, and we are not going to spend as we did in the past."

That being so, and the Dominion being forced to mind. Working people cannot be blamed if they save now. Yet, it strikes at the very root of the President's idea. His slogan is: "Burn more and spend more." If the masses do not spend, what is to become of the increased production in the factories, if it is not sold as fast as it is turned out? Inevitably, it will mean that the factories will have to slow down again, reduce wages and discharge hands. Then they are back where they started.

General Johnson has complete control over factories and stores. They must do what he orders them to do, or else be squeezed out of business by means of a boycott. The General objects to the term boycott, which has an ugly sound, especially in the land of the free, but the program means exactly that, whatever name the administration chooses to call it. But neither he nor the President dare order the public not to put money in the bank. They can endeavor to educate them to spend so as to keep on earning. That fact is obvious. Human instincts of self-preservation will cause many to put money by, unless the government can find some method of limiting the amount which an individual can save. It is Utopian to imagine that the state can control individuals as it can an organization. This is going to be a real difficulty.—St. Thomas Times Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The attendance at the Canadian National Exhibition has been running ahead of last year's figures, another sign of a definite turn toward better conditions.

Judging from Mr. Bennett's Montreal speech, the blue eagle is not likely to be adopted as Canada's national bird.

The expected Winnipeg street railway strike has been averted for the time being. It is to be hoped that calmer counsel will ultimately prevail.

A sugar-cane crop has been grown at Bannerman, Manitoba, which puts the prairies right into the tropical class.

The Farmers Sun issues the warning that half-baked candidates will destroy the C.C.F., which prompts the Brockville Recorder and Times to suggest that half-baked theories will also play their part in ruining the movement.

VACATION ESCAPADE

By ARTHUR SHUMWAY

CHAPTER 13.

"The man's waitin' in the library," Jasper said.

Sally went in. The man's back was turned toward her. He seemed to be bending down over Fred Proctor's desk. He heard Sally and straightened swiftly and whirled about. His expression was defiant, vicious; it changed when he saw the girl; it assumed a mixture of amusement, curiosity, scorn and lasciviousness.

He came forward slowly, lumberingly, a tall, thick-bodied man of about 40, dressed in a tan sport coat and striped flannel trousers. His short red hair gave the tone to his complexion.

"Well, hello," he said. His voice was hard, marked with a slur that Sally recognized as common to a certain class of roughnecks in Chicago.

"I'm Mr. Proctor's secretary," Sally said. "May I help you?"

The man cocked an eyebrow and thrust out his lower lip.

"Secretary?" he said, and laughed, a harsh annoying laugh.

Sally glared at him, not knowing whether to speak or hold her tongue.

"Well, that's fine," he said. "Secretary. Sure, you can help me. When's Proctor coming back?"

"We expect him sometime before evening. But it's not very definite. He left this morning just before lunch and said he would be gone for some time."

"Gone for some time, eh?" the man repeated. "Huh!" This was a little chortle, more of a bark. "Well, that's swell."

"Do you want to leave any message for him?"

The man scratched his blunt, chin with a stubby forefinger and looked steadily, insolently at Sally.

"Yeah, you can take a message all right. Tell him Mike Collins dropped in and wanted to talk to him."

"Shall I say you'll return?"

Mike Collins chortled again. "Yeah, you can tell him that. Tell him I said I'd come back and see him."

"What time shall I say?"

"Never mind about the time. Just tell him I'll come back. That's all."

"Very well, I shall," Sally said coolly.

Mike Collins looked at her again. His wide mouth began to curl downward in a cynical grin. "Okay, sister," he said. "I won't forget you."

He walked out in a soft rocking gait.

Sally called Jasper. "When and where did he come from?" she asked.

Jasper smiled sheepishly.

"Ah dunno, ma'm. He—he's a care."

"He is that," she agreed drily. "Have you ever seen him before, Jasper?"

"No, ma'm, ah haven't." Jasper stood scratching his head vaguely.

"All right," she said.

She went to Proctor's desk and looked to see what Mike Collins might have been snooping into when she came, but she could see nothing out of place.

Fred Proctor was back for dinner. "A man called to see you," Sally told him. "He said his name was Mike Collins."

Proctor whirled and looked at her through half-hooded eyes, his mouth drawn tight. "Oh," he said crisply. "So?" "Did he leave any message?"

"He said he was coming back."

Proctor smiled, not at all pleasantly. Sally could see a cold menace in his face. "Very interesting."

"He was looking at your desk when I came in."

Proctor nodded slowly. "He would be," he said, pursing his lips. Then he smiled. "How did you find the roadster?"

"Oh, I loved it! When I make my first million that's the first thing I'm going to have."

"Why wait?" Proctor said enigmatically as Jasper came in to announce dinner.

That night Sally did not try to slip over to Town to see Ted, she felt that she had taken chances enough and had accomplished all that was necessary for one day. She was determined of one thing, however, and that was that she intended to see what was in that gray ledger that Proctor had concealed from her. She never had seen it in any of the business effects of the house and she felt that there was something suspicious about the way he had closed it and leaned over it the night before. It might have been that book that Mike Collins sought in the desk.

"Would you like to play some backgammon?" Proctor asked her after dinner.

"Of course. I'm going to bed early tonight."

"Yes? Well I'm going to have to stay about the house tonight myself."

They played for two hours before Sally sat back and announced that she would go to bed. Proctor made no objection. He followed her smilingly to the stairs and watched her go up. She undressed and lay down to read for a while, her door unlocked this time. Every half hour or so she went to it and listened.

It was a long wait until the house seemed quiet. She looked at her watch. Twelve-forty-two. Better wait a little longer to be sure, she told herself.

Sally got up and turned off the light. She lay a while longer, waiting. Then she went to the window, looked down and listened. The sand below the first floor windows showed no reflection of light from the back part of the house. She tiptoed to her door and looked up and down the dimly lighted hall. All doors were closed and there was no sound. So she crept out and in four quick steps was at the top of the stairs, pressed back flat against the wall.

At the bottom of the stairs she stood up and flattening herself against the wall began making her way toward the library. She planned to enter it by the second door down the hall. This would bring her almost beside the desk and it would be easy to make a quick search.

Step by step, she edged back, stopping always to listen. All she could hear was the insanely cheerful ticking of a big clock somewhere in the darkness.

She was almost to the library when she heard a sound that sent ice-water into her veins. It was the doorbell. For a second she could not move. The doorbell rang again, insistently. Sally groped about and on the opposite wall felt the knob of a door. She opened the door and slipped inside. What she had entered seemed to be a small closet. Leaving the door slightly ajar, she listened and peered out into the darkness. Someone was in that dark lower hall where she had been crouching a moment before; she knew that. Someone spoke.

"Come in!" The words were spoken loudly in a familiar voice—that of Fred Proctor. They were followed by the click of a light-switch, yet the hall remained dark.

Sally heard the knob of the front door turn and saw light come streaming in from the little stone porch. A big man stood in that light, blinking, his right hand in his right coat pocket.

"Walk right in. It isn't a plant. I just wanted to see that you were alone," Fred Proctor said. Another switch clicked and Sally could see him standing in the front door of the library, down the hall, near the front door of the house. He had a revolver in his hand, and as the big man stepped in, he pocketed the gun, but allowed his hand to remain in the pocket.

The big man came forward blinking. Sally recognized him as Mike Collins, the insolent visitor of that afternoon.

"Well, dropping in at all hours, eh, Mike?" Proctor said with that deadly pleasantness she often heard from him when something about the house annoyed him.

"Howya, Proctor," Mike Collins said. He followed Proctor into the library. Evidently Proctor had been sitting up in the darkness waiting for him. It was only then that Sally realized how fortunate it was that the doorbell had frightened her before she had been able to slip into the library. She might have been shot.

She listened carefully but could hear only the rhythm of their conversation, which was quick and steady, and an occasional loud, harsh word. Then she heard Mike Collins say, "So you won't listen to reason, eh?" And heard Proctor answer him: "No, and you know what you can do, you big, red-headed, yellow-bellied lunk-head. Get out of here." Mike Collins said, "Yeah?" Proctor repeated, "Yeah! Get out of here while you're in one piece—and don't poke your nose within a mile of here again or I'll be sniffing lilies."

She heard Mike Collins stride out of the room to the front door, heard Fred Proctor follow him. "Okay, Proctor," Collins said at the door. "I'll be seein' you."

"That's what you think," said Proctor with that cold mirth in his voice. The door opened and closed. Sally heard Proctor turn off the light in the library, then start upstairs. At the head of the stairs he turned off the lights in the hall.

She crept from the closet and listened by the stairs until she heard him enter his room and shut the door. Then, deciding it was a case of now or never, she raced up the steps on her toes and hurried to her room. She opened the door and was starting in when she heard a movement and saw something dark loom up. She jumped back and screamed. A door clicked down the hall. Something bumped about in her room. Fred Proctor's voice shouted: "What's up?" She turned and saw him coming, gun in hand.

"A man—in my room," Sally gasped.

Fred Proctor threw open the door and raised his revolver.

"Come out of there or I'll let you have it," he commanded.

There was no sound. He reached in and snapped the light-switch by the door. There was no one in the room. But the window was open wide and the curtain was pulled awry. Proctor ran to the window and looked out.

"He got away," he said.

Sally nodded. Life in this house was getting more and more nerve-wracking.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

CANADA'S "WESTMINSTER ABBEY"

On this date in 1750, the first sermon was preached in St. Paul's Church, Halifax. The oldest place of worship of any communion other than the Roman Catholic Church it was erected on the Parade, at the expense of the crown by grants from his majesty for that purpose and also by moneys granted to his majesty by the province for the use of government. The pine and oak of which it was built were brought from Boston, then, of course, British, and it was designed to be a replica of the famous Marylebone Church in London. The cost is reported to have been £1,000.

The first sermon was preached by Rev. William Tutty, who, with Rev. William Anwyl (spelled Anwell in the first register of settlers) had been selected as the first missionaries to Halifax. The latter had served as a chaplain in the navy and held the first service at Halifax on June 21, 1749, the day of the founding of the city. Mr. Tutty did not have a high opinion of the people he found at Halifax. He described the lower sort as "a set of abandoned wretches so deeply sunk into all kinds of immorality that they scarce retain the shadow of religion:" while, as to those who came from New England, "they make great pretensions to religion, and having ye form of godliness would be thought not to contradict ye power of it in their actions. But men of open and undisguised sincerity can easily see thro' the falsehood of their pretensions, and though they are scandalized at the barefaced immorality of too many among the settlers from the mother country, yet it is to be feared that ye externals of religion are more prevalent among them than the essence of it; their notorious prevarication, to mention no other instance, which apears in all their commercial dealings, is an evident proof of this melancholy fact." Like St. Paul, another great missionary, he found that "all men are liars!"

I would like to reproduce from Canon Vernon's "The Church in the New Dominion" a description of the historic Communion plate, the gift of royalty; but there is a much more interesting feature dealing with church music that is too good not to mention. The first organ at St. Paul's was installed in 1762, with Hon. Richard Bulkely as organist. The second, in a splendid mahogany case, was purchased at the sale of the cargo of a Spanish prize ship brought by a British man-of-war to Halifax. It passed from St. Paul's to Trinity church, Halifax, from which it was purchased by St. John the Baptist church, North Sydney, where it is still in use. In 1767 an organist was apointed at a salary of £50 a year, and an assessment to pay for the organ and organist's salary, "nothing but gold or silver to be taken," was held on December 7 the same year. In 1769 an oratorio (the first in Canada) was performed for the benefit of the church. That apparently started something; the organist was ahead of his time; for we read that in 1770 the congregation passed the following resolutions:—

"That whereas the anthems sung by the clerk and others in the gallery during divine service have not answered the intention of raising the devotion of the congregation to the Honor and Glory of God, inasmuch as the major part of the congregation do not understand the words or the music and cannot join therein. Therefore, for the future, the clerk have such express orders not to sing any such anthems, or leave his seat without direction and leave first obtained from Rev. Mr. Breynton.

"That whereas the organist discovers a light mind in the sacred tunes he plays, called Voluntaries, to the great offence of this congregation, and tending to disturb rather than promote true devotion. Therefore he be directed for the future to make choice of such tunes as are solemn and fitting to to divine worship in such his voluntaries, and that he also for the future be directed to play the Psalm tunes in a plain, familiar matter without unnecessary graces."

If a church organist of to-day got a rebuke like that the church would soon be looking for another organist; but in Halifax, in those days, musical jobs were scarce, and the poor musician took his medicine like a man!

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterborough's Leading Handwriting Analyst for the Readers of The Examiner.

Madeline Helen Lynch,
29 Victoria Ave., City.

Your writing shows that you have a rather nervous disposition. The very fact that you were writing your name for delineation made you afraid of what you might be told. Let me assure you that you need have no fear on that score unless it is because you are so versatile that people do not understand you. Kindness means more to you than money, and often you do not like to express your views because you are afraid that you will be laughed at. You are apt to work too hard and sacrifice your health, this of course keeps you in a state of unrest. So long as you know you are giving your best, try not to worry. You love music and fine arts, but you are short on patience and resent being told your faults. You are very intellectual and generous. You need a mental vacation. You are apt to be fickle where the opposite sex is concerned. You are also inclined to be a spendthrift. Your lucky number is 9, best day Sunday. January and October are your most fortunate months. Housekeeping is your best talent.

Marion Curtis,
50 River Road, City.

The characteristics as portrayed in your sample for analysis represent neatness of person, and a mind keen and concise as to detail and routine. You possess excellent ability as office worker, but there is a tendency to crowd thoughts. You are evidently afraid to express your own views for fear of ridicule, but you need not be, for all your views are highly intelligent and worthy of note. Your particularly long flowing strokes combined to the capital letter formations, reveal dramatic ability or, in other words, a desire for self expression. You should do exceptionally well in that line because of your ability for accuracy, intricate detail, and power to deliberate. You have keen perceptions and seem to know how to command a situation, no matter how difficult, at a moments notice. In an emergency, you call forth your energetic resources and work enthusiastically. You are slow to anger but you are acutely hurt by ridicule.

Winnifred E. Campbell,
243 Park St., City.

The handwriting as indited on your sample for analysis expresses a neatness of person, a desire to be noticed and a reticence in personal affairs, a love for music and a repulsion for anything of a vulgar nature. You inspire refinement and confidence. Yet, you should not have to engage in work where detail is necessary. No doubt you would do your utmost to please, but the duty would become irksome. Your type is characteristic of music, laughter, bright lights and love. I do not mean that you crave any of these attributes above all else, but that your nature really needs them in order to develop your personality. As a hostess, you would be charming, and if you play bridge, you would win or lose without a murmur. As a correspondent, I do not think you endeavour to supply the demand requested of you. Yet, you like to receive letters. Your mind is retentive and you have the power of visualization.

J. MacIntyre,
Round Lake, Ont.

The handwriting as symbolized on your sample for analysis tells of an over anxiousness to come first. You rush ahead without pausing to think, and therefore, make many unnecessary mistakes. The surprising part of your make-up is that you really do possess exceptional will power and driving force, but somehow it is either misdirected or you do not know just which line of endeavour would bring you the best monetary results and enable you to use the power to advantage. Certainly routine and detail are not meant for one of your hasty nature. You think too quickly and, more often than not, your conclusions are 'wrong.' Now, if this energetic tendency were directed in the right channel, you could gain notoriety through your rapidity. There is selling ability and a degree of attractiveness in person. You would find inspiration among congenial friends or a class where all of your own age were determined to make the most of their lives, through knowledge gained. You are not lacking in definite powers so 'make the most of them.'

Miss Grace Cook,
Grand View Hotel, Port Stanton, Ontario.

Your handwriting implicitly portrays an aptitude for pleasant natured refinement. You prefer to act on your own initiative and very seldom suffer from lack of good judgment. You demonstrate a spirit of independence and loyalty. You believe one should be allowed to use one's own discretion in matters of religion. Your beliefs are meted out according to a strict code of honour. You are wise and quite an authority on historical events. If you do not already appreciate this fact, it will be worthy of sincere consideration in the future, because your brain is retentive and should carry facts and dates with ease. You are cognitive of your powers and do not expect to receive flattery. Yet you are not adverse to heaping a little on the head of someone who has pleased you by diligent labor. You could use a great deal of driving force, but prefer to reserve that for unworthy 'subjects.'

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

AT THE CAPITOL

"SOLDIERS OF THE KING."

Manager Stewart of the Capitol Theatre announces the showing on Labor Day and Tuesday of "Soldiers of the King," in which Cicely Courtneidge, England's wonderful queen of comedy and Edward Everett Horton, Hollywood's leading exponent of light comedy are co-starred. "Soldiers of the King" is being hailed both in Canada and England as the funniest comedy burlesque ever produced. The engagment at the Capitol Theatre will be one of the earliest Canadian openings.

Followers of Jack Hulbert, the peerless screen comedian of "Sunshine Susie" and "Jack's The Boy" will be interested to know that Cicely Courtneidge is Mrs. Jack Hulbert in private life. Jack Hulbert wrote the screen story of "Soldiers of the King" in which his wife, Cicely Courtneidge, is achieving such a sensational success. Mr. and Mrs. Hulbert were co-starred in "Jack's the Boy" recently.

The question of whether Jack Hulbert is as funny as his wife, or vice versa, will be argued by local moviegoers, but after seeing "Soldiers of the King" all will agree that the Hulberts are the screen's most talented family and share honors as the King and Queen of comedy.

"Soldiers of the King" is proving such a sensational success in other Canadian cities that Manager Stewart urges local patrons to attend matinee and early evening showings and avoid the late crowds.

The propagation of pure stocks of either varieties or strains of field roots can be accomplished only by employing some method of isolation. The necessity for such isolation arises from the fact that the commonly grown kinds of field roots cross readily with closely allied plants of the same and, in some cases, different species.

There are also some substantial summer houses in which simplicity is courted even to the verge of crudity.

* * * * * * *

Those who enjoyed summering in cottages of this sort and are considering furnishing some place of their own next summer, should keep in mind the ingenious devices they have seen, for they may prove helpful.

* * * * * * *

The ideas presented are fascinating in their development, and have proven practical

* * * * * * *

To suit the decoration to the dwelling, and instil artistic touches through simplicity requires an appreciation of beauty in nature and a power to convert natural elements into ornamental accessories and furnishings

* * * * * * *

In the old settler days it was by virtue of necessity that beauty was wrested from things which were at hand. Today no such necessity stalks so it is the pleasure of exercising one's own ingenuity, or the business of the trained decorator to devise unusual ways and means, to produce these effects.

* * * * * * *

The quick eye of one trained camper discovered a good use for small bent branches He converted them into door handles in lieu of knobs. He selected small bent branches which formed acute or right angles.

* * * * * * *

The ends of each naturally bent branch he sawed so that they would fit against the door and then screwed the wood down to it. Some of the handles, of course, were larger than others, none of them being duplicates in shape nor had the precise angle of others.

* * * * * * *

It was party this variety which made them intriguing. All were of sufficiently smooth bark to remain in their natural state and be congenial to the hand.

* * * * * * *

Before leaving the subject of branches in decoration, let me tell you of a very old little bedside stand which is really lovely. A small tree trunk forms the standard and the legs consist of four branches which all separate from the trunk at the same place.

* * * * * * *

It must have been with great joy that the maker espied this tree with its four forking branches, or with what pleasure he watched the sapling grow until it was just the right size to be used for the table.

* * * * * * *

The top is a cross section of another,, and somewhat larger tree trunk. This table was made long years ago, by Plymouth settler folk

* * * * * * *

A modern ingenious use of white birch saplings is found in one country farm house decorated in old-time simplicity. Each window in the living room and also the dining room has one straight white birch sapling for a curtain rod.

* * * * * * *

The curtain rings are small cross sections of birch trees with the centres hollowed out and smoothed.

Mr. Sheridan and daughter, Miss Marjory of Newmarket, are visiting with his daughter, Mrs. Samuel Carew.

The many friends of Miss Phyllis Moore are very sorry to learn of her serious accident which occurred on Monday evening when she was among the young people from Smith who motored up by truck to play ball with the young people at Orange Corners. She was taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herb. Jackson, and Dr. G. N. Earle of Omemee was rushed to the house, and would not have Miss Moore moved for some days.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WAS IT A BAD OPENING BID?

UNFAMILIARITY with sound principles frequently causes a player to praise a lucky outcome of a dangerous experiment without reason, or to censure an unfortunate result of a perfectly sound proceeding. This is unfair and unwise. The following deal caused one of the players to be seriously blamed for what he was warmly praised only a few hands later.

	♠8 4 ♥9 5 2 ♦A K J 4 ♣Q J 8 7
♠A J 9 7 5 3 2 ♥10 ♦Q 10 8 ♣K 5		♠K Q 10 6 ♥A Q 6 4 3 ♦6 5 ♣10 3
	♠None ♥K J 8 7 ♦9 7 3 2 ♣A 9 6 4 2

North-West-East-South

Neither side was vulnerable and neither had a part game score, when East made a fourth-hand opening bid of 1-Heart, upon 2½ quick tricks and great strength in both major suits, so that ordinarily only utter weakness of partner and a freak distribution only could enable opponents to go game in a minor make. East was correct in his judgment that she should open contracting.

Bidding continued as follows: South, 2-Clubs; West, 3-Spades; North, 4-Diamonds, which was a fine strategic declaration, as he intended to later support strongly his partner's suit, in the meanwhile showing partner his side strength, and at the same time leading opponents to think that the North and South hands did not fit well. East bid 4-Spades; South and West passed; North shifted to 5-Clubs, which West doubled. That ended the bidding.

West led his lone heart. East's Ace won the first trick, and West ruffed a return lead of hearts, but that is as far as they ever went toward defeating the contract.

West led his Ace of spades, thinking it better to make certain of setting the contract at least a trick, rather than trust his partner for a high spade, which might mean another ruff by West. Of course the declarer trumped the spade. Then to West's disgust, the declarer led his Ace of trumps, picking up the bare K of clubs. The declarer had noted that West ruffed with the 5, thereby denying having the missing 3. If West had the K-10 it would make no difference how the trumps were led If West held the lone K the declarer wanted to capture it. He had his wish. The next thing was to try the finesse of diamonds, and the J won. The Q of clubs picked up East's 10. A heart led through East held the trick with dummy's 9. The declarer ruffed a spade. Diamonds dropped in two more leads, and the declarer spread his hand. He had won his 5-odd doubled, and West blamed his partner for having opened the bidding.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

THERE'S NO place to hide in the new fall clothes. If you've seen any of 'em as yet, you've probably figured that out for yourself. Slinky satins, which comprise the greater part of the new fall display, require slender hiplines. And because of the revealing outlines of these gowns, you can't conceal any bulges of fat beneath them. You must either get your hips into proper line, or swallow your pride and step around with a far from attractive figure. For the stylists will give you no help at all this season.

Women who lead more or less sedentary lives are the ones who usually complain most about a spreading of the hips. Such girls often write and ask me if I think it necessary for them to wear girdles in order to keep their hips from becoming as broad as a barn door. And I usually reply that I don't consider it a necessity, but I do consider it a help.

A girdle really isn't an absolute necessity for preventing the hips of a sedentary individual from spreading. It's a great help, of course, because it molds the hipline and supports the muscles in the area it covers. But exercise is just as important. If you allow the muscles to become relaxed, your hips will naturally spread. If you go to a good corsetiere, she can probably provide you with a girdle that is not only well-fitted, but comfortable as well. But don't think that your hipline is safe just because you've procured the girdle. For you must exercise properly as well. The following exercises are especially excellent for keeping the hipline firm and slender:

Lie flat on your back on the floor, arms at the sides and palms flat against the floor. Then swing your legs up over your head, and try to touch the floor behind you with your toes. Return to first position, and repeat.

Lie flat on the floor, arms extended sideward at shoulder level. Then bring your right leg up, cross it over your left, and try to touch your left hand with your right toe Relax and repeat, trying to touch your right hand with your left toe.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Mouth Wash

Miriam: A good mouth wash can be made by dissolving one-fourth teaspoon of borax, one-fourth teaspoon salt, and onefourth teaspoon of peroxide in a glass of warm water.

Astringent

Bebe: The astringent you refer to is composed of equal parts of rosewater, glycerine and witch hazel. If it proves too drying, reduce the amount of witch hazel used.

Finger Nails

Kate: Massage a bit of warmed olive oil into the base of each of your nails nightly before retiring. This will help to remedy their dry, brittle condition.

SKIN ERUPTIONS from contact with plants are common at this time of year. Plant eruptions are second only to ringworm eruption as a skin disease in the summer.

Dermatitis venenata, the specialists call it. Translated meaning "inflammation of the skin of plant origin."

The commonest offender is, of course, the primrose. I remember once trying to treat a patient who came to my office. She had an obstinate skin eruption and I called a dermatologist into consultation. Our combined efforts were unsuccessful in relieving her. Finally she wanted to know whether she could go to the Springs for treatment. We told her to go. When she had been at the resort for 24 hours the eruption cleared up. Then she telephoned and asked whether she had better come home. We said "Yes," and as soon as she got home the eruption returned. Then she went back to the Springs and the eruption again disappeared. She returned home and so did the eruption.

The dermatologist, therefore, decided to see her in her home surroundings. He found her bedroom windowsills lined with primroses. When these were removed she was as well at home as at the Springs.

Poison ivy, is of course, another common example of this sort of condition. But a large number of plants are being discovered to produce eruptions in sensitive persons. The sneeze plant (helenium) is a frequent offender in this way. As it may fill great fields or prairies, its potentiality for harm is considerable.

Dermatitis venenata is an occupational disease of florists. There is here a report of contact dermatitis in a florist from handling chrysanthemums—the leaves, not the flowers.

Here is another report of a vegetable merchant who sells oranges a great deal—putting them into bags for customers, sampling them in the wholesale market, etc. He also amused, or claimed to amuse, his children doing tricks with oranges, such as juggling and touching a lighted match to the spray of oil which resulted from squeezing the peel. For a year he had been bothered with small water blisters on the skin of his hands which itched intensely. He was found to be sensitive to orange peel, and when he wore gloves in handling the eruption left him.

It is easy to find out whether a person is sensitive to any plant by the patch test. Strap a patch of the leaf or flower to the skin with adhesive plaster. If an eruption occurs at that spot, the skin shows sensitiveness.

the streets at my approach, look me over as if I am the first official representative from Mars, surprise and astonishment written in large letters on their frank and open faces—and then they burst out laughing.

Smiles and Laughter

I wished Mr. Will Durant, who claimed once that no one ever smiles on the streets of Moscow, could come with me for a stoll up Tskerskoye Blvd. I don't doubt Mr. Duran't word. But then possibly they didn't have so good a circus in town on the occasion of his visit as they have to-day. At any rate they do smile now. What's more, they laugh out loud. And they do it so easily and with so little effort that they cannot have been without practice for a very long time, either. My personal observation upon landing in America is exactly the impression Mr. Durant said he received in Moscow. After one day on Broadway I am used to it. But the first hours in New York always leave me with the feeling that everybady is so deadly in earnest and is taking himself so confoundedly serious and that the women have such hard statuesque faces—or masks—that you feel as if you had landed in a camp full of deadly hostile natives.

Of course one may have a dislike for Russians as Russians and this eventuality I am afraid has a lot to do with certain unfavorable descriptions of the Soviet scene. Fortunately I have never been subject to xenophobia and I like the Russian people with or without Stalinism as I like the Americans and Canadians regardless of the fact who sits in Ottawa or Washington.

Less Hunger in Moscow

Ridicule or not, it's all in a day's work to a newspaper man and we'll take that stroll up Tskerskoye Blvd. even if we were to set all the Soviet blondines on the Red Square giggling and shaking their ample hips. In the first place it must be said that there are no starving women and children to be seen here, nor men either. As a matter of fact, I know that the Parisiennes would do a good deal of sniffing and jerking up their heads in disdain at the sight of so complete a disregard for the slender line. The garconne type is decidedly not in vogue in Moscow. Far from it. The line is very feminine, as it should be, by the way.

Yet there can be no doubt either that there are many people passing through hardships in so far as food is concerned in Moscow. I have met some of them and I will write of them in a following letter. But there is far less hunger in Moscow than there is in Berlin or in Warsaw. And far less suffering. Moreover there is hope here and inexhaustible enthusiasm, things which unfortunately are absolutely lacking in Germany.

My first day here was a free day, which also happened to be a Sunday. It was reported in the evening papers that more than a million people had sought the cool breezes of the countryside, one railway station handling alone 144,000 travellers before noon. At that you didn't notice any appreciable thinning of the crowds in the streets, in the parks and on those endless shady parkways with which wise town-planners blessed this city. Think of Broadway with a shady alley of green trees in the centre! And of the difference this would have made in the New Yorkese character!

Huge Building Projects

White duck and linen is the principal color you see, both for men and women. In the morning there was an extraordinary activity in the vegetable markets, huge, brand-new halls erected at regular intervals in this congested city. The congestion, by the way, is worse than ever. Building is going on everywhere. New apartment houses going up in all directions and two or there extra stories being put on top of old structures. But they still can't cope with the increase in population. One hundred thousand babies were born in Moscow alone last year.

This is the "dabiest, familiest" city I have ever seen, an English lady, wife of a British member of parliament, said to me this morning. I don't like the lady's phraseology, but somehow "babiest" and "familiest" express the show in the parks very adequately. There are tens of thousands of children these hot summer days, romping and playing. They look well. I didn't see a single anaemic child and I had a British social worker with me who was particularly interested in the subject. The children do come first here. Even if there is crowding at home—or even shortage of this or that kind of food, the children are sure of modern hygienic surroundings the better part of the day at school or in the kindergartens, where they can go practically from birth and where they get plenty of milk and wholesome food.

It is a delight to see them. I wish there could be a little more of the Russian system in those appalling slums of Paris and London with their grime and filth, where kindergartens are still so rare and where the future generation virtually grows up in the gutter.

You might call all this destruction of the family, but if you do you are simply talking through your hat, that's all!

At that, the Soviet country is no paradise as yet. Still, as I said, they are forging ahead. And they certainly know where they are going. The process may be halting and groping, many mistakes may be made, but it is upbuilding and not down-going. It does you good to see it and if you can forget for a moment the form of government they have here, even the most sanguine observer must be impressed.

The party enjoyed a picnic dinner and supper, and the hours of the afternoon passed merrily with games, races, boating and bathing.

The weather was ideal for a picnic. The only unhappy incident was the disappearance of the clothes of some of the bathers. After a vigorous search however most of the articles were recovered.

With last Sunday's services in the White Church at Rush Point, the Rev. Mr. Aikenhead and Mrs. Aikenhead and daughter, completed their series of eight Sundays of devotional exercises conducted here during their stay at their summer home at Round Lake.

On Sunday evening Mrs. Aikenhead spoke on "The Ideal Man," and the exceptionally large crowd present for the farewell services were most appreciative of the splendid address delivered by the speaker. It was with real regret that Rush Point friends bade adieu to Mr. and Mrs. Aikenhead and their daughter on Tuesday of this week, when the party closed their cottage and motored home to Toronto.

HOGS ADVANCE BUT CATTLE FALL

More Finished Cattle Could Have Been Absorbed on Market.

LIVESTOCK REVIEW.

TORONTO, Sept. 2.—(OP)—Runs on all classes of cattle on the Toronto Livestock market, with the exception of cattle, were heavier during the week. Hogs showed good gains in value but the price trend with slightly lower on cattle, calves and lambs.

More finished cattle of handyweights could have been absorbed. Export shipment for the week totalled 750 head. Weighty steers were draggy after export requirements had been filled. Exporters paid $3.25 to $4.50 for steers and a top load of heavies went on Monday at $5. Some rough steers sold at low as $2.50. Choice butcher cattle brought $4.40 to $4.65 with medium to good kinds at $3.75 to $4.25. Fed calves sold early in the week from $6.50 to $7.00 but eased up to close at $6.75 for tops. Butcher cows dropped 25 to 50 cents, closing $2.25 for tops. Canners brought $1 and cutters $1.25. Bologna bulls brought $2 with a few at $2.25. Bulls closed around $2.50 for best quality. Good milkers and springers sold unchanged at $45.00 to $50.00.

Trade was active in the calf division till Wednesday when prices took a drop of 50c cwt. Choice vealers sold up to $7 with a few at $7.50, but weakened to close at $6 to $6.50. Common vealers sold downward to $3. Grass calves sold mostly at $2.50 with some down to $2.

Hogs advanced 25 cwt. at the opening and held the gain throughout the week. Bacons closed at $6.40 to $6.50 f.o.b. at $6.65 to $6.75 off truck and at $6.90 to $7 off car. Bids were issued at lower levels for the weekend loadings.

Lambs opened steady at $6 for good ewes and wethers and held that level till Thursday when the market weakened to close at $5.00. There were some truck lambs unsold at the close. Culls and bucks sold from $4 to $5 cwt. Sheep were steady at $1 to $2.50 cwt. according to quality with some early sales of good, light ewes at $3.

CLERKS GAIN LEAGUE TITLE

Take 23-5 Game From Saints in One-sided Affair.

WILL PLAY PETHERICKS.

CAMPBELLFORD, September 2 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Swamping the Saints by a 23-5 count, the Clerks last evening won the Campbellford Town Softball League title, which will entitle them to compete with Petherick's Corners, winners of the Seymour East League, for the Glover Cup.

An off evening for the Saints proved the drawback to that otherwise fast aggregation. McComb on the rubber did not play his usual game, and let the Clerks get away with a lead of nine runs in the first innings. Nine innings in all were played, the Saints only counting in two of them. Two of their counts, however, were homers, Stuart and L. Bush doing the tricks.

Holmes in the box for the Clerks pitched splendid ball, having only twelve hits counted from his play. He registered two strike-outs.

The Clerks as winners are now schedu'ed to play the Outlaws two out of three games before they meet the township boys in cup play.

The teams:

Clerks —Hendy cf, MacArthur c, Campney ss, E. Bush 2b, Spicer 1f, Holmes p, Upton 3b, Reynolds rf, Gillespie 1b.

Saints — Owens c, Hopping ss, Meyers 1b, Whitton cf, Stuart 3b, DeCarroll 2b, McComb p, Little lf, L. Bush rf.

Umpires—Plate, C. Massie; bases, H. Tinney, J. Scanlan.

Score by innings:

Clerks	900 535 10x—23
Saints	003 002 000— 5

ANSWERS STATEMENT OF W. SMYTH

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir:—In answer to the statement of Mr. Smyth in The Examiner, I think it is very unfair that Mr. Holland should be the only one attacked through the Press, as Mr. Holland is backed to the fullest extent by the members of the Committee and by the members individually and in a body of the Federation in whatever he does or states and that he has received blanket authority to act as he sees fit in the welfare and interests of the Federation.

The same authority was received three or four times, (the last time being on August 23), by the whole membership. In regards to Mr. Smyth's objection to Mr. Holland calling him a "stool pigeon" I might state that the executive committee, and the members of the Federation are heartily in accord with C. W. Holland's statement that Mr. Smyth was no more or less a "stool pigeon" in the full sense of the word.

I would also like to see Mr. Smyth answer the following questions through this column:

(1) At what regular meeting was he appointed secretary? Was he not asked to accept the secretaryship 'pro tem' until Mr. Laws considered taking same position?

(2) Does Mr. Smyth know what a stool pigeon is?

(3) Does Mr. Smyth consider that running to certain political aspirants' offices and reporting all that happened at U.W.F. meetings not an act of stool pigeons?

(4) When did Mr. Asling report that there were 768 members of the U.W.F.?

(5) Can Mr. Smyth prove that there are not 768 members? Ask a lawyer if in doubt.

(6) When, if at any time, has President C. W. Holland acted in a dictatorial manner? Does not a president assume full control of meetings in any organization?

Does Mr. Smyth, the staunch Conservative supporter, who can get 1,000 Conservative votes from our organization for a Conservative member recollect "seconding" the following motions?: "That the members of the Fraternity should affiliate with the C.C.F. with a view to forming a C.C.F. Club in Peterborough, as it was felt that the C.C.F. movement was the only organization, capable of producing a political weapon, whereunder the social standards of all workers should not only be maintained, but greatly improved."

(8) Would Mr. Smyth like to deny seconding said motion written in his own handwriting?

(9) Did Mr. Smyth not also move a motion in regards to delegation going to C.C.F. headquarters in regard to said affiliation?

(10) Did Mr. Smyth think the C.C.F. party at that time entitled to his support and the turning down of "Conservatism" when he moved one motion and seconded another in regards to the C.C.F.

(11) Does this show that Mr. Smyth can change his mind the same as he states C. W. Holland has done?

(12) Did not Mr. Smyth support President C. W Holland (when he so called "turned on certain members")?

(13) As Mr. Smyth objected to Mr. Holland staking the funds of the U.W.F. in regard to challenge to Mr. Moore in the shape of an injunction, can Mr. Metheral or some of the Relief Officials explain how a man on relief can supply the funds for an injunction and the cost of a lawyer?

Mr. Smyth states that the U.W.F. under Holland's leadership is only a shadow of what it might have been. Does Mr. Smyth realize that a shadow even such as he describes it, strongly woven together with a mind to the same goal and loyal to their leader, is sometimes stronger and more substantial than a body of untrue members?

If Mr. Smyth can answer the above questions without the aid of some of his friends, I would like to see same.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for space and attention, I remain

Yours sincerely,
Morgan Asling,
Sec. of the U.W.F.

Weddings

BYAM—BEDSON.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 2 (Examiner Correspondence).—A very pretty early fall wedding was solemnized at St. John's (Norway) Church, Toronto, on Wednesday, August 31, at 7.30 p.m., when Kathleen Vera, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Bedson, of Toronto, became the bride of John Wesley Byam, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Byam, Millbrook, the Rev. Canon Baines-Reid officiating.

The chancel was attractive with seasonal blossoms, and the bride, who was given away by her father, was becomingly gowned in pale green moire silk, with close-fitting hat in a darker shade, and gloves, shoes and hose in a matching color. She carried a bouquet of Joanna Hill roses in a dainty shade of pink, with baby's breath and feathery green intermingled, and tied with a big bow of pink tulle.

The bride's sister, Miss Hazel Bedson, was her attendant and looked lovely in white organdie patterned in blue, her close-fitting hat being of a darker tint, and her arm bouquet of delphinium and baby's breath. Mr. Percy Forster, of Toronto, was the groomsman.

Following the ceremony at the church a reception was held at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wright, 188 Gainsboro Road, attended only by the immediate relatives and friends. Mrs. Bedson and Mrs. Byam received with the bride and groom, the former wearing Nile green silk crepe with corsage of pink roses, and the latter blue silk with white hat, gloves and shoes, and her corsage bouquet being also of Ophelia roses in blush pink shade.

A bouffet luncheon was served, the bride's table being very attractive in a color scheme of pink and white carried out with large white bell over the centre, from which pink and white fluted streamers were carried to the four corners of the table; tall pink candles burning in silver holders, and pierced silver containers for the pink blossoms used. The handsome three-story wedding-cake centred the table, and according to the time-honored custom the bride made the initial cut. The large living-room was also fragrant with late summer flowers, the varying shades of pink blending beautifully in the decorative scheme.

Later in the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Byam left by motor on their wedding trip to points north and west, and are expected in Millbrook next week for a short stay with the groom's parents before taking up their residence in Toronto.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point— Wheat, 64c to 65c; oats, 32c to 34c; barley, 39c to 41c; rye, 45c to 46c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

A total of 1,800 boxes of butter will have been exported to the United Kingdom before the end of the week, according to an announcement made here yesterday by the Board of Trade. This follows a trial shipment of 1,000 boxes made some time ago. With the local dairy and produce market butter prices practically at export level, exports can be expected from time to time, as Canada has a surplus. Montreal wholsale butter prices firmed slightly yesterday, closing at 17 7-8c to 18c per pound for No. 1 butter in cariots or less. This is 1-8c higher than Thursday. Receipts totalled 781 boxes.

General quotations on the cheese market was 9¾c to 9 7-8c a pound for Ontario and 9¼c to 9½c for Quebec, a gain of 1-8c to ¼c. A total of 5,872 boxes were offered for sale.

The egg market was firm. Graded shipments in cariots or less brought 21c to 23c a dozen for extras, 17c to 18c for firsts, and 14c to 15c for seconds. Offerings were 1,194 cases.

New Quebec potatoes in 80-pound bags remained unchanged at 80c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, September 2—Under the impetus of good export purchases, wheat prices moved fractionally higher in yesterday's preholiday session of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Closing quotations were ¾c to ⅞c over the previous finish.

Exporters picked up wheat quietly all morning and sales aggregated 750,000 to 1,000,000 bushels, with moderate activity at the Pacific Coast.

October option finished at 70⅝c, December at 72⅜c, and May at 77⅛c. Hedging sales did not appear to be quite so heavy yesterday, and with the good foreign demand in evidence a firm tone in prices was maintained:

Spot Loading Higher.

Lake freights from Port William to Montreal firmed up to 4 cents a bushel for spot loading, and the whole export situation reflected a steady improvement. Cables from Liverpool were firm and the English market closed ¼d higher to ¼d lower.

Heavy general rains in Western Canada which will hold up grain threshing and movement to market was a constructive factor and aided in creating friendly sentiment. All North American markets will be closed on Saturday and Monday, but Liverpool will operate as usual.

Cash grains trading was slow. Coarse grains showed gains at the close, but trading was featureless during the day.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Grains "marked time" in a desultory pre-holiday market yesterday which saw prices yielding fractionally.

Issuance of private crop reports indicating a sharply curtailed corn crop had only a momentary effect on trading. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's remarks warning farmers that inflation might prove harmful also was passed by without comment. Most of the business was of an "evening-up" character, and found traders unwilling to commit themselves with a triple holiday ahead.

Wheat Dull, Weak

Wheat closed dull and weak, although near the day's top levels, but ⅝c to ¾c below Thursday's finish. Corn easy and ¼c to ⅜c lower, oats unchanged to ⅛c down, rye ⅛c off to ⅜c up, and provisions with a mixed tone, ranging from 10c decline to 8c advance.

QUEST FOR LONG LOST TOWN RE-PICTURES JAMES BAY EPIC

and somewhere on Charlton Island built a "town of three houses in which he and his crew of the ship Menrietta Maria wintered. The town being called Charlestown in honor of His Sovereign Charles I."

But where was Charlestown situater on this island? Are there any evidences of the James occupation remaining at this time three centuries later?

Armed with a copy of Captain James' splendid journal of his Hudson Bay voyage of 1631-32 as well as collected data from frequenters of James Bay and Charlton Island, the writer with party proceeded late in August from Moosonee, northern terminus of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, by motor cruiser across eighty miles in a northeasterly course to Charlton Island.

Battered to Pieces

We found the Salt Lake inlet to correspond to the description given by James. At the entrance there was a bar over which one of our men had to help pull the boat with the rope. Yes, this was surely the bar that stopped James' ship from entering. In that long gone October, with snow and storm, James with his crew of 22 seamen labored vainly with anchors and capstan for days to pull the boat to safety within. There was the place the waves had battered the vessel almost to pieces, where the invaluable rudder was beaten off by the storm and lost, where finally James scuttled and sank his ship in order to save it from total destruction. It was near here, too, where the James men had "cast to sea" the poor dead gunner with the amputated leg whose body was in the spring washed up and given more honorable burial ashore.

We landed on the east side of Salt Lake. Exactly where beside this harbor Charlestown of "the three houses" was built by James will never be known, as the fragile built buildings were entirely burned down the day of James' departure on July 1, 1632, in the terrible conflagration that swept the island.

The location given by James read as follows: "It was amongst a tuft of trees under a south bank about a flight shot from the seaside, the warmest and convenientest place and nearest the ship withall."

Life of Privation

We pictured the life of these poor shipwrecked refugees, as they completed their little hamlet of wind ridden walls on this spot. The snows of early winter were already thick upon them; the food, instruments, implements and materials taken or salvaged from the ship were piled around the edge of each of the two inhabited houses. The other was for storage. Each had a fireplace in the centre. James said the cold was so extreme that everything froze within a yard of the fire, a pot of soup boinling on one side was frozen solid on the other. The oil and the vinegar froze. Even the clock and watch with London time for reckoning longitude (for James was an able geographer) were frozen. Their well dug by the shore froze up. Fortunately the everflowing spring which we located next day was found and was a Godsend to the miserable inmates.

Without fresh food and failing in their many searches for scurvy grass on the island, nearly all the crew were sick with scurvy. Finger joints became swollen like walnuts. Their gums became black and their teeth were falling out. Their surgeon ministered faithfully to the company.

Such was the dire distress suffered by the inhabitants of Charlestown, the first town in James Bay.

Turning from the site of Charlestown, we followed along the upper shore line of the island. We suddenly came to a patch of vegetation, a patch of wild green peas. Our well-thumbed James journal was consulted in order that this unlooked for item of evidence might have a significance. In the journal we read the words: "May 15 (1632) we fixed a little patch of ground bare of snow, and sowed some pease therein."

We felt almost as happily as if we were on Juan Fernandez looking up traces of Robinson Crusoe, hero of all boys' romances. We concluded that we had found and reaped some of the "pease" originally sown by James himself 301 years ago. He had sown but had not reaped for he had left the island six weeks after the sowing. If our conclusions were right this then was the place of the first farming of James Bay, a place worthy of being marked.

We looked long for the stone tombs of James' three men whom they buried on "Bar Hill" as he called it, to the east on an elevation. We found three cairns of granite boulders in almost a row, but regular as if placed there by human hand. Were these the coverings of the dead? Permission to excavate these has been requested from the Dominion lands board, Ottawa, by the writer, but as yet has not been granted.

Dedicated to Monarch

If these are the tombs of James' three men who died at Charlton Island, we stood then beside the ashes of William Cole, "the beloved carpenter" who built but never completed the pinnace which they hoped would take them home to Bristol, England. "Faithful even unto death." Here, too, rested the remains of John Wardon, "master of the ship's chief mate," whom they had buried one evening in May time "in the most Christian-like manner." The third sepulchre would be the ship's gunner who had met a fatal accident by having his leg broken by the windlass in the Fall. His body was taken from the sea ice in the spring and buried beside his comrades.

This Bar Hill of the three tombs upon which we stood had yet another distinguished significance; not only was it the first dedicated cemetery of James Bay, but it was the site of the royal cross erected by Captain James proclaiming sovereignty over the territories around about for his beloved king, Charles I.

FAMOUS ITALIAN FLIER PERISHES

to see the take-off and who had cheered De Pinedo as he stepped carefree into the plane stood white-faced as the charred body was carried to the navy's field hospital.

The plane, which was red with green and purple stripes encircling it, had been groomed for weeks by the flyer with the help of his technical adviser and backer, Ugo D'Annunzio, son of the famous poet, Gabriel D'Annunzio.

Well Equipped

With a smile the flyer, who had followed the skyways to thousands on thousands of miles to far corners of the earth, told of his "gadgets" shortly before the take-off. He had equipped the cockpit with a device which would sound a siren and slap water into his face if the plane got off its course while he was snatching 40 winks high above the Atlantic.

He also had five balloon kites with which to signal ships if the craft was forced down at sea, but his confident manner as he started the take-off indicated that bad luck was far from his mind.

D'Annunzio, speaking with white face and tears in his eyes, said after the crash:

"Of course, when you start to sway in a plane everyone knows that the farther you go the worse it gets. I thought sure he would cut the switch, but he had been here so long, he was determined to go.

"I think he still thought he could lift the load even though he had got off the runway."

By flying the 6,300 miles to Bagdad, De Pinedo had hoped to smash the long distance record of 5,653½ miles, set by Paul Codos and Maurice Rossi in a flight last month from New York to Rayak, Syria.

As he stepped into the plane, clad in an old gray Jersey and blue house slippers, his last words were:

"I shall try to do my best."

The judge gave him a choice of a $10 fine or two days in jail. He elected jail.

National Railways' right of way. In that portion of the northern section between the Mattawa River and the C.N.R. line and the main line of the C.P.R. to Heroy Bay, the season does not open until Oct. 20. North of the French River and Lake Nipigon to the C.P.R. line, the season is opened on Nov. 1, except on St. Joseph's Island, when it opens on Nov. 16. In all these district the hunting season for deer and moose closes on Nov. 25. South of the Mattawa and French Rivers, the season is from Nov. 5 to Nov. 20 inclusive, excepting in the southwestern and eastern counties.

Wild geese, wild ducks and Wilson snipe may be shot from Sept. 1 to Dec. 15, inclusive, in that portion of Ontario lying north and west of the French and Mattawa Rivers, and on the Georgian Bay. South of the two above rivers, excluding Georgian Bay, the season is from Sept. 15 to Dec. 10, inclusive.

Partridges and Pheasants.

No decision has yet been made officially as to the open season for partridges and pheasants. There is no open season on these birds unless so arranged by an Order in-Council. And no Order-in-Council has yet been passed. Last year there was considerable objection taken to the brief open season for pheasants in parts of South-western Ontario. And objections have been made recently to having any open season in some districts. Officials of the Department of Game and Fisheries are silent on the subject, while Hon. G. H. Challies, the Minister, merely states that there has been no decision made.

The regulations governing hunting are that no guide other than one who is licensed, may be employed; that a loaded gun may not be carried in a motor car or vehicle; that dogs may not be used for the hunting of deer or moose; and not for hunting of foxes without a permit. The limit to a day's hunting of wild ducks and geese is a bag of 15 a day, with a season's limit of 150 being put on ducks. Not more than one deer or moose is allowed to a license, and the shooting of a cow moose or moose calf is prohibited.

HOTSPURS BEAT ASTON VILLA

Favored Teams Win To-day's Starts in English Soccer Leagues.

THREE-CORNERED TIE.

LONDON Sept. 2.—(CP)—Portsmouth and Tottenham Hotspurs won English League First Division games today to move into a three-cornered tie with Leicester City for early season leadership. Leicester played a scoreless game with Manchester City.

Portsmouth won 3-0 from Huddersfield Town while Tottenham, playing their third game in the First Division, whipped mighty Aston Villa 3-2.

Most of the favored teams won today's starts. Chelsea downed Wolverhampton Wanderers 5-2 and Sunderland beat Stoke City 4-1 in high scoring fixtures. Arsenal, league champions, edged out a 2-1 win over Sheffield Wednesday while Everton, cup winners, were held to a 2-2 draw by Birmingham.

A 3-1 decision over Bradford while other leaders were losing gave Preston North End at least temporary leadership of the second division. The Point Millwall picked up when they played a scoreless tie with Bury was enough to bring them up into second place.

Scoring was high in the Third Division, Luton Town setting the pace with a 10-2 win over Torquay United in the Southern Division. Gillingham beat Reading 5-1 in the same section and there were two 5-0 scores in the Northern, Walsall taking Chester and Wrexham beating Mansfield Town by that score.

con sea wall, the huge waves scattering the big blocks like chips and inundating the waterfront six blocks inland to a depth of six feet.

Forces from Camp Columbia and Atares Castle and infantry and artillery units from Cabana fortress aided policemen in preserving order, and helped repair power lines.

The General Staff received reports from Tomatanzas, Gardenas, Sagua, Isabela, Cmaguey and other cities to the east of widespread property damage. Officials declined to make an estimate of the losses pending further checks.

How much territory was included was not determined early to-day, but the south coast port of Cienfugos suffered greatly, indicating that the width of the island was affected.

High waves and tides pounded on the north coast towns of Isabela de Sagua, 150 miles east of here in Santa Clara Province, where the hurricane first struck inland; Caibarien, and Varadero Beach.

Two Freighters Aground

Unverified reports said two freighters were grounded off Caibarien. The Tiscornia radio station received an SOS from the British freighter Josephine Grey, five miles off Cape Bahia de Cadiz in Camaguey Province, and was advised unidentified ships nearby by going to her rescue.

Shipping in Havana harbor almost entirely escaped damage. A fishing smack, one of hundreds moored there, capsized. The Mauretania with 775 passengers, reported she was off Cape San Antonio waiting storm advices and that she expected to make port to-day.

The National Observatory warned that danger still existed this morning for shipping off the Cuban north coast and in the Yucatan Straits.

The storm generally followed the northern coastline, covering practically the western half of the island. It was believed that the flight of thousands of inhabitants from seacoast homes to higher ground forestalled a greater death toll.

Many families fled from the recently built town of Santa Cruz del Sur. The old Santa Cruz was wiped out last November 9 by a tidal wave that took 2,500 lives.

Weddings

HAMILTON — DEANNARD

A pretty wedding took place quietly this morning at seven o'clock, at St. Peter's Cathedral, when Marjorie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Deannard of 175 Stewart street, became the bride of Mr. Harold Bertram Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Hamilton of 260 Rogers street. The Rev. J. T. Finn officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely frock of brown chiffon, with hat of brown crepe, brown slippers and gloves and flesh-colored hose. Her corsage bouquet was of roses and lily of the valley.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. John Roach, Junior, brother-in-law and sister of the bride. Mrs. Roach was in beige crepe, with brown satin hat, beige accessories and corsage bouquet of roses.

The wedding music was played by Miss Veronica Scollard, A.T.C.M. and Miss Phyllis Cowle sang very sweetly during the progress of the Nuptial Mass.

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, where decorations were carried out in white and yellow.

Later, Mr and Mrs. Hamilton left by motor for Chemong, where they will spend their honeymoon. On their return, they will reside at the Goodwill Apartments, Water street. The bride donned a knitted suit of dark red, for motoring.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a necklace with topaz cross, to the matron of honor a seed pearl bag, and to the best man a silver cigarette case.

Tied With Queen's Park For Leadership of First Division.

GLASGOW, Scotland, Sept. 2 C.P. Cable).—Motherwell at home trounced the mighty Rangers 2-1 in the feature clash of the Scottish Soccer League's first division today.

Kilmarnock, who were also right near the top of the heap, slipped back into a three-cornered tie with Aberdeen and Falkirk for fourth place, a point behind Rangers. Kilmarnock lost 4-1 to Hiberians, but Aberdeen and Falkirk both won their engagements.

Forfar Athletic kept in front of the race in the second division, though they were held to a 3-3 draw by King's Park on their own grounds.

Pearce Easily Outspeeds Phelps in Title Race

CHALLENGER FAR TOO POWERFUL AND IS WINNER BY QUARTER MILE

Opens Lead at Start and Steadily Lengthens By Tremendous Strokes.

45,000 WATCH RACE.

(By ELMER DUMAGE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO, Sept. 2, (CP)—Henry Robert (Bobby) Pearce, sculling's first wonder man since Ned Hanlan, held the world's championship for professionals to-day and with it the key to gold stores that only a Pearce can open. Big Bob from Australia routed Ted Phelps, defending champion, with a quarter-mile defeat here last night in their titular contest.

The great man of the amateurs, never extended since he came out of obscurity in 1928 to win his first Olympic championship, pulled out ahead of the pros with a triumphant sweep of his oars that left the whole sculling universe away behind.

Over a three-mile course laid inside the Lake Ontario breakwater off the Canadian National Exhibition, Pearce ran away from Phelps, making his third defence of the title he won in 1930. A crowd of 45,000 saw the spectacle. Bobby succeeded where his father, grizzled Harry Pearce of Sydney, failed seven times. Harry, a grand oarsman and responsible for Bob's development, was not present to see the prize finally landed by a Pearce.

Short Lead at Start

Far too powerful, too strong a foe for the lighter Phelps, Bobby drove his slender shell into a short lead in the first 25 yards, lengthened it steadily all the way down the mile stretch to the first turning point and made a one-man parade of he scheduled duel from there to the finish.

Pearce was timed in 19 minutes, 25.6 seconds. Phelps was 440 yards away from the gun when the Australian pulled up, smiled at the cheering thousands ashore and doused his face and neck with water. It was a minute and 20 seconds later when the grim Englishman, thoroughly exhausted, sent his craft over the line.

Phelps, using a short stroke that clipped the water at a rate of 32 to 34 to the minute, met defeat over the first mile. It was here Pearce tested the champion. Out in front in the early going as he likes to be, Bobby made the pace and watched to see how the Briton would respond.

There was never more than a whisper of a battle. Australian, twice Olympic champion, swept toward the first turn with a long 38-stroke that seemed to give his boat the maximum of speed with very little effort, Phelps could not keep up. That was all there was to it.

Develops Into Chase

After the first half mile it was a chase. The crowd that stretched from one end of the course to the other knew it. Unless Bobby broke an oar, he was in. And Bob didn't even bend his blade to keep ahead.

Phelps was soundly trounced at the end of the first mile. With one-third of the journey completed, Pearce had placed five lengths of open water between him and the Englishman. Then he broke Ted's heart.

Five lengths wasn't enough so Bob stepped up his stroke to 30 for 200 yards and widened the gap. Spectators gasped at the power of the giant Australian's stroke. At the mile and a half mark Bob held a margin of 10 lengths. It was 20 at the two-thirds turn.

Pearce has loafed home dozens of times in races in Canada and United States, content to win by a couple of safe boatlengths. But with Phelps obviously tiring rapidly, the big fellow drove home his shell at a terrific clip. He doubled his lead on the final leg and finished fresh.

Bob collected $5,000 for his victory. Phelps has not revealed his earnings.

TERRIERS PLAY TORONTO TEAM

Second Battle in O.B.A.A. Juvenile Semi-finals Here Labor Day.

LOCALS CONFIDENT.

The second game of the O.B.A.A. juvenile semi-finals will be staged in Stevenson Park here at three o'clock Monday (Labor Day). Peterborough Terriers will meet Toronto Lansdownes, T.A.B.A. champs, the first game being played in Toronto to-day. Winners of this ries enter the Ontario finals. This being the only game here Labor Day, a huge crowd is expected to attend.

Herb Ralph's local juveniles are confident they will advance into the finals. They eliminated Oshawa champions in the first round O.B.A.A. series and had a bye to the semi-finals. Terriers are a smart outfit of eighteen year old Peterboroug ball players. They show promise of future senior stars, and at present play ball which should be good enough to send them into the finals. Lefty Lesurf is the ace hurler and he will be seen in action against the classy Toronto winners of the large Association here in Monday's contest. Local teams have been fairly successful in recent years in eliminating Queen City outfits, but the latter are never set-ups. It looks like a fine game at tweny-five cents for adults and a dime for children.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Carl Hubbell and Fred Fitzsimmons, Giants—Pitched and batted the Giants to double victory over Braves.

Jimmy Foxx, Athletics—Hit 37th home run, triple and single against Senators.

Tom Oliver and Dusty Cooke, Red Sox—Hit single and triple, respectively, to drive in two runs in 12th in victory over Yanks.

LEAGUE LEADERS

(By the Canadian Press.)

Once again it is necessary to go to four decimal places to decide the batting leadership of the International League. Ike boon went into first place yesterday by 2/1000 per cent. when he got one hit in three times up while Julius Solters was going hitless in four tries. In the general shuffle yesterday Tucker of Buffalo went from a fourth place tie to third position and Moose Clabaugh dropped to sixth.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well Mac, excuse the tear stains on the paper but they has been dire doings since my last, Mister K. Lee and his Petes having been tossed into the discard this week by the pesky Kingston Ponies and visions of a championship has completely faded. In the final drive for the title the Ponies had the punch what was needed to nail the decision and they grabbed off the tieing and winning game by timely socking while the Petes, although getting a reasonable mess of hits, couldn't pour the pine when safeties meant runs. Both in Kingston Mon. and down in Napanee Wed. they was a flock of Peterborough base runners on the cushions practically all the time, but they most stayed there for lack of hits on which to ride home. The lads have been doing that kinda thing all season and it finally sunk them.

They had a royal chance to take the title when they copped the first game in Kingston but they tossed away the advantage by handing them the next game here. Then they took the lead by grabbing the 3rd battle and they came close to the championship when they tied the Ponies in Kingston. That was their last real bid and with any brakes at all they would of been the Central loop winners then and there. The Ponies, however, had the most punch left and with the Petes falling down in the pinches they was only 1 answer particularly as the Lee lads' defence wobbled badly in the final 2 games.

Well its been a great season. Mister Lee's athaletes give us a lotta nice baseball to look at over at Riverside this summer and they run the final serious out to 6 games before they finally was counted out, which considering their lack of offensive strength, was a mighty good showing. Senior baseball was put on its feet again here this year. A no. of good youngsters, which is bound to improve next year, was introduced and it is a sure bet the Petes will be in there next summer with a more formidable outfit.

My heroes of the play off serious is soon mentioned. 1st, a great big hand for Mister Ike Batten for his all round good playing all season and for the exhibition of gameness he give down at Napanee Wed. when after getting hit in the face with a ball in fielding practice and having the inside of his mouth so bady cut that 4 stitches were necessary to close the wound he played a bang up game. And next I'll pay tribute to Mister Bill Calladine for his steady and effective pitching in some 32 innings of the play off serious. The kid was the victim of a flock of bad brakes and sloppy defensive work but he battled all the way and with any luck should of copped more than the 1 win he's actually credited with.

Well, Mac, the big swim is over and once more Mister G. Young failed to go the distance even when his wife ordered him to stay in. George evidently aint taking no back seat driving. This Nelson guy must be a real swimmer and he's the 1st to cop the big money twice.

Oh, well, it will soon be time for rugby.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

GIANT HURLERS SUBDUE BRAVES IN DOUBLE BILL

Victories Increase Terry Squad's Lead and Drops Braves to Third Place.

HUBBELL SUPREME.

Pitchers Come Through in Both Games to Knock in Winning Runs.

(By Herbert W. Barker, A. P. Sports Writer)

The battle of Boston was crucial only to the Braves today. "Memphis Bill" Terry led a couple of pitching aces yesterday the Redskins couldn't trump, New York Giants swept both games of a doubleheader, increased their National League lead to seven games and dropped the Braves into third place, a single percentage point behind the revived Pittsburgh Pirates.

Trailing two victories to one now, the Braves needed to snare all three remaining games to make any appreciable slash in the Giants' heavy margin. Should the Giants win only one of these the relative standing of the two clubs would be just where it was when the series began.

Forty-eight thousand persons looked on with not a little pain as first Carl Hubbell, lean master of the screwball, and then Fred Fitzsimmons, portly right hander, stopped the Braves' spectacular rush which many Boston fans hoped would lead to just such another pennant as George Stallings' "Miracle Men" achieved in 1914.

Hubbell was supreme in the first game which the Giants finally captured in the 10th, 2-0. Hubbell allowed only four hits as he outpitched Fred Frankhouse by a wide margin and hung up his 20th victory and 10th shutout of the campaign. Except for one inning, Fitzsimmons was just as effective in the second game and the Terrymen romped away to a 5-3 triumph. The Giants' two pitching aces added insult to injury by driving in the winning run in each battle.

Hubbell, working as smoothly as he has all season, was in command of the situation all the way in the opener and would have had an easy triumph had his teammates discovered a scoring punch. Hubbell took thinks into his own hands in the 10th. Successive errors by Baxter Jordan and Rabbit Maranville put Gus Mancuso and Blondy Ryan on base with only one out and Hubbell slashed a single than sent the first run home. Ryan scored later on Joe Moore's long fly.

Fitzsimmons blanked the Braves wih two hits through the first seven frames of the nightcap while the Giants pounded away at southpaw Ed Brandt for single runs in the sixth, seventh and eighth. In the last half of the eighth, however, Boston tied it up on singles by Pinky Whitney, Shanty Hogan, Maranville and Bill Urbanski. Not a little put out by the loss of his three run lead, Fitzsimmons came to bat in the ninth with two men on and pumped a double into the overflow crowd in centre field that drove both of them home.

Pittsburgh, meanwhile, hung up its seventh successive triumph as Pie Traynor's single in the 11th broke up a great pitcher's duel between Larry French and Bill Hallahan and gave the Corsairs a 2-1 verdict over St. Louis Cardinals. Cincinnati Reds bunched six hits with eight walks to whip Chicago Cubs, 7-3.

In the only American League games, Boston Red Sox rallied for two runs in the 12th to beat New York Yankees, 4-2; and Jimmie Foxx hit his 37th homer as the Athletics trounced the league leading Washington Senators, 12-3.

ALEX. MORRISON says:

When the club begins to feel like a poker and you just can't get it to swing smoothly you might find that you're holding it too near the top of the grip.

If this is the case I'm sure you'll find that by taking a much shorter hold, that is, by lowering your hands so that you're gripping the club down near the lower end of the grip, you'll bring about a much more accurate swing.

This shorter grip is especially good for the playing of short approach shots.

Besides giving you better control over the club it also serves to increase your wrist action, thereby affording you better distance and direction in your shots with less effort.

FIGURES SHOW PONIES SUPERIOR TO PETES AT BAT AND IN FIELDING

League Batting Averages Gives Kingston a Team Percentage of .322.

KITCHEN LEADS HURLERS.

Kingston had an edge on the Petes in play throughout the season. The champions of the C.O.B.L. led in hitting, both in club batting and individually; they topped the locals in fielding; and, though Kitchen was the best pitcher in the loop, the Ponies had three twirlers in the first four. Tommy Foley, leading league hitter in 1932, finished this season in a tie for second place with Compeau, each getting a mark of .408. Vinny McQuaide of Kingston clouted the ball at a .427 clip to take batting honors for this year. The Petes had six players hit .300 or better.

The complete batting averages of all Central League players, besides the leads in pitching and fielding, follow. These averages include only players taking part in at least three league games, and do not include the playoffs:

In club batting, Kingston leads the way with a total average of .322; Peterborough is second with .278, and Belleville right behind with .275. Utronki and Foley led with singles, each getting 23; McQuaide had most doubles, 10; Foley topped the three-base hitters with 6; and McQuaide was the leading home-run hitter, with 3; McQuaide hit for a total of 54 bases, and Foley was next with 49.

The Ponies showed the way in club fielding by a scant margin over the Petes, getting .960 to the locals' .956, with Belleville trailing with a mark of .921. Peterborough had two infielders who led the league in their positions, for regular players, and one catcher. Fred Ash was easily the best fielding first-baseman with .996, and Ike Batten had a substantial lead at third with .978. Cack Rogers was the best catcher in this department with a perfect mark, 1.000. Whatley fielded .971.

Chambers of Belleville, in five games, led the second-basemen with 1,000; Weir trailing him closely with .980. Compeau had the best season at shortstop with .909, just eight better than Hollingsworth. A number of outfielders, including Burton, Foley and Graham of the Petes; Vince, McQuaide, G. Arneil and Clark, of the Ponies; and Utronki, Morgan, Mathews and Morris, of the Nats, had 1.000 in the outfield. Beavis was close behind with .925.

Jamieson, Calladine, Godfrey and Scriver—with the Petes for a time—fielded 1.000 off the mound, Kitchen having .952 and Deyell .909. The Petes were first in double-plays, getting ten to Kingston's nine and Belleville's eight. Hollingsworth, of the locals, figured in five; Ash, four, and Kitchen, Rose, Foley, Burton, Batten and Scully, one each. The Lee outfit had 147 men left on bases with the Ponies having 136 stranded and the Nats 117.

Big Russ Kitchen was the best twirler in the C.O.B.L. winning nine games and losing one, besides pitching a tie game. He pitched the most innings, 87, and fanned the most batters, 47, but also issued most bases on balls, 31. Jamieson of Kingston was second with seven wins and a loss. Kitchen was nicked for just 57 hits and 22 runs, and hit five batters for a percentage of .900 to Jamieson's .875. Fournier, Godfrey, Utronki, Deyell, Calladine, in that order, all pitched .500 or better ball. The Petes stole 39 bases, Hollingsworth and Beavis each pilfering eight. McQuaide was the loop's best base-stealer with 11. Peterborough drew the largest crowds all season; Kingston being next in this respect.

Several Desire Coach Senators

OTTAWA, Sept. 2 (CP) — Frank Ahearn, president of the Ottawa Hockey Club yesterday announced the first practice of the Senators would be held here Oct 16. In the meantime, a new coach will be picked to succeed Cy Dennenay, who retired after one year at the helm of the Senators.

Among the candidates for the job are George "Buck" Boucher, manager last year of the Boston Cubs and a former defenceman with Ottawa; George Hay, manager of the Detroit Olympics; and Harvey Pulford, a member of Ottawa's famous Silver Seven team.

Leafs Defeat Rochester 4-3 in Exciting Fixture.

MEET BUFFALO NEXT.

Newark Continues Winning Steak by Humbling Orioles.

(By Orio Robertson, A. P. Staff Writer)

With the opening of the 4-game series that is expected to settle the battle between Toronto and Buffalo for a position in the playoffs, only two days away, the Maple Leafs today held a 2½-game advantage over the Bisons. The series will open Monday in Toronto with a doubleheader. Single games will be played Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Maple Leafs, with 14 games to play, had broke even in their 154 contests while the Bisons had won 75 and dropped 80 with 13 to go.

While the Bisons were breaking even in a night doubleheader with Montreal Royals, the Maple Leafs took a close decision from Rochester 4-3. Buffalo won the opening contest 7-4 behind the effective pitching of the veteran right hander, Bill Gould, but the Royals pounded three Bison pitchers hard in the second game to win 15-12.

In defeating Rochester, Luke Hamlin turned in his 20th victory of year. The Wings got to him for nine hits but he was strong in the pinches. He also contributed a timely single that drove in the tying run in the sixth inning. Ira Smith was the losing pitcher and it was the first time he had lost a game to Toronto since Sept. 1, 1930 until yesterday, he turned back the Leafs 11 times.

Newark Bears won their 10th game in the last 11 starts in defeating Baltimore Orioles 8-3 in the first game of the series. Don Brennan held the Orioles to six scattered hits while his mates nicked Melton for 11.

COBOURG PLAYS DUNDAS.

SUSPENDED BALL PLAYER TESTS STRENGTH OF ATHLETIC UNION BY APPEALING TO CIVIL COURTS

Widespread Interest In 'Test' Case And Results To Be Far Reaching.

JUDGE DOUBTS RULE.

Suspended In One League Players Now Reported Playing In Another.

One—Suspended ball player . . . With amateur sports in Canada at the crossroads on the professionalism issue, which stares the coming A.A.U. of C. conclave in Winnipeg squarely in the face, wide interest throughout the Dominion is being manifested in the current McNulty test case in Toronto. The following articles gives the facts of the case and includes some hitherto unrevealed details; another instance of the "Man on the street" knowing more, apparently, than do the officials.

(By ARCHIBALD NEWMAN
Special to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Sept. 2.—Has the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada "of their own sweet will" the power to ban a player from taking part in amateur sports? Does it constitute the one and only supreme authority to declare a man a non-amateur, with all that that implies in the way of a slur on his character??

By what power does this union presume to label all players who leave its fold to play in other recognized leagues as "techincal professionals?"

And why have the Ottawa and District branch of the A.A.U. of C. winked their eye at allowing at least one player, suspended at the instance of the Toronto Amateur Baseball Association, to join the Perth, Ont., team under the jurisdiction of the Eastern Ontario A.B.A.?

These are the questions Canadian sportsmen are demanding an answer for, as a result of the "test case" involving Joe McNulty who hails from Hamilton, who is sueing the Ontario branch of the A.A.U. of C., alleging that their suspension of him from engaging in amateur sports is "illegal and void."

And it looks as though some doubt as to the status of the union exists in the mind at at least one eminent jurist.

At least that is what one must conclude from the statement Mr. Justice McEvoy made at Osgoode Hall when he expressed himself as having grave doubts as to the power of the union arbitrarily to declare a man a non-amateur "by their own sweet will" with no one having the right to question such action. Further, Mr. Justice McEvoy, an ardent sportsman in his student days, stated he did not wish to preside over future hearings, intimating that he had heard too much about the A.A.U. of C. and its conduct during the recent Taylor-Maple Leaf Garden litigation.

Serious Matter

With scores of independent leagues scattered across the length and breadth of Canada, involving hundreds of baseball, hockey, lacrosse, rugby and other players, it is a serious matter that one association, or group of associations, should attach to these independents the stigma of professionalism.

And what's even worse, according to the sponsors of the "test case," is that the A.A.U. of C. presumably thinks it's a matter of "le roi est le loi," in other words the union is a law unto itself, and takes upon itself the authority to say what is "to be or not to be" in other Canadian clubs, without so much as making any explanation of its actions.

For the only advice Joe McNulty and eleven of his colleagues were given that they had been suspended from participation in amateur baseball which means in the final analysis from all amateur sports sponsored by the A.A.U. of C. was the appearance in the daily press of news articles purporting to be obtained from "official" sources.

No explanation was given of the action of the T.A.B.A. in spite of the demand that McNulty made that he be given a definite reason for their action.

Second Judge Refused Continuance

Apart from the fact that McNulty was granted an interim injunction by Judge McEvoy which restrained officials of the A.A.U. of C. Ontario branch from preventing him in engaging in amateur baseball for a further week and also apart from the fact that the A.A.U. of C. has not yet passed on his suspension, the outlook for his participation in rugby and hockey this year looks dark. Immediately following the limit of the first injunction, a second judge, Mr. Justice Kerwin, refused application for continuance of the injunction. His lordship said he was satisfied that the A.A.U. of C. had every right to suspend McNulty.

In opposing the application Fred G. McBrien, M.P.P., stated that the case was playing havoc with amateur sport in Ontario, where 100,000 forms are being considered scraps of paper.

The story in a nutshell, as told to us by Garrett Frankland, secertary of the Toronto Senior Amateur Baseball League, is as follows: Joe McNulty, star baseball, rugby and hockey player, a certificated member of the T.A.B.A. in the beginning of the season joined the Easterns, a baseball team in Toronto owing allegiance to the T.A.B.A. Dissatisfied with the playing conditions obtaining under the T.A.B.A. he and eleven others, left their teams and joined the newly-formed Toronto Senior Amateur Baseball League, McNulty playing under the colors of the Danforth club. These players did not ask for, and so did not gain, a release from the T.A.B.A. with the result that that organization suspended them, and passed on the suspension recommendation to the Ontario Amateur Baseball Association. The latter body referred the matter to the Ontario branch of the A.A.U. of C., who likewise okayed the suspensions to the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada. No action has been taken by that body as yet.

All this was done with the utmost of secrecy. No reason was made public, and it is only by inference that the players believed that they have been suspended for joining the outlaw league.

On the other hand D. M. Finley, who appeared for the A.A.U. of C. before Judge McEvoy, in answer to the demand of McNulty's counsel, Frank Regan, that some explanation be given, charged that McNulty took money, a charge so serious that it is difficult to understand the attitude of the A.A.U. of C. in not giving the boys a chance to be heard, as is in line with all our ideas of British justice.

But the worst is yet to come.

After leaving the T.A.B.A., Bartello, one of the twelve players suspended, joined the "illegal" Toronto Senior Amateur Baseball League, and then left that organization to return to the fold of the A.A.U. of C. by signing up with the Perth club, which is a member club of the Eastern Ontario A.B.A., and hence under the jurisdiction of the Ottawa and District branch of the A.A.U. of C.

It seems hard to believe that the Ottawa and District branch are not aware of Bartello's presence on one of the teams under their command. They must know it, and if what's food for the goose is food for the gander, why do they permit it?

Is it because there is internal dissension among the divers branches of the A.A.U. of C.? Or has Bartello some particularly good stand in with the union?

"It really boils down to a straight fight between the T.A.B.A. and the Toronto Senior Amateur Baseball League!" Garrett Frankland declared. "If every one of the scores of legitimate amateur sports clubs in Canada, which don't happen to be affiliated with the A.A.U. of C. are going to be looked upon as technically speaking 'professional,' then what's this amateur business coming to? Do you realize that if they win out in this lawsuit they will have the liberty to commit any act they like, and no one will be allowed to make a protest or even demand an explanation?

"But the most scandalous piece of nonsense is in allowing Woodgate and Bartello to play on the Perth team, although they had been given to know that they were under suspension."

"Is Woodgate also playing on the Perth team? We have been told that Bartello is there, but didn't know about Woodgate?" we enquired.

"My understanding is that when both these fellows left our league they were given berths on the Perth team. That's all I know about it."

Which if it is, or was, true, paints the A.A.U. even blacker than before.

Whatever may be the outcome of the affair there can be no question that this "test case" will provide the fans with ample to think about in the next few weeks.

Storm Centre

The storm centre of a civil court action against the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada is Gerard "Joe" McNulty, suspended amateur baseball player of Toronto, who is suing to prevent the A.A.U. of C. from sanctioning the suspension already passed by two affiliated organizations.

WHY A.A.U. OF C. ACTED

The Toronto Amateur Baseball Association, affiliated with the A.A.V. of C., suspended Joe McNulty and ten other players, it is alleged, because these players failed to secure their release from the T.A.B.A. before they signed to play with teams in a league not associated with Canada's Athletic Union.

It is further stated that the players were given no notice of suspension other than the report handed by the T.A.B.A. to the press. Meanwhile the reports passed up the line to the O.A.-B.A., and the Ontario branch of A.A.U., both of whom okayed the suspension. The report is now before the A.A.U. of C.

BOWLING NOTES

(By Herb Martin)

On account of tournaments being held in Port Hope and Cobourg on Monday (Labor Day) there will be no special activities on the local greens.

Tuesday evening will see the play resumed in the Central Ontario play-offs. The time is getting very short for these games, and the committee has decided that a winner must be decided by Wednesday night, so there will be two games played on Tuesday evening and the finals on Wednesday night. There will be no further delay allowed, and rinks not competing on Tuesday will have to automatically drop out of the contest.

Tuesday's Draw—7 p.m.

Geo. Coleman vs. Geo. Cairns.
Geo. Gimblett vs. E. Wall.
Winners to meet at 9 p.m.
J. W. Mayneord vs. Dr. Allan — 7.30 p.m.

Twenty rinks took part in the "All Fruit" contest last night. It was an ideal night for bowling, and the boys are certainly turning out to try and make up points in the next few weeks.

The Friday night standing will be published in a few days, and the surprises will be many.

The winning rinks were: John Penrose, J. D. Fitzpatrick, J. Mayneord, R. Coleman.

"Gossip and Such"

The latest dope on the major league managerial situation has Lew Wonseca and Bucky Harris remaining at the helm of the two western American league teams.

Few fans, even those who live in Chicago and Detroit, should hear that with regret.

Both men really deserve another chance, another season to prove they can get the best out of the material afforded them. Max Carey of Brooklyn has been given another year in which to raise the status of the Dodgers—so why not Fonseca and Harris?

It is the opinion of this department that Lew and Bucky are more deserving of another year's test than is Carey.

Max inherited a pretty fair ball club from Uncle Wilbert Robinson. He made some changes, getting rid of many Brooklyn favorites and transplanting them with more serious players of his own choosing.

To say that Carey is no more successful than was Robinson is giving Max a break.

The White Sox and the Tigers, this year under Fonseca and Harris, have been almost completely reorganized.

The Sox are much stronger than they were a year ago and winter trades and purchases probably will add to the potentialities of the club. Harris this season has been running a Tiger team of which about 50 per cent. were youngsters untried in major competition.

Fonseca deserves another year at the helm to prove, if he can, that he has welded the new strength of the Chicago Sox into a first division team.

With one year of major league experience behind them, Harris may show us in 1934 a contender built around such youths as Ervin Fox, Schoolboy Rowe, Henry Greenberg, and the rest. If they have it in them, by next season the Tigers should be playing some grand baseball.

The old rumor that Babe Ruth will be at the helm of the White Sox is still heard but daily that eventuality becomes more doubtful. Aside from the undeniable fact that Ruth would attract attendance because of his colorful personality he will be of little value next season as an active player—unless everyone is wrong.

And there is on reason to believe that Ruth would make a better manager than Fonseca. At least, Lew has now had experience.

Marty McManus daily gains more friends among the fans if reports from Boston are read aright. However, the Red Sox chief appears doomed to go.

And that's something of a pity, too.

When Marty took over the club it was a hopeless affair, without any brighter prospects visible. Then came the sale to Tom Yawkey and the acquisition of several good players through deals made by Eddie Collins, the new general manager.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball—Softball—Lacrosse
Soccer—Wrestling, and Others

(By C. J. P.)

Monday—Labor Day—is the last holiday of the summer season, there being no labor, in spite of the name, for the majority of folks. This, however, does not include sportswriters who have no union hours to observe, nor do they pay any attention to Roosevelt's N.R.A.—even in the States—and chop off their toil at forty hours per week. But this Labor Day we won't mind covering a ball game, not when it's an O.B.A.A. juvenile semi-final contest, and played here.

* * * * * *

Terriers and Toronto Lansdownes tangle at 3 at Riverside Monday in the first of their series, winner going into the Ontario finals. Even if we didn't have to score this fray, we'd be parked there somewhere in the stands, as those semi-final and final juvenile games are generally well worth ankling over to get a load of. Lefty Lesurf will do the locals' flinging and the whole kids' squad here is all set to put up the battle of their lives. They need your support and will hand you a swell exhibition, or we're derailed more than usual.

* * * * * *

And for those who like softball tournaments, we'd recommend the one in Omemee Monday, starting at noon. There will be local and district gals' and men's team in with plenty of hot competition and some good prizes. Peterborough teams still wanting in may do so, getting dollar entry blanks at this office, or getting in touch with Doc McPhee at Omemee. Individual prizes are offered in all classes, and we've been informed that the tourney is run with permission of the O.A.S.A.

* * * * * *

Games today include the juvenile and bantam ball fixtures in Toronto, gals' contest in the Bowl this aft, and the men's exhibition softball double-header starting at 5.30 at Central this e'en. Harrison's play the Toronto softballers in the first affair, followed by Sugar Bowlers and the Queen City aggregation. Haven't heard anything more of that challenge by the softball all-stars to the Petes' baseball team for a mixed game at Stevenson Park. We'd like to see such a one put on.

* * * * * *

Now it can be told—the tale of how the Petes didn't hit this season. They did, as a club, manage to outhit Belleville, but the Nats weren't as strong offensively this year as in others. They were in the process of re-building even more than were we. Some of the locals did okay, particularly at fielding, while Kitchen led the pitchers, but as a whole the boys wearing Peterborough uniforms were very gentle with the ball while at bat. True Foley again hit over .400, but he drove in few runs all through the schedule, and admitted himself he was quite a flop in the playoffs. However, it takes more than one year to build up a crew of champs, and the boys didn't do too badly, at all. The story of their averages appears elsewhere in today's issue.

* * * * * *

One thing that is worth repeating: The Petes this year found a new flock of players performing in good style. There was a mixture of kids and veterans, and none of the latter were too old. We had a fine outfield till Vern Beavis died, and a steady infield for a short time, Scully's injury early in the season ruining things around second. The battery work, as a whole, was pretty fair, considering the fact that Kitchen was the only one of the pitchers that had any experience in senior company. The catching was fair, though Knotty Lee did the thinking from the bench. His coaching worked wonders with a team that wasn't particularly noted for being a fighting club, and one woefully weak with the willow. Another year, and a few changes, and we should have a championship team.

* * * * * *

One place in which our ball club was head and shoulders over the others was in the executive personnel. They were real baseball enthusiasts, workers and fighters. They would go to any amount of trouble and expense for the Petes, chasing all over Central Ontario in their cars, holding meetings when many would sooner be out playing golf, staying home with their families or fishing, and seldom missing even a practise over at the park. A real bunch of sports and fellows who got results at whatever they tackled—right from President Hugh Campbell down to the newest member of the executive. If they're back next season, we have nothing to worry about over baseball here in '34.

OFFICE WIN AGAINST FRACTIONAL MOTORS

The Office nine smothered the Fractional Motors crew under a barrage of hits last evening at the King Edward Park in the C.G.E. Shop Softball League play-offs to win by the lopsided count of 20 to 7.

Harold Darling twirled for the losers, but showed poor control and was easy to hit, the winners nicking him for seventeen safeties. Reynolds who relieved him in the sixth was a little better but the Office continued to push the counters across. Fred Martin and Gerry Routley tossed them over for the winners, both playing smart ball.

The teams:

Office — Gray, c; Sproule, lf; Routley, 2b, p; Miller, ss; Playford, ss; Lockhart, cf; Northrop, rf; Barry, 1b; Martin, p; McLaren, 2b.

Fractional Motors — Clarke, c; Calladine, 2b; Reynolds, ss; Newson, 1b; Pearson, cf; O'Toole, rf; Kearns, lf; Tice, 3b; Darling, p.

Score by innings:

Office.... .. .. 461 432 0—20 19 4
Fractional. .. ..201 030 2— 7 11 8

Umpires— Dave Grant at plate; W. Thomas on the bases.

HISTORY SHOWS CRICKET PLAYED HERE 60 YEARS

Great Game Seems to Have Been Introduced Into Canada About 1820.

EARLY LOCAL TEAMS.

The Peterborough Cricket Club has had a successful season and, as mentioned in The Examiner a month or so back, it is a revival of a very old organization.

The other day, delving into some old records, I found several references to Peterborough cricket in old days which may be of interest. The game was very popular in those days. Cricket seems to have been introduced into Canada in 1820, and the first match of which there is any record was one played between Toronto and Guelph in 1834. By 1850, besides military teams and Upper Canada College, we read of clubs in Toronto, Montreal, Hamilton, Guelph, Brantford, Woodstock, Kingston, Cobourg, Belleville, Port Hope, Paris, and there were doubtless others. There was a match in 1846 between Port Hope and Cobourg. The first record of Peterborough I could find was a match, Toronto vs. Peterborough and Cobourg, the former winning by 52 runs: "The weather was delightful and the attendance numerous and fashionable, the visit of H.R.H. Prince of Oxford, Duke of Edinburgh, adding especial eclat to the occasion." On July 9, 1879, Peterborough played Whitby, and on July 11, 1877, Port Hope gave our locals a terrible beating.

Coming to later times, and when Peterborough had advanced to the point of having a professional, there is recorded a match, on September 19, 1884, between the Duke of York Rangers and Peterborough and District for the benefit of Norley, the Peterborough "pro." In this match we find Sam. Ray's name, afterwards so closely identified with Peterborough cricket and until quite recently quite well-known to present-day residents as proprietor of the well-known tobacco store on Hunter Street. On this occasion he was with the opposition and made his presence felt. "The feature of the game was the magnificent cricket displayed by that sterling cricketer, S. Ray, who put together 101 and 53.

In September, 1886, two matches were played against a team known as the Sawbones, obviously of medical origin, and again in July, 1887, Peterborough 264 and East Toronto, and some familiar names appear on the local roster. Besides Ray, there is Rutherford, Stratton, W. Hamilton, R. B. Rogers, Long, Hammond and others, but on June 11, 1887, they had a very disastrous battle against Toronto, being defeated by an innings and 140 runs. In 1888 we find Peterborough playing Hamilton, and in the next year a match between the two teams resulted in a Peterborough win. Stratton went in first, carried his bat for 85 runs. The name of the club's professional, Attewell, is mentioned.

The Peterborough club occupied a rather invidious position in the match against Rosedale on August 24, 1894, as George Seymour Lyon (afterwards and still so well-known as a golfer, took the opportunity of amassing the huge score of 238 runs not out, which was, and I believe still is, a Canadian record. Peterborough's total was 47, and Rosedale 360 for 8 wickets.

Mr. Ray's name appeared in Canada's team against the United States in 1879, 1880, 1881, 1883.

It is rather surprising in those days to know that from 1844 on there were regular "test" matches between Canada and the U.S.A., with certain intermissions, of which U.S.A. won 16, Canada 8 and drawn 2, up to 1894.

Don't be a Sucker.

(The operator of a crooked carnival game is called a "grifter." Although the sucker—the paying customer—doesn't know it, practically every game of skill and chance at the average traveling carnival or resort can be fixed by the operator so that the player can't win.

This is not usually true, however, of legitimate amusement parks, which have large investments in permanent equipment and are interested in keeping the good will of their patrons. Such places do not permit grifters. But beware the fly-by-night joint!)

THE THREE PIN GAME

AT THE FAR end of an alley about four feet long by one and a half wide, three cone shaped pins are set up. A wooden ball awaits the sucker. "Hit them all down and get a prize!" the grifter cries. The sucker stops to watch while the shill demonstrates.

The ball rolls down the alley and, striking both front pins squarely, passes on to knock over the one behind.

"The gentleman wins!" the grifter shouts, as he hands over a vase and resets the pins by moving a lever at the side of the alley. "Who's next?"

The sucker falls for the bait. He steps up, pays his nickel and rolls the ball. It misses one of the pins in front, however. He tries again, and again....

He could go on trying forever, and never win. Here's why: When he plays, the pins in front are set just too far apart to permit both to be hit by the ball at the same time. For the shill they were a little closer together. The control is effected by the lever which resets the pins. The grifter merely moves it an extra notch.

For Sunday, September 3

Sunday's horoscope is one of unusual activity, with the energies unusually high pitched and exciting for the Sabbath day. This may be in connection with literary or social matters, although there are elements in these calling for discretion and wariness.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a particularly lively year, with possible excitement and strenuosity in the affairs. These make for constructive work on large projects and new undertakings but there is a menace of fraud or misrepresentation through carelessly signed papers.

A child born on this day may be bold, energetic, resourceful and creative, but may lean to clever or expedient ways to promote itself.

For Monday, September 4

Monday's astrological forecast is for difficult and hazardous conditions dominating the affairs; yet with indomitable will, sound judgment and unflagging industry much of this unpropitious situation may be vanquished.

Those whose birthday it is may fortify themselves for a year of difficult and disconcerting conditions in the affairs, which will call for stern application, alertness to fraud and duplicity (as well as other sinister conditions) and dogged perseverance to overcome.

A child born on this day should be sound and serious mentally, qualities it may require to combat many afflicting circumstances and mysterious attacks in its affairs, especially employment.

For Tuesday, September 5

WHILE THIS may not be a day of routine activities, according to the mutual and lunar operations, yet there is danger of complicating things as they are by extravagance, indulgence and some sort of unusual contact with strangers or strange circumstances. These have the lure of novelty and may result in rash, speculative or even personally perilous denouement. Safeguard the money and the private life.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of peculiar or unusual adventures in both business and personal life. These may imperil the finances, either through indulgence, extravagance or the machinations of strangers or unusual associations. With the mind alert and keen, as it will be, personal hazards may be circumvented.

A child born on this day should have a keen, alert and energetic mind, but may have unusual, unorthodox or spectacular tendencies in many directions, perhaps dominated by pleasures or adventures out of the conventional.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet
Or dims the radiant light
No unkind word our lips shall pass
No envy sour the mind;
But each shall seek the common weal—
The good of all mankind

MILLBROOK

An Institute branch for one of the holiday months took up the subject of "Dressing for Dinner," at its August meeting; the speaker dealing with the topic along the line of the "wherefore" of the niceties of life, and whether they serve any useful purpose, and are worthwhile.

It was a village branch, with many rural members, and naturally the one in charge made it quite clear that she knew formal evening dress would be an absurdity to expect in such a locality. "Nevertheless I want to emphasize the fact that "dressing for dinner" or for the evening meal, whatever you may call it, is not just a "senseless frill," but a necessary contribution to the simple grace of living."

"It is one of those things that help to refine and beautify our lives though we walk quietly, lacking exact, formal social events, through all our existence. Supposing we think of the household where a change from the garb worn all day into something fresh and attractive for the evening meal is altogether lacking? Well, do we see the Man of the House in the clothes he has worn from early morning, in his shirt sleeves possibly, or with coat unbrushed, possibly his hair neglected also, seated at the head of the table, and actually by his very appearance creating an atmosphere that pervades the room, and the family?"

"Completing the picture 'Mother' is in house dress and apron donned on rising, daughter the same, likely both of them untidy as to hair and mussed in clothing, and the son of the home with muddy boots, tousled head, and clothing askew. Will you not agree with me that the 'grace of living' is largely absent from the family circle?"

Dressing for dinner does not necessarily mean a change into an evening dress, or 'swallow tail' coat for father and grown-up sons, as I have already stated; it just means changing into something different from the clothing worn all day, and time taken for attention to details of the toilet that will have an actual psychic reaction on the mind and soul. The atmosphere will be different; a certain weariness of mind and body will fall away; a certain comeliness will make home nicer, and conversation will be easier and on a higher level. In a word, things will seem more worthwhile from almost any angle."

"Fresh dresses for the kiddies, a becoming and fresh porch frock for mother and 'the girls,' and a house coat for Daddy (make it a Christmas gift this year if he does not possess this necessary adjunct to this wardrobe), and are not actually essential, from one point of view, any more than a real Persian rug is a necessity for the living-room floor. But viewed for another angle the effect on character, and the home atmosphere, is so far-reaching and has so many unexpected results, that I am convinced we cannot afford to neglect the change from business or work clothing at the day's close for something different, and perhaps more becoming also."

"We love the coloring of the Persian rug though it is not essential to comfort—there is a subtle effect from its rich shades, and patterning. God could have withheld the deep blue and radiant rose of the sunset, replacing the marvellous pageantry with subdued and drab shades. But if He gave us freely this delight of splendor and 'miracle coloring' that lifts us right out of ourselves, is to too far-fetched to decide that He is pleased if, at the day's close, we take steps to make ourselves change from the day's routine, even in the matter of clothing, so the mind and soul have an uplift that matches n a degree the sunset glories?"

Washington Has Gone No Further Along Road to Inflation.

(By Alexander Pringle, C.P. Financial Writer.)

TORONTO, September 2 (C.P.).—If the stock markets are headed toward higher prices and expanded operations with the opening of the fall period, as many financial commentators suggest, they gave no hint of it in the record of this week's transactions. Trading lagged throughout the week on Canadian and United States markets, with prices showing little change and sales in low volume.

The only break in a drowsy week came in the final half-hour on Tuesday when President Roosevelt made public the decision of the administration to lift the embargo on exports of newly mined gold. Removal of this restriction opened the world gold market to United States producers and U.S. gold stocks advanced sharply, carrying the New York listings and Canadian markets as well into a fairsized rally. That the situation was made use of by the bulls to pinch the shorts was demonstrated by the quick flattening out of the rally and the loss early on Wednesday of most of the gains. Market influences remain pretty much as they were a week ago and prices have conceded as much by ending this week at 89.2, only .4 points down from last week's close at 89.6. Washington, so far as the public has been informed, has gone no farther along the road towards inflation othed than to extend the purchases of Government securities by the central banking organization as a means of expanding credit.

Decision Needed.

Just at present directors of the N.R.A. are trying to decide who is to finance manufacturers who have signed up under a code, enlarged their staffs, and increased wages, and now find themselves unable to meet the increased manufacturing costs. The Government says it is the business of the banks to provide the accommodation and the banks reply it is not good banking practice to lend the funds of their depositors to any but safe borrowers, and that a business man admitting rapidly expanding costs without corresponding profits could hardly be termed a good risk.

Canadian markets played a watchful waiting game through the week. Even the gold stocks made no response to the record high price paid for gold in London on Friday. Market boardrooms heard rumors that Canada may shortly have a currency flutter of her own not unconnected with the stock of silver that the Government has undertaken to acquire under an agreement with other metal producing countries. There was nothing authoritative tendling to confirm the humor, however.

SERVICE STATION OPERATOR WINNER

small bag containing a number of cartridges, was on the Chief's desk. It is presumed that the revolver was the weapon that figured in the attempted hold-up, although the Chief would not commit himself in that connection.

"Stick 'Em Up"

Interviewed by The Examiner, Mr. Curtis said, "I had just closed the station for the night and was on my way through the fence that divides my residence from my business premises, when I heard a command to stick 'em up. I saw a man, about my own height and build concealed in the shadows, and saw the gun he had in his hand. He warned me that the gun had one blank cartridge, but that it was otherwise fully loaded with live shells."

"Did he fire at you" Mr. Curtis was asked.

"Yes. He fired the blank. I sprang at him and we grappled for a while until he broke loose and made a run for the roadway."

Mr. Curtis related that he chased after the fleeing man, and again pounced upon him as he reached the street line. In the struggle that ensued he said, the gun "broke" and four live shells fell out of it.

"I held right on to him and yelled for help" Mr. Curtis continued "and very soon J. T. Braund, a neighbour of mine came running to my assistance. The police was called and there you are, that was all there was to it" he said.

Station Robbed Twice

Asked how much money he was carrying, Mr. Curtis thought that it would be about $250. "It was in bills and change" he stated. About a week or so ago, Mr. Curtis remarked, a window was broken in the service station, in an apparent attempt to force an entry. Also, he said, during the five years he has been in possession of the station, two robberies had been committed.

J. T. Braund who was also interviewed, made light of the part he had played in the affair. "I simply heard a shout for help" he said, "and went out to see what was the matter. I saw two men lying on the sidewalk, and until after the police came I didn't know that the man on top was Curtis. I couldn't make any sense out of the thing. I believed it to be just a fight between friends" was Mr. Braund's humorous way of expressing the situation as it first appeared to him. But after he noticed the gun which the other man, who was lying underneath Curtis, held in his hand, he realisthat something serious was happening. He called to his son Ernest who was standing on the rear verandah of his home to telephone for the police.

"I got the gun away from the man" Mr. Braund added, "and had quite a job while doing so, to keep the business end away from myself. Then I just stood by in case I was needed and waited for the police to arrive."

Mr. Braund said, "Curtis had his man down tighter than scissors. He just lay right on top of Mongomery so that he couldn't move at all. That is why I didn't recognie Curtis while he was on the ground. All I could see was the back of his head."

GRUESOME FIND MADE BY GIRL

The body was floating in a perpendicular position with the top of the badly discoloured head of the man just showing above the surface. The girl thinking that the object she saw in the water was a cocoanut swam over to it, and was horrified to find the body of the dead man. She notified Albert Lasenby, a canal employee, of 257 Romaine street. He in turn notified the City Police Department. The Fire Department was also called out.

The body was removed to Comstock's Undertaking Home, where the remains were viewed by a large number of citizens who attempted to identify the body.

When the body was taken from the water near the high level bridge of old Norwood road, a watch was found in one of the pockets of the grey tweed suit which the man had been wearing. It bore the name of Alex. Gibson, a local jeweler. The jeweler's records indicated that the watch had been sold on March 29, 1932, to one W. J. Crowe, for the sum of $22. It was again in the shop for repairs or adjustments in 1925.

Herbert Martin, local watchmaker, who originally made the sale of the timepiece, identified the body as being that of the man to whom he sold the watch. He did not know where the man had lived, or anything concerning his relatives or friends, but believed that he was a "shantyman from the north country."

The only other things by which the body was identified by the nephew of the deceased, were a set of false teeth, which Mr. Wall said were purchased by his uncle in Lakefield some years ago; certain articles of clothing; and a ring bearing the emblem of the Orange Order; and another ring with the emblem of the Woodmen of the World Order.

During his periodic visits to Peterborough the deceased, a man of about 55 years of age, used to board with Mr. and Mrs. George Curtain at 319 Simcoe street, it was stated.

The funeral is to be held on Monday at 10.30 a.m. from Comstock's Funeral Home to Little Lake Cemetery.

House Burns Down Owner Is Missing

BRADFORD, Ont., Sept. 2 (CP) Searchers combing the ruins of Ernest Rogers' small home here after fire had destroyed it early today have found no trace of his body. It is thought he left before the blae broke out and has joined his family in Toronto.

Mr. Rogers was seen by neighbors late last night at his house, accompanied by George Patient, 19, of whom no trace has been found since the blaze.

The frame building was burned before dawn to-day. For several hours firemen poured water on the ruins, then started to search for Rogers' body.

A son who was helping in the search for his father to-day was unable to explain wny he would leave the scene of the fire without telling anyone he was safe. He did not think, however, that his father had been killed.

Take Month In Jail Rather Than Pay $82

For hunting deer without a license last November, Roy Whetung Jr., and Leonard Whetung of Crowe's Landing, will be registered at the county jail for the month of September.

Roy Whetung pleaded not guilty before Magistrate Langley at Warsaw Friday afternoon, but on the evidence that was presented, he changed his plea to guilty. Leonard Whetung made his admission of guilt without further hearing, and they were each fined $20 and costs. Roy's costs were $25 and Leonard's $17.

Rather than pay into court a total of $82 they declared that it was cheaper to take a month's board and lodging on the hill. J. A. O'Brien defended the two men and V. J. McElderry, Crown Attorney, conducted the prosecution.

The charges were laid on information obtained by Fred Marshall, game warden, in an effort to stamp out illegal hunting throughout the county. It was regarded as something of a test case, and the penalties imposed by Magistrate Langley are expected to have a salutary effect.

Spare Engineers' Run Set At 2,800 Miles

OTTAWA, Sept. 2.—(C.P.) — A board of conciliation headed by Judge J. H. Scott, of Perth, Ont., has made a report to Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Labor, on the dispute between firemen and engineers and the Canadian Pacific Railway. It is recommended the minimum mileage for spare engineers be decreased from 3,200 to 2,800 before they are demoted to firmen's jobs.

The board was appointed in January, 1931, to hear a dispute between the Canadian Pacific and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen. The two other members were Howard S. Ross, Montreal, representing the men and Lynn B. Spencer, Welland, Ont., representing the company.

SILVER TEA BY ST. THOMAS W.A.

Successful Social At Home Of Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, Millbrook.

MUSICAL PROGRAM.

MILLBROOK, September 2. — A mose enjoyable "silver tea," sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of St. Thomas' Anglican church, was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, music and social intercourse filling the hours happily until early evening.

Mrs. Westmacott received in the large living room, and her guest, Mrs. Grace Oliphant of Montreal, greeted the incoming guests in the hall, Mrs. A. J. Pallis, who acted as cashier, having her table in the hall also.

A color scheme in yellow, carried out in marigolds and other late summer blossoms, featured the dining room where Mrs. (Canon) W. Cartwright Allen and Mrs. John Dawson poured tea, the services at the daintily laid table being entirely of siver.

Assisting in the service of the many guests were Mrs. J. E. Allen, Mrs. Roy Dawson, Mrs. Frank Stinson, and Miss Eva Howson, and looking after the filling of plates of sandwiches and cakes, and the making of the tea, were Mrs. H. J. Russell, Mrs. Harold Nattress, Mrs. T. G. Harkness, and Mrs. A. J. Scott.

The musical program, which was of an informal nature and most enjoyable, included piano duets by Mrs. L. H. Winslow and Miss M. L. Collins, and Miss Collins and Miss Margaret Simpson also vocal duets by the Misses Jean and Gloria Dawson who are very popular with local audiences their sweet voices blending harmoniously, and their knowledge of music being quite outstanding for such youthful singers. Miss Gloria Dawson was heard in one or two solos during the afternoon, Miss Collins being the accompanist.

Some extra cakes were disposed of at the close, and receipts added something over twenty dollars to the funds of the W.A. The Auxiliary will meet for the first time since the holiday season, on Monday, September 18, and probably at the home of the president.

The Deanery W. A. convention will be at Cannington this year, on Tuesday, September 26, Mrs. Allen of Millbrook, being the presiding officer; several car loads will go from here to this important gathering, the rector at All Saints' Church at Cannington, being Rev. ALL OF US

By MARSHALL MARLIN

THE SCAR

IT SEEMED for a while as if it would last forever, as if that small child would carry that cruel reminder all of her life from then into the grave....Reminding her always of that cruel experience.

She had been terribly burned and her small cheek had been laid wide open in a ghastly wound. The bloody lips of that wound had been sewed together and the wound had healed, but the scar was there and it ran pitilessly across her face and might never go away.

Forever it would be there.

Forever, whenever she looked in her mirror, she would see it.

Forever, her friends, acquaintances, strangers, seeing her would see it first and fix their eyes curiously upon it and the unspoken question would be on their lips. How did you get that scar? Does it bother you much? Can you have it taken off? Always the curiosity, always the questions .... They wouldn't see her eyes, nor her mouth, nor her hair. Nothing but the scar. They'd not hear what she said....She would be forever the little-girl-with-the-scar, and then the young-woman-with-the-scar and finally the grown-up-woman-with-the-scar....Always the scar would stand between her and life. She might not mind it so much, might say nothing about it, might pretend it made no difference, its existence would be just one more thing to fight against, and there are so many things to fight and one more enemy might be just one too many.

But the scar is gone!

Under the capable hands of a surgeon who knew his business it was taken away. If you looked closely now, you would see only a thin white line and nothing more.

It's a blessed thing to lose a scar. A blessing for a little girl who might have been made unhappy by this one, across her face. A blessing for any man or woman who had a scar somewhere and was constantly rminded, by it, of grief and humiliation, or some searing experience, and finds at last that the scar has faded and has gone away, to come again, no more.

4,000 PUPILS BACK TO WORK SCHOOLS OPEN

Collegiate Enrollment Will Likely Pass 1,000 Mark.

FEW STAFF CHANGES

O. M. Steer Is New Principal Of Queen Mary School.

Four thousand students in the city returned to school this morning to begin a new year of study.

As the registration figures from the various forms and departments of the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School came into Principal H. R. H. Kenner's office around noon hour, the total enrollment neared the thousand mark Public School Inspector A Mowat reported that the initial attendance at the public schools was unusually full with the opening-day registration reaching the vicinity of the enrollment figure for June this year, 2,900. Registration at St. Peter's High School and at Confederation and May public schools promise to reach approximately the same totals as last year.

Three New Members

Three new members on Collegiate and Vocational School staff commenced their duties today. They are Harvard L. Bamforth, B.S.A., honour graduate of the University of Toronto, specialist in agriculture and physical culture; Miss Marion Jamieson, M.A., honour graduate in science and mathematics of the University of Alberta; and Miss Dorothy E. Additional Parties Are No Worry to King

PORT HOPE, Ont., Sept. 5—(CP)—Proportional representation formed the subject of discussion at the Liberal summer conference here today, the proceedings being presided over by Col. O. M. Biggar, K.C., former chief electoral officer. The feeling in the round table group was that "P. R." was less necessary in rural districts than in the cities where all shades of opinion were entitled to representation. Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, former Prime Minister, told the conference he did not think badly of the idea of additional parties in the House of Commons. During the years when he had a majority of only one, said Mr. King, government measures had received greater support than before.

The former premier commented that he had never made any deal with the Progessives in the House.

WOOD FINISHING FIRST HEAT OF HARMSWORTH TROPHY RACE

The bronze Harmsworth plaque will remain in the United States for at least another year, when in the closest finish ever seen in the event he defeated Hubert Scott-Paine, British challenger, in two straight heats. The first heat was won handily by Wood on Saturday, but on Monday the Britisher gave Wood a real battle, and finished 22 seconds behind the American.

WAREHOUSE FIRE CAUSES $50,000 LOSS IN PT. HOPE

Firemen Battle Over Three Hours Before Gaining Control.

5,000 BAGS FLOUR LOST.

Suddenly Collapsing Wall Almost Traps Firemen Entering Building.

PORT HOPE Ont., Sept. 5.—(CP)—Breaking out shortly after dawn today, a fire of unknown origin gutted the Sculthrope's grain warehouse here, causing a loss of stock valued at $50,000.

After battling the blaze for more than three hours firemen managed to extinguish it at the source, beneath the floor level of the brick structure.

One fatality was narrowly averted when a fireman, carrying a hose, was about to enter the hole cut through the wall under the floor. Before he could enter the wall-gap the floor, weighted down by tons of grain and flour, collapsed suddenly.

Among the stock ruined by flame and water was 5,000 bags of flour owned by the Robin Hood Mills, Limited, and a quantity of seed owned by Sculthrope. Four thousand square feet of flooring was burned away.

The flour destroyed was covered by insurance; but Sculthorpe's stock only had partial coverage.

Montgomery Ready To Leave Hospital

William J. Montgomery, alleged gas station hold-up man, is now ready to exchange his hospital bed for a prison cell.

Dr. Herbert N. Young, who has been attending Montgomery at St. Joseph's Hospital where he has been confined to bed under police guard since early Saturday morning, told The Examiner in reply to an inquiry this morning that his patient was now ready to leave hospital.

Beaten up by Clifford Curtis, whom he is alleged to have held up at the pont of a gun, Montgomery suffered a fracture of the frontal bone of his skull and extensive bruising. Since he was admitted to hospital he has been under constant police guard. He is to answer to a charge of armed robbery with violence.

Three Men Injured In Gasoline Explosion

MONTREAL, Sept. 5. — (CP) — Three men were seriously injured today in an explosion which wrecked most of the buildings occupied by the Loyal Oil and Gas Company. Cause of the explosion was not determined, but a preliminary investigation suggested an electric spark had touched off gasoline fumes

The injured men, all severely burned about the face and hands, are: Phillippe Jacques, 30, Reginald Edelages, 58, and James Lamarche, 28 They were given first aid by policemen from a nearby police station, then were rushed to hospital.

Marked Men

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 5—(CP)—The secret of why the four Lanzetti brothers get arrested so often is out.

The police say the brothers are marked for death by gangsters. It is feared bystanders will be shot when the firing begins. So police arrest the brothers to get them off the street.

The four estimate they are seized at least once a week. Any old charge will do, they say.

RAILWAY UNION RECEIVES BOOST

Time Most Opportune Speaker Tells Newmarket Summer School.

C.N. OVERCAPITALIZED.

NEWMARKET, Ont., Sept. 5. — (C.P.).—D. W. Buchanan of University of Toronto told the first Liberal-Conservative School to-day that "drastic action is needed" to improve Canada's railway situation, in reading a paper by Professor W. Jackman. It favored amalgamation of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways.

"Actually the time is most opportune, providing we can face the term 'amalgamation' without stirring up a lot of nightmares," said the paper. The main advantages would be elimination of duplicating and proper staggering of schedules.

The saving, said the speaker, "would be enormous, even if not up to Mr. Beatty's $65,000,000."

The paper delivered by Mr. Buchanan in Professor Jackman's absence said fears of monopoly would be offset by competition of water and United States lines. In addition there was the railway commission to stop too-heavy rates and unjust preference.

The vital question of Canadian National capitalization called for drastic deflation. On a five per cent. basis, the average net operating income from 1923 to 1931 would only support a total of $500,000,000.

"Repudiation is an ugly word, but it should be frankly recognized that had receivership proceedings been instituted during the closing years of the war, some composition of creditor interests would necessarily have been affected," the paper said. "It might be well for bondholders to sacrifice a little instead of having the unfortunate alternative thrust upon them of running the railway themselves."

The C.N.R. was "hopelessly overcapitalized," asserted the paper. It said a substantial part of the money placed in capitalization is lost and must be written down.

ALMOST A GAS VICTIM.

LONDON, Ont. — Suffering from gas poisoning, 12-year-old Elsie Green was unconscious in hospital to-day where her condition is reported serious.

The child was found overcome by gas fumes yesterday and it was first considered she would recover. She had evidently gone to sleep while doing some cooking over a gas jet and the flame went out, allowing the fumes to fill the room.

One of the simplest modes of producing heat effects is by means of friction.

$75,000 FIRE HITS FOXBORO AT MIDNIGHT

Centre Of Village Is Wiped Out By Bad Fire Early To-day.

10 BUILDINGS BURNED.

Passing Motorist Gave Alarm And Aroused Sleeping Villagers.

FOXBORO, Ont., Sept. 5 (C.P.).—Breaking out in a garage at midnight on the west side of the main street in this village, fire destroyed about 10 buildings, which included the two general stores of R. B. Hallton and William Prentice, the dwellings of Richard York and W. Sherwood, the Post Office in the Prentice Building and the banking office, in addition to a number of garages and other buildings.

Houses across the street took fire but the blaze was extinguished.

Called Belleville.

As the villagers saw that without fire protection and assistance they would be unable to meet the menace it was decided to call help from Belleville and Stirling fire departments. All night long the firemen, with the villagers with buckets, fought the flames, and late this morning the fire was under control.

The blaze ate the centre out of this thriving village, and as most houses are of frame construction, the ruins are level with the ground. The first intimation came from a motorist who shouted fire and awakened sleeping villagers. The origin is unknown. Various estimates of the loss were made, running as high as $75,000, with only partial coverage by insurance. Mr. Hamilton had recently stocked up his shelves in anticipation of autumn business. He placed his loss at $25,000.

Approximately 400 men, women and children were in attendance including a good representation from Keene and Lakefield. An ambitious program of sports and games was run off, and sixty-five prizes were distributed. The event was under the general chairmanship of Wor. County Master J. A. Holden, with an energetic committee consisting of Wor. Bros. Deputy County Master Harry Welsh; County Marshal William Millen; County Finance Secretary William Chambers; County Recording Secretary Frank Millard; and County Lecturers Winston and Melville Holden.

A Fatal Flaw.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Lawrence Horvath, 44, looked into the future and saw a world catastrophe. He saw the nations at war again—millions of men, women and children dying in the fumes of gas bombs dropped from the sky.

The picture made him shudder.

"I will save humanity," he said. "I will invent a gas mask that will save the world."

Yesterday the model mask was finished.

He clamped it over his mouth and nose and, to test it, connected the intake to the gas range by means of a tube. He turned on the gas

This morning his wife and two children, returning from a vacation, found him on the kitchen floor—dead of asphyxiation.

FIRE SWEEPING ON HALIBURTON

Forest Blaze Within 3 Miles of Village Already Overrun 1,000 Acres.

HUGHES ESTATE IN PATH

(By The Canadian Press)

Dry September brought renewal of danger from forest and bush fires to-day as flames burst out in nearly a dozen areas, actively threatening at least three villages. Haliburton, north of Lindsay, Ont., was endangered by a bush fire three miles away that already has run 1,000 acres of shrub country.

The estate of the late Sir Sam Hughes, Canada's War-time Minister of Militia, was in the path of the Haliburton fire.

Advancing relentlessly despite the frantic efforts of fire-fighters to check it, a fire in the forests of Snider township near Sudbury in the north-western section of the province, became out of control to-day spread over several hundreds of acres of land. Although the blaze threw out a thick blanket of smoke which covered the city of Sudbury, it was thought the fire would be checked before it reached the limits

Just outside New Dundee land covered with shrubbery was swept by flames which threw out a shower of sparks over the buildings on the north side of the village. Efforts of volunteers prevented the frame buildings catching fire.

A stubborn blaze in Long township in the Algoma district was still being combatted by fire fighters to-day after the 2,000-acre bushfire had advanced beyond control for the past three days.

Other minor fires were reported in Ranger Lake, Chesley township; Humbolt township, and grass fires near Sudbury and London

President Steps Out After Bloodless Coup; U.S. Rushes Warships

Revolt Leaves Country In Hands Of Radicals, Who Name Commission Of Five To Handle Affairs—Outbreak Spreads To Santiago.

FRICTION WITH A.B.C. FORCES APPROACHES; SITUATION TENSE AS ARMING CONTINUES.

HAVANA, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Provisional President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes yielded to the radical opposition which has successfully effected a coup d'etat by announcing today that "now it is time for others to assume responsibility."

The president made this statement after a conference at the presidential palace, to which he had been hastily summoned from the interior after the opposition rose against him last night. Power was seized through a bloodless coup d'etat by radical elements, composed of students, soldiers and the A.B.C. secret society. A commission of five was selected to take over the government from the administration which succeeded deposed President Gerardo Machado, Aug. 12.

The movement spread from Havana to Santiago, where the army rebelled, ousting the governor and the mayor.

U.S. Warships On Way

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (A.P.)—Warships of the United States Navy were ordered to Cuba to-day because of the coup d'etat there. A cruiser and three destroyers were dispatched to protect American lives and property from danger in threatened strife precipitated by the revolt of the army against the new provisional government.

This was the second time in a matter of weeks that war vessels have been sent to the republic to the south, the first time being during the disturbances in connection with the overthrow of the Machado government.

Spreads to Santiago

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Sept. 5 (A.P.) The army rebelled to-day imprisoning officers and delivering from jail soldiers accused by civil authorities under the Machado rule.

The revolutionaries ousted the governor and the mayor. There was considerable shooting but no one was wounded.

Brewing Weeks

The mutiny was sudden and dramatic, although discontent of the lower ranks in the army, navy, and police forces over proposals to cut pay and the size of the forces has been brewing since the Aug. 11 uprising against Machado.

Sergeant Batista announced through two aides the rebels' de-

MACHADO IS NOT TAKING CHANCES

Refuses To Return To Cuba To Stand Trial—Doubts Safety Guarantee.

DEFENDS ALL ACTS.

MONTREAL, Sept. 5 (CP)—Fearful that guarantees of his personal safety will not hold, Gerardo Machado, deposed president of Cuba, is unwilling to return to his country to face trial for offences charged against him.

In his hotel room where he expects to spend several weeks following his flight during the rebellion in Cuba, Machado said to-day: "What good is their guarantee of safety to myself, if they cannot even protect themselves?" This was in response to the statement in Havana yesterday of Dr. Horacio Ferrer, new Secretary of War, that if Machado would return and face trial, his personal safety would be guaranteed.

"There was no act during my presidency that I need be ashamed of and none that I consider punishable," Machado added. "I hope there will be safety for everyone and when that is achieved I shall submit without doubt or fear to any trial which may be offered me."

He offered no comment about the overnight coup d'etat in Cuba.

"I ended by telling him I didn't want to see his face again."

"That's the terrible part about it," said Mary. "He wasn't a bit upset. He just jumped up and switched off all the lights."

WOMAN'S LIMBS FOUND IN FIELD NEAR DETROIT

Fingerprints Identify Victim As Mrs. Laurie Jobb, Formerly of Ottawa.

TORSO MISSING.

Husband Sought As Police Seek To Clear Up Mystifying Murder.

DETROIT, Sept. 5 (CP) — The arms and legs of a woman, found roughly hacked from the body in an outlying field, last night sent police on a baffling quest for the slayer in one of the city's most sensational murder mysteries.

Finger prints, the police claimed identified the woman as Mrs. Laurie Jobb, formerly of Ottawa, Ont.

While patrolmen beat through the bushes in the city's northwestern section in search of the woman's torso, detectives unwound a tangle of circumstances pointing, they said, to the identity of the limbs. The fingerprints were identified through Immigration Burau records as those of Mrs. Jobb, who in 1922 encountered difficulty in entering the United States from Canada.

Mrs. Jobb, the police said, three years ago married Edward McCann, a Detroit automobile factory employee. McCann could not be found yesterday, and relatives of the woman, as well as neighbors, reported mystifying circumstances surrounding Mrs. McCann's disappearance Friday night.

Reports Differ

The officials said one group of relatives informed them Mrs. McCann reported last week that she was going to Ottawa to visit a brother Another group, they said, told them McCann had said his wife left Friday for the Century of Progress in Chicago, taking $115, all his money.

Neighbors at the Stanley Avenue apartment building, in which the McCanns lived, said Mrs. McCann left Friday night, and McCann was reported as being worried over his wife's disappearance. McCann, police said, was seen leaving his apartment at 10 a.m. yesterday. Neighbors reported the McCanns quarrelled Friday night.

Two young men stumbled across the arms and legs of the woman in a field at Lyndon and Northlawn Avenues at 5 a.m. yesterday and immediately notified police. The Health is half of success

FEW men achieve their goal without vitality and drive. And so many are held back from their best by a common ailment: constipation. It dulls energy, often causes headaches, sleeplessness. It takes the vim out of your day's work.

Correct constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body, it becomes a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. How much better than using pills and drugs—so often harmful.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN also has iron for the blood. At all grocers. In the red-and-green package Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

BLAZING WOODS CLOSE HIGHWAY

Extra Firefighters Drafted—Tourists Stranded by Flames In Manitoba.

STATION BURNS.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 5 (CP) — Through the lazily drifting smoke haze that hung over Winnipeg last night came reports of the first damage caused by the most serious forest fires in Southeastern Manitoba in years. Unconfirmed word said the Canadian National Railways station at Elma had been destroyed.

The most serious blaze, raging both sides of the Canadian Pacific Railway for a seven-mile stretch, caused Royal Canadian Mounted police to close the Trans-Canada highway between Winnipeg and Kenora, Ont., at Whitemouth, where the flames held up motorists all Saturday night. It was estimated nearly 500 week-end tourists would be unable to reach their homes in Winnipeg last night.

Approximately 100 men were hastily drafted in nearby towns for fatigue duty against the flames which threatened to cause further damage in the dry timber along the right-of-way on both railways A large gang of fire-fighters had battled the outbreaks through the week-end.

High winds that fanned the fires Saturday and Sunday had died down yesterday, but the weather continued dry and considerably warmer. Late yesterday the situation became so bad it was necessary to prevent motorists coming farther west than Whitemouth and holiday makers found themselves stranded in a smoke-girt country 50 miles from home. For two or three weeks fires had been smouldering in the muskeg along Boggy Creek between Lydiatt and Molson on the Canadian Pacific Railway. As high winds and a hot sun dried out the timber, the blaze broke into the open during the week-end.

CRASH IN RACE KILLS AVIATRIX

Wings Tears Rounding Pylon —Girl Tries Vainly To Use Parachute.

25,000 SEE TRAGEDY.

CURTIS REYNOLDS AIRPORT, Glenview, Ill., Sept. 5. — Florence Klingensmith, 26-year-old aviatrix from Minneapolis, Minn., was killed instantly yesterday while participating in the feature contest of the international air races.

The crash of Miss Klingensmith's powerful ship brought to a tragic end the international air spectacle.

Miss Klingensmith had been flying for three years. She won the Amelia Earhart trophy last year and held the women's record for making consecutive loops.

The girl flier tried desperately to save her life by using her parachute. The chute was found open but tangled in the wreckage of the plane, fasted to the girl's body.

She had entered the feature race of the day in a gasture of feminine bravado, the first woman ever to participate in a major event for men Her entry was announced only a short time before the start of the race.

Miss Klingensmith kept well up in the race during the first seven laps, gaining precious seconds on the pylons where she banked so sharply that veteran pilots shook their heads in dismay. Then on the eighth lap she came down to the home pylon traveling more than 200 miles an hour and tipped her ship for the bank around the pylon. The strain was too much. The propellor wash from the plane in front added to the wracking strain on Miss Klingensmith's ship and a section of the left wing fabric tore loose. She kept control and levelled the ship off, flying south of the airport. For perhaps a mile the ship climbed gradually but then started to settle and went into a dive for several hundred feet Ambulance which rushed to the scene reported she apparently had been killed instantly. The tragedy was witnessed by approximately 25,000 persons.

CUBA IN TRANSITION

Carlos Manuel de Cespedes In, Machado Out, Rigorously Imposed Constitutional Procedure.

AN EVOLUTION.

By H. W. L. MAHOOD

A national radical transition is a period of confusion and bewilderment. Rigorously imposed constitutional procedure comes not instantly. It is an orderly evolution. The effort was made by Germany to establish, without any delay on the ruins of an empire a fully fledged a Republic. When the Great War ended the decision to build a Republic was quickly determined. The building was another thing. A foundation had to be laid. Training, and discipline, and education in Republic fundamentals must precede the fabric. But Germany without an established Republic and with a monarchy in ruins was coerced to action in putting her signature to the Versailles Treaty. If she refused to sign armies were ready to march to Berlin. But justice never sleeps. The wrong will some day be righted. Had Germany been given five years to transform a monarchy into a workable Republic the situation in Europe would have been different today. A just treaty would have been made.

Cuba is in transition. The period has been unduly prolonged. For long time Cuba was overawed by a cruel Spanish Monarchy. Present events on this island bring vividly into view her past history. When conquered by Spain the natives were brutally murdered. Scarcely a man or woman was left. Everything in the form of property was stolen from them. Even the children and young people were slain. Spain revolved that the island should be people by Spaniards. So the Spaniards came. For that was an era of adventure. The island was well peopled. To Cuba they brought the civilization of one of the greatest nations of the world. In poetry, in art, in adventure Spain was unsurpassed. But in colonial government Spain was the embodiment of mis-government. Cuba was not permitted to have a form of government of her own choosing. For this, newly arrived emigrants, craved. For this they petitioned the home land. In answer they received a peremptory order to forward taxes. The taxes levied were more than the people could pay. Failure brought mistreatment. For centuries this condition continued. Not a school, not a good road was built. Nor was justice administered on the island. There was no compensation given for the taxes paid. There was no free press, and not a library. The emigrants from Spain sank to the level of barbarians.

Witness in contrast the colonizations by Great Britain. She traversed the seas to Egypt. A colonial form of government suitable to the time was initiated. Changes to fit new conditions were promptly given. Good roads were built. Good schools were opened. Courts of justice were established. Burdensome taxes were lightened. The laborer was a free man. The whole country was opened to the advances of civilization. Cuba became a prey in the hands of Spain. Britain by the bombardment of Alexahdria opened the door of Egypt for the entrance of every civilizing influence.

Britain found her way to Africa. Think of Africa and you must think of Kitchener. There are other names that shine in this association. They are the names of great Britons. Having set down her foot on African soil, and having determined to stay Great Britain was soon busy with stupendous projects, A railroad line from Cairo to the Cape was surveyed and built. From the Kongo to the Gulf of Arabia another railway was soon completed. Telegraph wires ran along side. A "dark continent," had become "A continent of light."

The public school makes for self government. Soon every inhabited part of Africa will have its own well equipped and creditable school. The same effort is making for the uplift of the natives in every colonial part of the British Empire.

The plight of Cuba is pitiful. Her colonial story is in such sharp contrast. The United States has done much for Cuba. Of this we have not space in this letter. Nor have we space for the thrilling story of Cuba fighting for her freedom, and the intervention of the United States. We have to do in this letter with the present revolution. A communication from Hubert Herring is on my desk. He is in Cuba. It was the great privilege of the one who writes these lines to serve with him on a Commission from the United States on "Relations With Latin America." Herring is as well informed on Latin American affairs as any man in the United States He witnessed the flight of Machado and the choice of the people for a provisional President in the person of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes. The joyous people sacked the lower floor of the presidential palace. Trees, and shrubs were torn from their roots. These they waved as the streets were paraded. For eight years the Cubans have been exploited and their rights abused. Machado had a newspaper with a high sounding name — the Heraldo de Cuba. The plant was gutted. The flight of Machado was to the crowd that thronged the streets of Havana a huge joke. They cursed and laughed. In the city there was a street which Machado's henchmen had named in his honor. Before the day ended a painter had changed the name. A crowd gathered. The painter's brush quickly blotted out. Avenida del Presidente Machado. Slowly and with the touch of an artist came the letters of a new name—Avenida Rubiera. When the last letter had been completed the crowd went wild with joy Rubiera was a martyr student. In protest against the Machado misrule and cruelty he died.

OUTLAW BAILEY ESCAPES PRISON

Kidnaps Guard But Gives Up Without Struggle When Overtaken.

RADIO ENABLES CAPTURE.

ARDMORE, Sask., Okla., Sep. 5. —Four hours after he had made a dramatic break from the county jail at Dallas, Texas, Harvey Bailey, notorious outlaw and killer, surrendered without offering resistance yesterday to three Ardmore policemen.

Bailey, who kidnapped a guard in order to make his escape during the breakfast hour at the jail, merely grinned good-naturedly and threw up his hands when the captors levelled their guns at his head.

"I'm Bailey" he said. In his pocket they found a .45-calibre revolver—the weapon he had used earlier in the day in his break for freedom.

The man, known as one of the nation's most desperate criminals, accused in the union station massacre at Kansas City and the kidnapping of Charles Urschel, wealthy Oklahoman, apparently was unshaken by the failure of his break.

He certainly was more calm than Nick Tresp, the turnkey and guard he kidnapped in Dallas, and whose automobile he used in his flight northward.

As Police Chief Hale Dunn and Officers Bennett Wallace and Raymond Shoemaker approached Bailey's parked automobile in the downtown section of Ardmore, Tresp leaped from the Machine and fled.

He said later he was afraid the officers would open fire on the car and that he would be killed or wounded.

Tresp told how he was surprised by the outlaw on the first floor of the jail building and forced, at the point of a gun, to accompany Bailey.

Previously the convict had threatened to kill three guards and an elevator attendant during his journey from his cell to the main floor of the building.

Turnkey Sat Helpless

"We left by a rear entrance of the jail" Tresp said, "and went to my car in a parking lot. As soon as we got out of the city Bailey took side roads and detours, to avoid traffic. I just sat there beside him. There was nothing I could do."

Bailey's capture was effected through the use of radio and telephone warnings, sent out from Dallas.

War Veteran Hurt On Burleigh Road

Nelson Ford of Toronto, recently released war patient from Christie Street Hospital and a war pensioner, lay in St. Joseph's Hospital to-day recovering from injuries he received in an automobile accident on the Young's Point-Burleigh Falls road on Sunday. Suffering a broken arm and severe scalp wounds, his condition is reported as favorable by the atteanding physician, Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield.

Ford was a passenger in the front seat of the car which figured in the accident.

Proceeding toward Young's Point from Burleigh Falls, the car left the road, and, after razing several small trees, crashed into a heavy trunk near the farm of Jack Iott. on Sunday morning. The driver, whose name has not been ascertained, had lost control trying to avoid a second car which had come to a stop to let him pass at a particularly narrow section of the road.

Ford will be released from St. Joseph's Hospital shortly if his condition continues favorable.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 5 (C. P.)—Illinois is using electricity to feed its fish.

Here's how: High voltage lamps over the feeding and breeding ponds at Mattoon, attract bugs, which are killed by the heat. When they fall into the water the fish gobble them down.

It's cheaper than buying fish food.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

The homemakers who delight in having their preserve closets stacked with jars whose contents have the distinction of variety, will find the following suggestions aids to this end

• • • • • • •

Those who must, for thrifty reasons, seek fruits that can be had without cost, or at trifling sums, will find the suggestions equally welcome.

• • • • • • •

The combination of novelty and thrift is appealing.

• • • • • • •

In every section of country there are certain wild berries and fruits to be found. By gathering them and making them into jellies, jams, preserves, etc., the price of the sugar and the seasoning and the fuel needed to cook the ingredients are the sole cost of the edibles.

• • • • • • •

Wild cherries, elderberries and wild grapes are among the fall fruits which can be gathered and used. Wild cherry jelly is unusual.

• • • • • • •

Wash the fruit well, cover with water, bring to a boil and let simmer until the juice is extracted. Press through a sieve so that the juices will be forced from the pulp.

• • • • • • •

Strain through a jelly bag afterwards, to separate the particles of pulp from the juice. It is part of wisdom to add two cups of strained tart apple juice to each three cups of wild cherry juice.

• • • • • • •

Or commercial pectin can be used. The rule of a pint of juice to a pound of sugar should be followed.

• • • • • • •

To the strained juices heated in the preserving kettle add the warmed sugar. Boil for fifteen minutes. Put a drop on a cold plate. It if jells it should be removed immediately.

• • • • • • •

If not, boil for five minutes longer. Jelly should not boil for more than twenty minutes at most. While boiling, skim off the scum which rises.

• • • • • • •

Pour jelly into heated glasses in which are a few scrapings of paraffin. This will rise to the top and seal the jelly air tight as it cools. Cherries should be slightly under-ripe.

• • • • • • •

Elderberry jelly is made in this same way. Equal parts of apple and elderberry juices combined are advisable. Gather berries when not quite ripe.

• • • • • • •

There is a richness to wild grape jelly, which is not found in jelly made with cultivated grapes Stem grapes, boil and strain and make as directed above.

• • • • • • •

There should be many unripe grapes in the quantity as they are richer in pectin than the ripe fruit and are needed to insure juice flying. No apple juice is required.

OUR MAIL

Dear Anne:

I have been watching for reports of holidays. You had yours and enjoyed it. So many take holiday trips; we see among the personals of their doing so, and wonder why they do not pass on a little.

Of course we all know that a stranger coming to Peterborough and district is charmed with the wonderful scenery The Otonabee and Indian Rivers, Rice Lake, and Kawartha Lakes are wonderful. We have seen them and live near them, love them, but we do love to see others and the strong part of it is that all these groups have certain definite distinctive features.

I really believe were I in some way dropped among any one of the groups where I have holidayed, I could tell which one.

Our holiday had us among lakes seemingly sunk among granite rocks, which seemed to have generally soil enough on the slopes to support evergreens which from a distance looked like moss and a few bare rocks protruding The water in the lake was clear but dark, not blue like our lakes, but so clear that the foam was snow white and where two feet of water rushed over stop logs in the river connecting two lakes, it was like glass and perfectly clear—so clear that we could see the seams in the logs. In the rapids below the foam was like a lot of snowwhite horses tossing their manes Oh, it was lovely, wonderful! I can close my eyes now and see it.

The joy of our trip was enhanced by the delightful way in which we were entertained and by the wholesomeness of the people we met. Did I ever tell you I called upon Ad Infinitum? It was a pleasure to find her in much better health than she had been, and seeming to enjoy life. She has had it hard all right enough, but the sun always shines after the clouds roll away, or disperse gradually. Sometimes it shines through most gloriously.

Yours sincerely.

Quid Edst.

I am so glad you were able to take a holiday, Quid Est, and to know that you and Ad Infinmuch. Now that you have met, I know that you did and A Infinitum will understand each other better and I know also that the work of the Women's Page has not been altogether in vain. With kind regards.

Sincerely,

Anne Wilcox

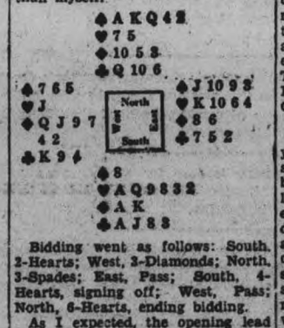
CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

ACCOMPLISHING THE IMPOSSIBLE

Recently I had a partner who at times required considerable spurring to bid his values. Neither side was vulnerable when I made the following deal sitting South. What happened surprised nobody more than myself.



Bidding went as follows: South, 2-Hearts; West, 3-Diamonds; North, 3-Spades; East, Pass; South, 4-Hearts, signing off; West, Pass; North, 6-Hearts, ending bidding.

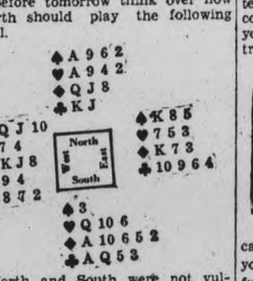
As I expected, the opening lead was the Q of diamonds, and my K won. I led my lone spade, and dummy's Q won the trick. I led the 7 of hearts; East played the 4; my Q won the finesse and West's J dropped, but I was not certain that the 10 might not be held also. In any event I knew that I must go down at least one trick, unless a miracle happened to intervene.

I led my 3 of clubs. West hesitated, then he played his 9, probably intended as a sign that he held the K. Dummy's 10 won the trick. Before leading another trump from dummy I led two rounds of winning spades, discarding thereon my two lowest clubs. Both opponents followed suit on the spades.

Dummy's last heart was led. East played the 6. My 8 won the trick. West showed out. Of course all I had to do was to lead my Ace of hearts, then give East one trump trick. The remainder of my cards were good, so that I made my small slam, bid by my generous partner, but it was a close call.

The way the cards were distributed the contract could have been set only one trick as the hand was played, but West should have won his club trick when he had the opportunity.

Before tomorrow think over how North should play the following deal.



North and South were not vulnerable. East and West were vulnerable. North played the hand at 3-No Trumps. The opening lead was the 4 of clubs.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

"DEAR MISS GLAD: I've been bleaching my own hair with peroxide for a while now, due to inability to afford professional work.

Gladys Glad

The color seems quite attractive thus far, but my hair acts most queerly when I wash it. It clings together in strands very thickily, and almost seems as though it were melting. Do I shampoo it improperly by using soap and water?

FLO."

As you know, I don't think much of amateur efforts at bleaching hair. Apparently, you have used the peroxide too often and incorrectly. In a case in which hair has been over-bleached with peroxide, an egg shampoo is best to cleanse the hair and scalp. This will remove the dirt and grime just as effectively as soap and water. Also, it is advisable to give over-bleached hair reconditioning treatments, until such hair has regained its normal health. Such reconditioning oil treatments are fully outlined in my "Beauty Culture" booklet, and help greatly to eliminate the strawy brittleness that bleached hair so often possesses.

• • •

"Dear Miss Glad: I just can't tell you how grateful I am to you for the aid you've given me in your 'New Figure' booklet. I've lost all of 36 pounds by following that reducing course in your booklet, and now the boys in town are giving me the biggest rush! I really do look and feel amazingly better. However, my elbows are in awful shape. They're thin, rough and dark, and I'd apreciate your advice on this. Can you aid me?

MARY."

I would suggest that you scrub your elbows daily with a bland soap, using a small complexion brush. After the scrubbing, apply lemon juice or dilute peroxide to each elbow, in order to bleach the dark skin. Allow the bleach to dry, and then rub the elbows with cold cream or pure olive oil. This will serve to make the skin soft and smooth. To alleviate the scrawniness, massage your elbows nightly with warmed cocoa butter. This will help to nourish the tissues and round out the contours of your elbows.

• • •

"Dear Miss Glad: Not long ago, I outlined a set of low-calorie diet menus for myself and began following them, in order to lose weight. I've kept my diet faithfully, but when I weighed myself to-night, I found that I hadn't lost even an ounce. Can you account for this failure of mine to lose weight?

RUTH."

It is not difficult to account for your failure to lose weight. First of all, the average individual is not enough of a dietitian to actually outline an effective routine for reducing her weight. A well-planned reducing routine such as the one in my "New Figure" booklet is best for such individuals. In the second place, the weight of the body depends upon a gain or loss of tissue, and a gain or loss of water. In other words, if you cut down your calories and actually break up fatty tissue, you may be consuming enough water at the same time to keep your weight steady. Any well-planned diet needs at least 15 days to show results, because of this water action. So do not become discouraged with any good diet, until you've given it at least a 15-day trial.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

It can be done. Evidently! You can take off those extra pounds if you want to. The news has been full of records of reducing during the last few days.

Dr. Clendening

First, the president comes back from a vacation jaunt overweight, and he takes off a few pounds.

Then Mrs. Paul Whiteman publishes a book, which is the record of one of the most remarkable courtships in history. Margaret Livington told the King of Jazz when he proposed that she would not marry him until she could put her arms around him. He weighed 303 pounds, and to gain his bride he reduced himself to 200.

"Whiteman's Burden" is the amusing name of the book which tells the story. The Paul Whiteman reducing recipes are given in detail, and exactly what he ate each meal as ordered by his fiancee in her daily letter. It is an extremely dietetic romance.

Looking over the Whiteman method in the critical spirit of scientific nutrition, there are several things that arrest the attenion.

First, it was 60 days before he had lost 18 pounds. He was 90 days losing 25 pounds, and apparently over half a year losing his required 103 pounds.

This is extremely sensible—and also, of course, extremely hard work. We heard of methods by which people take of such-and-such a number of pounds in two weeks. This rapid reduction is likely to be dangerous. But sticking to a diet for a long stretch of time takes will power. And here I note as a scientific fact that will power is what is required to reduce to any great extent.

The articles of food selected for omission in the Whiteman dietary were largely the fats. Again a sound scientific principle.

Like most people who are overweight Whiteman over-ate. Although he thought he didn't. His wife teasingly describes a bout he had with indigestion as a result of eating sausages and bananas and cream and Welsh rarebit. So it will be noticed he over-ate on fats.

Then one notes that the real secret of the Whiteman diet is the fact that there was simply less to eat in it. And that, strange as it seems, is the fact that most reductionists do not grasp. They always want to know what foods are reducing. Then they eat all they want of these. It doesn't make much difference what you eat (except the fats) if you want to reduce, but you must eat less of everything.

NOT MERE SENTIMENTALISM.

There are no signs of any slackening in the insistent demands from many quarters for an immediate and exhaustive public inquiry into the administration of Canada's penal institutions.

The Government cannot fail to heed this clamor for better treatment for the inmates of Canadian penitentiaries, nor should it make the mistake of imagining that the chorus of protest comes from a few hysterical people.

The citizens who are leading this crusade are not mere sentimentalists who would convert the penitentiaries into luxurious board houses and recreation grounds; they are progressive and sensible Canadians who know that convicts must not be pampered; who realize that there must be strict discipline, but who insist that prison administration must be guided by a spirit of humanity and fair play, that the brutal methods of an older and less enlightened day must be discarded, and that the control of penitentiaries must be brought into line with progressive thought.

Furthermore, they are not impressed with what has been revealed of the superintendency of General Ormond; most of them do not believe that he has the temperament or the viewpoint needed in such a responsible position; rather are they inclined to think that one of the first steps in prison reform should be a change at the top.

CHALLENGER DOES WELL.

Once again Gar Wood, grey-thatched American motor-boat builder and pilot, has conquered in the Harmsworth Cup series and retained the world's speed boat title.

His victory over Hubert Scott-Paine, the British challenger, was not a surprise; there were not many who imagined the Britisher's little craft would be successful in outspeeding the big Miss America X., and the opinion of the majority was vindicated by a clean-cut double win for the Algonac veteran whose title was never gravely in danger, although Scott-Paine made the second heat run yesterday considerably closer than was the initial test.

The challenger had the satisfaction of knowing that although twice beaten his little boat finished both races in good style and escaped the misfortune that has consistently hung on the trial of most of Wood's opponents, and that this year made an end of Horace Rodge's entry before the first heat got under way.

Hubert Scott-Payne, in fact, made a showing in his initial bid for the Harmsworth Trophy that justifies confidence in him as a serious contender for Wood's title; the experience he has gained on this occasion will be invaluable to him in future attempts to wrest the championship away from the United States, and it seems certain that he will be back again next year with a bigger and more powerful boat.

FORESEES BUILDING EXPANSION.

According to Donald M. Marvin, economist of the Royal Bank of Canada, a study of the building industry in Canada seems to indicate that a shortage of considerable magnitude is accumulating.

It may be safely estimated, he says, that this shortage is increasing at the rate of 100 million dollars a year.

Mr. Marvin points out that, judging by the statistics of the first seven months of the year, it is probable that the construction contracts awarded in Canada during 1933 will be smaller than in any year for which there are statistical records, and these records go back to 1911.

In 1932 the total value of the contracts awarded amounted to 132 million dollars, and this year it is not likely that the total will exceed 70 million.

These totals may be compared with the average value of building contracts in Canada from 1924 to 1928 which amounted to 364 million dollars or with the average for 1911 to 1929 which amounted to 292 millions.

It would seem evident, the bank's economist thinks, that in spite of the apparent surplus of residential space in most Canadian cities at the present moment a latent shortage of considerable magnitude is developing.

Moreover, renewed expansion of industrial activity will lead to a demand for types of factories and utility development dependent upon the industries which participate most actively in that expansion.

This view is in direct contrast with the opinion that Canadian cities are overbuilt and that a long period of building retrenchment lies ahead.

The mistake of being too pessimistic as to the future during a depression is almost as common as that of being over-optimistic during a boom.

GIVE THEM A CHANCE.

If many of the pupils in local schools this week are not as attentive as might be considered desirable it is to be hoped that the teachers will recognize the symptoms—just a day or so ago those bronzed boys and girls were living in a different world, a realm of sparkling water and pine-crested islands and wooded shores, a fairyland where pleasure was king and nothing mattered but swimming and paddling and sailing. A summer sun smiled down on the little folks; school books and blackboards were just a shadowy past and lessons something that seemed far in the future as the all too short August days sped rapidly by.

Suddenly it all ended; the wooden shutters were nailed on the windows of trim cottages, boats were pulled out of the water, camp clothes were discarded, and almost before they knew it the army of boys and girls was whisked back to town, and this morning found them in the almost forgotten atmosphere of the school room.

They'll soon get used to it again, for that is life; in a day or two they will have gotten into their stride, the familiar routine will have enslaved them once more and the school machinery will hum with its customary efficiency.

Until then let us trust that the teachers will understand that their little charges do not mean to be inattentive; they haven't just suceeded in shaking off the spell of the Kawarthas.

STRIPPED OFF THE TINSEL

(From the Border Cities Star)

At Port Stanley, the Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, stripped the tinsel from the C.C.F. grab bag package when he pointed out, with vigor and effectiveness, that the Woodsworth crowd stand for forceful imposition of their policies on the country and that Canadians must choose between the C.C.F. and democracy. Indeed, the Minister definitely labelled the C.C.F. idea "the very essence of Communism"—which, of course, it is.

"We have a problem," Mr. Stevens told his audience, "but mob rule will not solve that problem. It will not be solved by the gathering of men and women together and the stirring up of passions and the pointing to of some invisible thing called the State and saying the State owes you a living and should solve your problems. YOU PEOPLE ARE THE STATE. When men talk of society owing them a living, they mean that their neighbors owe them a living. To the degree that you contribute to the State, to that degree you are entitled to expect a return from the State....The system under which we live in Canada is not the capitalistic system, but the democratic system. The capitalistic system is only an economic part of the democratic system. It is not in itself a system of life....What is capitalism? Over half this audience are capitalists.

* * * *

Mr. Stevens makes the point clear. The men who for ever argue that the State owes them a living, that the State MUST provide everything needed by everybody, are merely saying—if they stop to analyze or ar prepared to be truthful—that their neighbors shall provide for them. It is the old, old story in the case of Mr. Woodsworth and his little band. Perhaps they even picture themselves in the roles of modern Robin Hoods, taking away from the rich to give to the poor. But Robin Hood was at least a romantic figure and one can't see Mr. Woodsworth and Miss Macphail that way. They are politicians—fairly subtle politicians, at that—and they are striving for power, or at least for a place sufficiently prominent to make them the balance of power. To achieve this end they have drawn up a program which they believe is calculated to apveal to the disappointed and the discouraged. That their program could not be carried out matters little to Mr. Woodsworth and Miss MacPhail. Like some politicians of the older parties, they apparently regard a platform or a party program as something merely designed for the purpose of helping their candidates to win.

WHAT IS THE C.C.F.?

Weeks ago the Independent C.C.F. split off from Mr. Woodsworth's Co-operative Commonwealth Federation for the alleged reason that the latter group was "too socialistic."

Now the Socialist Party in British Columbia announces its independence of the Woodsworth program on the ground that this program is not socialistic at all.

If it is at once "too socialistic" and not socialistic enough, just what is the C.C.F.?

The trouble with Mr. Woodsworth and his group is not a matter of doctrine, creed or theory.

Mr. Woodsworth could probably stand up and enunciate his political beliefs without straying once from the paths of soundness and good sense.

What Mr. Woodsworth BELIEVES is probably all good, progressive and intelligent.

Mr. Woodsworth's essential weakness is not in his views, but in his application of them.

For this highly intelligent, highly capable and highly humanitarian man is trying to apply his panacea to the world, not as it is, but as it should be.

Everyone remembers the perigrinations of James Branch Cavell's "Jurgen" and how that insatiable individual discovered the difference between these two worlds.

The "world as it should be" was peopled with all sort of imaginative deities and places. But the "world as it is" was run by a business-like old gentleman whose most pressing task was to get people through life with as little trouble and pain as possible.

The world that Mr. Woodsworth would build would be a very perfect world if there were any perfect people to live in it.

But, unfortunately, our institutions can never rise above men.

Our political, economic and social machinery will improve as man improves, and no faster.

The Independent C.C.F. is suspicious of Mr. Woodsworth because he dreams such wonderful dreams.

The Socialists are impatient with Mr. Woodsworth because he will not take their way of making his dreams come true.

Men of Mr. Woodsworth's type are Liberals who have forgotten the need of being practical.

We are in this world and, unless we die, we cannot get out of it. The thing to do is to adapt ourselves to its demands rather to create structures that the first breath of reality will bring tumbling down.—Vancouver Sun.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Good evening. How did you enjoy that extra hour's sleep?

With the city's schools throwing open their doors for another term this morning it will be a little difficult to convince young Peterborough that there is any justice in this world.

Daylight saving is over for another year, and even its most enthusiastic friends do not seem to be concerned over its passing.

Gar Wood retains the speed boat championship, but at least this year's challenger succeeded in finishing both heats with his boat intact, and that in itself is a record.

If Mr. Bennett is reading the Canadian newspapers these days he must surely have noticed that penitentiary administration in this country is regarded with considerable misgiving by the public.

It is evident that General Ormond's statement in regard to conditions in Kingston Penitentiary has utterly failed to satisfy the public. Reforms are insistently demanded.

VACATION ESCAPADE

By ARTHUR SHUMWAY

READ THIS FIRST:

Sally Gwynne leaving Chicago for a job as secretary to John Kemble Proctor, Florida millionaire, in Daytona, finds on her arrival that Proctor has been murdered. His nephew, Fred Proctor, urges her to remain and she does despite the advice of Ted Chandler, a young newspaperman she met on the train, who has heard of Proctor's ways with women and who suspects Proctor of his uncle's death. Ted gets a job as chauffeur on the estate and together he and Sally attempt to get to the bottom of the mystery. Sally returning from town finds a man waiting to see Proctor who happens to be out. The man turns out to be Mike Collins, a hard character, who leaves a message with Sally that he'll "be back." That night Sally, prowling through the house, sees Mike return and quarrel with Proctor. Sally getting back to her room finds someone in it. Proctor comes up the stairs as she screams. The man in Sally's room escapes. Next morning after Proctor goes out Sally searches the house and finds a box of .38 cartridges in the room of Gus Vitelli, mysterious old man who lives on the premises. She reports her findings to Ted.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 13.

So now it was Vitelli, ugly, leering broken-nosed Gus Vitelli. Sally could well believe that he had murdered John Kemble Proctor—if the millionaire's death really had been something more sinister than suicide. And she had been unable to believe in her heart that Fred Proctor could have killed his uncle. Fred Proctor was a hard man, yes, somewhat mysterious, something of a rake maybe, but he was too charming, too suave, Sally was sure, to drill his crusty old uncle between the eyes with a .38. Allowing even that he might be capable of committing a murder, he certainly would employ more subtle means, she thought. And she was glad. A devil perhaps, but a charming one.

"But Sally," Ted insisted, "I can't let you stay in that house. There's something wrong there, whatever it is, and you're going to be mixed up in it, first thing you know. That man in your room ——"

"You said you had a hunch ——"

"I know I did," he agreed, "but it's just a hunch so far. And that doesn't make it any safer for you. Sally, you've got to get out of there."

There was a set to Sally's jaw as she tilted her small face upward. "Well, I'm not going to," she declared. "I'm going to see what comes of all this if I have to sleep in a suit of armor with a machine gun on the foot of my bed."

Ted shrugged. "I'm sorry," he said quietly. "After all, you're your own boss." He turned away.

"But, Ted," Sally insisted. "Don't be angry about it."

"I'm not angry, Sally. I just thought we were going to work together and that you'd take my advice." He came back to the car and took her hand. "Listen, you little nit-wit," he said, "if anything happens to you, I don't know what I'd do."

"You're an old darling."

"All right. I'm an old darling. Only you worry me. And I just can't help it. So if you insist on risking your neck, just keep your eyes on that old gargoyle, Vitelli."

"I will, Ted. You watch me. Little S. S. Van Dine Holmes herself." Her smile gave way to an expression of thoughtfulness. "Do you know," she said, "I begin to see it all, now."

"I wish I did."

"But I do. Look, Ted. Vitelli had some grudge against old Mr. Proctor. He easily could, you know. And maybe he had a grudge against Fred Proctor, too. Well, then. He shot the uncle, then he tried to leave things so the nephew would be implicated."

Ted was nodding slowly, his eyes half closed.

Sally went on excitedly. "Then maybe Fred Proctor found it out, or got suspicious. What did he do? He started some sleuthing on his own account. He looked for the empty cartridge to see if perhaps it had come from Vitelli's gun. You see? He wasn't fooled by the one in the uncle's gun any more than you were. Isn't that possible?"

"Yes," Ted agreed. "And just possible. At any rate, Vitelli seems to be in it somehow and he's the kind of a lad who was born to slit throats and poison babies' milk. Listen' Listen, baby, I've got another hunch."

"Another?"

"Absolutely. Somehow we'll get a picture of this apple, Vitelli, and we'll send it up to Chicago to the police and see what kind of a report we get on him. Are there any pictures lying around loose?"

"I hope not. I'd hate to come across one in the dark."

"We've go to get one."

"I'll look all over the house, but I don't see why anybody there should want to keep one."

"If we can't find one, we'll take one! We can sneak up on him somehow with a little camera and shoot one while he's asleep if we have to."

"It won't be as easy as it sounds," Sally said.

"That's all right. I haven't frittered half a life in the newspaper business for nothing. I'll mug that guy if it's the last thing I do."

"But be careful, Ted."

Ted smiled at Sally and squinted an eye. "Aha," he said, "the tables are turned. Be careful says you." He bowed deeply. "Mademoiselle, I am flattered, deeply flattered."

That night she slipped out quite easily. Fred Proctor had not returned. At first she was worried, but no one else about the place seemed to be. Night prowlers, threatening callers, long and unexplained absences seemed to be part of the accepted routine in the villa by the ocean.

Ted was waiting on a bench at the north end of the long cement promenade built upon a seawall by the beach, just north of the big fishing pier.

His first words were, "I've got it, baby!"

Sally stared at him.

"The picture," he explained, as he got into the car. "Old Gargoyle's photo."

"Why—where did you get one so soon?"

"Another Chandler hunch, Sally. I figured the paper might have one for some reason and went over and asked them. Sure enough. Not so good, but a picture nevertheless. He and old man Proctor together with a big tarpon. Lucky for me they used to go fishing together."

"Let's see it. I'll bet the fish looks tame next to him."

"It's on its way north already, by air mail. I ought to get a wire in a couple of days."

They drove north on the hard-packed beach, toward Ormond. Sally drove slowly and after a while turned the car toward the ocean, stopped and shuff off the motor and the lights.

"Now, look around," she said, "wouldn't you think you were at some romantic spot on the coast of Spain or Africa maybe?"

Behind them rose the exotic outline of a hotel; on either side stretched the beach fading into darkness; ahead lay the eternally restless Atlantic.

"Gee, it's great, Sally," he said softly, moving closer toward her in the low front seat of the roadster. "When you look around and hear the old surf and take a good deep breath of this air you forget you're just a human being, don't you?"

Sally nodded.

"It doesn't seem possible that we're down here in Florida on our nerve," she said.

"No, nor that one of these days we're likely to get an ear shot off from behind a tree, either?" Ted sighed heavily.

"What's the matter?" Sally asked.

"Everything. It's so mixed up, so darned impossible."

"What is, Ted?"

"Everything. Meaning — you, and me, and the mess we're getting ourselves into. Just think, Sally; I only met you about a week ago and now look at us. At first I was afraid I'd lose you in 24 hours and never see you again. Now the time is going by and we're on the same ranch and yet we're farther apart than at first."

"We meet nights, though, don't we?"

"Sure, but that isn't enough."

"What else could we do?"

"It isn't just the meeting, Sally. It's more than that. We can get by with pretending not to know each other and still meet occasionally for a little talk like this, but it's more still. I have a feeling that the farther we get into this mess, the farther we're forced apart. What I mean is that I'm not making any real money, just sleuthing this way on a crack-brained hunch to turn up a good newspaper story? I'm not even working for a paper now, yet I go ahead and get you farther into the soup and me, too, just on the bare possibility of cracking a sensational yarn. Smear streamers all over the country and what have you got? Compared to what you might have, I mean."

"Why, you've got a lot."

"I suppose. What I'm trying to tell you is that I'm afraid I'm head-over-heels in love again and can't do anything about it because of the circumstances."

Sally felt tremendously sorry for Ted at that moment. And she knew that she liked him more than ever. She looked up at him. Before either of them realized it, they were close together, her head pressed against his shoulder. Suddenly Ted straightened up. "Wouldn't it?" he said.

"Why — what?" Sally asked, startled.

"The tide would have to come in. We've got to get off the beach or we'll be stuck here for the night with water up to our fenders."

Sally started the car and drove up the approach to the street and over, west, to the road that ran along the river. Within a few minutes they were back in Daytona Beach. Sally dropped Ted on the dark street around the corner from his hotel. "Goodnight, Sally," he mumbled, pressing her hand. And he was gone. Sally felt a strange mixture of stimulation, bewilderment, happiness and poignant regret, as she started back across the river.

ALL OF US

By MARSHALL MARLIN

THE BROWSER.

Some of these book reviewers don't know much. On the air, in book columns, the Browser finds them referring to Hervey Allen's enormous "Anthony Adverse" as a "picaresque novel". . . . Which it isn't. A picaresque novel is one "pertaining to picaroons or rogues; said of a style of literature dealing with rogues, popular in Spain in the 17th century" . . . and a picaresque novel is one that has a rogue for a hero, usually. . . . But anthony Adverse isn't a rogue, a rascal, a villain. He is an earnest, seeking human being with no meanness at all in him. Even the Browser knows better than to call Anthony Adverse a picaroon. (If you want to read a real picaresque novel go to the library and pick out Romain Rolland's "Colas Breugnon," one of the jolliest, lustiest bits of literature that has come out of France in a century. Or, maybe, two centuries. . . . Perhaps since Rabelaid, . . . The Browser wouldn't know.) But, you see, the Browser does know what a picaresque novel is, and some of these solemn reviewers don't. Back in his youth in his addle-esence, when he thought he had to read everything that had been written, he toiled through many a long, long volume, but never a one longer than "Anthony Adverse," which is 1,224 pages long. It has great stuff in it, many a purple passage, and sometimes the Browser almost regrets his sharp remarks about it last week. Hervey is as prodigal as Shakespeare in his creation of characters and has great powers of invention. The Browser wishes, wistfully, that it were great, but he was told of a 15-year-old boy yesterday who has read every word of it . . . as the Browser will, if only he has time. . . . This will probably be the last time he speaks of it. . . . What's the sense, anyway, of writing so much about a book that he doesn't think is as good as it ought to be? Just to show off his knowledge about such words as "picaresque"? Perhaps . . . Perhaps.

Rowena Cheny of Stony Creek, Conn., is kind to the Browser. She has taken the trouble to write to him, answering the questions he asked about Gladys Hasty Carroll, who wrote "As the Earth Turns." . . . She knows her and she says:

"Yes, she was born in maine and as you surmise, she knows the farm of which she writes, first hand. She left it when she married, right after graduating from college. She is still a young woman and has one small son of about 18 months. I don't know her exact age, but she simply IS youth—refreshing, enthusiastic, normal youth. And she did "come by it naturally" and nobody told her what to put in her book. She just feels life so truly and sees life so normally, that she simply writes, that's all. If you come to know her after reading her book, you will find her just as you felt she must be; and if you had read her book after having known her, you would find her book just the book you knew she would write—if that conveys anything." . . . There's a friend for you. . . . But it's not always like that with people and the stuff they write. . . . Now, the Browser is a solemn fellow. His mouth hangs down at the corners. He never smiles. The world weighs heavily on his shoulders. He shudders at a pun. He barks at children and snaps at babies and pushes old people off the sidewalk. But you'd never think it, would you?

Herbert Asbury's "informal history" of the "Barbary Coast" is a rascal of a book. The Browser gave it to a lady to read and she said: "Is this any kind of book to offer me?" and the Browser said yes, it was, so she read it and said "Prostitution is a disgusting thing, isn't it?" . . . So Asbury doesn't make the Barbary coast glamorous. . . . The Browser remembers it vaguely. When he was in his late 'teens he used to wander through that piratical area of San Francisco with about 35 cents in his pocket and ome away feeling like a very devil because he had walked down the center of Pacific street at half past one in the morning. . . . It's all in the book.

. . . John Dos Passos was ill, but he's better now and has gone to Spain to finish a novel.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

CANADA LED IN CHURCH UNION.

On this date, in 1883—fifty years ago, Methodist union was consummated at Belleville, thereby marking an evolution in our religious history. Many of the Loyalists who went to the Maritime Provinces or came up the St. Lawrence were Methodists and, be it said to their credit, held to their faith despite clerical and political pressure. Naturally, however, their opponents, of the Church of England, sought to make capital out of their affiliation with the Methodists in the United States. This proved so burdensome that in 1799 relations with the American churches were broken off and Methodism in British America was placed under the British conference as a missionary annex. But it was evidently not a complete separation, for in 1828, we are told, there was "an amicable separation of the Upper Canada Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church from the parent body in the United States." Five years later there was a union between the Wesleyan Conference in England and the larger part of the Methodist Episcopal Conference of Upper Canada. In 1841, however, that union was severed, but was resumed in 1847 and continued to 1874.

Meanwhile the union movement had started in Canada and begun to bring results. In 1854 the Lower Canada Wesleyan Missionary District was united with the Wesleyan Methodist Church in Canada; in 1874 there took place the union of the Wesleyan Methodist Church of Canada, the Wesleyan Methodist Church of Eastern British North America and the New Connection Methodist Church of Canada into the Wesleyan Methodist Church of Canada, and, in 1883, came the complete union of all the Methodist churches when the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Primitive Methodist Church and the Bible Christians came into the Methodist Church of Canada at that historic conference at Belleville when the enlarged church selected Rev. Albert Carman and Rev. S. D. Rice as joint general superintendents.

In thus uniting their various connections the Methodists were but following the example of the Presbyterians, who had, on July 15, 1875, consummated a complete union of all their churches into "The Presbyterian Church who had, on July 15, 1875, consummated a complete union of all their churches into "The Presbyterian Church in Canada." The still greater union which came in 1925, when the United Church of Canada was founded, is further illustration of the fact that Canada was the cradle of church unity. In this, as in many other things, Canada led the way: the Mother Country was glad to follow the example.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterborough's Leading Handwriting Analyst for the Readers of The Examiner.

Olive Mary Condon,
R. R. 4, Lakefield, Ont.:

The handwriting which you have portrayed on your sample for analysis shows that you are an interesting person, full of life and the joy of living. The well-defined capitals tell of a splendid ability along artistic lines. They show a keen desire to be thought well of, and to wear clothing best suited to your individual taste. You are quite discriminating and do not like to follow a set pattern, either as to what you shall wear, or what you shall do. Your intuition usually tells you what is correct. You are inclined to shut yourself off from the ordinary run of friends, because your mental plane is of a high order, and therefore you must be among those whose good fortune it is to measure up to your standard. Your disposition is usually about the same with the exception of times when you feel it is necessary to be secretive. Some of your upper loops express a love for good music.

M. E. T.,
291 Townsend Street, City:

The formations of letters as considered on your sample for analysis associate your personality with that of art, combined with benevolence and intrigue. Your power to compensate one attribute at the expen e of another is courageous. You disintegrate one for the benefit of the other at will, but never indulge in all three distinctive characteristics at the same time. It is worthy of mention that your associates command the situation. That is to say, your disposition alters according to the friends of the moment. The psychology of your 'make-up' indicates the ability to do business in a big way. But if you wish to accomplish your objective, your nature demands the appropriate clothing in line and color in order to produce the esoteric effect necessary to your occult mind. You can master many trades, but specialize in none. Your mind is too transitory to remain long at a time on one subject.

Mrs. M. Groombridge,
461 Bolivar Street, City.

The handwriting as signified on your sample for analysis is cognitive of your sensitive personality. You talk convincingly but not in an argumentative tone of voice. You are not very demonstrative or temperamental but can claim adaptability, agreeableness and genialty. You possess sufficient will-power to enable you to disseminate between good and bad, and to do the right thing at just the right moment. You are careful and thoughtful, but not too ambitious. You could work well under supervision, but not so well on your own initiative. Your capital 'M' communicates the idea that you accomplish many things against your better judgment, in order to prevent strife, and that back of your mind there is a wish to be different.

H. A. W.,
Maitland Avenue, City:

The handwriting as shown on your sample for analysis expresses a critical nature. You are reserved, yet at times delightfully frank and open. But, there are occasions when you are absolutely secretive and uncommunicative. You are conscientious and live strictly according to your code of honor. You are afraid to undertake to do anything on a large scale. You are inspired by the spiritual. You are affectionate and demonstrative, not very ambitious, but seem able to deal easily with the public, though public opinion disturbs your mental vibration to such an extent that you become nervous and irritable, if the opinion contradicts yours. You do not bear up well under disappointment, but soon find new outlets for your versatile emotions and become vivacious and cheerful.

Miss E. G.,
Lakefield, Ontario:

The handwriting as shown on your sample for analysis expresses a genial, fun-loving nature. You are good, kind and generous. Not anything is too much trouble, if it is for the benefit of others, and if it means happiness for them. Your temperament is fine and even. You are honest and trustworthy. You have an alert mind for routine and detail but you are at your best under kind supervision. The crossing of your 't' bars shows that you have just sufficient will-power and determination to enable you to undertake necessary plans, and to carry them out diligently. There is a touch of the artistic in your capital letter 'L' which softens down the determined will, when it becomes predominant at times. Your characteristics are all good ones and I see no logical reason why you should not make a success of your life. Here's wishing the very best of good luck!

C. E. McM.,
R. R. 3, Millbrook, Ont.:

The handwriting as delineated on your sample for analysis indicates that you are refined, well poised and gracious. You are secretive and reserved. You are rather apt to be retiring and seek silence, in order to concentrate and make the best of your intelligent thoughts. You should be expert at routine and detail, but you would have to be allowed to take your time and arrange the little necessary details yourself. You see, you do not like to be ordered about. Yet you can, and do, obey orders, when given with genuine authority. Your disposit on is fin and even. You are rather docile and placid, yet good and true.

Mrs. C. G. C.,
Westcott Street, City:

The handwriting as delineated on your sample for analysis reveals a tender disposition. You are genuine and friendly, pleasant and courteous and adaptable. You are artistic and appear to enjoy music. You have a very good imagination, but you are not quite as ambitious as most people. At least, not yet. Very likely you will set your mind upon one certain objective in the near future, and then persevere till you have obtained your goal. Your general character is jolly and fun-loving, honest and forgiving.

G. P., Peterborough, Ont.:

The handwriting as delineated on your sample for analysis shows that you are intuitive and interesting. You seem to enjoy thinking out tiny details of exceptional merit, and you are careful and thoughtful. Chemistry and pharmacy should interest you deeply. Your small closely knit, compact letters show the characteristic necessary for this work. Your capital letters with their graceful leaning loops show the ability to forge ahead till you derive perfection. You are going to be successful because you honestly wish to be so. I admire the courage you are showing and the will-power you have acquired for one of your years. Yours is a most interesting writing and deserves much credit.

One-Minute Pulpit

For if you live after the flesh, ye shall die; but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live.—Romans 8:13.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Sept. 5 (C.P.).—Industrial stocks were carried a little lower in the final hour of to-day's session by a sell-off in New York after holding fairly steady through most of the day. All the interlisted shares took losses ranging from fractions to two points. Volume was small.

Walkers Common sagged 2 to 46, Distillers Seagram ¾ to 27¼, Industrial Alcohol ¼ to 17¾, and Brewers and Distillers 15 cents to $2.55.

Nickel fell off in the final trading to close at $21.25, down 50 cents. Smelters was steady, Ford of Canada off a point to 15, Brazilian ⅝ to 14⅜, and C.P.R. dropped ¼ to 17¾.

The market drifted along in a rather aimless fashion through most of the day, showing more losses than gains at mid-afternoon. The general livening up that was forecast for the immediate post-Labor Day period did not materialize, and following the New York trend, prices dropped fractions to full points in the usual leaders.

Turnover in the oil group was fairly substantial and British-American firmed a little.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, September 5 (C.P.) —Stocks moved in a dull and lower range to-day. Pressure was lacking but in the absence of any buying interest prices worked fractions to around 2 points lower in late dealings. Losses of 1 to around 2 were shown by Dupont, U.S. Steel, National Distillers, International Harvester, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Can and New York Central. Allied Chemical dropped 4½ points.

Transfers approximated 1,000,000 shares.

MINING EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Sept. 5 (CP)—The Standard Mining Market showed little change in today's trading from its movements in the closing days of August and the close was irregularly lower. The tone was good with some price advances in the gold group, slightly unsteady in the base metal and silver section and firm to strong in the oils. The turnover was in average summer volume.

Dome and McIntyre were up $1.50 each and Hollinger, Lake Shore, and Wright Hargreaves were unchanged while Teck gained 5, Pioneer 15, and Bralorne about 25.

Nickel lost 60 cents and in the silvers Eldorado was off 13, Nipissing 5 and Castle up 3. Ajax firmed to $1.40 and Acme to 26, both up 2, but Home dropped 6 and Nordon 1. Oil Selections also weakened a fraction.

Gold shares were inclined to firm from the opening, following the New York market's cue, but buying was too small volume to carry the advance any appreciable distance. In the base metals Nickel barely held its ground and through the first four hours held 25 to 40 cents under last Friday's close.

An advance of nearly half a cent in the price of bar silver had no effect on the white metal shares which dropped a few cents each, and traded lightly.

The fusion point of gold is approximately 1092 degrees centigrade.

SNOW AT EDMONTON

EDMONTON—A touch of the whip from old man winter today left Northern Alberta farmers numb and idle as snow falls halted harvesting and frost caused extensive damage to crops in the north country.

Mining Items

Furnished by Hiland Rudkins & Co., Correspondents of J. H. Crang & Co.

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—The time is at hand that everyone has been looking for—the end of the holidays—almost unanimous in the opinion that this event should mark the beginning of a new bull market. The one danger sign was that the feeling or opinion was so general and widespread. Certain it is that the market for the past couple of weeks has been reflecting this development, the accumulation being in anticipation of steadily higher prices. To-day we would expect a good steady market—nothing spectacular—prices will hold steadily—perhaps some specialties will move into new high ground. This is a safe prediction. The market having been so steady and firm despite its quietness and lack of volume.

BUY THE GOLDS—It is a good day to take stock, to financially get one's house in order and so sit so that clients will reap the greatest benefit when the up drive starts.

CHOICE OF LEADERS—Leading golds should come first and they should give a nice profit rather quickly. All are pretty well under the former highs Dome's earnings justify a higher price. McIntyre and Hollinger both look up. New York has been a heavy and steady buyer of Lake Shore. Improved conditions at this mine are yet to be reflected in earnings and the market. Teck and Wright Hargreaves are two of the strongest stocks on the board.

NICKEL—New York calls Nickel for a sharp swing and Noranda will go along, especially if copper strengthens. Our real weakness at the moment is Bradlorne, for a substantial swing, maybe dollars.

OILS—Oils will be next. This group only started lately to reflect the improved outlook and are now earmarked for leadership. This may develop soon.

TWO GREAT BEAR LAKE issues will appear this week. Bear will be relisted and White Eagle will be called for trading. Both issues are well sponsored and should give a good account of themselves. Both have excellent properties.

STREETS—Adanac $65-$75; Alsbach off'd 7; Beattie 130-135; Bathurst 3-4; Bidgood 1½-2¼; Cont. Gas 15-16; Dunlop 7¾-8¾; Gods Lake 60-63; Greene Stabelle 47-52; Great Bear Lake 40-45; Horseshoe 15-17; Island Lake 20-25; Kenty, 148-152; Little Long Lac 44-48; Man & Eastern 4-5; Metals Development 5½-6¼; Normetals 55-70; Pandora off'd 34; Markhill 25-27; Pen Pete 1-1½; Smelters Gold, 16-17½; South Timmlemont Units $39-$41; Sun Bear, 34-38; White 26½-27½; Young Davidson 15-16½.

moted from his position as vice-principal of Central School. Donald Munro has been appointed to fill Mr. Steer's place and P. D. Windrim, a new appointment to the staff, is filling the vacancy in the general staff of Central School.

Schools Improved

The school buildings and properties were in excellent shape for the opening as the result of the summer's grooming. During the summer, the old Grace Sunday School at Queen Alexandra School was razed and the school grounds considerably enlarged. A new roof was put on Queen Mary School. The exterior fittings on the Prince of Wales School were given a freshening coat of paint and new brick porches were erected at the King Edward School building. The interior of King Edward School was redecorated.

Despite the decision of the Board of Education early this summer to close the South Central School building, the building was opened again this morning for auxiliary public school classes and the motor mechanics class of the Vocational School. Unable to secure a quorum for a special meeting to deal with the matter, members of the Board have agreed unofficially to reverse their decision to close the building when it was discovered that the action would necessitate unwanted expenditures and inconveniences at the present time. The matter will likely come up for official attention at the board's meeting to-night.

Reg. Butler is a new appointment to the position of janitor at Confederation School. He is filling the vacancy resulting from the death this summer of E. W. Wood.

HEAVY VEIL OF SMOKE COVERED THIS DISTRICT

Labor Day's horizon was thinly curtained with a veil of smoke that deepened the early mist of autumn. The faintly acrid tang in the holiday atmosphere was in itself an accompaniment of fall, and many enquiries were heard as to the source of the wood smoke. No fires have been reported in this neighborhood, but trainmen expressed the opinion that the smoke followed the water course all the way from heavy bush fires in the Midland area.

TOO MUCH

NEW YORK, Sept. 5 (AP)—The loss of $1,000,000 drove Nathan Taback to suicide.

His family told police he lost more than $1,000,000 in the depression, and was despondent.

SPORT OF KINGS

By ART MURRAY
(Special to Examiner.)

WITH THE opening of the Toronto tracks on this coming Saturday at Billy Woollat's Thorncliffe plant we think it would be an opportune time to let you have this story of an incident which happened some years ago. A well known Toronto sportsman had a horse called Monkey which won a race at Dufferin park. In those days the class of nags which performed at Dufferin were considered to be very much inferior to those which cavorted at the Woodbine. This gentleman knew that Monkey had a lot of speed and from his trials he figured he could win a race at Woodbine, so accordingly he entered him in a mile race on Saturday, the closing day of the meet.

* * *

HE ADVISED all his personal friends that his horse was sure to be a good thing and in those days as there were no parimutuel machines and all betting was done with bookmakers who were holding Monkey at fifty to one. The owner and his friends wagered something like one thousand dollars on his chances and as the horses went to the post they were all set to reap a rich harvest. There were twelve horses in the race and they all got away to a good start with Monkey on the rail going to the front. He increased his lead going up on the back stretch and around the bend and turning into the home stretch he had a margin of some ten lengths, but instead of hugging the rail he ran right to the outside fence and the jockey instead of letting him run straight and finishing on the outside became excited and steered him once again into the inner rail. The horse by this time was very nervous and jumped over the fence in to the infield and kept on going, clearing the outside fence and ran up the street and before the rider could get him under control again he was about two miles from the track. It took several hours to get him cooled off, but at that he was his old self again a lot quicker than his supporters.

* * *

SHADY WELL is resting up at Thorncliffe and will have something to say about all handicap events in the fall meetings. Bushman is another that is fast rounding into form and it will not be long now. Yellow Metal has been fooling around, kidding the troops lately and one of these fine days will be kicking dust in the eyes of the same hides that have been beating him in past performances.

* * *

CONNY SMYTHE has a two-year-old called Divert and the clockers tell us he is one of the fastest in the business and is right on razor edge. French Lass is all ready for a winning effort and it will be easy money, the nag possesses a lot of class. Milestone has rounded into form and it will take a good Canuck bred to beat him from now on. He is always at his best in the fall. Once again we want to remind you that Young Kitty of the Seagram string is long overdue.

DIRECT FROM CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION

The Finest Military Band in Great Britain — A Treat for All Central Ontario

THE

SCOTS GUARDS BAND

Under Leadership of Lieut. H. E. Dowell

AT THE

PETERBOROUGH INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION

MONDAY AND TUESDAY EVENINGS, SEPT. 11 & 12

Many famous bandmasters have directed the Scots Guards Band which is at present touring Canada. The Band, which is one of the most famous in the British Army, is nearly 250 years old, and at first consisted of professional oboe players who were not enlisted men, but were engaged by the month.

The first bandmaster of the Scots Guards of whom there is any record was John Mahon, an eminent clarinettist. Mahon led the Band until 1797, in which year Edward Hopkins, recognized as one of the most brilliant clarinettists of his day, was appointed. Hopkins was in charge of the Band in Paris in 1815, where the musicians were stationed while the Scots Guards were fighting under Wellington at Waterloo.

In the middle of the last century, Carl Boose, one of the greatest bandmasters in the history of the British Army, was appointed director of music. Boose was in many ways the founder of the modern regimental Band. He was also the founder of the first musical journal dealing with band music to be instituted in Great Britain.

Lieut. F. W. Wood, who retired recently as bandmaster, was another great name in the history of the Scots Guards Band. Mr. Wood trained the famous York and Lancaster Band which won first prize in the competition of Army Bands held in London in 1898. In 1921, Mr. Wood succeeded Dr. Williams as senior director of music of the Brigade of Guards.

Lieut H. E. Dowell, the present director of music for the Scots Guards, will be in charge of the Band during the present tour.

The Scots Guards will give Two Complete Programs on Monday and Tuesday Evenings, September 11th and 12th, and it is expected this Band will draw enormous crowds.

JEAN WILSON'S ILLNESS FATAL

Strange Malady Caused the Death of Skating Champion on Sunday.

MUSCLES AFFECTED

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—Jean Wilson, champion of women speed skaters, died late Sunday afternoon in St. Michael's Hospital as a result of the strange malady which had baffled Canada's leading physicians and resulted in her confinement to a hospital bed for the past year and a half.

On Sunday a week ago, Miss Wilson became weaker, was unable to take nourishment and on Monday was administered oxygen. The malady which pronounced itself in a collapse of her muscles, affected the muscles of her lungs and it was found necessary to utilize artificial respiration.

Foremost of Canada's women speed skaters, Miss Wilson was undefeated holder of the North American women's championship titles at five distances. In 1932 she represented Canada at the Olympics at Lake Placid, scoring a big total for the Canadian contingent. It was shortly after her return that the mysterious muscular affliction evidenced itself.

She was 23 years old on the 19th of July last, spending her birthday in the hospital.

Miss Wilson is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Wilson; four sisters, Mrs. L. Leeson, Miss Isobel Wilson, Miss Helen Wilson, Miss Agnes Wilson, and two brothers, Alex. and David.

limbs, police reported, might have been tossed from an automobile as it passed the field.

The woman's nails had been recently manicured, and the hands showed excellent care. A mark on one arm, the coroner said, might have been made by a bullet.

Expected on Visit

OTTAWA, Sept. 5.—(CP)—Mrs. Aurore Desjardins McCann, whose dismembered body was found in a field near Detroit, Mich., yesterday, had been expected to visit relatives here over the week-end. She was born here 30 years ago but her father, Wilfred Desjardins, now lives in Montreal.

Mrs. McCann left here a number of years ago. She first married a man named Jobb, a nephew of Sir Sam Hughes, Canada's war-time Minister of Militia. Jobb had been a paymaster in an overseas infantry battalion. He died four years ago and was buried in Lindsay, Ont.

Three years ago, Mrs. McCann married again, this time to an enamel baker employed in a Detroit automobile factory. A sister, Mrs. B. Sequin, and a brother, Arthur Desjardins, live in Detroit.

OUTLAW BAILEY ESCAPES PRISON

service station two miles from town. As they neared the car, Bailey saw them approach, turned and sped toward the city.

Near the city limits the officers came within firing range and sent several shots after the fleeing automobile. They fired high for fear of striking the kidnapped turnkey.

"We could have killed Bailey," Chief Dun said, "but we didn't want to risk injuring Tresp."

Bailey sped on as fast as the car would carry him. Near the centre of Armdore, however, he apparently realized that escape was impossible. He stopped the car in front of a hatel and sat quietly, waiting for the officers to come up.

Questioned concerning the weapon with which he was armed, Bailey said blandly that he had found it in his cell.

"That gun was in a mattress in my cell" the convict said. "This morning, just before I got away, I felt something hard in the mattress and, sure enough, it was the gun."

OFFICERS ARRESTED NEW JAUNTA PICKED

mands, passively heard Secretary of War Horacio Ferrer harangue them about their duties, and then started the revolt.

They immediately deployed machine guns throughout the city and declared they had displaced all their officers.

"We will not relinquish control," the sergeant-leader said, "until a truly revolutionary government has been established in Cuba then the command will be given back to the officers."

The insurrectionists seized all barracks in and about Havana, and claimed that all units stationed in the interior of the island had joined their movement.

Sergeant Batista was named provisional chief of staff. All commissioned officers were either arrested or sent under guards to their homes. In all, they said, 30 officers were detained.

Meanwhile, the possibility grew that clashes would follow between the rebels and A.B.C. members, many of whom are known to be well armed.

Seize A.B.C. Men

It was called significant that the insurrectionists invaded the offices of the judicial police, disarmed and imprisoned Chief Rodriquez and assistant Chief Leyola, both of whom are A B C men.

Unconfirmed reports said American Ambassador Sumner Wells yesterday told members of another erstwhile revolutionary group, the O.C.R.R., that Cuba's independence would not be threatened provided any change of government would be effected without bloodshed.

Havana was thrown into a state of intense excitement as news of the fast developments spread.

Automobiles were driven at high speeds throughout the city, carrying men who shouted "viva" "new revolution" and shots were fired into the air.

Some citizens entered the army barracks and carried out machine guns and rifles.

Ambassador Welles went to the embassy at 2.00 a.m. He made no statement.

A tense atmosphere prevailed at headquarters of the A.B.C. as members rushed about giving and taking orders.

THREE HURT IN COLLISON

PICKERING, Ont.—Three persons suffered facial injuries and bruises to-day when a Buffalo automobile driven by John Sheppard collided with another driven by Oscar Trano of Toronto. The Sheppard car left the road following the crash and plunged into the ditch.

One of the important maxims of the common law is "Ignorance of the law excuses no one."

DRIVES HIMSELF TO WORK AT 82

And Still Plays a Little Golf

How many of us, when we are 82, will be the equal in health and activity of this vigorous old Scottish engineer? In a letter he says:—

"I arrived here from Scotland on the 7th April, 1870. I am over 82 years old. I drive my Ford car 40 miles over hills and dales to a factory, and can still play a little golf. I have taken the little dose of Kruschen Salts in my cup of coffee every morning for some years, and I believe it is keeping me in good health and enabling me to keep on working at the factories as engineer."—L.A.

Whether you are still in your teens or past your prime, it is neither too early nor too late to start on the "little daily dose." Just a tiny, tasteless pinch of Kruschen Salts in your morning cup of tea or coffee! They ensure internal cleanliness, and keep the bloodstream pure. New and refreshed blood is sent coursing to every fibre of your being. Rheumatism, headaches, indigestion and backache all pass you by.

Sleeping Epidemic Adds Ten Victims

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 5.—The epidemic of sleeping sickness spread yesterday despite vigorous efforts of health officials, who reported ten more deaths in the past 36 hours to bring the total to 72 here since July 30.

New isolation wards were opened in hospitals to care for the increasing number of victims of the mysterious malady. Since the outbreak in late July, 482 cases have been treated. More than 200 still are in hospitals.

A few have recovered completely and many others have been released from hospitals and sent home to complete their recuperation. Health officials said they believed very few persons recovering would suffer any permanent effects.

NO PRESSURE ON FORD AS N.R.A. GOES IN FORCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (A.P.).—Public opinion to-day apparently was the first chosen jury of President Roosevelt's recovery administration for deciding the case of Henry Ford's conspicuous absence from NRA membership.

As the rest of the United States automobile industry began its first official work day under the Blue Eagle, NRA leaders evidenced every intention—for the present, at least—of "letting nature take its course" with Ford—the industrial campaign's first major holdout.

Obituary

MRS. W. G. CHRYSLER.

MARMORA, September 5 (Examiner Correspondence). — The funeral of the late Mrs. W. G. Chrysler, which took place on Saturday afternoon, was one of the largest seen in this district in some years. Over fifty cars were in the cortege, which left her late residence at Deloro for service in St. Andrew's United Church.

At the church many were unable to gain admittance. Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth, who officiated, delivered a comforting discourse appropriate to the occasion.

The pall-bearers were: T. Cousins, M. McCoy, L. K. Crawford, G. O'Neill, Sr., W. Foster, and H. O. Loveless. A profusion of floral emblems surmounted the casket.

MORRIS HARVEY VOLLICK.

MADOC, Sept. 5. — (Examiner Correspondence). — In Madoc Village, on Tuesday, August 29, 1933, Morris Harvey Vollick passed away after a prolonged illness bravely borne. He was 66 years of age and leaves besides his sorrowing widow, one daughter, Mrs. Thompson, of Toronto, and two sons, Wesley, of Madoc, and Russel, of Point Anne.

The funeral took place from his late residence on Friday afternoon, Sept. 1, Rev. W. G. Hope-Swayne, rector of St. John's Anglican Church, officiating. Beloved and familiar hymns were sung, "Rock of Ages" and "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." Taking as his text Ps. 37:37, in the Prayer Book version, "Keep innocency and take heed unto the thing that is right: for that shall bring a man peace at the last," Rev. Mr. Swayne preached a most comforting and inspiring sermon.

The pallbearers were Messrs. P. Gunn, J. Armstrong, Callery, T. Blue, R. O'Riordan and Devolin. Interment was made at Lakeview Cemetery, Madoc.

A Fish Story

A young couple were drifting along in a canoe at Chemong talking idle nothings, when a fish popped its head up out of the water, stood on its tail, and wiggled its ears at them. Now, scientists tell us that fish have no ears, but this one, being a Chemong fish, could disport a pair if it wished; and on the other hand perhaps it had heard the old adage, "That love is blind," and so took a chance to expose itself to full view of the unsuspecting pair, who were told that the next time it happened they must be prepared. They must carry a piece of cheese with them, for fish with ears must not be allowed to escape because they were quite likely to carry 'tales' or tails. So cheese, if handled correctly would be sufficient. Now the thing they were told to do was to wait till the poor fish came up to wiggle its ears at them, then very quickly they were to sneak up behind him, insert a piece of cheese in the hole in the water through which Mr. Fish made his appearance. The cheese would swell to such an extent that the magnitude of its proportions, would in an instant close up the hole, choke the fish and end the tale. Chemong fish are well-trained. They wait until visitors arrive from points west, etc, before they deign to get themselves 'hooked.' Nothing like seeing the world—it warms the cockles of the heart even from a frying pan

LIBERAL PARLEY OPENED BY KING

McGill Professor Cuts At Canada's Representative To League of Nations.

LEFT POOR IMPRESSION

PORT HOPE, Sept. 5. (C.P.)—A Liberal summer conference, opened here yesterday by Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader in the House of Commons, and Hon. Vincent Massey, Dominion Liberal organizer, to-day proceeded with discussions on international economics, transportation, constitutional law and other problems.

The conference yesterday listened to an address on the United States' National Recovery Act by W. A. Marriman, chairman of the steel committee that provoked a heated rejoinder from Professor T. E. Gregory, University of London, who threatened to leave the meeting if it did not "give intelligent consideration to serious economic problems."

Professor Gregory took issue with Mr. Harriman's remark that General H. S. Johnson head of the N.R.A. had used "army language" in dealing with some of the committees that called on him.

Professor P. E. Corbett of McGill University Montreal delivered a forthright criticism of Canada's representatives to the League of Nations, some of whom, he said, had left in Geneva "an impress of ignorance and stupidity".

THREE MEN, BOY SINK TO DEATH OVER LABOR DAY

Prominent Ottawa Lawyer Gives Life In Vain Effort To Save 11 Year Old Son.

BAY QUINTE CLAIMS TWO

Toronto Masons Go Down As Boat Upsets — Third Barely Rescued.

TORONTO, Sept. 5 (C.P.)—Three men, prominent in legal and fraternal circles of the Province, were among the four persons who lost their lives by drowning in Ontario over the Labor Day holiday.

At Lake Constance, 25 miles from Ottawa, a prominent lawyer and his son perished, while two Toronto men, veteran members of the Masonic Order, lost their lives in the Bay of Quinte, near Belleville.

From details available it appears J. W. Gauvreau, K.C., one of Ottawa's leading criminal lawyers, gave up his life in a vain attempt to save his 11-year-old son, Arthur. The youth, it was understood, toppled from the boat while he and his father were fishing at Lake Constance yesterday.

The other double drowning occurred at Northport, a few mile east of Belleville. William Dick, 52, and Edward J. Repath, 73, lost their lives when their boat capsized yesterday in the Bay of Quinte. A third member of the party, Charles Carrie, made a strong effort to save his companions but to no avail. Both bodies were recovered.

According to Carrie, the boat capsized when Dick was startled into moving by being struck on the shoulder by a small wave.

Casting For Perch.

The sudden swell in the waves occurred as the trio, companions on many a fishing trip, were casting away in search of perch which Dick had expressed a wish to take home. The wave splashed Dick as he sat in the bow and caused him to shift his position quickly.

The next moment the three were in the water, struggling frantically to grip the boat as it rolled over and over. Carrie steadied the craft and aided Repath to regain his hold after he had lost it. He then helped Dick in a similar manner and cautioned him to keep calm and not move.

Repath in the meantime, had struck out for shore, and was some 40 feet away from his companions, when he suddenly sank. Dick, attempting to climb up on the boat, slipped and slid back into the water and was drowned.

Mrs. Fred Reinholdt, attracted by the shouts of Carrie, quickly took in the situation and hastily sent for help. Mrs. Reinholdt's husband and Frank Lambert arrived on the scene just in time to seize Carrie as he was slowly lapsing into unconsciousness from the terrible ordeal through which he had been through.

The bodies of the two men were recovered some time afterward and brought to Belleville, from where they will be shipped to Toronto.

Youth Rounds Up Wild Bear With Club Mistaking It For Friend's Shaggy Pet

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Sept. 4 (CP)—Some people acquire bears honestly and others have bears thrust upon them. Take for instance, the call of Pete Jones, who lives near the end of the Batchawana Road, which winds its way into the wilderness along the lake shore north of here. Thereby hangs a tale.

Pete has, or had, a tame bear, which he had trained at the end of a chain for several years. The animal was a delight to tourists and a source of gratification to Pete. It halted tourists northward bound to the sand beach of Batchawana Bay and was photographed. The bear was well housed and fed and so was Pete. But the bear, some days ago, fell into disrepute with Pete and the tourists. tI angered a skunk and was no longer an asset at the Jones home. Disgusted, Pete shooed the animal into the bush.

Appeared on the scene Arthur Bodley, 16-year-old son of Horace Bodley of Sault Ste Marie, who was camping in the area. Arthur met a bear on the road and thought he recognized it as Pete's so he armed himself with a club and herded Bruin to Pete's home.

The procession of two arrived at the Jones' home and Pete was induced to disembark from his accustomed perch in a rocking chair on the front verandah.

"Here's your bear," said Arthur, "I found it wandering down the road and I thought you would be glad to get it back."

Pete viewed the animal with disapproval.

"H——l," he said, "that isn't my bear."

It was a wild bear which Bodley had encountered along the road. The young man, who had planned to stay at the camp for another week, hastily packed up his outfit and made tracks for the Sault.

He believe he has "it," and that he attracts bears.

TORNADO HITS SOUTHERN TEX.

Homes Are Smashed, Trees Broken And Crops Damaged In Wild Gale.

NO DAMAGE ESTIMATES.

(By the Associated Press)

A hurricane, terror of the tropics, tore at Southern Texas today, cutting Brownsville and the Garden country of the lower Rio Grande off from other parts of United States.

Smashed homes, crashing trees and damaged crops marked the path of the howling storm. No one dared to survey the damage until the winds abated.

The hurricane's centre apparently raged inland near Brownsville, not far from the Lone Star states' southern tip. That city of 22,000 lay in an area of blank silence as communcation lines gave way.

Gales also smote the coast to Corpus Christi, 200 miles north, and even beyond. Water rushed through streets at Corpus Christi and people took refuge on bluffs. At Freeport, all but six families evacuated the town yesterday, as storm portents grew.

Meanwhile Florida picked up debris in the path of a hurricane which swept across it yesterday, doing damage estimated at $1,000,000 One Negro died.

The storm damaged homes and wrecked small boats along the East coast yesterday, then swung inland last night and devastated citrus crops. Some 3,000 residents who had fled from the low-lying Okeechobee country returned.

Two tropical storms swept Mexico's east coast last night, paralyzing shipping in some localities. Cuba was speeding relief to areas devastated by a storm which killed more than 100 and injured thousands last Friday.

BUSINESS MEN MUCH TO BLAME AS THE BANKERS

Professor Gregory Addresses Liberal Summer Conference.

RAISING TARIFFS.

Mistakes Made In Boom Years Should Be Studied Speaker Declares.

PORT HOPE, Ont., Sept. 5.—(CP)—Short cuts and patent medicines are not the way out of the present economic difficulties, T. E Gregory, Professor of Economics at the University of London, England, told the Liberal summer conference here today. In seeking a solution one could not ignore the great body of economic law built up by a century and a half of profound thought on the part of British, French and United States economists.

Mistakes Made in Boom

Every depression succeeded a period of prosperity and if one wished to find the causes of depression one must seek to discover the mistakes made in the preceding boom said Dr. Gregory. These were mistakes of monetary policy, but before pointing a finger of scorn at the bankers one should point a finger of scorn at the business men. The present depression had lasted longer this time because of the growing inelasticity and rigidity of economic society, he said. If politicians had not meddled with the economic machine, said Professor Gregory, he believed the world would now have been climbing out of the depression.

The problem now was to find employment for those unable to support themselves, and this had led to enormous expenditures in public works and relief schemes. But these were purely local, and had no bearing on the international situation.

One of the paradoxes of the abandonment of the gold standard by the great nations was that this had failed to cure the evils which this abandonment was designed to cure. Side by side with it there arose an international movement towards raising the level of prices by means of tariffs and other obstacles to the free flow of trade. In this movement, said Prof. Gregory, Canada had unfortunately taken a prominent place.

Increase Reported In Retail Business

Saturday's Business Better Than Dollar Day B. A. Hickey Declares.

"Our business Saturday was better than Dollar Day, and Dollar Day was four times larger than the previous Saturday," B. A. Hickey of the Fashion-Craft Store told The Examiner to-day, in expressing confidence that market conditions were materially improving.

"We can speak of business only as we find it, and recent sales have been very encouraging. It is generally known throughout the trade that prices are somewhat higher in the mills, and for that reason our advertisements have been advising the public to buy in the present market. Recent letters have announced to us advances in shirtings, woollens and other mill products, increases being as high as 15 and 20 per cent. Of course this rate does not apply to the finished product, but the manufacturer will be forced to increase prices of new goods."

TRADE UNIONS DEMAND PACT WITH RUSSIANS

Urge Credit Extensions To Boost Soviet Orders In Great Britain.

LAUD U.S. POLICIES.

Suggest Boycotting German Goods To Strike Blow At Hitlerism.

BRIGHTON England September 5 (C.P.). — The Trades Union Congress at its annual meeting here to-day adopted an emergency resolution calling for the conclusion of a commercial treaty between Great Britain and Soviet Russia.

The statement also asked for the extension of adequate credits for Anglo-Russian trade, thus enabling the Soviet Government to place greatly increased orders in Great Britain.

During a discussion, G M. Hann, delegate from London declared that if Great Britain gave the same facilities to the Russians that Germany had, "this country could capture a large slice of the German trade with Russia."

The British Labor movement, he added, "has called for the boycott of German goods, and this capture of Germany's Russian trade would be a very effective way of hitting at Hitlerism."

In his inaugural address President Alexander Walkden expressed warm admiration for President Roosevelt's recovery policies.

Two recent events, Walkden said, had clearly illustrated the desperate extremities to which canital has been reduced. One was the virtual confession through the World Economic Conference of the inability of capitalist statesmen to propound a policy of international co-operation.

The other the Trades Union president said, was the recognition by the President of the United States of the impossibility of restoring prosperity by orthodox methods.

Car Strikes Buggy On Hastings Road

(Examiner Correspondence)

HASTINGS, Sept. 5. — Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Blackburn and daughter Miss Dorothy narrowly escaped serious injuries on Saturday morning returning home from the street dance when a car driven by A. Lowe of Campbellford accompanied by V. P. Monahan of Toronto crashed into the buggy. Mr. and Mrs. Blackburn and daughter were proceeding along the Norwood road near the cheese factory when Lowe driving a Chevrolet sedan crashed into the buggy throwing the occupants clear of the wreckage and they suffered a bad shaking up as well as several scratches, the car turned over on its side but the occupants escaped injury.

Constable Killingbeck investigated and no charge was laid against the driver who claimed the fog was so dense he did not see the vehicle.

Scarcity Of Food Driver Bears South

Wild life—particularly in the way of bears—is plentiful in the northern section of Peterborough County this year according to reports from a group of campers who have returned to the city after a visit to Catchacoma Lake.

Jim Turner and a party succeeded in catching a live bear cub near the lake during their stay. The cub was lassooeod in the woods by R. W. Lauber and subsequently tamed through the efforts of Reg. Chandler. Ted Borbridge reports sighting a large bear at Bottle Creek, and, on another day, a group consisting of Jack Comstock, Jim Turner and Clarence Simpson spied a husky Bruin while hiking near Rockcroft. The size of the latter bear can be judged on the word of the campers that they measured one of its jumps along the road as nine feet.

The group say that a scarcity of food this year is driving the wild life closer to civilization. Two red fox and large numbers of partridge and ducks were seen.

Terriers Defeat Toronto to Stay in O.B.A.A. Running

BEHIND LESURF'S FINE HURLING LOCAL JUVENILES PLAY SMARTLY

Hit and Field Well to Coast To Well Earned 8-2 Victory.

THIRD GAME NECESSARY.

Terriers evened the O.B.A.A. juvenile semi-finals up here yesterday when they turned back Toronto Lansdownes, 8 to 2, before some five hundred fans at Stevenson Park. Good hitting and fielding by Herb Ralph's boys and some excellent southpaw twirling by Lesurf let the Terriers coast to a well-earned victory. A third game on neutral grounds must be played now to declare a finalist.

Lefty Lesurf fanned eleven and gave but five scattered hits, while walking five. Not a runner reached third till the sixth when two singles, a walk and an out scored one. A double in the ninth, a steal and an error gave the visitors their other marker. Curry, Toronto left-hander, was nicked for twelve safe blows by Terriers as he struck out five and walked four. His support was just fair.

The homesters got a run in the first, C. Clark walking, stealing, moving up on an out and scoring on Galvin's single. They got two in the second on hits by Mowry and G. Clark, fielder's choice, steal and a miscue. Singles by Galvin, Dunkley and McKinley, with Thorburn's double sent in two in the fifth. Another brace tallied in the sixth on a walk, two stolen bases and singles by A. Clark and Starr. The last one was chalked up in the eighth, G. Clark being hit by a pitched ball, stealing second, going to third on an out and running home on an error.

The Big Hitters

A. Clark, Galvin and McKinley all got two hits apiece for the local team, every player getting at least one safety. G. Clark, the leadoff man walked twice, got on when hit by pitcher, singled once and sacrificed one, scoring three times himself. Curtis led the Toronto hitters in two in three times.

Every one of the locals turned in a good defensive game, Starr going nice behind the bat, the infield and the outfield clicking well. G. Clark grabbed several good ones in left and Dunkley featured with a running one-hand catch. Curtis, Surphlis and Curry went good for the losers, while Oster pulled off a fine running catch back of third.

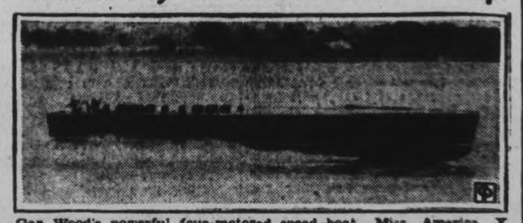
GAR WOOD RETAINS BOAT RACING CUP

Successfully Defends Harmsworth Cup



Gar Wood's powerful four-motored speed boat, Miss America X, which successfully outspeeded Scott-Paine's smaller boat by gaining two straight victories in the races.

ROARS ACROSS FINISH AHEAD OF SCOTT-PAINE BY SECONDS

Wood Wins Both Races, But Second Trial Was Close.

BRITISHER WILL RETURN.

MARINE CITY, Mich., September 5 (C.P.). — Silvery-haired Gar Wood to-day had turned back the challenge Hubert Scott-Paine made for the Harmsworth Trophy that is the world's premier motorboat prize, but not before the unassuming Briton had turned Monday's deciding race into the closest one of recent times.

When the Detroit veteran roared his four-engined craft across the finish line before a Labor Day throng of 150,000 to mark up his second straight victory in the best-two-out-of-three event, Scott-Paine was only 22.33 seconds in his wake.

It had been a close fight all the way over the 35 nautical mile course on the St. Clair River, with the Briton piloting his small craft expertly and recklessly to stay within hailing distance of the bulky defender.

Hubert Scott-Paine

No records were broken but the times of both crafts were far better than those of the firs this year, professional coaches handling major sports.

heat on Saturday. The fastest lap of Miss America X. was 89.339 miles an hour; that of Miss Britain III., 87.215 miles. The defender's lapsed time for the seven circuits of a course that was somewhat choppy was 27 482; Scott-Paine needed 28.11.25

Learned Much.

At the end of his courageous bid for a trophy Wood has defended successfully eight times during an unbroken reign of 13 years, the Briton smiled through the frekles sizing, gave him a cheer that was said he had learned a lot in his first try; he would be back to make another attempt with another boat.

From the start he had referred to this year's race as an experiment.

The thousands who had watched Scott-Paine lift the speed of his single-motored racer up to a point where it fairly leaped from the water, then show the finest of wheelmanship to keep it from capsizing, gav ehim a cheer that was near the equal of that lifted up for the victorious Wood.

Disaster Close.

It was on the back stretch of the first circuit of the course that disaster almost halted the race. The United States boat had a lead of some 200 yards when Miss Britain caught a roller from the defender. The little craft careened sharply to port and seemed certain to go over But Scott-Paine cut his gas. The boat fell back on to an even keel and the Briton again laid a heavy masterful hand on the "gun."

Wood drove alternately fast and slow within a five mile an hour range. His average speed on the first lap was 86.946 miles; on the second lap it was 84.509. After a first circuit at a shade under 32 miles, Scott-Paine increased his speed to above 86 miles, and kept it there until the final lap, when he churned the water at 87.215.

Exciting Race.

The result was an exciting race, far different from the procession 325 000 cup fans witnessed on Saturday when the Detroiter won by 1 minute 31 seconds or with an approximate lead of 2½ miles.

In fact, the elapsed time turned in by the 42-year-old English-born son of Irish parents was three miles an hour faster than Wood ge up in winning the first race. It also was seven miles an hour faster than Miss Britain made on Saturday.

Before yesterday's race Scott-Paine changed the motor in his comparatively small, all-metal boat He said the original engine performed well, but he did not care to risk having it fail going in the race He did not have the time necessary to give it an overhauling.

An example of what might have happened had he not switched engines was seen Saturday when Horace E. Dodge's Delphine V. burned up while being primed for the Harmsworth. Dodge had entered his boat barely within the two-hour limit before the start of the classic. Mechanics were soldering gas tanks pounded badly during previous speed trials. The craft was suddenly engulfed in flames but fortunately it was in shallow waters and the occupants were able to leap to safety.

Hardest Ever Had

Gar Wood referred to Monday's race as the hardest he ever had for the Harmsworth Bronze.

"Scott-Paine drove a wonderful race. He had a lot of nerve to press his boat the way he did," said the American veteran. "He told me he had it all out."

Then in answer to a question: "No, we never had Miss America wide open."

Scott-Pane said that at time Miss Britain III was knifing the water at 104 and 105 miles on the straightways.

Discussing the course, the Briton said Miss Britain was "out of the water a large part of the time. The lower turn particularly bothered me. I could seem to get 'ship-mates' with the water down there. It may have been the change from salt water to fresh water."

Scott-Paine then voiced high praise of his adversary, calling Wood "a splendid sportsman, the finest in the world."

Tennis Star to Be On Back for Weeks

SAN FRANCISCO, September 5.—Helen Wills Moody, it was revealed yesterday, was taken to Stanford University Hospital here on Saturday for treatment for back injuries which caused her default in the recent national tennis championships.

Her physicians said that it would be necessary for her to remain "flat on her back for three or four weeks," according to F. S. Moody her father-in-law.

WESTCLOX LEAD IN SOFTBALL BY CLOSE 9TH INNING VICTORY

Chase Four Runs Across in Last Frame to Squeeze Out 13-12 Win.

KEENE GETS EARLY LEAD

The Westclox maidens took the lead in the race for the championship of the Ladies' City and District softball loop on Saturday afternoon at the Bowl when they stepped into the nifty Keene team and squeezed out a 13 to 12 victory by chasing four runs across in the last half of the ninth with only one out, after Keene had practically won the game in the first three frames by securing ten counters. Fourteen hundred people witnessed the contest.

The visitors took the pep out of the Westclox fans by smacking out eleven clean bingles in their first three times up for ten tallies, while they held their opponents to five. They faltered, however, before the steady defensive work of the locals for the next five innings in which they were held scoreless. In the first of the ninth Dot Gainor and Verna Dickson hit singles while Roberta Gainor nailed a triple to push the Keene total to 12. Westclox were held in the fourth and fifth but cut loose in the sixth when a triple by Dot Webb and a double by Crary which was by two miscues and two force-outs to give the Clockmakers four more runs. The Westclox came to bat in the last half of the ninth three runs down, but Mary McCarthy gave them a new lease of life by walking the first three runners to face her to load the runways. M. Brown then took over the hurling but ran into trouble when the first sacker missed the throw after an easy grounder by Hilda Joyes and two runs went across. A. Crary popped to the pitcher, but G. Mortimer hit to Helen Nelson at short scoring Merrett and the short-stop threw to third, but the base wasn't covered and the winning run was scored by Joyes to end the game.

Mary McCarthy pitched good ball for Keene allowing nine hits and should have copped the decision regardless of the bad start in the ninth if her support had not been so weak. She fanned six and passed five. Opposing her Barbara Blade turned in a real heady game and showed her best ball with runners on. She ran into difficulties in the second and third, allowing nine hits in these two frames but after that she showed plenty of control and speed.

This win give the local team two wins and a loss in three starts and if they can cop the next game on Tuesday night, they will have brought the cup to Peterborough for the first time since the league was formed three years ago. Keene having taken the championship two years in a row.

Detroit Grid Star To Coach St. Mike's

TORONTO, Sept. 5. — Bill Storem, former University of Detroit captain and full-back, has been appointed coach of St. Michael's College football teams, succeeding Rev. Father Con. Sheehan, who has been assigned duties on graduate work during the coming school term.

Announcement of Storem's appointment was made last night by Rev. Father Lynch, new athletic director of St. Michael's College. Securing an outside coach will come as a surprise to followers of the Irish football teams but it is in line with the new athletic regulations, enforced at the college handling major sports.

COGS—PICTON IN NEXT ROUND

Open Series Here To-morrow Afternoon At 4 O'clock.

COGS IN FETTLE.

Picton is here Wednesday to do battle with Cogs in the first game of their intermediate O.B.A.A. playdown series. Next one is back in Picton Saturday. The game here to-morrow starts at four o'clock, standard time, at the Exhibition Grounds, and should draw a large crowd despite the early hour. It is an important fixture and promises to be a fine old fight with considerable at stake.

Lefty Billingsley, Casey Masterson and Percy Vanmeer are all in shape and ready to take up the hurling task. The whole team is confident they can turn back the strong Picton squad and will give a battle regardless of the outcome. Picton had several tough squads to overcome in their climb the past several weeks, including Victorias of Belleville, Napanee, Yarmouth and others. They hope to add another scalp to their belt when they tangle with the E.P.L. winners, who also eliminated Havelock.

Outside of the local juveniles, Cogs carry the hopes of fandom here in the O.B.A.A. playdowns. Only these two teams remain and both are good outfits that should give a real accounting. Wednesday's game ought to be well worth seeing and of intermediate championship calibre.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

ONE BAD FRAME COSTS VICTORY

Local Juveniles Lose First Game in Toronto in Bad Fifth.

WERE LEADING

TORONTO, Sept. 5—(By Staff Reporter).—One big frame, the fifth in which Toronto Lansdownes scored five runs, was enough to lose the Peterborough Terriers a heart-breaker, 6 to 4, here Saturday. The game was the first of the O.B.A.A. semi-final series and was played at Perth Square where cars and fans in the crowded outfield proved a hardship on the local boys unaccustomed to such cramped quarters Three walks, a sacrifice, single, double and a cheap triple, coming when Galvin tripped while chasing a fly in centre, gave Toronto its five markers in this bad inning. Otherwise they were outplayed by Herb Ralph's squad.

Lefty Lesurf hurled excellent ball to give but six hits as he fanned eleven. He was somewhat wild, however, to issue seven walks. His support was perfect. McLarin on the other mound was touched for a dozen hits, many scratchy but kept them scattered and had good support, which aided by some poor base-running by the young Petes, saved him from defeat. A walk, two outs and hits by Starr and Thorburn gave Terriers two in the first and they got their other pair in the seventh on an error, two outs two steals and hits by A. Clark, Galvin and Mowry. The visitors' fielding was fine, and every player got at least one safe hit.

Bear, 3 Cubs Seen Near Trent River

TRENT RIVER, Sept. 5 (Examiner Correspondence).—A large bear and three cubs were seen one day recently by a man in the employ of Mr. Sherwood Scea on his farm, 14th Concession of Seymour West, near Trent River. The animals came within close range and seemed very tame.

Applause in one form or another is probably almost as old as civilization. Clapping the hands is among the most natural ways of applauding.

GREAT BATTLE IS DEVELOPING FOR PLAY-OFFS

Royals and Leafs in Hot Race For Third Place Honors.

DOUBLE VICTORIES.

Six Run Rally Gains Victory For Leafs But They Drop The Second.

(By Herbert Barker, A.P. Sports Writer.)

It looked as if the International League would have to wait until the last four days of the season to determine whether Toronto Maple Leafs or Montreal Royals will gain the second northern play-off position.

The Royals' double victory over Rochester yesterday, coupled with Toronto's even split with Buffalo Bisons, left the two Canadian outfits only 2½ games apart and facing a five-game series with one another starting Thursday and winding up Sunday, the final day of the regular season. Buffalo, a game and a half behind Montreal, still has an outside chance of winning the second qualifying place.

The champion Newark Bears and Baltimore Orioles definitely have clinched the two southern play-off posts and Rochester is "in" as the top northern representative.

Curly Ogden limited the Red Wings to six hits as Montreal took the first game from Rochester 4-2 and his triple and Manager Oscar Roettger's home run featured a three-run rally in the fifth inning that really clinched the game. Bill McAfee and Jim Lindsey allowed only three hits in the nightcap but the Royals used these with four passes to score five runs in the second and third frames, and won 5-4.

A six-run rally in the seventh inning enabled Toronto to beat Buffalo in the opening game of their double-header, 12-9, but the Bisons came back to take the nightcap 9-0 as Phil Gallivan allowed only six hits.

Nearly 8,000 spectators saw the wild first game which took nearly three hours to play. Each team used four pitchers and 14 men all told and made 14 hits apiece. Seventeen bases on balls were handed out; the Leafs drawing 10. Ollie Tucker of Buffalo hit his 26th homer in the seventh.

Rain forced postponement of the Newark-Jersey City and Baltimore-Albany doubler headers.

USE SMART COMBINATION PLAYS TO FORCE PACE FROM THE OUTSET

Lindsay Scores First But Winners Quickly Go To The Front.

DOWNERS PROMINENT.

Canada Packers defeated Lindsay United, 3-1, at King Edward Park on Saturday evening, in the semi-final of the Peck Cup. The game was called ten minutes before time due to darkness.

At the outset Canada Packers put on the pressure, Lindsay opening up several chances but marring the opportunity by shooting from too far out. Lindsay was the first to score. T. Dobie, at centre, booting a smart one past Foster.

However, Packers soon evened the count on a clever combination by the Downer brothers, with N. Downer finishing it by heading the ball in. Packers opened several chances and Todd finally put them in the lead. A few minutes later N. Downer accepted a pass to score the Packers' third goal.

The last half witnessed some smart soccer but neither team managed to counter, both goalies turning in some smart work.

The teams:

Canada Packers.—Goal, Foster; back, A. Downer and Flaken; half backs, Mayette, Buchan and Bromley; forwards, Calbran, Todd, N. Downer and G. Downer.

Lindsay United.—Goal, A. Munt; backs, O'Halleron and Worthington; half backs, Wilson, G. Munt, and Fatham; forwards, Moir, Reid, Dobie, Currie, and Mitchell; sub., Grant.

Referee—W. Harrington.

PIRATES READY FOR ASSAULT ON LEADING GIANTS

Hopeful That They May Accomplish What Braves Failed To Do.

CUBS DEFEAT ST. LOUIS.

Tigers Take Two From White Sox While Indians Thump Browns.

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The National League drama moved to Pittsburgh to-day as Bill Terry's Giants swung west for the last time this year with at least two of the first division trailers hanging doggedly to what little chance remains of catching the leaders.

Duplicating the stirring scene that prevailed as the Giants battered back the bid of the Braves in Boston last week, the Pirates mustered every ounce of strength for the five-game series that will tell their tale for this season. Seven and a half games back in second place, George Gibson's buccanners can make it by riddling the Giants and capitalizing on any damage that may be done to the New Yorkers and Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis, Terry's succeeding ports of call.

Unfortunately for the hind chasers, the Giants lead is made up largely of nine games on the losing side, with a major contribution from the Pirates themselves, losers in three out of four games, on their final visit to New York a couple of weeks ago. With the Giants playing only 26 games this year, there remains nothing else for the contenders to do but sweep away that margin in hand to hand conflict if its to be done at all.

Defeat Cincinnati

Rains that swept the east gave the giants a day of rest yesterday. The Pirates made ready for the "crucial" conflict by edging in one game with Cincinnati before the rain poured down. Hal Smith turned in another of the masterful pitching performances the Pirates have been getting lately, winning 1-0 over St Johnston.

Chicago Cubs, rallying again as is their custom on the home grounds, disposed of St. Louis' twin aces, Dizzy Dean and Tex Carleton, to win both halves of a double header 6-4 and 5-2 and edge the idle Braves from third place by half a game. A six-run splurge off Dean, who set his league strikeout record of 17 against the Cubs a few weeks ago, settled the issue in the second inning of the first game as Guy Bush pitched shut-out ball for seven frames. Charley Root had all the better of the second game, allowing but four hits.

Double Wins

The only activities in the American League that escaped the holiday downpour were double headers in Detroit and Cleveland, the Tigers took two from the White Sox, 8-0 and 5-4, while Walter Johnson's courageous Indians twice thumped St. Louis Browns, 3-2 and 2-0.

Hank Greenberg's batting, including a home run, gave Detroit two clusters of four runs each in the first two innings of the opener, more than enough with Vic Sorrell pitching four-hit ball. Fred Marberry came in in the eighth in time to save the second game for Elder Auker, after he had blanked the Sox for six innings in a duel with Ted Lyons.

Oral Hildebrand and Clint Brown turned in eight-hit performances for Cleveland to give Johnston two eight victories.

BOWLING NOTES

(By Herb Martin)

Congratulations are due to the veteran bowler, J. J. Howden, and his partner, Joe Bennett, on winning the Bickle Trophy at Cobourg for the third time in six years. Out of an entry of nearly fifty rinks, the Peterborough pair came through with flying colors to bring honor and glory to themselves and the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club. The record set up by this team will be hard to beat, and no doubt it will stand for many years to come. Every member of this club and bowlers in general offer their heartiest congratulations to "John and Joe."

* * *

Over at Port Hope our boys were not so successful. While the entry list was not as large as former years, still the bowling was very keen and interesting.

Peterborough sent down eight rinks to try and bring back the cups they won last year, but it was no use. Walter Oke's rink was the last one to stay in the game, but he was finally eliminated by Eddie Goodman of Oshawa.

Morrison of Oshawa won the first trophy, with Nicholls of Bowmanville runner-up.

The consolation final was under way when we left the greens early this morning—Krupp of Woodstock and Goodman of Oshawa, were fighting it out. At the end of the sixth end Goodman was leading 8-6.

An excellent crowd lined the ball park to witness the games and altogether the afternoon's events were counted the most successful yet held in the vicinity.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball—Softball—Lacrosse Soccer—Wrestling, and Others

(By C. J. P.)

The holiday "done come and gone," and we find just two baseball teams surviving it here—juveniles and intermediates. Yeah, they're falling off like autumn leaves these days. The bantams took it in the neck Saturday, losing their second straight to Arlingtons to rub them out of the picture. The juveniles lost a tough one in Toronto Saturday to Lansdownes but evened it up by winning handily here yesterday. Our intermediates get their big test this week when Cogs play Picton here Wednesday and in Picton Saturday.

* * * * * *

Though Kiwanis bantams lost, 8-0, it was a better game than you'd guess from the score. Phelan pitched good ball for Jawn Deannard's squad but had poor support. And then, Walkoff of Toronto whistled the ball by no less than twenty-three of them and gave but four hits! Pretty hard to beat that sort of flinging. Anyway, the kids broke the ice this year and didn't do so badly for their first. They'll be back next season again. We can't go to the finals in the bantam series every year.

* * * * * *

Herb Ralph's Terriers, local juveniles, should have copped their fixture in Toronto but for small, overcrowded grounds. They outhit and outfielded the Lanadownes and Lesurf pitched a much better game. But it's almost impossible to lick a Toronto crew in those open-air parks in the Queen City. Just to show that the kids here could take 'em, they smacked the Toronto bunch down with an 8-2 licking at Stevenson Park on the holiday. Quite a gang took it in and saw Lesurf again pitching a dandy brand of ball, getting good support in the field and some hard and timely hitting. A nice game, and the Terriers ought to win the third contest to go into the Ontario finals.

* * * * * *

Word was received over the week-end that Picton Intermediates would be here tomorrow (Wednesday) to play the Cogs the first game of their O.B.A.A. playdown series. Game will start at four o'clock, Standard Time, at the Exhibition Grounds, second one being in Picton the end of the week. This should be a real battle and Cogs will have to be at top form to take the conquerors of Belleville, Napanee, Cananoque, and Yarmouth. Vannest, Masterson and Billingsley are all ready for pitching duties—and that's one game we wouldn't think of missing. Too bad it doesn't start an hour later so as more fans could get around to see it.

* * * * * *

New Toronto sure surprised the Kingston Ponies, when they waltzed down to the Limestone citadel and squeezed out a 2-1 win in the first of their series. Jamieson and Stafford hooked up in a fine pitching duel to give but four hits apiece, and the visitors shoved across the winning run in the ninth. That New Toronto outfit for the past three years has shown itself to be one grand money team—always seeming to rise to new heights and grab playoffs when not given an outside chance by the dopesters. If a third game is necessary between these two outfits, it may be run off in Peterborough.

* * * * * *

Don't forget that men's softball play-off here to-morrow—Wednesday—at 5.30 over at Riverside. It's Oshawa Tuxis vs. Sugar Bowl in the first contest of the O.A.S.A. playdown series and ought to be a hot number. The Bowlmen are smack up against just about as tough opposition as they'll run into the rest of the race. Tuxis licked them in an exhibition game early in the season and have only played and won something like 36 games this summer. Yowsah, should be a man-sized struggle.

* * * * * *

Westclox gals nosed out a 13-12 victory over Keene in another exciting sofaball play-off at the Bowl on Saturday, giving them the bulge on the series. Next game is to-night at 5.45, and if the Alarm Lasses take it, they'll be champs. If they lose, another game will be staged next Saturday at three. Mary McCarthy blew up to throw fourteen straight balls at the last and load the bases, and that's what beat her in a dandy close tussle. Incidentally, allowing eighteen inches—which isn't enough in some cases—for each person, the complete grand stand over there would hold 980 people.

* * * * * *

Lots doing these nights in a final flurry of city play-offs. To-night over at the Bowl Rink at six bells, the City Lacrosse League play-offs commence, Selkirks and Arde's tangling. It's the best two out of three for the Captain H. Hill Memorial Trophy, and the loop title. Orde's were champions last year, but Selkirks finished their schedule this year two points ahead of the Barbers. Should be a nifty series with fast lacrosse seen, since both teams have several of last year's star intermediates on their line-ups.

Grab-bag: Sugar Bowl beat the Prince of Orange Toronto softball team, 10-7, in exhibition Sat'day eve, while Rye's dropped an 8-5 decision to the visitors.....The Bowlmen also beat an all-star Toronto team, 18-11, at Riverside yesterday.....Not enough entries came in to run that Omemee tourney on the holiday.....C.G.E. gals split a double-header in Cobourg over the holiday.....Buster Whitton, popular Campbellford athlete, tripped lightly to the altar the other day.....Ward Wright went up from here to Toronto yesterday and took fourth place in the junior swim at 100 yards to get a cup.....The race was too crowded for any of them to make their best time, forty-two churning the water up.

Plow Horse Gains Swimming Title

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 5. Just a plow horse 24 hours ago, "Old Dobbin" was a champion to-day.

For "Old Dobbin" won the first equine swimming contest held in this section and sponsors of the Oswego Lake Labor Day regatta proclaimed him the titleholder of the northwest.

As the horses lined up on the bank for the start, several entries from riding academies, sleek and shiny pranced about before a capacity audience. "Old Dobbin" and another of his kind stood steady, paying little attention to the proceedings. But from the start the plow horse went into the lead and was never headed.

PORT HOPE GIRLS WIN AT TOURNEY

Carry Away Honors for Third Successive Year at Bailieboro.

THREE GOOD GAMES

BAILIEBORO, Sept. 5 (Examiner Correspondence). — More than two hundred people attended the local girls' softball tournament on Wednesday evening to witness three exciting games of softball and see the Port Hope club carry away the honors for the third successive year.

The local girls clashed with the Baltimore nine in the first game and both teams were very evenly matched. The locals, however, managed to come through with a win, the score being 27 to 22.

The teams lined up as follows:

Bailieboro — A. Barnard, c; W. Watt, p; I. Jewison, 1b; I. Campbell, rf; M. White, ss; M. Whittington, cf; M. Earl, lf; P. Carl, 2b; B. Barnard, 3b.

Baltimore—C. Bilnard, c; R. May, cf; H. Ball, p; M. Ball, ss; E. Hogg, 1b; E. Mann, rf; P. McCurdy, 3b; D. Noble, 2b; E. Crossen, lf.

Score by innings:
Bailieboro ..... 705 008 207—27
Baltimore ..... 731 360 141—22

The Port Hope girls then clashed with the Maple Leaf club from Peterborough and showed superior form throughout. Only in the last three frames did the Peterborough nine show any comeback. The final score was 17 to 11 in favor of Port Hope.

The line-up:

Port Hope—R. Thompson, 2b; M. Buloueki, c; P. Foote, 3b; M. Perrin, 1b; Bee, lf; M. O'Neil, p; Bowden, ss; R. Williams, rf; V. Buloueki, cf.

Maple Leafs—T. Darling, p; G. Mann, H. Mann, K. Kearney, T. Simmons, P. Reeve, E. Gains, B. Goldie, M. Ballantyne.

Score by innings:
Port Hope ..... 340 312 9—17
Maple Leafs ..... 020 060 4—11

In the final game the local girls lacked the form to even make the game exciting, and the Port Hope girls had the game in the bag right from the start. The final score was Port Hope 32, Bailieboro 8.

G. Stuart and K. Barnard were umpires and handled the games in capable fashion.

The silver cup was presented to the Port Hope girls by the local manager of the girls' softball club, Mr. Fred. White.

A dance in the hall at night drew a large crowd, and excellent music was provided by the Valley Serenaders from Millbrook.

KIWANIS LOSE SECOND TILT IN PLAY-OFFS

Walkoff Pitching For Toronto Team Strikes Out 23 Batters.

SMART FIELDING.

Phelan Hurled Nice Ball For Kiwanis But Errors Prove Costly.

Jack Deannard's Kiwanis' bantams were eliminated from further O.B.A.A. play in Toronto Saturday, Arlingtons shutting them out, 8 to 0. Great pitching by Walkoff, and errors by Kiwanis, cost them the tilt. Walkoff fanned twenty-three and gave but four hits in a wonderful hurling exhibition.

Phelan twirled a fine game also for the Peterborough team, giving but six scattered hits and fanning six in the seven frames he worked. His support was none too good, only one run being earned from his delivery. McIlmoyle finished the game. The Toronto team played heads-up ball in the field and took advantage of the breaks to count their runs. Bergenaw, locals' first-sacker, had two hits and Vitarelli and Phelan got the others. Walsh, Toronto umpire, handled the game alone and made a fine job of officiating. The box score:

WM. FISHER IS TAX COLLECTOR

Seymour Council Appointment—R. A. Linton Claims Damages to Car on Bad Roads.

$700 AND $12 ASKED

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 5.—(By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Accepting the tender of $250, William Fisher was re-appointed tax collector for the township of Seymour at the regular session of the Council held on Saturday and presided over by Reeve Wm. J. Duncan.

An echo of a car accident which occurred some weeks ago on the Campbellford-Trent River road was heard at the session when R. A. Linton, of Campbellford, whose car was badly smashed, and T. E. McCaughan, a passenger in the car, presented to the Council a claim for damages, Mr. Linton for $700 and Mr. McCaughan for $12. The applicants based their claims on the bad condition of the road as the primary cause of the accident. On motion of Deputy-Reeve W. S. Milne and Councillor Frank Lee, the matter was referred to the insurance company.

Fred. Peake appeared before the Council requesting that a culvert near his property be lowered to allow of proper drainage. The matter was left with Councillor Lee and the road superintendent to deal with. No motion was made in regard to three hospital accounts, two of which were placed on the pay sheet.

The Council went on record as approving a communication received from P. S. Ewing, secretary of the Percy Township Council, requesting that all pensioners committeed to hospital institutions refund their pension while they are patients to the institution to provide for their expenses. This recommendation was forwarded to the pension committee of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham.

The road gang's sleeping van, for which the Council had no further use, was sold to D. T. Petherick for $12. Accounts amounting to $1,493 were ordered paid.

This day may be notable for a bit of sudden news having an enlivening influence on current affairs and possibly calling for an abrupt move, change or travel, according to the actuating mutual aspects of the planets. Or it may simply be a word of cheery or sensational gossip, or revolutionary information, inciting to change of plans rather radical in bearing on future movements.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for some sudden news or information which may bring about radical change in plans, quick decisions or actions of far-reaching influence on the affairs.

"NERVES" she called it—it was really her KIDNEYS

She tried to get through each day as best she could. Never comfortable—always distressed. Low in vitality—lower in spirits. She hadn't thought of her kidneys, until a friend suggested Dodd's Kidney Pills—for over three generations the favorite kidney tonic and remedy. Seeking relief she immediately took Dodd's. The "washed out" feeling was soon replaced by clear headed energy and restful sleep. Headache, backache, and other signs of faulty kidneys soon disappeared.

BIG SPORTS DAY DOURO CHURCH

Warsaw Girls Defeat Sixth Line—Barnyard Golf Features.

RUNNING RACES.

Perfect weather, filtered through the first autumnal haze, provided ideal conditions for the Labor Day program of sports and lawn social at St. Joseph's church, Douro. The rural setting and the holiday with its September atmosphere and warmth combined to form a potent invitation to the outdoors, and nature's contribution accounted for hundreds of the visitors to Rev. Michael McGuire's parish.

The sports program was held in the level meadow several hundred yards west of P. G. Town's store, featuring softball games, tug o' war and races.

Chicken supper was served on the church lawn, continuing until dusk and was followed by a sale of household articles and fancy goods. The attentive industry of the general committee composed of women and men of the parish was noticeable in the smooth manner in which the various events were conducted:

Warsaw girls won their softball game from the Sixth Line of Otonabee team by 9-6. The line-up was as follows:

Sixth Line, Otonabee—M. Renwick, 1b; D. Elliott c; L. Bowie, 2b; R. Miller, 3b; R. Drimmie, p; I. Davis, ss; G. Stark, rf; M. Edwards, lf; A. Weir, cf; J. Richardson, sub cf.

Warsaw — D. Tucker, ss; H. Sharpe, 2b; M. Payne, 1b; L. Darling, lf; D. Ferguson, cf; J. Munro, p; Edna Payne, 3b; F. Robertson, rf; A. Would, c.

"Barn Yard Golf"

Nine teams entered the horse shoe pitching contest which was won by Ed Johnston and Dick Evans of Peterborough, with J. Crowe and Tom Drumm of Peterborough second. Fred Walsh was in charge of this contest.

M. Costello's "Wonders" of Peterborough, a tug-of-war aggregation recruited by the proprietor of the American hotel won a heat or two in the pull with the Douro men, but were finally and decisively hauled out of the limelight.

Mr. Costello supplied the box of cigars for the winners and there were some doubts as to whether they were flavored with revenge. However Jack Sabatino and some of the Douro strong men were seen an hour or two later apparently showing no effect of their fragrant spoils.

Martin Coughlin was in charge of the field sports with Jack Leahy assisting. Martin won the fat man's race with Slim Davey of Peterborough second.

W. Dickson of Keene collected first prizes in the 100 and 500 yards event with J. Heffernan second.

Peter Bone of Warsaw was best in putting the shot and Stewart Lang of Otonabee second.

"Lefty" Johnston won the hop, step and jump and running broad jump and Don White of Lakefield was second.

These were only a few of the results in the long card.

Music was supplied by a Peterborough band directed by Rupert Gliddon. Refreshment booths were kept busy.

Men's Softball.

The men's softball tournament attracted a crowd of fans who had two diamonds to follow all afternoon. Indian River and Burns' Bridge teams furnished a lot of excitement in their clash which the Bridge team won by 12-11.

The Burns' Bridge boys clinched the victory in their final half of the fifth inning when Doherty scored the winning run with none down.

Keene men won the softball tournament defeating Burns Bridge 7-2. Other teams entered were North Douro Emily and Lang.

Canucks Win First In Southend Finals

Canucks took the first game of the Southend Softball League playoffs over Orioles, 6 to 5, Friday after trailing the Birds till the eighth. The series is three-out-of-five for the loop title, and the second game will be played Tuesday evening at 5.15 at the Exhibition Grounds.

Waterman and Hefferman, opposing twirlers, both threw good ball and received fine support. Ab Robinson of the Canucks tied up the count in the second with a long homer. Catches of fast liners by Collins and Ashmore, coupled with the fielding of Gardino at second for the losers, were highlights of the game. The teams:

Canucks: Collins, 3b; Walsh, c; Ashmore, 2b; Lanure, 1b; Hefferman, p; Robinson, rf; Fleming, ss; Burke, cf; Shaughnessy, lf.

Orioles: Connors, 1b; Millard, ss; E. Smith, rf; Gardino, 2b; C. Smith, c; Adamson, ss; T. Smith, lf; Carter, cf; Waterman, p.

Number 87

ALEX MORRISON says:

Perhaps the most unprofitable thing a player can do is to practice bad shots.

This is exactly what a player does when he insists on hitting another ball right after he has topped, hooked or sliced a shot.

Invariably, he repeats his faulty swing and succeeds only in duplicating the bad shot.

The urge to try a shot over again amounts to nothing more than stubbornness.

The proper time to show that you can really make the shot is when you next come to that particular hole on which you fell down.

In the meantime do your practicising before you go out to play.

INTER-CLUB MEET AT LOCAL RANGES

W. Trude of Lakefield, And J. McGrath Win First Honors.

Early on Saturday afternoon twenty-four riflemen from Rawdon, Lakefield and Peterborough clubs met on the government ranges, Norwood Road, in a field day rifle competition at 200 and 300 yards, which marked the closing season of the Rangers' Rifle Club as a big success.

With a warm bright sun overhead, the match got under way with an extra series shoot of five shots at 200 yards. W. Trude of Lakefield and J. McGrath drew first and second money with a possible of 25 each, followed with a 24 by G. Rightmeyer, R. Naylor and D. Clement; with scores of 23 each, S. Rombough, G. Wainright, J. Wellman and W. Lackie also came in the money.

An application and team shoot took place next with 14 shots on score at 200 and 300 yards. Lakefield, with a score of 293, put Rawdon out by one point; Peterborough leading Lakefield at the finish by 24 points, with a total of 317. The teams were as follows:

Rawdon.—J. Wellman, R. Naylor, James Gordonier, Charles Gordonier, and Fred Mack.

Lakefield.—B. Dench, W. A. Payne, J. Payne, Wm. Trude, and Walter Trude.

Peterborough.—D. Clement, W. Lackie, J. McGrath, W. Zeihr and A. Meeks.

James McGrath won high honors for the day with a nice score of 67, followed by a 65 by D. Clement, at 64 by J. Wellman, for second and third money respectively. Nine other prizes followed these three winners in the order of the standing, which follows:

Future matches are looked forward to next year by these three clubs the local range being adequate to meet requirements of many more marksmen than the number who competed Saturday.

Hastings Gets Tie Against Brighton

HASTINGS, Sept. 5, (Examiner Correspondence). — Hastings and Brighton battled to a six-all tie on Saturday afternoon at Brighton in the second game of the Clarke Cup play-offs. Brighton won the first game in Hastings 11 to 5. The third game will be played on a neutral diamond on Wednesday or Saturday.

Hennessy was back on the mound for Hastings and should have had a victory as he pitched good enough ball only to have his support fail him with runners on the paths. Shannon was on the rubber for Brighton but he was relieved in the fifth by Campbell.

Sixteen year old Andy McGee was the hero of the Hastings nine, getting two hits to bring in two runs and was hit by the pitcher in his other trip to the plate.

Hastings	302 010—6
Brighton	022 011—6

Batteries: Hennessy and Hogan, Shannon, Campbell and McMaster and McKinnon.

KEENE AND WESTCLOX CLASH THIS EVENING

The Girls' Softball League playoffs resume to-night (Tuesday) at 5.45, standard time, in the Ashburnham Bowl. Westclox and Keene are battling hard now for the championship, with the end in sight, and another mammoth crowd is expected to take in this fixture. If Wesclox win to-night, they will be the new champions, but if Keene comes through, the series will be tied up at two wins apiece, and a deciding game will be played here next Saturday.

Interest is running high since the Westcloxe lasses proved they were serious contenders for the loop title, and stood a good chance of breaking the long Keene victory streak. The series has been dragged out—one game ending in a draw, another being rained out and the other three being close, exciting tilts. T--night's promises to be no exception and another fine old battle is expected.

Weddings

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 5. (Examiner Correspondence).—A quiet but exceptionally pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday afternoon at "The Grove" Memorial Chapel when Jean Zealand, youngest daughter of Mr. David Gibson and the late Mrs. Gibson of Brantford, was united in marriage to George Dempster of Brantford. Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, M.A., D.D., officated.

The bride, wore a golden brown satin frock with satin hat of matching shade and carried a sheaf of yellow roses and chrysanthemums and looked very pretty. She was attended by her sister, Mrs John Curry of Brantford as matron of honor. Her costume was of taupe satin with hat and accessories to match and she also carried a bouquet of yellow roses and chrysanthemums. Mr. Wallace of Brantford was tht best man. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. David Gibson. Mr. E. de C. Fletcher played the wedding music and during the signing of the register Mr. Hubert Eisdell sang Handel's selection "Where You Walk" in his most delightful manner.

The chapel was decorated with flowers in tones of yellow and brown, helenium being used in profusion. The guests were the immediate families and very intimate friends of the family. Among the guests were Miss Fife and Miss Barbara Dempster, and Miss Florence Gibson of Brantford, Mr. and Mrs. Morson Smith and Mrs. Gordon Smith of Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby of Washington, D.C., and Mrs. Hugh Mackenzie of London.

The reception was held in the beautiful garden of Mr. and Mrs. Keneth A. Mackenzie which was a fitting setting for such a festive occasion with its masses of choice blooms in the very zenith of their perfection.

Mr. and Mrs. Dempster left by motor in the late afternoon for New York where the honeymoon will be spent and on their return will reside in Brantford. They were the recipients of many beautiful gifts and countless good wishes.

The bride is a sister of Mrs. K. A. Mackenzie of Lakefield.

WHITTON—HENSON.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 5.—(By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Campbellford, was the scene of a very pretty wedding at high noon on Saturday, Sept. 2, when Florence Maude, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Henson, of this town, became the bride of Mr. Francis Graham (Buster) Whitton, only son of Mr. and Mrs. James Whitton, Deseronto, the Rev. J. C. Robinson, rector of the church, officiating.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, was charmingly attired in a gown of beige crepe with accessories to match and carried an arm bouquet of Johanna Hill roses. Miss Violet Whitton, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid, attired in a pretty frock of beige crepe, with hat and shoes of dark brown, and carried a bouquet of Premier roses. Mr. Lesten Henson, brother of the bride, attended the groom.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where Mr. and Mrs. E. Henson and Mr. and Mrs. F. Whitton received with the bride and groom. Later, amid showers of confetti and best wishes, the young couple left on a motor trip through Eastern Ontario on their honeymoon. On their return they will make their home in Campbellford, where the groom is a popular member of the Hydro staff.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitton are two very popular members of the younger set. "Buster," as he is familiarly known, is a star hockey player and an all-round sport and has figured on many of Campbellford's champion teams.

Huge Atetndance At Hastings' Dance

HASTINGS, Sept. 5.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Over fifteen hundred people attended the first street dance ever held in Hastings on Friday night. Music for this gala night, the biggest ever held in Hastings, was furnished by Jack Thynne and His Clover Huller Orchestra, of Brussels. This popular Western Ontario orchestra delighted the huge crowd with their old-time and modern music.

The proceeds from the dance, which will go to the local Relief Board, were not all completed at a late hour, but will exceed any amount figured on by the committee. The wheel of fortune, horses, motorcycles, bingo and the booths all had a big run.

The lower half of Front street was fenced off for dancing, and over four hundred paid admission to the dancing space.

The draw for the gate prizes resulted as follows: 1st, Leo English, of Hastings; 2nd, Miss Barrie, of Birdsall; 3rd, Mrs. H. Lamey, of Hastings.

20TH WEDDING DAY HELD BY MR. AND MRS. PHILLIPS

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 5.—(By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The twentieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Phillips was celebrated at their Front street, Campbellford, home on Friday evening, Sept. 1, when about twenty-eight guests were present. The rooms were tastefully decorated with gladiolus and ferns for the occasion, the evening being spent in cards, followed by a delightful lunch.

After the refreshments, Mr. and Mrs. Phillips were asked to be seated in two chairs, decorated for the occasion, when an address was read by Mrs. H. Petherick, followed by the presentation of a beautiful set of community plate china, which was made by Mrs. Ernest Haig on behalf of all those present. Suitable replies were made by Mr. and Mrs. Phillips for the presentation, who also received many other gifts and congratulations.

Acknowledging the gift, Colonel McLaughlin said, "There is nothing dearer to me than something from the 2nd Battalion. Some of our worst times were spent with the 2nd, and also some of the best times we ever had." He remarked that the Battalion had always been well officered and manned and he wanted no higher honor than to have commanded the "Iron Second."

Colonel Winterbottom, Officer Commanding the Peterborough Rangers, which along with the Governor General's Foot Guards perpetuatees the 2nd Battalion C.E.F., ably discharged the duties as toastmaster. When he arose to extend a welcome to the old comrades of the Battalion, he was greeted with cheering. He read messages of regret at inability to be present that he had received, including those of Colonel W. B. Anderson, C.M.G., D.S.O. District Officer Commanding, and then called upon Capt. "Jock" Murray to make announcement concerning the new Association that had been formed.

Capt. Murray largely through whose initiative and effort the organization was formed, explained that it was a central organization that would be a general council representative of all branches of the 2nd Battalion Association and not of any particular branch. He spoke of the recent affiliation of the 2nd Canadian Battalion with the 2nd Australian Battalion, and referred also to the history of his Battalion that he was engaged in writing. He had full access to official records of the battalion, but there was a dearth of personal material from the men themselves. He appealed to all old comrades of the Battalion to provide him with personal records such as letters and diaries they might still have, so that the history of the Battalion might be as comprehensive as possible.

Change of Date

Capt. Murray also announced that next year the annual church parade of the Battalion would be held on the Sunday preceding Labor Day, and not in January as it has been in former years. The church parade, he said, would probably be held in Belleville next year.

In proposing the toast to "The 2nd Battalion" Major-General Garnet B. Hughes former G.O.C. Canadian Infantry Brigade, stated, "I feel proud you have selected me as an honorary vice president of your new association. I shall cherish the attachment to the Association very much."

He recounted an engagement in which the Battalion featured at Hill 60 in May 1916, and where in spite of "the most infernal bombardment" they had ever had to face they stood their ground and declined to seek the assistance from reinforcements. It was there he said, that the Battalion won the proud name of the "Iron Second." They justified the title on many subsequent occasions, he told the men of his old brigade.

2nd Battalion Never Failed

Colonel McLaughlin responded to the toast, but before he did so Colonel Winterbottom rose to make the presentation on behalf of the Battalion. After tendering his thanks for the gift and speaking more particularly to the toast, he remarked: "The 2nd was one battalion that never failed to get its objective and one that never failed to hold it. That was only made possible by the supreme co-operation of all officers and men of the Battalion.

He acknowledged the work that had been consistently performed for the Battalion by Capt. Murray and also acqnowledged all that Colonel Wintegbottom had done to make the two reunions the Battalion had staged a Peterborough so successful. He expressed the opinion that the 2nd Battalion was helping to strengthen the bonds of the Empire.

Fallen Comrades

"To most of us" said Colonel Vanderwater in proposing the toast to 'Fallen Comrades', "a number of our best friends passed on while in the service. While they are physically absent they are possibly in spirit close and near to us."

In connection with the toast, Colonel Vanderwater mentioned the name of the late Sir Sam Hughes, who he preferred to "as the finest soldier in the Canadian Expeditionary Force."

It was fitting he thought, "that the young son of a worthy sire should be here to-night to address us."

The toast was responded to by a period of silence; the sounding of the Last Post, and the singing of a vocal solo "They Have Not Died".

Colonel T. A. Kidd, M.L.A., proposed "The City of Peterborough" during the course of which he mentioned the names of Capt. Ernest Nicholls, M.D., D.C.M., and the late Major George Bennett who he described as 'a gallant officer."

His Worship, Mayor R. Denne, responded to the toast, and welcomed the men of the 2nd Battalion to Peterborough.

Brigadier General A. Swift, D.S.O., former O.C. of the Battalion and later Brigade Commander 5th Division and Colonel H. Rogers, second-in-command of the 2nd Battalion at the second battle of Ypres were also included among the speakers. The latter, a nephew of the late H. C. Rogers, postmaster at Peterborough, asked the men to stand and drink a silent toast to the memory of the late Major-General David Watson, the first O.C. of the Battalion.

Offers Wise Counsel

Reminding his hearers that in France they had learned how to consolidate their positions in war, Colonel Rogers urged that they must do the same in peace time in order to safeguard future generations. 'We will pass away," he said, "their's will be the heritage."

"Use your influence" he counselled, "for sound, sane institutions. Don't be afraid to examine the social and political influences which we are facing in Canada to-day. Don't allow false prophets to lead you or your offspring into false paths. Keep to the middle course: that is the safest path. I trust that through the many changes that are taking place that organizations such as this will help to guide us and young Canada to a sane and safe destiny," he concluded.

Prior to the dinner, the Battalion marched through the business section of the city, headed by the band of the Peterborough Rangers under Lieut. W. Peryer. A brief memorial service was conducted at the War Memorial in Confederation Park by Venerable Archdeacon Dr. R. C. Blagrave, and a wreath was deposited to the memory of the Battalion by Lieut. James McGrath.

SLEEPING BEAUTY REMAINS AN ENIGMA TO SCIENTISTS AFTER 19 MONTHS OF COMA

Victim of Sleeping Sickness Shows No Signs of Consciousness.

OAK PARK, Ill., Sept. 6—Patricia Maguire, young "sleeping sickness" beauty of Oak Park, is entering the nineteenth month of her long coma wholly unaware of the long list of victims who have recently succumbed to this strange malady in St. Louis, New York and other cities.

For, since she sank into her "sleep" on February 24, 1932, Patricia has never once been conscious. She has proved an enigma to medical men and scientists throughout the country and unfortunately enough is believed to be holder of the record for unbroken "sleep."

Thrives on Malady

Too, she apparently has thrived on this queer malady. She has gained weight, her cheeks are rosy and one of the few manifestations of life is a smile now and then.

Almost a legend has been built up around this "sleeping beauty" of Chicago's suburb. As many as 50 fan-mail letters come in a day, people visit the house every hour or so and inquire about "Pat", and there is even said to be a "prince" waiting for his sleeping "princess" to awake that they may go through

Haliburton Fire Is Under Control

LINDSAY, Sept. 6. (CP)—Fire that for two days threatened the Haliburton district, destroying more than 1,000 acres of scrubland, was under control to-day. The village of Haliburton was endangered when flames crept to within three miles of the settlement.

Half a hundred volunteer firefighters cornered the blaze a few hours before a light rain fell over the area. It appeared at noon that the danger was at least temporarily over.

No damage was done to pastures or crops.

Three Lone Bugs Stir Whole Nation

LONDON, Sept. 6 (C.P. Cable) —After an intensive search the Ministry of Agriculture has discovered that Britain has only three potato bugs.

A solitary specimen found gaily wandering about Tilbury Docks started a tremendous hue and cry. The countryside was decorated with warning notices. Harassed experts in Whitehall dashed from patch to patch while restrictions on French imports were tightened. One newspaper lightly reported that millions of bugs had been killed in the county of Norfolk.

Now the country breathes again. The Ministry officially announces it has been able to discover only the Tilbury trio. "No beetles have been found in any other part of the country," the announcement adds, "despite careful search of potato crops in areas in which the Colorado beetle might be most likely to make its appearance."

STATE HOSPITAL INMATE SLAIN TRYING ESCAPE

Fumes OvercomeTwo of Four Crazed Men As they resist Capture.

MATTEAWAN, N.Y., September 6 (C.P.). — One inmate of the State Hospital for the Criminally Insane was shot to death by a State trooper and two others were overcome by tear gas when officers forced their way into a small room where four crazed men had barricaded themselves during an attempted escape early to-day.

Ray Fisher, 36, of Buffalo, leader of the attempted break, was killed by Trooper Robert Galvin. Fisher had levelled a .22 calibre revolver at Galvin when the latter crashed through the door.

The trooper, his gun already drawn, fired a bullet through the young desperado's heart. Two of the remaining three were sprawled on the floor where they had fallen, overcome by the enormous amount of tear gas fired into the room. They were James Ellis of Brooklyn, and Skelly Marshall of New York City.

The oldest of the four, Reinhardt Volz of New York, an inmate for 12 years, was found unharmed in a wash room nearby.

The men had struck a guard down with a chair and made a dash from the large ward where they were kept with 64 other patients. More than 60 guards, state troopers and other officers had surrounded the room where they were barricaded with their one revolver.

Meanwhile, the inmates in the ward had gone on a rampage smashing furniture and windows in the room where they were held with two guards. They completely wrecked the room, but did not molest the guards.

14 Killed In Train Wreck

Tragedy Occurs As Speeding Freight Plows Into Halted Flier.

25 HURT, MANY DYING.

Victims Die As Wooden Coach Crumples Between Steel Cars.

BINGHAMPTON, N.Y., September 6 (C.P.).— Four teen persons are dead to-day and 25 others injured, some of them so seriously they are expected to die, as a milk train, travelling at a fast speed, ploughed into a Chicago to New York flyer of the Erie Railroad at the city's eastern outskirts last night. The flyer, en route to New York, had been stopped by a switch engine at work ahead.

All of the dead were taken from a wooden coach, that was sandwiched between cars of steel, and three cars from the end of the flyer, telescoped like an accordion in the hands of an enraged giant. One moment before the coach had been filled with homegoers, many of them returning from vacations. The next it was a mass of splinters and twisted steel.

Every hospital in Binghampton, Johnson City and Endicott sent ambulances to the scene. Motorists travelling on a state highway that skirts the tracks where they follow the Susquehanna River, converted their machines into ambulances carrying injured to operating rooms.

Didn't See Signal.

N. H. King, of Elmira, engineer of the milk train, running between Hornell and Hoboken, said: "I didn't see the signal light in time to stop. It happened too quick'y. We were coming around a curve."

At the end of the flyer was a steel car with another next, and the wooden coach of the type known to railroaders as "an old 1037", the one from which the dead were taken, third. Ahead of that were other steel coaches including

ENGINEER KNEW ROAD NOT CLEAR

Vice President Charges Freight Passed Two Signals Showing Trains Ahead.

FATAL WRECK

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 6. (AP)— Vice President R. E. Woodruff of the Erie Railroad said the engineer of the milk train which ploughed last night into a waiting passenger flyer near Binghamton, N.Y., was aware that he did not have a clear track. Fourteen persons were killed in the wreck.

Woodruff, who is in charge of Erie operations, made the statement to-day after a preliminary investigation of the accident.

The statement of the Erie vice president appeared to contradict quoted informal statements by Engineer M. H. King of Elmira, N.Y., that he "didn't see the signal light in time to stop."

Passed Signals

"Investigation discloses," Woodruff said, "that the milk train had stopped behind the passenger train at Binghamton station, and after departing that point had passed two signals indicating trains ahead. Both these signals are in automatic train control territory and are so equipped that the engineer, before passing, has to acknowledge them, which indicates he was aware the track ahead was not clear."

Erie officials made no direct reference to their statement on the wooden coach sandwiched in between steel coaches, but asserted the passenger train was equipped with "all steel under frame."

Coroner Frank C. Hitchcock, in announcing an inquest would open next Tuesday, added: "No arrests will be made, if any are made, until after the inquest."

The county and city began a joint investigation by questioning members of he freight crew, whose switching, held up the flyer.

SEES NO PROFIT OVER YEAR 1933 FOR FARMERS

Professor Claims Nature Of Farming Prevents Cutting Production To Meet Market.

NEWMARKET RALLY

Premier Bennett Scheduled to Address School Thursday Afternoon.

NEWMARKET, Ont., Sept. 6. — (C.P.).—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett will arrive here to-morrow afternoon and address the Liberal-Conservative Summer School, it was announced by school officials to-day. Mr. Bennett is expected to reach here about four in the afternoon.

Striding through its strenuous program of searching into economic and social ills, the school, meeting in Pickering College, upheld its momentum to-day with a consideration of agricultural problems.

Professor W. M. Drummond of the University of Toronto started the day by declaring: "Any person who looks for a profit from farming in 1933 should have his head examined.

"There has been so much said since 1929 about the fundamental importance of a prosperous agriculture in this country, of the absolute impossibility of anybody in Canada being prosperous without Canada's farmers being prosperous, that one would have thought the major interest of reformers with any materialistic ambition would have turned towards the formulation of a policy calculated to guarantee the utmost in the way of a prosperous agriculture.

Not Meant Seriously.

"The fact that such has not been the case leads us to the conclusion that most of the statements concerning the great importance of agriculture in our national life were never intended to be taken seriously."

The reformer who would improve the farmer's lot was almost certain to throw up his hands in despair after really looking at the task in hand, Professor Drummond said.

The very nature of farming prevented curtailment of production to meet a falling market, he asserted. The farmer, in his bargaining contacts, was usually in the portion of the non-union laborer seeking work from an employer of many thousands of men.

While prices might drop, he said, costs usually remained at the same old level. A correspondingly large portion of the income has to go to the covering of fixed costs while at the same time falling prices stimu-

ATLANTIC FLEET HELD NEAR CUBA

Roosevelt Also Concentrates 1200 Marines in Virginia Ready To Move.

PLANS NO INTERVENTION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6. (AP) President Roosevelt is concentrating the United States Atlantic fleet in the vicinity of Cuba for the protection of American lives in event of violence there; but he was said to-day to contemplate no intervention and his latest information told of no new disturbances.

Secretary of the Navy Claude Swanson boards the cruiser Indianapolis at Annapolis late today on a scheduled trip to the west coast which will take him within a day or two to nearby Cuba.

The battleship Mississippi, now cruising in southern waters, was ordered to-day to join the four other American vessels already in the Cuban neighborhood.

Reports of continued unrest in the outlying districts such as Guantanamo and Santiago led the administration to order a half dozen smaller craft, destroyers and sub-chasers, to lie off within steaming distance.

Meanwhile, more than 1,000 marines were being concentrated at the Quantico, Va., base, in readiness in case of danger for foreign life and property that would warrant their presence in Cuba.

Rio Grande Valley Mass of Wreckage, Millions in Damage

Five Relief Trains With Food, Doctors And Troops For Martial Law Rushed Into Devastated Areas Formerly Richest In Southern States.

THOUSANDS OF FARMERS LOSE CROPS, HOMES FLOODS THREATEN—TOLL LIKELY TO MOUNT.

EDINBURG, Tex., Sept. 6. —(AP)— Thirty-two dead, approximately 1,500 injured and damage estimated at millions of dollars was the known toll exacted by the great tropical hurricane which devastated the beautiful and prosperous lower Rio Grande valley of Texas and Mexico Monday night and Tuesday.

Crashing in from the Gulf of Mexico at midnight, the mighty storm spread death and desolation over one of the richest agricultural areas in the United States, and only the fact that warnings had been broadcast a week in advance prevented much larger loss of life.

Despite the warnings, however, the hurricane caught many people unable to withstand its tremendous force, and fears were expressed the death list would grow as crippled communications made it possible to gather the complete story of the catastrophe.

There were 20 known dead in Brownsville and vicinity, 10 in Harlingen and two in Rio Hondo. Six of the dead in the Brownsville area were accounted for in Matamoros, Tamaulipas, Mexico, just across the Rio Grande from Brownsville.

Whether the storm snatched additional lives from the many small towns and villages and agricultural sections, as it raked a path of terror from the mouth of the Great River toward the west, moving into Mexico, was not known immediately.

Calls for relief and even for institution of martial law went out from some of the stricken communities and Gov. Mirian A. Ferguson, as well as Federal authorities, moved swiftly to bring them succor.

Relief Trains on Way

At least five relief trains hastily were equipped to battle disease and allay thirst and hunger, threatened by the temporary destruction of power plants and food reserves, and were rushed into the storm country.

One train moved from Kingsville, the nearest available point, two from San Antonia, one from Corpus Christi, which also experienced the destructive power of the hurricane, and one from Laredo, far to the northwest. One train from San An-

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

MOSCOW, August 18. — I obtained permission to-day to be present in the Kremlin when Michael Kalinin, president of this republic of 170 million people held one of his famous receptions. Apart from the fact that the reception was held in a gorgeous hall of marble and gold it had little in common with the gala functions which one

Michael Kalinin, commonly associates with chancelleries or presidential palaces. M. Kalinin received peasants. The peasants don't exactly wear frock coats when they go up to see the chief executive of their huge country. Some of them were scratching under their shirts with evident relish, just like any other delegate in the White House or the Elysee Palace in Paris might give his dress-suit a last flick of the brush before entering the august presence.

Kalinin has been president since the eary days of the revolution. He succeeded Sverdlov. Nobody had ever heard of Kalinin when Lenin proposed his name. He had been brought up in a village in the pro-

PLEADED GUILTY TO TAKING SAFE FROM LAKEFIELD

William Montgomery Also Guilty Of Attempted Armed Robbery.

CROWN ASKED REMAND

Service Station Operator Too Much For Armed Thug.

Pleading guilty to charges of attempted armed robbery and also to breaking and entering, William J. Montgomery, local gas station hold-up artist, elected summary trial when he appeared before Police Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning. On the application of County Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., the accused was remanded for sentence to Tuesday next.

Discharged from St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday afternoon, where he had lain under police guard since his arrest early Saturday morning, the accused bore unmistakable signs of the resistance he encountered when he attempted to hold-up Clifford Curtis, Park Hill Road, service station operator, at the point of a gun.

Carried Signs of Struggle

A large piece of gauze held in position with sticking plaster over Montgomery's left brow, indicated the severity of the blow he received, which according to Dr. H. N. Young caused a fracture of the frontal bone of the skull. There was also a discolored swelling under his left eye.

In spite of his condition and the nature of the charges he faced, the accused presented a composed and unruffled demeanour. He was neatly attired in a blue serge suit, and stood in the dock with his arms

AGRICULTURAL FRONT BATTLED BY NRA FORCES

Officials Battle On Programs To Reimburse Producers Who Cut Production.

$400,000,000 IN GRANTS.

Huge Sum To Be Raised By Processing Tax, Ultimately From Consumer.

NEW YORK, September 6 (C.P.).—While the blue eagle of the national recovery administration spreads its wings over the just and the unjust industrialists of the United States, and the campaign for rehabilitating industry enters a critical phase, the Rooseveltian "experiment" for restoring a degree of prosperity is pushed along another front—agricultural.

The first six months of operations of the Department of Agriculture under the Farm Adjustment Act have been concluded. Many acres of cotton have been ploughed under, as officials hope many acres of wheat may be; hundreds of thousands of pigs and sows are being pushed on the market to be sold at government premium.

Meantime officals work upon programs designed to reimburse producers who cut production, in the expectation of granting them between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000 within the next half-year.

The money to pay the producers will be obtained from a processing tax, ultimately from the consumer. Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace has levied a tax on cotton of 4.2 cents a lint round and on wheat of 30 cents a bushel. The cotton tax will go to pay producers who ploughed under 10 000,000 acres, approximately $110.000.000.

Those wheat growers who reduce their acreage 15 per cent. stand to get about $120 000,000.

Funds to pay premiums on the 4,000,000 pigs and 1,000,000 farrow sows now moving to market will be also obtained through a processing tax. Premiums are estimated at about $50,000,000.

Approximately $150,000 000 is

AGE PENSIONS FOR N. SCOTIA

New Premier Announces Decision Immediately On Taking Office.

ACT PASSED IN 1931.

HALIFAX, Sept. 6. (CP)— Less than 12 hours after his inauguration as Nova Scotia's Premier, Hon. Angus L. Macdonald announced last night his new cabinet's first order-in-council had been a proclamation bringing into effect the provisions of the Nova Scotia Old-Age Pensions Act, passed in 1931. He disclosed also the cabinet's initial moves towards fulfilling pre-election pledges of economy.

Estimated savings of $25,000 annually were effected through abolition of two deputy ministerial posts—those of agriculture and health—and reduction in the number of liquor commissioners from two to one. In addition, the cabinet appointed three of its members as a committee to ascertain means of further reducing expenditures of Government.

The cabinet met late yesterday, after the new Premier had been sworn in as successor to Hon. Gordon S. Harrington, whose Government went down to defeat in the general election of Aug. 22. Its order-in-Council makes the Pensions Act effective as from yesterday. It was passed during the administration of Premier Harrington but never proclaimed.

Sense and Nonsense

The role that was a jinx for Peggy Joyce and for Lilyan Tashman has turned out to be anything but for Blossom Seeley.

Blossom Seeley

After looking at the first day's pinch-hitting done by the vaudeville actress in "Broadway Through a Keyhole," Darryl Zanuck called Blossom in and signed her to a long-term contract with Twentieth Century Pictures

As further proof of his enthusiasm, he has had a role written in for Blossom in the George Bancroft picture, "Blood Money," and is putting two writers to work on a starring vehicle for her.

While they're not talking, rumor has it that Zanuck and Joseph M. Schenck believe they have discovered another potential Mae West in the vaudeville star.

Blonde Claire Windsor told reporters she was through with men but only a few hours later, in San Francisco, she ran up a long distance telephone bill talking to C. Roy Gilliland at the Hollywood Plaza Hotel. Mr. Gilliland is from Oregon and is wealthy.

Intimates of Al Jolson will tell you that the singing star would like to buy the Marcus Loew home on Long Island and persuade Ruby Keeler to give up Hollywood and live there with him.

The stories of Bing Crosby's objections to being starred are not phoney. The crooner refused to sign his new Paramount contract until the studio agreed to scrap advertising posters giving him stellar billing in "Too Much Harmony."

It's good-bye Hollywood for Major Ernst Udet. The German flier took Dave Butler for a farewell flight and wanted to include Lilian Harvey, but Fox put it's foot down. . . . Another who'll leave Hollywood is Katharine Hepburn. She goes Sunday night via the air route for a three weeks' vacation in New York. . . . Cary Grant plans a trip to England as soon as he finishes two more pictures. Cary was born in Bristol you know.

Never try to rib Ernst Lubitsch. Ask Jeanette MacDonald. Meeting Ernst after her return from Europe, she began to tell him about her part in "The Cat and the Fiddle." Only, in a spirit of fun, she substituted most of the situations from Ernst's current picture. "Design for Living." The rotund director got so excited he almost swallowed his cigar. That night he investigated and discovered the hoax. Then he called up Jeanette, told her the laugh was on him but that he had read the real script of "The Cat and the Fiddle" and for her to refuse to play the part—that it would ruin her. Jeanette then went up in the

FIVE CIVILIANS APPOINTED TASK GOVERNING CUBA

Sergeant Court Stenographer Steps Into Control of Nation's Army.

TROOPS KEEPING ORDER.

U.S. Warships On Guard In Havana And Santiago Harbors.

By John P. McKnight

HAVANA, Sept. 6.—(AP)—A junta of five men took charge today of the second revolution-born government Cuba has had in less than a month.

This "executive commission for provisional government," named after the rank and file of Cuban defense forces had driven out President de Cespedes and his cabinet, will rule until an actual revolutionary regime is established.

Its members decided to meet this morning to outline their policies, to seek the return of order, and to demand recognition by other nations of the new administration.

An earlier manifesto announced the revolutionary junta, composed of enlisted soldiers and sailors and civilians of various factions, led by the students' organization, will fight "for revolutionary vindications" upon "pure principles of national sovereignty."

Vindications

These "vindications" were outlined in the proclamation as economic reconstruction, trial of "delinquents" of the former government, recognition of national debts, formation of adequate courts, reorganization of national services for an early return to normalcy, and measures for creating a new Cuba, "founded on the firm bases of law and the most modern concept of democracy."

In Havana Harbor was the United Stats destroyer McFarland, sent hurriedly from Key West. The destroyer Sturtevant was at Santiago, where a mob killed four men reputedly members of the strong arm squad of Gerardo Machado, whose government fell on Aug. 12 and gave way to the short-lived administration of Dr. de Cespedes.

Two other warships, the cruiser Richmond and the destroyer Bainbridge, were due to-day or to-morrow from American bases with the announced intention also of protecting American interests.

The attitude of the old guard political parties toward the emergence of the Junta in a swift and comparatively peaceful coup had not been defined, but qualified observers predicted an early move at conciliation.

Thus, an army top sergeant, who is known as one of Cuba's best court stenographers, square-jawed, loud-voiced Fulgencio Batista, became commander of the army and five civilians became the heads of the Government.

The Junta.

They are Jose Iribarri, 40-year-old lawyer; Guillermo Portela, 48, a professor of penal law in Havana University, who is the nominal president before the diplomatic corps; Ramon Grau San Martin, 45, professor of anatomy; Porfirio Franco, 45, a banker, and Sergio Calbo, 39-year-old editor who headed the unsuccessful Gibara revolt in 1931.

Soldiers patrolled the city under orders to maintain order at all costs. One private said the presence of the warship in the harbor induced the army, without commissioned officers since the coup, to "show its mettle."

Regarding the coup, Batista, one of its leaders, said:

"The steps taken were the result of plans of civilian leaders and every one of us expects to return to his place in the ranks as soon as circumstances permit our replacement by officers of the army who have not stained their uniforms by unworthy acts against the people of Cuba.

CHINESE RANGE SINKS IN QUAKE

Enormous Loss of Life Reported As 170 Mile Area Caves In.

RIVER COURSE CHANGED.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 6 (AP)—Chinese despatches belatedly described yesterday the caving in of an area of 170 square miles in an earthquake in Szechwan Province, Western China.

The shock was reported strongest in the Min River area in Northwest Szechwan, where five entire districts are reported laid waste, with enormous loss of life and property.

Reports said part of the mountains along the river crumbled and slid into the stream, changing its course and isolating the area.

Earlier despatches from Chengtu, capital of the province, said 100 persons were killed. Later information said the quake was the worst suffered in 100 years, although the stricken area is mountainous and subject to severe quakes at frequent intervals.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

One noticeable thing in studying Paul Whiteman's diet on his downward path from 303 to 200 pounds is, that his salad dressing was made of mineral oil instead of olive oil. His recipe is as follows:

4 thin slices onion
2¼ teaspoons salt
5 tablespoons vinegar
½ teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons sugar
Few grains cayenne
1 cup mineral oil.

Let onion slices stand in vinegar 30 minutes; strain. Add sugar, salt, paprika, cayenne to vinegar, mix well. Then add mineral oil and shake in tightly covered container, or beat until thick and smooth. Chill. Shake again to mix before using. Makes 1 1-3 cups.

The advantage of this salad dressing over ordinary French dressing or mayonnaise is that mineral oil is not absorbed, while olive oil is and turns into fat.

A typical Whiteman breakfast is as follows:

1 glass grapefruit juice
1 dish cornflakes and milk
1 cup tea or coffee.

Notice there is no cream or sugar ordered for the coffee, and milk instead of cream is used on the cornflakes. The total calories for that breakfast is about 200.

His lunch and dinner the same day were as follows:

Luncheon:
1 cup clear bouillon
1 lettuce and tomato salad
1 large helping NOFD
1 piece watermelon or dish stewed fruit
1 cup coffee substitute.

Dinner:
6 stalks celery
6 radishes
1 helping lean round steak
3 tablespoons red cabbage with lemon sauce
1 lettuce and cucumber salad
1 large helping NOFD
1 dish cherry gelatine
1 demi-tasse.

Absence of fats is again noticeable.

Calories for the whole day do not come up to more than 1,000. Pretty slim pickings. It is a wonder he didn't lose faster. But then, remember he had to use up over a hundred pounds of his own fat. And a pound of fat is about 3,000 calories.

Most of us eat about 3,000 calories worth of food a day. A reducing diet should at least cut this in half and also reduce the fats—replace butter, cream, meat bread, and starchy foods with green vegetables and fruits.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

A. J. M.: "I have been warned that an X-ray machine will cause hair to grow on the face. Should it be used, therefore, in acne?"

Answer: The opposite is the truth. The X-ray removes hair rather than causing it to grow. When used by a competent operator it is indicated in acne.

M. S. K.: "What is the cause of hardening along the sides of the finger nails? Sometimes they are red and swollen."

Answer: Usually infection with ringworm. It can be relieved by the application of Whitfield's Ointment.

Everything seems to have taken on a new lease of life. There are card clubs organizing and there is the renewing of activity in old and established clubs.

• • • • • • •

Hostesses are considering times to entertain their groups, and wondering if they can provide prizes that will be different when it falls to them to do this.

• • • • • • •

Here is a suggestion:

• • • • • • •

Basket of Flowers Bag: The lower part of the bag is a shallow round basket with low straight side. The top is of green silk or glazed chintz This is attached to the basket with an encircling border of flowers of many colors.

• • • • • • •

These are half-dollar size circles of silk gathered around turned-in edge and drawn together to form an opening half an inch in diameter. Similar flowers form two other close circles above the wreath around the basket top, while still other flowers are scattered over the silk upper portion so that when the drawstring is pulled the flowers seem to fill the basket.

• • • • • • •

For the heading of the silk portion seam on a band of gay colored silk and it will resemble a full petalled flower when drawn tight.

• • • • • • •

The basket should be silk lined throughout, or glazed chintz can be used throughout. Fasten flowers in position through outer silk portion only.

• • • • • • •

Use yellow or black French knots for this. Work them through under part of flower which cups over and about the stitchery.

A PRETTY END PLAY

The following deal afforded the declarer an opportunity for a pretty end play, of which he took advantage.

East and West alone were vulnerable. Bidding went as follows: South, 1-Diamond; North, 2-No Trumps, hoping that his partner might be able to make a shift to a major suit declaration; South, 3-Clubs, not liking the singleton Spade at no trumps; when North bid 3-No Trumps, South, of course, passed.

Although South had bid clubs, East led the 4 of that suit. As it happened no lead could have accomplished much. North won the opening lead with his J, then cleared his hand of clubs by laying down his K. Next he led the Q of diamonds. East covered with the K, hoping to establish the J or 9 in his partner's hand. Dummy won with the Ace. Declarer won the next trick with the Q of diamonds, then he led the 8, overtaking with dummy's 10, and dropping the last opposing card of the suit. West started an echo in spades, by discarding his 7.

Dummy led its last two diamonds. West completed his spade echo by letting go his 4, then he discarded his third club. North let go his two lowest spades. It was evident that he could not pick up a stray trick in that suit. East discarded his 8 of spades, then he let go his lowest heart.

Dummy forced further discards from West by leading its two good clbs, upon which East followed suit. West had to let go the 10 of spades, and the declarer noticed that East must hold the missing 5. West also had to discard his 8 of hearts. The remaining holdings were clear to the declarer by this time. As East had led a 4-card suit and had shown 3 diamonds, it was evident that he had originally 3 spades, 3 hearts, 3 diamonds and 4 clubs. West must originally have held 5 spades, 3 hearts, 2 diamonds and 3 clubs. Opponents held at the end of the ninth trick the following cards: West, 2 spades and 2 hearts; East held also 2 spades and 2 hearts. A pretty end play could be made, to insure a small slam, and the declarer did not miss it. He won the next trick with his Ace of hearts, followed by a return lead of the same suit. West lost his J to declarer's Ace, then won the only trick taken by his side, with the K of hearts. West had to lead a spade. The declarer's lone Ace won the spade lead, then dummy's Q of hearts took the last trick, giving North and South their twelfth trick. The location of opposing cards had given the declaring side a small slam which could not be bid.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

The famous Doug Fairbanks, who is one of the most vitally alive individuals in the cinema world, once said that if every tree you see doesn't dare you to climb it, you're getting old. And there certainly is a good deal in what Doug says. For youth possesses a certain joyous exuberance and peppiness that people too often lose when they become older

Gladys Glad

Pep really is an important part of a girl's make-up, in this day and age. Not a boisterous, uncouth sort of pep, of course. But the kind of pep that reflects perfect health and vitality. Listless, drooping young things are passe, and don't get a tumble from the boys, nowadays.

However, even the peppiest and brightest of girlies is likely to have her off days, days on which she walks feeling tired and dejected. Days on which she feels cross and sore at the entire world before she even has one foot out of bed. Perhaps she's been out until the wee hours the night before. Perhaps the heat has been too much for her. Perhaps she's been working too hard. But whatever the cause, she wakes feeling listless, pepless and decidedly cross.

In my opinion, the best little remedy for that morning grouch is a brisk, invigorating cold shower. It is astonishing what a daily session under a stinging spray of cool water will do to make a gal feel full of life and vigor. For a cold shower sends the blood racing vigorously through the entire body. It whips the nerves out of their lethargy And it leaves you with a delightful feeling of well-being.

The next time that you wake in the morning feeling anything but your usual bright and cheery self, don a bathing cap and trot into your bathroom. Turn on the shower and adjust the water to a comfortably warm temperature. Scrub your body briskly with a small flesh brush and a bland soap, and then duck under the shower. When the warm water has washed away all lather, gradually increase the volume of the cold water until it is as cool as you can stand it. Remain under the cool stinging spray for a few minutes, and then hop out and dry yourself. Then don a fresh set of undies, and 10-to-1 you'll find yourself humming a gay tune before you've even completed your toilette!

Weddings

WELCH—BUTLER

A very pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon at two o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Welch, Princess street, when their elder daughter, Sybil Pearl, was united in marriage to Mr. Ivan Stewart Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Butler, Hall's Glen, Ontario.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, pastor of St. James' United Church assisted by the Rev. J. W. Wilkinson of Warsaw. To the strains of the Wedding March from "Lohengrin" the bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father and advanced to the daintily constructed archway arranged of gladiolus in a color scheme of pink and white and crowned by a large white bell under which the ceremony was performed.

The bride wore a lovely gown of white bridal satin with silk tulle veil caught with orange blossoms, and carried rose-pink carnations. Her only adornment was the gift of the groom, a crystal lavalier.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss May Welch, as bridesmaid, wearing a girlish frock of poudre blue crepe with wide sash of pale pink satin, and carrying a bouquet of pink and white gladiolus.

Mr. Gordon Butler, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man.

Mrs. Welch, mother of the bride, received the guests wearing an ensemble of periwinkle blue georgette and suede lace, with hat to match and corsage bouquet of pink carnations. Mrs. Ernest Butler, the groom's mother, who received with Mrs. Welch, wore an effective costume of midnight blue crepe appliqued in white with a small smart hat. While little Barbara Hamlin, the bride's cousin, made a charming door attendant, in her pretty frilly frock.

The wedding song, "Because" was very sweetly sung during the signing of the register, by Mrs. E. R. Frost, who wore a gown of white pebble crepe; Miss Chrissie Milby playing the accompaniment as well as all the wedding music.

A reception and buffet luncheon followed the ceremony, the decorations being carried out in pink and white. The table was very lovely done in a handmade Mexican cloth of linen and lace. Long streamers of white and pink crepe, silver holders with pink candles and a large bouquet of carnations, made a charming setting for the bride's cake which centered the table.

The tea room was in charge of Miss Annie E. Barrie, who was assisted by a bevy of pretty girls, including Misses Gwen Parsons, Audrey McIlmoyle, Jean Kerr, Gladys Mitchell, Doris Inkpen and Hilda Morris.

In gracious words, the Rev. Mr. Wilkinson proposed the toast to the bride, to which the groom ably responded. A lovely array of wedding gifts were displayed to the guests by Mrs. William Fell.

The groom's gift to the bride was a crystal lavalier; to the bridesmaid, silver bracelets; to the pianist, a vanity compact; to the soloist, vanity bag; the door attendant, a bracelet, and to the best man a white gold tie pin and clasp.

The bride's two grandmothers graced her wedding by their presence, and regrets were expressed that the groom's grandmother was detained by illness.

Among the out-of-town guests were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell and Misses Gladys and Dorothy Mitchell of Hamilton; Mrs. Morris and Miss Hilda Morris of Midland; Mr. and Mrs. H. McIlmoyle and Miss Audrey McIlmoyle, of Selwyn; Rev. J. W. and Mrs. Wilkinson of Warsaw; Mr. and Mrs. Parsons and Miss Gwen Parsons, Hall's Glen; Miss Jean Kerr, Bobcaygeon; Mr. and Mrs. Galvin Dunford, and Mrs. Ralph Wasson, Smith.

The bride's going-away costume was a swagger suit of nigger-brown wool mesh, with matching accessories.

The happy couple left by motor on a wedding trip during which they will visit Midland, Hamilton, and Niagara Falls. Upon their return they will take up residence at Hall's Glen.

Beltless fitted lines grow increasingly smart in frocks.

THE MINISTERS' AUTOMOBILES.

The Border Cities Star takes Mitchell F. Hepburn mildly to task for his recent reference to the cost of automobiles used by members of the Ontario Cabinet.

The Windsor paper intimates that this criticism was small stuff inasmuch as the total amount involved would not represent any tax saving were it to be wiped out altogether.

As a matter of fact, while rigid economy in the public service is, of course, essential, the placing of automobiles at the service of Cabinet Ministers is in keeping with modern ideas.

Members of the Cabinet are called upon to visit all parts of the province in connection with their official duties; their presence at a great many public functions is sought, and as train schedules are not always convenient, the use of motor transport is absolutely necessary in many cases.

If such transport were not available it would probably be found that the travelling expenses of the Cabinet would be sharply increased, while the time of the Ministers would be so completely occupied by outside duties that other ends of their work would necessarily suffer.

So long as public-owned motor cars are used in the public's service there will not be any great amount of complaint from the people; after all we cannot go back to the days of dirt roads and exclusively horse-drawn vehicles.

THEY ARE NOT ALL ALIKE.

The Ottawa Journal is among the few Canadian newspapers to line up in defence of the present administration of the penitentiary system in Canada.

According to the Journal, the Canadian people should do some serious thinking on this subject and not be carried away by hysteria.

There are comparatively few first offenders in the Canadian penitentiaries, it declares, and a good many of the inmates, it intimates, are of the type that could not be converted into good citizens by all the kindness in the world.

That, of course, may be perfectly true, but even if there are many desperate criminals within the penitentiary walls their presence does not justify a system that apparently regards every criminal as permanently beyond the pale and that completely fails to take into consideration the Golden Rule.

One of the gravest problems in regard to the administration of our penal institutions, it strikes The Examiner, is the fact that there is a wide variety of personalities represented among the inmates, and that to attempt to measure them all by the same yardstick is to make failure certain.

The conditions demand prison officials of judgment and capacity; men who understand human nature and are capable of dealing with the hardened criminals with the necessary severity, but at the same time able to find good in those convicts who can be redeemed by humane treatment.

Much of the trouble has been caused by the fact that all the inmates have been treated like the worst offenders.

HOW ABOUT LIFE INSURANCE?

One item in the C.C.F. program that has not received the attention its importance merit is that proposing the socialization of life insurance companies.

Just what that means is set forth clearly by the Victoria Daily Colonist, which after pointing out that Canadians are the second most heavily insured people in the world, carrying no less than $6,500,000,000 of life insurance, declares "those who are insured will hardly be willing that their prospects of being paid the policies when they mature should be left in the hands of a socialistic junta. There is at present an amount of $1,750,000,000 accumulated by Canadian insurance companies which guarantees payment when policies fall due. That amount is not lying idle. It is at work promoting national, provincial and municipal undertakings. In other words, the life insurance premiums that are paid are not only an investment for the future but they represent work and the necessities of life. The aggregate of premiums paid on life insurance is a property shared in by the Canadian people as a whole. It would be the height of folly to hand over this trust to those who want it as an implement for experimentation of socialism."

That is something to think over; it is all very well to talk about socializing life insurance, but when you stop to consider just what is involved in such a process, sensible people can be pardoned for having some misgiving as to the advisability of the step.

With billions involved in life insurance it seems a dangerous policy to hand over such an immense sum to Mr. Woodsworth and his friends to play around with it as they try out their socialistic experiments.

NEW RATING FOR THE EXHIBITION.

The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, it should not be forgotten, has expanded this year into a Class "A" fair—and the significance of that classification will not fail to impress the public.

It means that the Peterborough Industrial will broaden out in every department in accordance with its higher rating; there will be a bigger prize list, the number and quality of the exhibits will show a corresponding betterment, and in its entertainment features there will be a similar expansion befitting the fact that the local fair has been officially accorded Class "A" standing.

There is every reason, therefore, to look forward to a splendid Exhibition that will be a defiance to the pessimists who can see no silver lining on the clouds of depression; the attendance, it is hoped, will be proportionate to the merit of the Peterborough Industrial and to the reputation it has won for itself by all-round excellence.

In securing of His Majesty's Scots Guards Band as the special attraction for the first two days the directors have made certain of getting the Exhibition away to a flying start; this superb musical organization should draw thousands to Exhibition Park on Monday and Tuesday, for music-lovers from far and near will not want to miss this opportunity of hearing one of the world's great bands.

NOT AN ARTIFICIAL RECOVERY.

The Toronto Telegram emphasizes a point that perhaps deserves to be noticed more closely by the people of Canada than it has been, and that is that the Dominion is progressing toward recovery as rapidly as any other country in the world, without any artificial stimulus. It is generally admitted that this country has not suffered so severely as the Republic has by the depression through which it has passed. Moreover it is contended that every factor in the economic life of Canada on which recovery depends is stable, and that when the forces of prosperity begin to work this country is certain to reap great advantage. In support of its argument the Telegram quotes from an article in Time, which is one of the most widely read news periodicals in the United States and which says:

"With no New Deal to titillate prices, only intra-Empire tariff preferences to promote business, Canada, since last February, has staged an economic comeback almost equal to that of the United States. Her bank clearings are 27 per cent. ahead of last year, her carloadings up 7 per cent., her wholesale price index stands at 70.5, as compared to 66.6 a year ago and 63.6 in February. Drought has put her wheat up to 80 cents (from a low of 50 cents). Her busy gold mines are working virtually 100 per cent. of capacity making big profits with gold selling at a handsome premium. Electric power production is up 14 per cent. Her big paper industry has started into renewed activity that parallels the rise of steel in the United States. Her shoe and textile industries are booming. Exports for May, June and July were $143,000,000 compared with $124,000,000 a year ago. Those United States objectors who argue that the New Deal should get no credit, that recovery in the United States started of its own accord, point to Canada with some reason."

There is absolutely no objection whatever to taking advantage of every proved principle in economics in order to promote industry and business in the Dominion. Canada, however, has been disposed to follow the example of the Motherland, which has the experience of centuries in the management of industry and commerce. Canadians will do well to have faith in their country, in their governments and in the vast natural resources which the Dominion possesses. Its agriculture, mining, fishing, lumbering and manufacturing contain potentialities that are bound to bring about the development that is necessary to prosperity.—Brantford Expositor.

POWER OF BALLOTS.

If the great masses of the people only realized it—and after realizing it, if they only went out and acted intelligently, fearlessly and conscientiously — they have the solution of nearly all their ills right in their own hands.

Take for instance the deplorable condition of many of the big cities of the United States with respect to uncontrollable crime. Almost any school child in that country can name off notorious criminals, along with their records—or at least a portion of them. It is foolish to think that the police authorities cannot do the same thing. It is a wonder then that these criminals are not punished—and yet it isn't when the ways of the politicians are known and understood.

Right in New York to-day a U. S. district attorney is elaborating charges that there exists an intimate alliance between New York politics and New York crime.

This is not a new charge. In fact, it is well known that politicians are responsible for much of the crime in the United States. In every city where there is organized, unbridled crime there is co-operation between the gangsters and the politicians.

And yet when the people go to the polls they vote for the same old machine candidates. They accept the spoils system without protest—and still they fail to understand how organized crime continues to exist. They entirely miss the one chance they have to rid their cities of corruption, through their use of the ballot.

What applies to crime in the United States applies with equal force to the lesser problems of other cities and countries. We want good government —honest government—economical government—but what are the influences which control so many voters when the time comes to exercise their franchise—party politics, blind partizanship, sympathy, personal animosities, prejudice, indifference, ignorance, often financial reward and other selfish considerations.

If, as we mentioned at the beginning of this editorial, the great masses of people only realized it, and acted accordingly, they have it in their own hands to correct most public evils through the ballot. The first essential is to get competent candidates in the field, and the next duty is to elect them by putting aside these unworthy influences we have mentioned, and which, in fact, are more than anything else keeping competent men from offering themselves for public service, in all departments of public life, municipal, provincial and federal.

We need to think more deeply on these things, then we would realize that if things are not as we would wish them to be the people have only themselves to blame.—Chatham Daily News.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Drowning accidents continue to fill newspaper columns—and it is noticeable that the majority of the victims are classified as non-swimmers.

The opening of schools cuts short Ontario's summer resort season. Undoubtedly thousands would remain at their summer homes well into September if the school schedule did not interfere.

Miss Britain III. came through both heats of the Harmsworth Trophy race intact—and that in itself is a record.

Attendance at Peterborough schools indicates that the community believes in preparing for the industrial and business revival that all are hoping for.

Those political schools do not seem to be at all practical in their viewpoint. Nowhere in the list of subjects can be found any information as to how hecklers may be squelched or other useful topics of the same nature.

While the oyster who never bothers anybody and leads a quiet life ends up in a stew.—Brandon Sun.

VACATION ESCAPADE
By ARTHUR SHUMWAY

CHAPTER 16.

The next morning was for Sally a repetition of the one before and the one before that, of all those bright, warm Florida mornings there by the sea. Up when she finally awoke, with no alarm clock to jangle her nerves, no roommate to goad her into getting ready for work no matter how late she had been up, with no knowledge of her duties for the day, with, in fact, no real duties that she could see. Then down to breakfast, the typing of a few letters, the answering of the telephone once or twice perhaps and that was all. There was nothing to do then but go out for the morning plunge in the surf as long as it was still warm enough for swimming. Fred Proctor had told her that some people stopped at the end of November or early in December and started again late in March, while many more swam all winter; it depended on the individual.

Pleasant as this life was, it was beginning to destroy Sally's self-confidence, for every day she found time to realize what a complete sham her position was, and how dangerous if her real one were to be discovered. Yet the ease of the life made caution difficult.

In Fred Proctor the girl saw a threat, but a fascinating threat. How long, she wondered, would he pay her a good salary and treat her as a member of his family or a guest? How long would he confine his attentions to lunches, breakfasts, swims, short drives and pleasant conversation?

This worry made Sally all the more alert to discover whatever might be discovered of the mystery of John Kemble Proctor's death so that she could do her part and end her deception. Most of all at present she wanted to discover what was in that ledger Proctor had been reading and had concealed from her.

So all morning Sally watched for an opportunity to get at that desk in the daytime, but seldom was she in the room that someone else was not near by. It wasn't worth the risk, she concluded. If she were discovered prowling through the desk for a book that might really have no bearing on the larger mystery might she not be discharged or at least put under thorough surveillance from then on?

Her first chance to see Ted again that day came early that afternoon when he returned from an errand over in town. She heard the big car come purring up the drive, and, knowing Fred Proctor was away, went down to the garage ostensibly to get the car for herself.

Ted's eyes were shining and he wore a sly smile.

"You've found out something," she accused.

"Psychic, aren't you?"

"Well, you have!"

"I'll say I have, baby."

"What, Ted? About Vitelli?"

"No, I haven't heard about him yet, but I expect to any time now. No, this is about your boy friend that I couldn't figure out, your nice, polite Mr. Mike Collins."

"What? What about him?" Sally demanded.

"I've been in a huddle with the city editor of the paper. He gave me the lowdown on Collins and, believe me, sister, that baby is tough. Tough with a capital T."

"What is he? Who is he?"

"He's one of the biggest liquor operators on the coast. Anything you want, any amount you want, any way you want it, by boat, airplane or car and it'll cost you plenty. He's supposed to have a fleet of boats, some planes and a whole squadron of cars. He brings it over from Bimini and Havana, lands it, cuts it, wholesales it and retails it to big customers. That's where his cars come in. Big loads leave some place down the coast every night or so for the big burgs up north."

"A rum runner. He would be."

"That isn't all he is. He's the Al Capone of this little paradise, Sally. Not so gaudy, but just as neat. When they get in his way the undertakers start to smile."

"He's killed people?"

"Oh, I wouldn't put it that way. It might be considered an affront. But he—has people removed."

"Why haven't they ever done something about it?"

"They can't." Ted laughed cynically. "And mighty few of them want to, I'm afraid," he added. "He's hard to pin anything personally and he makes it plenty tough for those who try to step on his toes."

"What do you suppose he could have been doing here that night, then?" she asked, feeling an inclination to shudder as she remembered the deadly politeness of Proctor, the icy rage of Mike Collins in that midnight encounter in the hall.

"Aha!" said Ted brightly. "Aha! That's just it. What was he doing here When we find that out we may be getting somewhere in this whole mess."

"What do you think?" she demanded.

"I don't—yet. Not exactly, that is."

"Oh, quit being mysterious, Mr. Sherlock, or I'll kick your darned old shins."

"I'm not being mysterious, baby," Ted replied with a strange little smile. "I'm just thinking, just thinking, and I haven't come to any real conclusion. When I do, I assure you, you'll be the first to know." He paused. "Watson," he added.

Ted looked out toward the house to see if anyone were near. Then he turned to Sally, more serious this time.

"We can't talk too long here," he said. "We're going to have to find some new way of keeping in touch with each other. This is dangerous. Listen, though. I'll tell you one thing that I have found out."

She looked at him eagerly.

"Nice, polite Mr. Mike Collins was among those present a little over a week ago when old man Proctor was rubbed out."

"He was? Who told you?"

"The city editor. Hall, one of his reporters, saw him around town. He'd been away a long time. Nobody knew where he was. But that week he showed up, just long enough for this lad to get a glimpse of him."

"Then he could have shot Mr. Proctor!" Sally exclaimed.

"He could have, yes."

"Ted, this is getting beyond me. The farther we go the more we suspect and the less we know. I'm about ready to give up. You were so certain Fred Proctor was the logical candidate."

"I know I was, but these things have come up since then. You have to include everybody you know. And you have to have a motive and an opportunity for each suspect, then weigh them one against the other."

"Well, have you?"

"For Fred Proctor, a good motive —the money that he's to get. But he'd have got it anyway. An opportunity—one of the best: he's the chap who found the old man after he was plugged."

"The girl did. Flobella did," Sally corrected.

"True, but she's out, I think. At least for the time. I can't see any motive. Maybe, though. She's smart, that little darky, plenty smart. I haven't taken her off my list, if it interests you. No, but she didn't have as many other things against her as Proctor. He had a gun of the same caliber and he was fishing around for that shell in the sand."

"But Vitelli had a .38, too, and it might have been his bullet that Fred Proctor was looking for, to find out who did kill his uncle."

"I know, I know. I admitted it myself. Yes, it's a mess, and Vitelli does look pretty sinister. No candy lamb, that old goat. But I'm just showing you the whole picture."

"Yes, but you still insist on making it blackest for Fred Proctor."

"And you still insist on white-washing him. I believe you're a yen for the man."

"Don't be silly," Sally retorted, feeling the hot flush over her cheeks and neck. Was that what Ted thought, she wondered?

"No? Hm. Well, anyway, I think you'll agree we have a neat squirming handful of suspects and the fact that Collins was around makes him a candidate, too. But Vitelli. There's the boy! If he isn't a murderer nature is all wrong and there's nothing in faces. I can hardly wait till I get that report on him from Chicago."

"Sh!" Sally whispered suddenly. "There he is!"

Ted looked out and saw the hideous old man limping along by the house, not 50 feet away.

"Could he have heard us?" Sally whispered.

Ted shrugged. "Get into the car and scram," he said. "Look innocent now."

A REPLY TO MR. BELL.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir, — The self-confessed failure of those in authority to stem the tide of depression and want naturally leaves them out of the picture, although Mr. Bennett says that the only hope of the return of employment is in long hours and short pay—because others are doing it and we must get down to their level.

Then Mr. King proposes to go on with that system which made Macdougald and the $750,000 possible. Then there was the Farmer-Drury Government which, after a perfect "holocaust" of extravagance and patronage, very appropriately expired in that "last awful night."

Now the C.C.F. comes in with a policy of piety. They want a certain course of things so we shall have it. If what we have is chaos, what it proposes is the father of chaos. We knew all that before.

It is not profession, but practice that we are looking for. The C. C. F. proposes to take by force from those who have for the benefit of those who have not and disregard justice to the individual (the foundation of all law and of all liberty) altogether and ignores religion. Religion has no place under any socialistic state.

Mr. Bell will leave the C.C.F. when he finds that out.

ALL OF US
By MARSHALL MASLIN

MY ANONYMOUS LETTER

One thing I never did. I never wrote an anonymous letter, never sat down and wrote what I thought about somebody and signed it "A Friend" or signed with it some fictitious name and took it down and slipped it into a mail box and said to myself, "There! that'll show that big fake what people think of him!"

No, I don't feel holier-than-thou about never writing any anonymous letters....I've wanted to do it. I've had the impulse to write a few frank opinions of the other fellow. I've even, if I remember clearly, phrased whole letters in my mind. ....But laziness, or procrastination, or some faint premonition of how cheap I'd feel myself after the lid of the mail box clanged irrevocably on my letter—of how often, without pride, with a flush of shame, I'd remember that all-too-human anonymous message.

So I've never written any.

But I've had them.

I've written things occasionally that have provoked people and they have been angry. They've nursed their wrath and kept it warm and thought over what they'd say to that fellow (meaning me). Then they've written. (And I've noticed, too, how much better a vocabulary a writer has when he's scolding than when he's praising. It's that way with everybody almost)....I've even had anonymous letters of praise and they've warmed my heart, made me overflow with good feeling toward men or women who will say a kind thing and hide their identities. But the cantankerous ones have made me miserable, sickened me, upset me more than I should confess. They used to do that more than they do now, perhaps because my skin is thicker now.

But the one I received yesterday didn't bother me at all. It called me a 'smug newspaperman' and extended the remarks considerably. The woman who wrote it was scolding me for an article that had appeared in the paper and she thought I wrote it. But I hadn't. The opinions that were in it were hardly mine, but she thought they were. So she told me a few things I ought to know and she didn't sign her name. And it doesn't hurt at all, because she really meant her remarks for another fellow instead of me. My only regret is I can't write to tell her so.... But there's one anonymous letter that missed its mark completely, and I have an idea that nearly all of them do, in one way or another

WHEN EDWARD VISITED TORONTO

On this date in 1860 the then Prince of Wales (afterwards Edward VII) was welcomed to Toronto with loyal enthusiasm. The occasion is notable because it was the first time that citizens of Toronto wore the maple leaf as the National emblem. There was some opposition by old timers when the suggestion was first made, because the emblem had previously been adopted in Quebec. Of course, being Toronto, sectional and racial religious bitterness was introduced, but the common sense of the better citizens prevailed and the leaf was generally worn.

There was, however, a great deal of bitterness among the Orange element, because the Duke of Newcastle, the young prince's cicerone—he was Colonial Secretary at home —had obeyed the then existing law of Britain and had refused to recognize the Orange Order, going as far as to prevent the prince landing at Kingston because the Orangemen were on parade. He made it very clear on landing at Toronto that there was to be no sectional demonstration, an order which was obeyed, although when the royal party visited at St. James' church on the Sunday the Orangemen erected an arch on the route selected for the return journey, but the Duke, hearing of this, altered the route and the prince did not receive an Orange welcome.

This naturally exasperated the brethren whose boast is their loyalty; they, however, kept their anger under cover until the prince had left. Then it burst into flames and later Hon. J. Hilyare Cameron, the Grand Master, carried a protest and the Orangemen were mollified.

Edward's reception in Toronto with is round of functions, dinners, balls, etc., was the prelude to similar doing elsewhere in Upper Canada. His royal highness, like his grandson of today "kicked" sometimes at having to dance only with dowagers and picked partners and more than once selected his own partner for the waltz.

Character From Handwriting
By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterborough's Leading Handwriting Analyst for the Readers of The Examiner.

Annie Simons,
311 Rubidge street, Peterborough.

The handwriting as indited on your sample for analysis with its vertical heavy original formations, delineates you as a person with a splendid organizing ability. Your 't' bars are strongly combative and indicate tenacious independence and intuition. The large rounded 'B' suggests musical ability and a certain love of praise and pride in your own accomplishments. The formations of the small letters show decidedness and exceptional talent. Draughting as in patterns for creative work, or medicine as in pharmacy which are two entirely different occupations, should appeal to you. One as a hobby, the other as a profession. You have creative propensities and dislike routine except that of your own making. You can suggest ideas and plans for others either mentally, materially or artistically, and expect to see the finished product of your brain, perfected through the medium of the work of other people's hands. The slightly backhand tendency in your script, denotes secrecy when the necessity demands, otherwise you are as open minded as a book.

Medda Swinton,
Campbellford, Ontario.

The handwriting as portrayed on your sample for analysis describes you as a keen minded person, but your thoughts come with such tumultous rapidity that you cannot register them in sequence. You have an abundance of will power, but you do not make sufficient use of it. The outlines as written in pencil, thought not quite as distinct and decided as they would have been in ink, are fairly well delineated and portray a versatile nature. You appear to be a creature of many moods. Sometimes too happy, often too sad, with no happy medium. You also worry a good deal over things in general over which you have no control. However, you are quite sympathetic and understanding. You perceive the needs of others because you have suffered mentally and materially. Fortune has not exactly favored you with excess worldly goods, so you therefore, think logically and work diligently.

Miss H. M. O'Brien,
90 Sophia street, Peterborough.

The handwriting as inscribed on your sample for analysis delineates you as a person with a good deal of poise and judgment. It also expresses business ability and the knowledge of concurrent events. You are easily able to segregate your thoughts and establish logically the most interesting and worthwhile of them, and then make this the objective of your labor. You are not one to be induced to do something 'which goes against the grain.' Your second sense warns you against this propensity. You are typical of an all round good natured person, sympathetic, but not too much so, in fact none of your characteristics are over developed. You manage to find 'an even keel' upon which to lean at all times. You dress with appropriate care, and thoroughly detest anything of a loud nature. Music appeals to you, but that to must be imbibed in moderation. Your long loops which generously display themselves below the line, lend intrigue to your charming personality.

Bert Taylor,

This writing as described on sample expresses a wish to succeed. If determination counts for anything, your destiny is well marked, but you must never forget to put the best you have back of that determination. Your will power is not quite as strong as it might be, so that although you may be determined to accomplish certain deeds, you fall down on the job, due to lack of will power. You are richly endowed with brains as the next man, and you can be just as big an asset to your community but it all depends on yourself. Work will not just come to you. You will have to show what you can do. You can be very neat and precise and have a gift for paying attention to detail, and would work best under trained supervision. I might suggest as checking clerk for a big concern, stock taker, or supervisor for chain stores. However, this is just a suggestion. But please do not let yourself get discouraged before you find the right position that you desire. Your writing suggests certain artistic characteristics which might be developed to your advantage.

Doreen Ayotte,
Clydesdale, Ont.

The handwriting as depicted on your sample for analysis indicates the personality of one who is rather afraid to express effectively, the philosophy significant to conscientious thinking and talented eloquence. There is a nervousness suggested ,which creates the idea in your mind, that you must remain in quiet obscurity, while others do the talking and planning. You are kind and genial, therefore, prone to take too many burdens upon your shoulders. Apparently people think you are sharp and critical, but do not give you the credit you merit by your quick thinking intelligence of mind. Therefore, when you do assert yourself, they judge you wrongly. The large cross bar attendant to your letter 't' expresses indomitable will power, but the following letters denote a passive resistance. This shows that you are unprejudiced, adaptable, compassionate, and prefer love, health and happiness to personal gain or ambition. It also appears to me that you are in need of a vacation.

TORONTO MAN IS BAILED FOR TRIAL

Charged With Driving An Automobile While Under Influence of Liquor.

Charles Payne of 251 Soudan avenue, Toronto, was this morning bailed for trial on an adjourned charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Bail was set in the sum of $4,000.

At a previous appearance, the defendant was acquitted of a charge of having liquor in a place other than a residence, following a lengthy hearing of evidence. At that time the Magistrate reserved judgment on the second charge. To-day His Worship announced that he had been unable to arrive at a conclusion, and he was accordingly sending the case for trial before a judge.

The two charges against Payne resulted from an accident in which he was nvolved on the night of August 19. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Colby of Norwood were injured when their buggy was crashed into by a car driven by the defendant. The horse was killed.

J. A. O'Brien appeared for Payne.

Davis Is Uncertain On Arms Agreement

LONDON, Sept. 6 (AP)—Norman H. Davis, American Ambassador-at-large, said on reaching London from the United States to-day that details of his program preliminary to the resumption of the Disarmament Conference in Geneva are still indefinite, but will soon be worked out in some degree.

When Davis landed at Plymouth he said he would not predict success for the forthcoming conference, but hoped the nations "will have the wisdom and courage to reach an agreement" on arms reductions if they "weigh up the consequences of failure against the benefits of agreement."

He added that his government was willing to entertain a European non-aggression pact, and said: "Continental Europe has been talking about a treaty of mutual assistance, and that is almost exactly opposite to a treaty of non-aggression."

PLEADED GUILTY TO TAKING SAFE

folded, pleading guilty to the charges and electing summary trial by the magistrate, in low and subdued tones.

The first of the charges relating to attempted armed robbery, was the result of Montgomery's frustrated attempt to hold up the proprietor of the service station at Park Hill Road and Water Street on Friday midnight.

Hidden in the shadow of the fence dividing the service station from the rear of the proprietor's residence, Montgomery accosted Curtis, a burly Westerner who had with him the days receipts amounting to some $250 in bills and change. Ignoring the command to "stick 'em up", and unintimidated by the menacing muzzle of the revolver that was pointed at him, Curtis leaped upon his assailant, and held him until the arrival of the police. His call for assistance was answered by J. T. Braund, a neighbour, whose son Ernest put through the telephone call that brought the police squad into prompt action.

Lakefield Station Robbery

The second charge to which the accused pleaded guilty, namely that of breaking and entering and stealing a safe containing money orders and cash to the value of $600 brings partial solution to a case which has engaged the attention of the Provincial Police officers here, in co-operation with city police, since June 30 last.

On the night of June 30, it will be recalled the Canadian National Railway station office at Lakefield was broken into, and the safe was carried away along with the money orders and cash which it contained. Some days later the safe was recovered in Northumberland County near Bensfort Bridge. The door had been forced off with a pick.

It is almost certain that the Lakefield job was not the work of a "lone hand", and it is probable that the Crown sought a remand this morning in anticipation of the arrest of a possible accomplice of the accused. No official confirmation could be obtained on this point, however.

"I was leading a decent respectable life until June 30 . . . ", the accused told the bench. He spoke in such low tones that his voice was scarcely audible.

His Worship told the accused to speak louder, but his subsequent remarks, which referred to having been led away by some other man, were drowned out at that moment by a peal of thunder that echoed over the courtroom. Upon the later advice of the Magistrate the accused reserved any statement he might wish to make until his next appearance for sentence.

According to Chief Samuel Newhall, the accused who has a lengthy police record including a term in Kingston Penitentiary, is wanted on various charges at Gravenhurst, Smith's Falls, Madoc, Aylmer, London and Stratford. He has previously been convicted of forging and uttering.

Montgomery who stated that he was forty-three years of age, gave his address as 450 Mark street, Peterborough, and said that he was a chef by occupation. He claims Ireland as his native land.

40-HOUR WEEK BEING PLANNED BY THE C.G.E.

will be provided for some of our former employees who have not had work for the last two years."

Nothing to Do With N.R.A.

Asked if the move was in any way connected with the National Recovery Act in the United States to which the General Electric Company, originally Canadian General Electric's parent organization, is adhering, he made an emphatic denial. "It may happen that our adoption of a shorter week parallels certain principles of the National Recovery Act, but there is no connection whatever. The Canadian General Electric has not been governed in its action by any influences from the United States. In taking this step our company is following voluntarily a plan of its own to promote community interests by providing more jobs."

The principle of shorter hours will be followed through in regard to overtime work in the plant as well as regular day work, he revealed. "Where overtime work has been found necessary in the past double shifts will be worked. Double shifts will be worked wherever possible rather than exceed forty hours a week per employee.

The Canadian General Electric stands to gain nothing by the shorter-hour change, it was pointed out. To the contrary, the company will suffer the disadvantage of having its plant and equipment idle for an eleven percent greater time during the 40-hour week than in the 45-hour week. "The new arrangement will gain nothing directly for the company," Mr. Salmonsen said. "We stand to gain through the general prosperity which we are endeavouring to promote in the community. I believe that if every company in Peterborough followed our action, the existing unemployment situation could be in large part relieved."

Adjustments To Be Made

About two week's time will be required to bring the new arrangement into full effect, it was explained. The number of additional men that will be required is not yet known and will not be known until operations on the shorter-week basis get under way. Adjustments will be made in the various departments of the plant first and then the number of additional men required to do the work in each department in the reduced working week will be taken on. The company will continue the policy of re-employing its former workers which it has been following in the past.

The new daily working hours for employees will be from 7.30 a.m. to noon, and from 1 p.m. to 4.30 p.m. Hours for the office staff are to remain unchanged from the past schedule of 8 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (A.P.). — Cross currents ruled the stock market to-day with general firmness in gold mining shares, oils and some of the alcohols offset by sagging tendencies in rails and a number of industrials. Early losses of fractions to 3 points or so were substantially reduced in the late dealings. Shares steady to higher included Standard Oil of California, McIntyre Porcupine, Homestake, National Distillers, American Telephone and Case. Union Pacific recovered 2 points after dropping more than 5. Columbian Carbon lost 2, while U.S. Steel eased around a point. Transfers approximated 1,900,000.

MINING MARKET.

TORONTO, September 6 (C.P.) — Bearish influences were routed in the last hour of to-day's Standard Exchange session and the market picked up smartly to close with gains in the majority. Senior gold shares were firm to strong all day, led by McIntyre, but the general tone was moderately weak until New York overcame a sinking spell and advanced shortly before the close.

McIntyre was outstanding with an advance of $1.50 to $39. Dome gained 50 to $35.50, and gains of 5 to 10 cents were registered for Teck Hughes and Wright-Hargreaves.

Noranda and International Nickel recovered from early weakness.

The senior gold shares were the most active in the early trading while Base Metals and silver shares barely held their ground Noranda was the group leader on the upside, holding a small gain while Nickel weakened to 20.90 for a 20 cents loss in slow trading.

McIntyre was taken in fair volume and rose to 38.25 but it failed to carry the other high-priced gold shares up with it. The general gold list was firm.

TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, Sept. 6 (C.P.). — The Doubting Thomases dominated the trade through most of the day on the Toronto Stock Exchange but were pushed aside in the last hour as prices rallied sharply with a New York upturn. Distillery, oil and metal shares as well as Ford of Canada recovered early losses and in many cases, added good gains. Volume also showed improvement in the last hour.

In the interlisted group, Nickel recovered from $20.90 to close at $21.35 for a net gain of 25 cents. Smelters was off 1, C.P.R. closed at 17½, Ford of Canada got back a half point loss and Brazilian closed unchanged.

Walker Common closed at 46¾, up ¾. Distillers Seagram up ½ to 27½ and Industrial Alcohol gained a fraction to 11⅞.

Industrial stocks waited to-day for something to turn up, and while they waited prices drifted lower. Transactions were in light volume over the board, although the turnover was substantial in Nickel, the Walker issues, Ford of Canada and Imperial Oil. New York's weak opening and inability to hold a mild recovery before noon discouraged buying on the Toronto board.

RENO GOLD

Reno Gold Mines meeting held in Vancouver last week, had rather meagre advices come eastward. Further word has been since received that more recent development at the property is reported encouraging, with the vein values opening up over two feet plus, and assay systems and other matters have become effective which should give more sound and permanent outlook to the operation.

ISLAND LAKE

Statements stressed that a pilot mill has been completed capable of milling 50 tons daily and ready to start at short notice, as soon as sufficient ore is encountered underground. A meeting of shareholders will be called shortly and at that time a full statement of affairs will be presented, together with a proposal for further financing. Ventures Ltd. has hitherto been conducting the work and holding the shares except for a minor portion which have been loose.

ALDERMAC

It is estimated that with 9 per cent copper production will start out around $65,000 monthly. Any copper price advance would lift production value accordingly. Ore reserves are estimated at 3,000,000 tons.

ERIE GAS

Drilling of another well is actively under way and the production stage is expected within the coming fortnight, at present this company has three gassers flowing into the pipe line, and the program calls for drilling four more wells. The treasury being financed fully by remaining unissued shares.

Leygues Is Lauded Founder, French Navy

PARIS, Sept. 6 (AP)—The importance of the French navy for prestige and defence was stressed to-day by Prmier Edouard Daladier in a funeral oration for Georges Leygues whom he described as the founder of the modern French navy.

Leygues, former Premier and Foreign Minister and Minister of Marine in the Daladier Government, died Saturday after an illness of several weeks at the age of 74. He had been in Parliament since 1885 and was known as "the Grand Old Man" of the Government.

M. Daladier quoted Leygues' favorite saying, that "all people who fail to recognize the power of the sea condemn themselves to live outside the great currents of universal life."

To Blow Whistle On New Schedule

Changes in the schedule of the traditional blasts of the Canadian General Electric whistle by which Peterborough people have set their watches for many years past, will result from the company's adoption of a new 40-hour working week next Monday.

The whistle at 6 o'clock in to waken workmen to a new day since Peterborough was no more than a town is to be abolished. Under the new schedule, the first signal in the morning is to be given at 7.20 a.m. with the second ten minutes later, at 7.30 a.m. The noon hour whistles will be blown at the same times as in the past, but the final whistle of the day will be heard henceforth at 4.30 o'clock in the afternoon instead of 5 o'clock.

BANKS RAISE INTEREST TO GET COUNCIL ACCOUNT

EAST WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 6 (C.P.)—Increase in interest rates on deposits made by the city of East Windsor has been offered by two banks, the city council was told at a meeting last night.

Several weeks ago the city transferred its deposits from a bank from which it had made heavy loans to another. Subsequently the committee of supervisors directed that deposits be returned to the first bank. The city council refused to do so.

The first bank has now offered to increase interest rates from one and one half percent on current accounts and two and one half on savings accounts to a flat of three and one quarter per cent if the account is brought back, the council was informed. The bank which now holds the accounts has made a similar offer. It is expected the city would benefit about $5,000 annually by the increase.

lated the average farmer to produce more in order to attempt to cover his costs.

The profession of the farmer, Professor Drummond held, was as dignified as was necessary. Much of the farmers' trouble could be traced to the opinion held by many city dwellers that the man of the soil was not any too bright.

"We must see to it that the stigma is removed and that the farmer himself is equipped with a proper pride in his work. Unless we do we are only admitting insincerity when we talk about an intelligent and prosperous agriculture population."

The Finest Military Band in Great Britain — A Treat for All Central Ontario

THE

SCOTS GUARDS BAND

Under Leadership of Lieut. H. E. Dowell

AT THE

PETERBOROUGH INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION

MONDAY AND TUESDAY EVENINGS, SEPT. 11 & 12

Many famous bandmasters have directed the Scots Guards Band which is at present touring Canada. The Band, which is one of the most famous in the British Army, is nearly 250 years old, and at first consisted of professional oboe players who were not enlisted men, but were engaged by the month.

The first bandmaster of the Scots Guards of whom there is any record was John Mahon, an eminent clarinettist. Mahon led the Band until 1797, in which year Edward Hopkins, recognized as one of the most brilliant clarinettists of his day, was appointed. Hopkins was in charge of the Band in Paris in 1815, where the musicians were stationed while the Scots Guards were fighting under Wellington at Waterloo.

In the middle of the last century, Carl Boose, one of the greatest bandmasters in the history of the British Army, was appointed director of music. Boose was in many ways the founder of the modern regimental Band. He was also the founder of the first musical journal dealing with band music to be instituted in Great Britain.

Lieut. F. W. Wood, who retired recently as bandmaster, was another great name in the history of the Scots Guards Band. Mr. Wood trained the famous York and Lancaster Band which won first prize in the competition of Army Bands held in London in 1898. In 1921, Mr. Wood succeeded Dr. Williams as senior director of music of the Brigade of Guards.

Lieut H. E. Dowell, the present director of music for the Scots Guards, will be in charge of the Band during the present tour.

The Scots Guards will give Two Complete Programs on Monday and Tuesday Evenings, September 11th and 12th, and it is expected this Band will draw enormous crowds.

MRS. JANE GAY, CAMPBELLFORD CELEBRATES HER 92ND BIRTHDAY

Keenly Interested in Politics, She is Regular Voter—Regular Church Attendant.

BORN IN BOSTON, 1841

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 6.—(By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Born in Boston, September 5, 1841, Campbellford's grand old lady, Mrs. Jane Gay, yesterday observed her ninety-second birthday, and good wishes and congratulations are being showered upon her by her family and many friends at the home of her daughter, Dr. and Mrs. B. F. Butler, where she at present is residing.

Active and keen, Mrs. Gay is one of the pioneers of the district, in which she always has and still does take an active part. Deeply interested in politics, she records her vote regularly as the elections roll around, and follows the dictates of her own reason in this matter. A Methodist, staunch and strong, of the old school, she is seldom absent from her seat at the morning services at St. John's United Church, Campbellford, and takes a kindly interest in church life and work.

A pioneer who experienced all the hardships of early life in this country, she is remarkable for a splendid sense of humor, which makes conversation with her bright and interesting.

Born in Boston, September 5, 1841, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Shaw, she came to Canada as a child. Early in life she married the late John Gay, who predeceased her fifty years ago.

Mrs. Gay's family consists of two sons, John, prominent Campbellford grocer, and James, of Essex; and four daughters—Mrs. F. B. Butler, Mrs. L. A. Denike and Mrs. James Saunders, of Campbellford, and Mrs. J. T. Cook, of Percy Township. Also one half-brother, William Gay, of Huntingdon Township. There are 12 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

IDOLIZED PRESIDENT HEARS PLEAS OF RUSSIAN PEASANTS

vince of Tver. At the age of twenty he was employed at the Poutiloff works in old Petrograd. From that time onward his life was spent in alternative periods of work and long sojourns in Czarist jails.

Became People's Idol.

Since it was Lenin's idea that Kalinin be president, the suggestion was adopted. And as usual Lenin was shown to have picked the right man for the job. The moment Kalinin became president, he took the pilgrim's staff in hand, and went wandering over the whole of Russia. He visited the villages, he talked, he questioned, but above all he listened. When he came back to Moscow after a year's travel, he knews the claims and hopes, the illusions and disillusions of the peasantry as no other man. He made himself the arbiter, the advocate, and mediator of the peasants. They in turn made him their idol.

Kalinin speaks little in the councils of the Soviets. But when the discussions become animated, when the clash of opinions threatens to produce a split, he comes to his feet and he begins to speak, laboriously at first, but slowly he gains self-confidence and invariably his quiet good sense, his calm and objective reasoning, which is devoid of all theorizing, produces clarity on a given subject. They all like to hear him, for he is also a man who bubbles over with unconscious humor and peasant wit.

Called G.O.M. of Russia.

They call him the Great Starost, the grand old man of Russia, and since he has been both a peasant and an industrial worker, he symbolizes at the head of the state, the union of the hammer and sickle. He is simplicity personified, and even now, three times a week, any Soviet citizen can go up and see him and talk with him frankly on any subject under the sun.

There were about one hundred and fifty people in to see Kalinin to-day. This was an unusually small figure, I was told, and the reason for it was easy to understand—the peasants are busy with the harvest. Cutting is in full swing all over the country. The president's visitors were therefore mainly town-dwellers and undoubtedly they were the poorest of the poor.

He welcomed every one of them with the same paternal smile. There was not a single policeman guarding him, I noticed. A woman was the first to talk to him. She recited a long, hesitating story about difficulties she had with the housing committee. Kalinin listened to her attentively, sipped a glass of tea in the meanwhile, and then ordered one of his secretaries to take notes. Another woman was next. She had a baby on her arm, and she also had a long story to tell. But what she said I do not know. For she whispered all the time. And Kalinin whispered, too. But the conversation concerned the baby. That much was plain. Finally, he handed her a slip of paper, and the woman went out, head erect, smiling triumphantly at everybody.

Heard Whole Argument.

Then came a student. He wanted to be enrolled in the University of Moscow. The authorities had told him that there was no more room.

"Where are you from?" the president asked him.

"From Buryat," said the student.

"Are there no schools in Buryat?"

"Yes."

"Well, why don't you study at home? Go back for three years, finish your course, and then come back here and we'll see about getting you a post-graduate course." The student argued back for a long time, but the president did not lose his patience. "I have travelled three months to come here," said the boy. "I won't take no for an answer." In the end, Kalinin signed another slip. And the student went out radiating happiness.

Then came a group of peasants. "We came here to Moscow to find work. We found work, but we have no place to sleep. We need a house!" they said.

"Do you think I carry houses in my pocket?" asked the president. At this they all burst out laughing. They also began to argue, deferentially, to be sure, with respect, but without the slightest fear or embarrassment.

A sailor was next. He submitted some papers. Kalinin threw them back with a gesture of anger. "No," he said, "that man should have been shot. How dare you come here and plead for amnesty? Let him be punished for his crime." The president's face was hard. He was apparently talking of some individual at present in prison. The sailor did not obtain satisfaction.

"Can I come back a month from now?"

"Go, but don't come back till a year is over. Then we shall see!"

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point—wheat 64c to 65c; oats, 32c to 34c; barley, 40c to 43c; rye, 45c to 46c.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO.—Despite big export business in wheat from Canada, grain values ran rapidly downhill yesterday, and at one time showed 2¼c a bushel loss.

Heaping up of pressure from three days' accumulation of hedging sales by rural holders, both in Canada and the United States, proved to be more than the wheat market could withstand. An additional weight on values came from 2,672,000 bushels increase of the United States wheat visible supply total.

Wheat closed unsettled at a moderate rally, 1⅜c to 2c under Friday's finish; corn, ⅝c to 1⅝c down; oats, ⅝c to ⅞c off, and provisions varying from 15c decline to a rise of 10c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Cheese prices on the Montreal dairy and produce market moved back to the level they held several weeks ago when they advanced ¼c to ½c a pound yesterday. Ontario white cheese became 10c to 10¼c a pound, with Ontario colored at around 10¼c to 10½c. Quebecs remained ½c under the Ontario levels. Dealers attribute the strength in cheese to improved demand from England. As a result of the better tone to the market, country boards all moved higher over the week-end. Receipts totalled 544 boxes.

The butter market held steady at last week's closing values, No. 1 being quoted at 17⅜c to 18c a pound for carlots or less. There has been some improved inquiry from overseas, but reports of heavy stocks in Western cities have counteracted strength given by export sales. A total of 101 boxes was offered for sale.

Graded shipments in carlots or less of eggs held steady at 22c to 23c a dozen for extras, 17c to 18c for firsts and 14c to 15c for seconds. Receipts were 1,348 cases.

New Quebec potatoes weakened to sell at 75c to 80c per 80-lb. bag, off 5c from Saturday. Offerings of new Quebec potatoes are increasing as Maritime stock will be offering from now on in increasing quantities.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, September 6. — A large-scale export business was insufficient to absorb heavy hedging pressure from elevator companies on the Grain Exchange yesterday, and prices slipped off to close ½c to ¾c under Friday's finish.

Accumulation of wheat at country points over the week-end and holiday resulted in heavy selling by elevator interests, and though export business since the close of the market on Friday was estimated at 3,000,000 bushels, prices ended only a little above "pegged" levels.

Opening Gains Lost.

October wheat finished at 70¼c, December at 72c, and May at 77¼c. An advance of about one cent was made in the opening minutes, but the gain was soon lost as selling pressure quickly developed.

Yesterday's sales for shipment abroad were at least 1,000,000. All the large shipping interests reported a good business over the week-end, with the foreign buyer showing considerable interest in Canadian wheat at current level. Continued drought in Argentina is apparently alarming European importers.

Liverpool Wheat Firm.

Liverpool wheat continued to display firmness due in the main, to Argentine developments, and closing quotations in the English market were ¾d higher.

The export business reflected in the cash wheat division and a better business was reported. Apart from fair buying in flax at the start, pit trade in all coarse grains was extremely dull, and prices were generally influenced by the action of wheat.

COUNCIL ASKS MAYOR TO SEE HON. R. MANION

Government Intends To Erect Welland Canal Bridge At Locks.

COUNCIL MEETING.

Costs $60 Extra a Week To Draw Garbage Out Of City.

In the hope of persuading the government to proceed with the Locks Bridge project, which has been under discussion from time to time for the last two years, Mayor Denne was authorized by the Council last night to go to Ottawa and interview the Hon. Dr. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals.

"The government's intention, as I understand it," said the Mayor, "is to move a brand new bridge from the Welland canal to Peterborough and set it up at the Locks. We might be able to get the work started this fall or at the latest by Spring."

Alderman Macdonald moved, seconded by Alderman Stocker, that the question of a deputation be left with Mayor Denne.

"If the Mayor wants to take one or two of the members with him I think it should be left with him to make the selection" Ald. Macdonald said. "Personally I am in favor of a small deputation. I think you can get just as much that way as with a larg deputation. It would be all right if he went alone."

Other members spoke in the same vein, and it is probable that to save expense the Mayor will make the trip unaccompanied. He also mentioned an item of $100 which he said the Department should pay the city as a tax for the sewer laid on Armour Road past property owned by the Federal Government and occupied by the lockmaster's house.

"We can try to get something started in the way of work" Mayor Denne said, "and I was told both by Dr. Manion and Mr. Peck that the government planned to bring the new bridge from the Welland to Peterborough. We can try to get the work started as soon as possible."

Garbage Collection Bill

An account for $420 from Wm. Withers for extra work in hauling garbage to a farm three miles east of the city while repairs are being made to the incinerator was passed by the council. It was presented by Ald. Holland, chairman of the Property Committee, and included in the report of the Finance Committee which was ready by Ald. Macdonald.

Alderman McIntyre, Tuggey and Holland suggested that the account should be referred to a committee for consideration, but it was explained by Mayor Denne and Alderman Holland that the agreement had to be made hurriedly by the council with Mr. Withers when the city was faced with an injunction to stop the burning of garbage on the west bank of the river south of the Hunter Street bridge.

"We tried to avoid expense," Mayor Denne said, "by burning the garbage on the city's property south of Simcoe Street, but the smoke blew across into Ashburnham and the citizens over there were up in arms so we had to do something right away."

Ald. Holland added that he had spent until midnight one night trying to solve this problem as economically as possible. The weather was extremely hot at the time, and there was no alternative but to haul the garbage into the country. This long drive required Mr. Withers to put on a truck and extra team, and as the additional work was outside his contract he agreed to undertake the expense at $60 a week. The present bill is for six weeks. The sum of one hundred dollars was also authorized to be paid for the rental of the farm lot. In the meantime arrangements have been made to dispose of the garbage on the O'Connell property in Otonabee, and men will be sent down there to burn it.

Storm Drain Connection

A request from the contractor on the new buildings at Mount St. Joseph for permission to connect a surface drain with the city's storm drain at the corner of Cedar Street and Monaghan Road was left with Alderman Hamilton and City Engineer Parsons with power to act, on a motion by Ald. McIntyre seconded by Ald. Tuggey.

"The contractor told Mr. Parsons that the drain is simply to carry off the water from the roofs of the buildings" Mayor Denne said. "Our drain on Cedar Street empties into the creek and was built large enough to take the water from that section west of the Monaghan Road."

Ald. Hamilon said that the surface water from the Mount property would flow down toward Monaghan Road anyway, and it might as well be connected with the city's drain on Cedar Street.

For sewerage accommodation the Mount pays $156 a year to the city.

CITY COUNCIL WILL NOT SEND REPRESENTATION TO TORONTO

Municipal Relief Association Meets In Emergent Session September 9.

NUMEROUS RESOLUTIONS.

Peterborough will not be represented at the Emergency Municipal Relief Association meeting in Toronto September 9.

In a resolution by Ald. McIntyre last night, seconded by Ald. Tuggey, the council decided not to send a representative.

"It is Mayor Peebles of Hamilton who is behind this," Mayor Denne remarked. "Personally, I think we should first attend to our own needs here. What may be all right for Hamilton mightn't suit us at all."

The notice of the meeting submitted several resolutions which the Association may present to the Government.

One resolution proposes that a special tax to which all citizens should contribute in proportion to their ability be levied either by the Dominion or Provinces to cover all relief expenditures.

"While borrowing for relief may have been justified as a temporary expedient, the continuance of the practice means piling up obligations for future years. We believe the time has come to pay as you go," the resolution observes in its preamble.

Other resolutions were read from the notice as follows:

"We would recommend that work be provided for able-bodied men receiving relief. That they be given work at the prevailing rate of wages, working the number of hours necessary to cover the amount of relief they receive on either municipal or provincial work, or both, and that they be paid in cash; the work to be given on the same conditions and to replace direct relief.

To prevent unscrupulous employers from taking advantage of present conditions, we recommend that a minimum wage for men, applicable to all occupations, be established."

In the brief discussion it was remarked that possibly the city should be represented to oppose any resolutions which might not seem to be in the public interest; but the final decision was to the effect that the government would not hesitate to ask for municipal advice when it was desired, and that the Emergency Relief Association's meeting was unnecessary.

BRITISH FARMERS STAND BEHIND NATIONAL DAIRY POOL SCHEME

Vote 96.42 Per Cent In Favor —One of Kingdom's Greatest Undertakings.

PROFITS DIVIDED.

(By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Writer)

LONDON, Sept. 6 (C.P. Cable).—British farmers have voted overwhelmingly in favor of a National Dairy Pool, the result of the poll of registered dealers taken recently was announced to-day and showed 96.42 per cent in favor of the scheme and 3.58 per cent opposed. A two-thirds' majority was necessary for the adoption of the plan.

With its national and regional pools the scheme will be one of the biggest undertakings in the United Kingdom. Farmers will sell their milk through the pools which will divide the profits among participants according to the amount of milk each delivers.

The national board will be in charge, will be responsible not only for marketing and supply contracts but will also have the task of utilizing surplus milk for cheese-making and the manufacture of dry milk on a large scale. The board assumes control October 1 for a trial period until the new year, when the scheme itself becomes operative.

When registraiton opened at the end of August the farmers were so apathetic that fears of failure were entertained. Personal canvassing and urgent appeals by Major Walter Elliott, Minister of Agriculture, finally resulted in a last minute rush of producers to register.

The scheme applies to England and Wales.

Photos Found In Wrecked Pinedo Plane Recall Romance With Bulgarian Queen

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Sept. 6. — (A.P.).—Two pictures of a beautiful, dark-eyed girl, one signed "Giovanna" and the other "Ruba," were found yesterday in the wreckage of General Francesco de Pinedo's plane at Floyd Bennett Field.

The noted Italian flier crashed and burned to death while attempting to take off on a flight to Bagdad last Saturday morning.

Published reports at the time of the flier's death said one theory of his loss of official prestige in his native land was that he had dared to pay court to Princess Giovanna, daughter of King Victor Emmanuel and now Queen of Bulgaria. The flier had the title of marquis.

The report said it was believed in official circles the desire of the King to put a stop to the romance led to the "exile" of de Pinedo.

Keene Evens Softball Finals With Lop-Sided Win

VILLAGE MAIDENS OUTPLAY WESTCLOX FOR BIG TRIUMPH

Mary McCarthy Hurls Sterling Ball For Winners With Fine Support.

FINAL ON SATURDAY.

The classy softball players from the lakeside village of Keene stepped into the Westclox team with a do or die spirit last night at the Bowl and in three innings pounded in ten runs to win the fourth game of the finals for the championship of the Ladies' City and District League, by the score of 11 to 5, thus tying up the series as each team have now won two each, and will tangle on Saturday afternoon in the fifth and deciding game.

Two singles, a triple and a homer was all that the Westclox batters could secure from the offerings of Mary McCarthy who showed a complete reversal of form over her Saturday's performance to pitch one of the best games of the season. She fanned four and walked one in seven innings. Behind her the rest of the team came through with a splendid defensive performance having only two errors and both of these were in the same innings.

Barbara Blade went the route for the losers on the mound but was not so effective as usual, and her teammates fumbled six chances. She sent two out swinging and issued two free passes. The visitors got to her after the third frame to pole out eleven safeties including a homer by Lois McCarthy and a double by Dot Gainor. They started in the fourth frame when a homer was hit with two on and in the next innings four more tallies crossed the plate. In the sixth they added three to their total after two were out and got their last run in the seventh.

Dot Webb led the Westclox with a home run while Grace Hawkes with a clean triple was next in line. Defensively Audrey Crary occupied the spotlight, having six putouts in seven chances in centrefield. Verna Dickson, Helen Nelson and Lois McCarthy were the big hitters for the winners, each securing a pair of hits. Roberta Gainor in right field and Verna Dickson in left were the fielding stars, snaring three apiece for a perfect night.

The teams:

Keene: D. Gainor, c; M. Brown, 2b; G. McCarthy, cf; H. Nelson, ss; M. McCarthy, p; L. McCarthy, 3b; I. Short, 1b; V. Dickson, lf; R. Gainor, rf.

Westclox: G. Mortimer, 1b; D. Webb, c; M. Ferguson, ss; B. Blade, 1b; L. Chartren, 3b; G. Hawkes, 2b; D. Merrett, lf; H. Joyes, rf; A. Crary, cf.

Summary: Home runs—Dot Webb, Lois McCarthy. Three-base hit—Grace Hawkes. Two-base hit—Dot Gainor. Struck out—by McCarthy 4, by Blade 2. Bases on balls—off McCarthy 1, off Blade 3. Wild pitch—Blade. Passed balls—Webb 3, Gainor 1. Left on bases—Keene 6, Westclox 0. Stolen bases—Keene 4, Westclox 0. Umpires—Ab Frick at the plate, Dick Galbraith on the bases.

P. Edwards Wants Record Posted

MONTREAL Sept. 6. (CP)—Phil Edwards, McGill University runner, and former Canadian Olympian, has applied for official recognition of his world's record for the 1,000 yards, run at Toronto last Saturday in 2 minutes 10 4/5 seconds, it was learned here. Record books show the present official record to be 2 minutes 11 1/5 seconds, set by C. Ellis, Great Britain, on Sept. 7, 1929, in London.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

NUMBER 88.

ALEX MORRISON says:

Injuries far more serious than one might imagine can result from being hit with a golf ball.

Yet, many players endanger themselves and those around them by standing ahead of the ball as it is being hit.

Recently, I was standing only a few inches ahead of the ball when my partner was playing and instead of travelling straight ahead the ball being struck off the toe of the club, went away at right angles so that it struck me in the leg.

My leg still bears the scar.

Always stand well behind anyone playing a shot and see to it that your caddy does likewise.

At least, make sure that he is safely to one side.

"Master Minds" At Washington

Manager Joe Cronin Owner Clark Griffith

Without any NRA or Blue Eagle to aid them, this pair of "master minds" are about to end Washington's pennant depression—which has lasted since 1925. Manager Joe Cronin and Owner Clark Griffith have shrewdly handled the near-champs all season, as their position at the top of the league indicates.

TOUGH PROBLEM IS FACING ALL VARSITY RUGBY COACHES

All Last Year Intercollegiate Squads Have Been Badly Riddled.

PLAYERS ASSEMBLING.

TORONTO, Sept. 6. — Warren Stevens, director of athletics at Varsity, arrived back from his holidays yesterday morning and is busily engaged in preparing for the opening practice of the Blue and White squad, which will be held next Monday. The call for the players to report was sent out several weeks ago and it is expected that about 40 will report early next week. Some 30 out of town lads will be quartered in Burwash hall and the remainder will be local boys.

The outlook for last year's Intercollegiate champions repeating is none too bright as only eight of the the 1932 championship squad will be back at school. These will be Jack Sinclair, Harold Arnup, Flicker Richardson and Johnny Copp from the backfield, Andy Henderson, an outside, and Peacock, McQuigge and Booth for line positions. Quite a number of lads who showed promise with the intermediates and juniors last Fall will not be available, some through graduation and others because of failure to pass examinations and it is quite a task that faces the coaches. One hole along the line will be filled by Grecco, the former St. Michael's College plunger, who was with the juniors last year and the biggest problems that will be encountered will be the ends, snap, quarter back and flying wing.

Both Western and Queen's will also have to start almost anew. At Kingston Teddy Reeve faces an even sterner task than Stevens as he will have only three or four players ready. It looks as if every position on the Tricolor team is open with the exception of middle wings where How Hamlin and Abe Zvonkin are being counted on. Western Mustangs have also been sadly riddled and the opinion is that unless Stevens, Reeve or Breen come through with some miracle man efforts that this will be McGill's year. The Red and White have most of last year's players available and in addition there are several players who have had experience in the American game eligible for this Fall.

Varsity will work out on the back campus for all of September as every opportunity will be given for the new sodding and seeding operations at the stadium to take hold.

Slippery Footing For Tennis Stars

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 6.—On turf still slippery and hazardous from week-end rains, the foreign tennis contingent progressed almost intact yesterday through the second round of the United States men's singles championship at the West Side Club.

There was only one casualty in the "seeded" ranks of the invaders, as Elkichi Itoh of the Japanese Davis Cup team skidded out of the tournament.

The entire Australian contingent, including the great Jack Crawford, looked anything but impressive. Fred Perry, Britain's Davis Cup hero, and Jiro Satoh, squat, hard-hitting No. 1 of the Japanese team, did not appear to favor the slippery going.

PIRATES WALLOPING HUBBELL SECURE OPENER FROM GIANTS

Bucs Gain Confidence As They Mark Tenth Victory In Last 11 Games.

SENATORS TAKE RED SOX.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr. A. P. Sports Writer)

Loaded up with fresh hopes after an opening triumph over the league leaders, Pittsburgh Pirates have dug back into a dozen years of baseball history and found an exact parallel for their present position in the National League pennant race. With it they have found an extra incentive to spur them on in their ambitious plan of winning four more games from New York Giants and getting back into the thick of the battle for the flag.

In 1921 the Pirates came marching into the Polo Grounds late in August with a 7½-game lead over the Giants. They dragged out a few days later after five straight defeats and the Giants went on to win the pennant and beat the Yankees in the world series. The situation was just the same, with a reverse twist, yesterday when the Giants opened their final Western tour at Forbes Field with a margin of 7½ games over the Pittsburgh Club. The Bucs continued the parallel by shellacking Carl Hubbell, the Giants' great southpaw, and winning the first of their five games 6-1. Southpaw Larry French was invincible in the pinches and the Bucoos game him an adequate working margin by scoring three runs in the third inning.

Ringing Base Hits

In that one frame Hubbell yielded five hits and Homer Peel tossed in a costly error for good measure. From then on all French had to do was hang on. He gave up an unearned run in the fourth and bore down hard enough to keep out of serious trouble the rest of the way.

The Pirates' victory, their 10th in the last 11 starts, gave them another half-game margin over the third-place Chicago Cubs as all the other National League clubs had open spots in the schedule.

The American League program was limited for similar reasons to a pair of doubleheaders which saw Washington Senators further increase their lead over the second place New York Yankees, making it 9½ games.

Washington took two games from Boston Red Sox, winning the opener 5-4 in 11 innings when Bill Werber's fumble gave them the odd run, and the second 9-6 by bunching their hits in the late innings to better Boston's 18-hit attack.

The Yanks split a pair with Philadelphia Athletics as home runs figured prominently. Jimmie Foxx walloped his 40th homer in the first game and Roy Mahaffey pitched three-hit ball to give the A's a 6-1 triumph. Lou Gehrig's 23rd boundary belt started the Yanks off in the second game and they battered out a 9-6 triumph as Ben Chapman, Frank Crosetti and Roger Cramer also hit for the circuit.

WILSON HURLS TWO VICTORIES FOR BUFFALO

Gives Great Iron Man Pitching Performance Against Leafs.

TIGHTENS RACE.

Montreal and Rochester Split Double—Orioles Lose Two.

(By Herbert Barker, A.P. Sports Writer)

An iron-man pitching performance by Johnny Wilson, Buffalo right-hander, had made the three-club tussle for the last International League play-off position tighter than ever to-day.

Wilson pitched the Bisons to a pair of victories over Toronto Maple Leafs yesterday, while Montreal Royals were splitting a double-headed with Rochester. The net result being to leave Toronto only a game and a half ahead of Montreal in the race for the second northern qualifying post and Buffalo only a half-game more behind.

The standings of the three rivals to-day were:

Club:	Won.	Lost.
Toronto	80	81
Montreal	77	81
Buffalo	79	84

Wilson allowed Toronto 11 hits in the first game, but he was extremely effective in the pinches after the Leafs had solved him for a pair of runs in the first inning, and Buffalo earned an easy 7-3 decision. With Wilson on the mound again for the second game, the Leafs scored two runs in the opening frame on two hits and an error to gain a 2-1 lead. Johnny then retired the Leafs in order through the next five innings and Buffalo won the game in the seventh and last stanza when a double by Buck Crouse started a two-run rally. Wilson gave way to a pinch hitter during the rally and Phil Gallivan pitched the last inning.

Bill Dietrich's six-hit pitching enabled Montreal to whip Rochester 3-1 in the first game of a twilight-night bill, but Mize and Selkirk contributed a pair of home runs apiece to give the Red Wings the night duel, 7-3.

The champion Newark Bears split two games with Jersey City, winning the first 9-6, with a 14-hit attack, but dropping the second 2-1 as Joe Cascarella outpitched Johnny Broaca.

Albany got good pitching from Fred Fussell and Whytie Campbell and twice whipped Baltimore, 2-1 and 7-1. Fussell scattered nine Oriole hits in the opener and Campbell granted only six in the nightcap. Phelps, Albany catcher, clouted one of the longest home runs of the season in the second inning, his drive clearing the right centrefield wall.

Bowl-Oshawa Clash In O.A.S.A. Playoff

Oshawa Tuxis and Sugar Bowl meet in an O.A.S.A. fixture this evening at 5.30 in Stevenson Park, it being the first game of their Ontario playdown series. The Tuxis outfit cleaned up on all Oshawa opposition and played a number of exhibition games throughout Central Ontario, winning them all—some three dozen contests in all.

This fast-stepping squad has first-class twirling, hard hitting and snappy fielding, and are predicting a victory over the local champions in two straight games. The Sugar Bowl bunch was put out of the running last year by an Oshawa team, the Dodgers who went on to the Ontario finals. George Dormer's classy outfit is hoping to reverse conditions this year and advance in the O.A.S.A. playdowns over the present Motor City threat.

Probably Ross Curry will get a chance to show his stuff in playdowns tonight, while Lefty Sturgeon is also available to do the flinging. The hogeaters are all on their toes and ready for the best battle of the year, and fans can look for some lightning-fast play.

DAY OF SPORTS AT TRENT RIVER

Program of Softball, Horseshoe Pitching, Races Sponsored by Fish, Game Association.

DANCING IN EVENING.

TRENT RIVER, Sept. 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—Ideal weather favored the program of sports held at the Athletic Park on Labor Day under the auspices of the Fish and Game Protective Association. During the afternoon a baseball tournament was held with teams from Norwood, Havelock, Seymour West and Trent River. Havelock won from Seymour West; with Norwood winning the finals from Havelock.

A number of races were run off, together with horse-shoe pitching. Among the winners for the latter were J. Bedore of Norwood and Jack Bannon of Havelock.

A tug of war took place between the losing baseball teams in which Seymour West won from Trent River.

A splendid floor was placed for dancing within an inclosure, and electric lights were installed for the evening. Mr. Charlie Jones and his orchestra of Marmora supplied musical numbers for square and round dancing, as many as 14 sets were seen on the floor for square dancing with Charlie Jones as floor manager. During the evening the large gathering was favored by comic vocal numbers by Mr. E. Flynn of Marmora.

A booth was erected for hot dogs and ice cold beverages which were quickly disposed of. The committee feel grateful for the large attendance and splendid program of sports for the day.

Cobourg And Petes In Lacrosse Finals

Cobourg and Dinty's Inn are lacrosse finalists in the Inter-County League and will meet in the first playoff game Saturday in Peterborough. It is home and home games, goals to count, and the return one will be in Cobourg Monday, September 11th. Cobourg went through the entire schedule without a loss and scored far more goals than any of the other teams. Dinty's Inn squeezed into a playoff berth over Port Hope, while Millbrook finished in the cellar. W. P. Near, manager of the Super-Test Oil Co., who donated the playoff shield, has sent word he would try to attend the game in Cobourg Monday to present the trophy to the winner. Following is the final standing of this league:

Club	W.	L.
Cobourg	8	2
Dinty's Inn	6	3
Port Hope	Don-
Millbrook

Cobourg scored 83 goals and de-scored on 21 times; Dinty's Inn scored 38 markers and let 36 Dr. Johnthem; Port Hope had 49 against them; Millbrook counted 31 and were given 20 times.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—Although a familiar figure in the golfing world for years, it remained until this August for Joe Kirkwood, Australian trick shot artist, to win his first major title.

Paired with Walter Hagen in the North and South, they finished on even terms, several strokes back of the winner, Jock Hutchison. Known as something of an amateur trick shot artist, some of the bystanders around the 18th hole called on Kirkwood to entertain them when the tournament was over.

Kirkwood assented and went through his routine, holding his audience spellbound. When he was through one of the onlookers "passed the hat" over the protests of the Australian. The self-appointed collector turned over a hatful of bills and coins to the surprised Kirkwood. Later, when he counted the money there was over $700 in the hat. Competitive golf lost a star and a new exhibitionist was made right then and there.

Since that time Joe has entertained approximately one million people in 32 different countries, and played on 2,110 courses.

WINNERS HAVE BETTER OF PLAY ALL THROUGH

Display Marked Superiority in First Game For City Championship.

NEXT GAME THURSDAY

Sweep On Fast Combination Rushes To Pile Up 9-0 Score.

Selkirk's handed Orde's a coat of whitewash in the first game of the City Lacrosse League playoffs at the Bowl rink last night, beating them 9 to 0 before a fair crowd. The series is for the league championship and the Capt. Hill Memorial Trophy. Next game will be played at six o'clock on the same grounds Thursday, evening, it being a two-out-ot-three series.

The winners looked superior from start to finish last night, sweeping through time and again on fast rushes that carried them to the goal-mouth, checking back hard and playing a steady defensive brand of lacrosse. They used good combination and shooting to run up the count. The losers worked hard but had trouble defensively and failed to hold their fast, tricky opponents. The goalie was given little chance on hard, close-in drives that sizzled into the net.

Cadd was Selkirks' scoring star, notching four of the nine counters. McGregor bulged the hemp twice, while Jackson, Dundas and LeBarr got the others. Though Orde's threatened a number of times, they were unable to break through and ring the gong once. Owing to darkness and delays, the game was run off in two periods instead of four quarters, and the periods were shortened accordingly. Selkirks' players all turned in a good effort, goalie, defence and attackers.

Four markers were chalked up for the victors in the first stanza, Cadd getting through to tally the first and third, LeBarr notching the second one, and Dundas countering the final goal of the frame. Cadd started off strong again in the last session to find the mark for one, Jackson followed with another neat counter, McGregor burst away to score two in quick succession, and Cadd whistled in the final one of the game. The teams:

Selkirks—Goal, J. Dundas; defence, I. Dundas and LeBarr; centre, McGregor; wings, Routley and Heard; rover, Cadd; subs, Jackson, Ellis and Hunt.

Orde's—Goal, Meyette; defence, Gardner and Francis; centre, E. Creighton; wings, Orde and Hill; rover, Magee; sub, J. Creighton.

Referees—J. Ward and V. Reynolds.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball—Softball—Lacrosse Soccer—Wrestling, and Others

(By C. J. P.)

There's a men's softball game at Riverside tonight, at 5.30, that ought to be worth getting a load of. It's Oshawa Tuxis vs Sugar Bowl in the first tussle of their O.A.S.A. playdown jamboree. Don't think it'll be a walkaway for the Bowlmen who hadn't much trouble knocking Lindsay off. Nossir, those Motor City softballers have made a respectable name for themselves this year and are just sort of flapping their wings now and ready to hop up on the old roost and do a bit of ruling and crowing if they can take George Dormer's classy clan.

• • • • • • •

Both Belleville and Peterborough are accused of trying to oust Kingston from the C.O.B.L., because the Ponies proved too good for us. At least that's what the scribe down that way comes to bat with. He says we can't take it, that we should apply for admission to the Lakeshore League and that's the sort of ball we're suited for, and winds up his hymn of hate with a defiant challenge to try and put Kingston out of the league! Nor did he forget to bawl the Petes out for demanding too high expense money—when he wasn't even at the meeting to know what it was all about. A nice feller.

• • • • • • •

Well, as usual, this guy is wrong on every count. Kingston can't be that much better than us for the past two years when Belleville (in '32) and the Petes, this past season, gave them such a battle for the loop title, even if the Ponies did finally emerge victorious. And how about these despised West Toronto Loop teams that Kingston claimed were no opposition. Their winner made the Limestone lads look sick last year and only Saturday stepped right into Kingston and walloped them again! Yeah, if we're of intermediate calibre, can Kingston be seniors?

• • • • • • •

No, none of the C.O.B.L. teams are trying to ease them out of this loop because Kingston is too good—not by any means. It's because of the distance. If other reasons were necessary, we could point a finger at their lousy ball park, and their umpires who are even worse. Why are Oshawa and Cobourg out of the C.O.B.L., by the league's permission? "That Kingston jump," and nothing else. And why did Belleville and Peterborough insist upon getting an inter-locking schedule going with the West Toronto League this year, refusing to operate otherwise? That trip to Kingston.

• • • • • • •

Going down here for games means, to the Petes, the players who are working being forced to take the day off, journey nearly 130 miles by bus, get out and try to play their best ball after the long hop, then make the jaunt back in the wee sma' hours and go to work half asleep next morning. Knocks a lot out of players, besides costing the club pub-lenty. It works differently when the Ponies come here as they travel Saturdays, losing only half a day's work and being able to rest up over Sunday after the game. Belleville's trip isn't so far and they don't object as much as Peterborough, Oshawa and Cobourg—these latter two simply refusing to play in this loop while Kingston is in.

• • • • • • •

As for the league being unable to oust Kingston—that's absurd. All that the other four clubs have to do is to vote to leave them out, maybe granting them a bye into the playoffs to satisfy the O.B.A.A. That's all there is to it, and the O.B.A.A. couldn't or wouldn't ask any more. No, a league is always stronger than any one team in it. The Kingston club has repeatedly broken league rulings too. For instance, they play exhibition games with American and other teams without getting permission to do so. As for "propaganda," as the embittered Kingston guy calls it, why that propaganda didn't start recently by any means. It was no secret in Cobourg or Oshawa a year ago, nor in Belleville or Peterborough this past Spring. Yeah, next year may see a lot of changes.

• • • • • • •

Keene clearly earned an 11-5 victory over Westclox in yesterday's gals' softball playoffs at the Bowl, and now one more game will be required to settle the issue. They'll meet Saturday at three at the Bowl and wind it up. Previous to last e'en's tussle, the two managers went into a huddle and agreed to have the umps call the game at the end of the seventh if he saw fit, owing to darkness. It was a wise move as twilight's descending curtain forced the calling of the fixture at the close of the seventh. Another large crowd present, lots of excitement, and a clean-cut win for the villagers. There was a slip-up somewhere and the scorer neglected to send us a box score.

• • • • • • •

Selkirks handed Orde's quite a lambasting in the first City Lacrosse League playoff last night, 9-0, if you want the gory details. Cadd and McGregor were the big noises offensively, but with the whole winning crew clicking in smart style. They should get those games going in time, and cut delays to the minimum, otherwise darkness interferes since we went off the daylight saving standard. Series is best two out of three for the league championship.

Up and down Sports Rialto: Latest word on that Cobourg-Dinty's Inn lacrosse playoff game here is that it will be shifted to Norwood for Friday p.m. at eight . . . . BIG ENTRY LIST OF RACE HORSES FOR EXHIBITION

Entry List Has Already Surpassed That of Last Year.

PURSES INCREASED.

Sharp Battles Are Assured for Money—No Free-For-All.

Three stake races with purses increased to $500 have already attracted a big entry list of harness horses for the last three days of the Peterborough Exhibition.

Stan Lowe, chairman of the race commttee of the Exhibition Board, told The Examiner this morning that the entry list already surpasses last year's and that race fans are assured of three interesting sessions, although not all the horses for which entries will be received are likely to face the starter.

"We didn't include a free for all stake race" Mr. Lowe said, "because we felt that it would be a walk-over for anyone of a couple of horses I could name if they came. We thought the people would rather see keen competition and that is what we have been aiming at. All the fans in the district will see at a glance that the stake entries are going to produce sharp battles for the money. There will be two races Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoons."

Canucks Win Again In South-End Finals

Canucks made it two in a row by beating Orioles, 12-9, in a hard-fought South-End Softball League playoff game at the Exhibition Grounds last night. Waterman, who started for the Birds, was hit freely by the heavy slugging Canucks, and was relieved by Ridley in the sixth, the latter going good after that. Heffernan pitched steady ball for the winners. Carter and Lasure clouted homers, while Fleming, Canucks' shortstop, pulled a sensational catch on a hard drive in the eighth to cut off a rally. Walsh and Watkins both supported their pitchers in classy manner.

The next game in the titular series will be held at 5.15 Thursday evening, and a fourth, if necessary, Saturday afternoon at three.

The teams:

Orioles—Smith, 1b; Millard, ss; E. Smith, lf; Gardino, 2b; Adamson, 3b; Carter, cf; Mervin, rf; Ridley, p; Watkins, c.

TO CONFER UPON PLAYERS' CASES

Executive Hears Ball Players State Their Own Story.

RUNNER REINSTATED

TORONTO, Sept. 6 (C.P.).—Earl Deacon, Hamilton sprinter, to-day was restored to good standing in amateur circles following his suspension by the Ontario branch, Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

The suspension was raised at a meeting of the executive last night Deacon was set down for competing as a club representative after he had been instructed to run unattached.

The date of the road races at Galt was switched from October 9 to November 11 to avoid conflict with the cross-country events at Guelph.

After hearing various suspended players of the Toronto Senior Amateur Baseball League personally, the executive appointed a board to consult representatives of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association and the Toronto Amateur Baseball Association relative to recent suspensions.

Games Rained Out

Owing to the rain the ball games scheduled for this evening have been postponed. Sugar Bowl was scheduled to play Oshawa Tuxis in the second round of the intermediate O.A.S.A. playdowns here, and in the intermediate O.B.A.A. second round Cognawagas were to have clashed this afternoon here with Picton. No dates for the games were known at time of going to press.

THREE CONGREGATIONS HONOR REV. W. F. AND MRS. BANNISTER

Mantle Clock and Chair Are Presented at Gathering in Canton Hall.

ILLUMINATED ADDRESS

MILLBROOK, Sept. 6.—(Examiner Correspondence). — A reception and largely attended congregational gathering representative of the three churches of the circuit, Canton, Elizabethville and Garden Hill, was held on Friday evening in the Community Hall, Canton, in honor of the new minister and his bride, Rev. W. Franklin Bannister, Th.B., B.D., and Mrs. Bannister, formerly Dorothy Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Stewart Hall, of Millbrook, the young couple having just returned from their honeymoon in the late afternoon of the same day.

Mr. Edward Whyte, of Elizabethville, capably filled the position of chairman, large jardinieres of lovely gladoli adding to the attractiveness of the well furnished stage, while a big basket of asters found a place on the piano.

The main feature of the evening, coming at the close of a varied and enjoyable program, was the invitation to the pastor and his bride to come to the platform, which they did to the accompaniment of hearty applause, when Mrs. Stanley Gray read in a clear voice and an impressive manner an appreciative and beautifully worded address, and on behalf of the congregations of the entire circuit presented them with a mantle clock in solid mahogany case, striking the hours, half and quarter hours with cathedral gong; also an occasional chair with solid walnut frame and upholstered in beige velours.

The manner of the gift-giving was somewhat unique, for when the crimson curtain at one side of the stage was drawn back at the proper moment the clock was revealed, resting on the cushioned seat of the chair, its sweet tones ringing out as the reader of the address reached the sentence, "We hope as you listen to its chiming it will speak to you of the harmony existing in our big church family."

Rev. Mr. Bannister replied on behalf of his wife and himself, thanking his people warmly for their kind words and gifts, and also for the lovely flowers sent to the parsonage, adding a fragrant welcome to their home-coming; appreciative mention was made, too, of the work done, and the improvements made, to the minister's home previous to the return of his wife and himself from their wedding tour.

Illuminated Address.

An illuminated copy of the address, written in a hand like fine copper plate, the work of a member of the Canton congregation, and tied with white satin ribbon, was placed in Mrs. Bannister's hands before she and her husband left the platform and resumed their seats in the auditorium.

The lunar transits are well as mutual aspects bearing rule on the affairs of this day point to changes, commotion or disturbance of rather intriguing effect on both business and private affairs. The sudden precipitation of events call for unusual discretion sound consideration and real sagacity in managements, so that harrowing entanglements may not arise. The mind may be inclined to secrecy or subtlety, with scheming and conniving reacting unfavorably on all affliations. Beware queer complications or sensational personal activities or rash romances.

Those whose birthday it is are on the brink of a surprising year, with the tendencies toward crafty, shrewd or subtle manipulation of the affairs, twisting things into avenues of the sensational, romantic or dangerous in both business and private contacts; the latter especially may develop peculiar or regrettable complications. In all affairs be discreet, shun secret ways and alliances

FIRES IN NORTH BEING WATCHED

Serious Bush Fires Are Result of Campers' Carelessness.

RESORTS ARE FILLED

LINDSAY, Sept. 6. — (Examiner Correspondence).—Reeve McGillivray, of Brechin, informed The Examiner to-day that he had received reports of rather serious bush fires on the rocks north of Sebright and on the border of Dalton Township, Victoria County. Rumor has it that these fires were the result of carelessness on the part of campers. The fires are being carefully watched by the farmers in the district, and no serious damage has resulted thus far. Holiday motorists over Cobcconk-Dorset highway bring reports of fires near the later point and close to Bigwin Inn.

While a great many American tourists pulled out from the lake resorts on Saturday for home, the week-end was marked by the arrival of fresh contingents from across the line. They fixed their vacation period, they stated, in order to be at the fishing haunts until the close of the season. The great majority of the tourists came from Ohio and Pennsylvania, with a goodly number from New York. The Examiner was informed to-day that some of the lake resorts are filled to capacity, notwithstanding the lateness of the season.

V. Cox, of Oshawa, failed to answer to his name in police court yesterday to answer to the charge of selling eye glasses in the district without the necessary qualifications of an optometrist. A summons has been issued. An inspector for the Provincial Board of Optometry charges that the accused had been selling glasses to people in the district and then having them sent by mail.

The funeral took place at Bobcaygeon on the holiday of David James Teatro, an old resident of the village. The deceased was sixty-eight years and had resided in Bobcaygeon for half a century. He is survived by his wife, one daughter, one brother and two sisters.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS MANNER WILLIAM CROWE MET HIS DEATH

Bill Fold Which He Always Carried Is Missing From Body.

HAD $50 ON SATURDAY

Police frowned upon the suggestion to-day that William J. Crowe, middle aged local farm hand, whose body was found floating in the Trent Canal within the city limits Friday by children while swimming, had been murdered. However, they admitted that certain features of the case are still unexplained and that investigations are proceeding.

It is known that Crowe quit his job on the farm of Richard Cluff in Dummer Township on August 25 in order to take another farm job for which he had already arranged. He came to the city on Saturday with about $50 in his pockets, according to Mr. Cluff.

When his body was taken from the water, no money was found in his pockets, which contained only a gold watch that later led to his identification.

Seen by Friends Tuesday

The man had spent all of Saturday and most of Saturday night, doing considerable drinking, in a house, situated not far from the canal where his body was found. The Examiner was reliably informed. Given this information police said it had little bearing on the mystery since Crowe, quite sober, was seen by friends as late as Tuesday. At that time it was learned he was walking north from the city, apparently bound for his new job.

No explanation has yet been forthcoming as to the manner in which the man fell into the water. No marks of violence were found upon his body by Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young. He could not swim and had an abhorrence of deep water.

Friends of the dead man are firm in their belief that he did not commit suicide. He had the new job to go to, was satisfactorily supplied with money and was anything but despondent, one explained.

Another mysterious circumstance is the fact that Crowe's bill fold, which The Examiner was informed the man always carried with him was not found on his body when it was taken from the water.

Deer Scorns Aid; Rescues Itself

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y., Sept. 6 (A.P.)—Watkins Glen lost its latest attraction to-day with the departure of its celebrated deer from the rocky ledge it had occupied for the past ten days

Scorning the temporary and camouflaged bridge that had been erected for its exit, the deer, under the gentle urging of two park employees, made its way cautiously down the precipitous bank into the stream that flows through the glen, crossed to the opposite side, jumped to a small ledge and then ambled to the top of the bank on the south side of the ravine. It then trotted by one of the tourist camps near the entrance to the reservations and headed for the near-by woods, where it was soon lost to sight.

City Tennis Tourney

Finals in the men's doubles in the City Tennis Open Tourney between George Scott and Walter Jackson versus Jack and George Kirkwood will be played about 4.30 Thursday afternoon at Kawartha Club courts. It is best three out of five sets.

The ladies' singles final match between Miss Bertha Pickering and Miss Isobel Davidson, best two out of three sets, will be played about five o'clock to-morrow evening at the Peterborough Club courts. In both cases, spectators are welcome.

Other matches remaining are the junior singles, which may be played to-morrow or Friday, and the mixed doubles. In this latter bracket, Miss Hazel Jackson and Walter Jackson are finalists in the upper half draw. They play the winner of the other half. Miss Davidson and H. A. Wilson are drawn against Ruth Sutton and J. Cowling, the winner of this match to play Kay Benson and J. Donaldson, the ultimate winner then to meet Hazel and Walter Jackson in the mixed doubles finals.

The Davidson-Wilson vs. Sutton-Cowling match will be played Friday, weather permitting, and play in this department brought to the finals by Saturday.

COLLECTOR'S JOB OPEN

Otonabee Council met on Monday with all the members present when the reeve introduced and read a first time, a by-law to levy and collect certain rates on all the saleable property in the township of Otonabee, which received its several reading and was passed.

On motion, the following scale of wages was passed, to take effect after the 5th day of September: laborers, 15 cents per hour and man and team, 30 cents per hour; on motion, three per cent will be added on all uncollected taxes after the 14th of December, 1933, up to the 31st of March, 1934, and after that date five per cent will be added.

The Clerk was instructed to advertise for a tax collector for 1933 at a salary of $175 per year, said collector to pay his own postage and furnish bonds approved by the council. The tax bills will be made out by the Clerk ready to be delivered, applications to be addressed to the clerk, J. J. Moore.

The following accounts were ordered paid: Robert Richardson, $40.63; Myles Foley, 50 cents; George Carey, $5; William Crowley, $70.43; John Heffernan, $2.56; Ambrose Doris, $126; Augustus Whibbs, $1.50; James Shearer, $42; David Kempt, $42; Vern Ellis, $7; Stephen Elmhirst, $60; Fred Nelson, $126.50; Wilson Robertson, $7; Harry Wood, $1.30; Tim Walsh, $4.13; John Collins, $10; Percy Davidson, $9.45; William Patterson, 87c; Art Shearer, $2.63; Albert Elmhirst, $3.25; Peterborough Utilities Commission, $1.85.

The council adjourned to meet on October 2.

Street Lighting Bill Is Increased $3,963

Peterborough's street lighting bill will be increased $3,963 in 1934, the Utilities Commission notified the Council last night, passing on the announcement from the Hydro-Electric Commission.

The intimation wasn't exactly news in Council circles. Local rates for street lighting were slated for an advance a year ago, taking effect this year, but the Council persuaded the Hydro-Electric Commission to suspend them, and at that time it was understood that the proposed increase was permanently cancelled. It transpired that the Council's representatives in an interview with the Hydro Commission took a wrong impression from the discussion, and subsequent notice conveyed the information that the new charges had been withheld only temporarily.

The letter from the Utilities Commission was referred to the Fire, Water and Light Commission.

STABS BABY TO DEATH.

NEW YORK.—A slayer believed to be insane crept into an apartment to-day and stabbed a 13-months-old Negro baby, Dorothy Holder, to death in her crib.

The baby's parents awakened in time to hear the killer run down a flight of stairs to the street. On the crib they found a note saying:

"This is just a warning."

The father, McAllister Holder, postal clerk, said he knew of no motive.

SCHOOL BOARD NOT RECEIVED GOV'T NOTICE

Department Has Sent No Notice About Discontinuing Grants.

AFFECTS JUNIOR CORPS

Board Decides To Keep Open Old South Central School.

The cadet question was left in abeyance at last night's meeting of the Board of Education, pending official information from the Department of National Defence concerning recent newspaper reports that the junior cadet grants were to be discontinued.

Inspector A. Mowat broached the question immediately prior to adjournment by asking, "What about the cadets?" He explained that according to recent reports in the Toronto press junior cadet grants were to be discontinued. Chairman E. F. Reid stated the board was not yet in receipt of official information on the subject.

An item of business that will have the hearty approval of the school population, despite the fact that they have only just returned to studies after the summer vacation, was the decision to grant a half holiday on Wednesday of next week for children's day at Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. The holiday was given on motion of John R. Marshall, seconded by I. P. McNabb, at the request of the directors of the Exhibition Board.

Dr. G. R. Scott, chairman of the Property Committee, reported that two new vestibules had been completed at King Edward School, and that the interior of that school had been painted. A complete roof had been installed at Queen Mary School, he said, while the exterior of Prince of Wales School had been painted.

Inspector Mowat stated that the public schools and grounds had never been in better condition than at the present time. He reported that the whole of the public school staff was on duty at the re-opening of the schools. He was not in a position to give attendance figures regarding the children as the records were uncompleted.

W.E.A. Request Granted.

On motion of John R. Marshall, seconded by Dr. J. J. Craig., the request of the Workers' Educational Association for the use of classroom accommodation at the Collegiate Institute for twenty evenings and the further use of a class-room for two evenings for registration purposes in connection with the fall and winter courses of the association, was granted.

H. R. H. Kenner, B.A., principal of the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, tendered a written report showing that the attendance at the re-opening of school was 995 pupils, two less than a year ago.

The academic department had an enrollment of 531; commercial, 240; industrial arts, 162, and household arts, 62.

Miss M. Moor, of the commercial department, who was absent on account of sickness from Easter to June, resumed her duties, Mr. Kenner stated. The following recently appointed teachers also took up their duties at the commencement of the present term: Harvard L. Bamforth, B.S.A.; Miss Marion Jamieson, M.A., and Miss Dorothy Brisbin, B.A.

On recommendation of Mr. Kenner, the chairman of the Appointments Committee was authorized by the board to secure a temporary teacher, pending the return to duty of Miss Mayme Montgomery, who is absent through illness.

Appointments.

The report of the Committee on Appointments was adopted as follows:

"Your Committee on Appointments beg to report that Miss Grace Cook, who was recently appointed to the Collegiate Institute staff, failed to obtain the necessary qualifications at the College of Education, and we therefore recommend that Miss Dorothy E. Brisbin, B.A., be appointed in her stead at a salary of $2,000, subject to a reduction of 15 per cent. for the school year beginning September 1st."

The motion recorded at a previous meeting of the board relative to the closing of South Central School was rescinded in view of the fact that the proposed alterations in the machine shop for the purpose of taking care of the motor mechanics' classes were not considered by the board to be satisfactory. The motor mechanics' classes will be continued for the present in South Central School.

Mrs. W. R. Morris, who is on the Council of the Home and School Association, stated that she intended to recommend to the association that the public school children be provided with clothing in cases of necessity directly through the city relief office. She anticipated that future demands would be too heavy to be handled by the Home and School Association as they had been in the past. She was hopeful that the association might find it possible to continue to provide medicine and other comforts in cases of necessity.

scheduled to go to corn growers who reduce their acreage by what Wallace hopes will be 20,000,000 acres.

Balance the Market.

The basic plan of the Secretary so far is to adjust production to demand, balance the market until prices for farm products are increased to a definite level. To this end experts are pushing schemes to make marketing arrangements for perishable fruits and vegetables, beans, potatoes, poultry, eggs and nuts.

A few days ago Secretary Wallace signed an agreement for the marketing of plums, peaches, pears, apricots and persimmons. By its terms machinery is set up for controlling the amount of production to be placed on the market. Other agreements covering citrus fruits and apples are being drawn up.

Market agreements have been used to fix milk prices for Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia, Minneapolis and St. Paul. A blanket agreement for the entire milk industry is contemplated.

All these arrangements have to be paid for, and it is clear the public will pay. Supporters of the program feel, however, restoration of far mourchasing power will be more important than the hole knocked in the public's purse.

As a result of a combination of the governments' plans, broad-for business recovery and the weather prophets give the farmer this year about $2,000,000,000 more than his low income of $5,000,000 during 1932.

14 KILLED

the diner. Persons in the diner were hurled from their seats in a shower of broken dishes. The impact of the collision split the wooden car like kindling wood. State, county, city and Erie officials immediately opened an investigation to determine:

Whether a signal light had been set against the milk train, and if so, why the engine crew of that train did not see it in time.

Whether the brakeman of the passenger train had proceeded down the track to the rear of the standing flyer. Whether the milk train crew had received any previous notice of the halting of the passenger.

Gardener Sees Crash

William Derigo, a gardner, who witnessed the wreck, gave a vivid account of the collision.

"I had gone back to my garden beside the track for my coat when I saw the passenger standing on the track with a freight train switching cars ahead. I said to myself, 'that's funny. That's the first time I ever saw number eight being, held up by a freight.

"I saw the brakeman (A. C. Morris of Hornell) and I asked him about the stop. He muttered something and kept on going. Then I heard the milk train coming and saw its light shooting ahead down the track. The brakeman had a red lantern in his hand. He began running like mad in the direction of the milk train, waving his red lantern and I think a white one. I got off the track to watch.

"I didn't hear any squealing of brakes—you know they squeal like murder when a train is stopping and I said 'He doesn't see him.' I began to run as fast as I could away from the track.

Heard Dying Screams

The next thing I knew there was an awful crash, like a mountain falling down, I ran back to the passenger train then, part of the cars were piled up, like a heap of kindling wood. I could hear people screaming in agony, crying for help, and yelling other people's names.

"I began to pull people out of the wreckage. One little boy was screaming for his mother. I don't know how many I pulled out. I haven't been able to sleep a wink since, and I guess it'll be a long while before I want to. I can't get this thing out of my mind. It was awful."

The dead were:

Harry Lannon, 38; Donald Burns; Vaccarro (woman); Harry Westfall, 44; Eli Stanaken; M. C. McCollom; Mrs. T. M. Keane; Mrs. Mary Bouille; Mrs. Frank Comfort and Mrs. Arthur Testkey, all of Susquehanna; R. Vavrozski, Brooklyn; three women unidentified.

SAFETY GROUP

MARMORA, September 6 (Examiner Correspondence). — The regular monthly meeting of the Deloro Safety Committee was held in the electricians' shop on Tuesday afternoon under the presidency of R. A. Elliott. Nine suggestions were received in August according to the report of the Suggestions Committee. Six of these were awarded a prize. The star goes to the Engineering Department.

No accidents occurred in the past month. C. H. Buskard brought in the report of the Inspection Committee. H. Rennie was appointed floating member for the ensuing month. H. O. Loveless described the holding of prone method practices in the silver plant during August. W. L. Rigg was asked to conduct similar practices at the oxide plant this month.

C. H. Buskard gave the monthly statement of the benevolent relief funds, after which the meeting adjourned.

SLEEPING BEAUTY REMAINS IN COMA

with the wedding planned nearly two years ago.

Notwithstanding her lengthy sleep, Patricia has been more fortunate than many others who have contracted "sleeping sickness," Dr. Karl A. Meyer, chief surgeon at the Cook county hospital, says that the more recent victims are apparently suffering from the same malady as Miss Maguire—and adds that it has been increasing alarmingly for the past two years.

"In the opinion of many the disease is in reality an aftermath of influenza," he says. "It is a respiratory infection of the same type. The extraordinary long sleep of Miss Maguire makes her case unusually interesting, but it must be remembered that this disease is no longer rare."

Premonition?

It has just been learned that when Patricia consulted her doctor a few days before being overcome by the disease she asked:

"Am I going to have that sleeping sickness I've been reading about?"

This was about Feb. 15, 1932, when she first began to feel drowsy. Her eyelids became heavy and she could hardly keep awake as she worked as a secretary for the Chicago office of a national magazine. Her sister, Mrs. Gladys Hansen, even then chided her about trying to "look languid like a certain movie actress." But one night she rode by her station on the elevated. She had been in a sound sleep on the train. It was then that she managed to stagger home and went to bed—and into her long sleep.

Many Remedies Tried

Dr. Eugene F. Traut identified the disease as encephalitis lethargica, or the American sleeping sickness. He is still the physician in the case and has not yet given up hopes of bringing her out of her coma. At one time he sought to isolate the germ in her blood, make a serum of it. This was injected several times, but without effect.

Many other remedies have been tried—but Patricia sleeps on. They have tried the ultra-violet ray lamp. The girl's step-father, Peter Miley, has given his blood three times for transfusions. Just last month the girl was given typhoid inoculations in an attempt to create a high fever and "burn" out the infection. She has even undergone an operation to remove a portion of an injection needle, broken off in her spine. Still she sleeps.

Last February, almost on the anniversary of her sleeping spell, she contracted lobar pneumonia. At that time a radio station (KYW) sent out a broadcast for an oxygen tent to save her life. Several persons responded. The oxygen tent was used, and besides its help in ouring the pneumonia it was hoped it might bring about her awakening.

She survived the pneumonia attack. And it was said that she was able to do this because of her extremely wonderful physical condition. She had gained 22 pounds since she fell asleep!

Two Birthdays Asleep

At the time she went into her slumber she was 26. She is now 28 and has unconsciously lived through two birthdays. A nurse who attended her has married during that time and now has a baby.

In the brown stucco house at 523 South Clarence avenue, Oak Park, Patricia's mother, Mrs. Miley, and her sister, Mrs. Hansen, are in constant attendance. The girl's position in bed is changed every two hours. She is given a sponge bath every day. Her limbs are massaged each day, too, to keep them from deteriorating.

Patricia has her regular food. Before they fed her with tubes through her nose. Now they are able to feed her with a spoon. She has strained soup, a glass of milk and cream, an egg-nog and orange juice.

Responds to Name

She lies there, just as she is placed, and sometimes there is a flutter of the eyelids, a groan, a smile—and infrequently, mumbled words which are incoherent to her listeners. Even at times, Mrs. Miley says, it seems that she responds by a smile or a flutter of her eyelids to her name.

"For a time I was glad she was asleep," her sister remarks. "During a whole year I thought how nice it would have been for everyone to have been asleep—times were so terrible. But now we wish she would awake—times are becoming good again. And every day we believe she will."

RIO GRANDE FLOODS VALLEY

tonio bore Army Medical officers and a detachment of troops from Kelly Field.

At the same time, the Red Cross marshalled its forces to combat the disaster, sending Albert Evans, Director of Disaster Relief for the mid-western area of the organization, from Houston and F. A. Winfrey, acting manager of the mid-Western area, from San Antonio on the special trains. The Red Cross experts in relief measures took with them physicians, nurses, relief workers, food, water, medical supplies and clothing.

While the stricken thousands in the valley bore up bravely, despite the fact all the possessions of many, including their homes, had been swept away, a new threat appeared in the form of a possible flood as a result of torrential rains which accompanied the hurricane.

Millions in Crop Loss

All through the area affected most seriously, encompassing from 75 to 100 miles square, thousands of farmers saw crops valued at millions of dollars destroyed. The citrus growers probably were the heaviest losers. P. A. Holdale, in charge of the United States Department of Agriculture Citrus Inspection Service of the valley, estimated 90 per cent of the fruit was blown from the trees. The valley citrus crop had been valued unofficially at $12,000,000.

At the same time, there was tremendous destruction in the urban areas, where hundreds of homes were destroyed or damaged and business establishments in some places were wrecked. S. Findley Ewing, former Mayor of Harlingen and real estate man, said in Harlingen alone there was from $500,000 to $1,000,000 damage, 80 per cent of the buildings having been damaged or destroyed.

All Buildings Damaged

In Brownsville, Augustin Celaya, State Representative, said every building showed marks of the storm's violence. In Matamoros an ancient cathedral collapsed, but no one was in it.

Throughout the territory swept by the storm telephone and telegraph poles were broken off and laid in rows often across the highway. So great was the force of the wind some poles were snapped off near their tops. Debris of every description littered the whole country and bobbed about in the water that covered most of the ground.

Far to the north and east, Corpus Christi, about 600 miles from Brownsville, saw water blown into some of its principal downtown streets, but it escaped the full effects of the gale. Some small craft in the harbor there were sunk or crashed into piers.

EXCESSIVE FEARS ARE MAKING FRANCE FORTRESS OF EUROPE VISCOUNT ROTHERMERE CLAIMS

France Now Has Greatest Army and Air Force in World.

HAS HUGE DEFENCES

Exaggerated Fears of Invasion Keeping All Europe Uneasy.

By VISCOUNT ROTHERMERE
(Central Canadian Press)

LONDON, Sept. 7.—States, as well as individuals, can suffer from scares. France just now is puzzling her friends by the morbid uneasiness she displays in the matter of her national security.

So little ground appears for these misgivings that some people have even supposed them to be a mask for warlike intentions.

The French nation not only has the strongest army in the world, economically, and financially also, it is in a position of overwhelming advantage.

Few people realize the enormous development of French defences during the past few years. Along the eastern frontier of France fortifications have been erected on a scale to which there has been no parallel since the Emperor Shih Hwang-ti built the Great Wall of China.

For 220 miles, from Luxembourg to Bale, an unbroken line of armored concrete redoubts has been erected. They are gas-proof and shell-proof, and stand about 1,000 yards apart, so that the ground between them can be swept by converging fire.

Underground telephones keep the garrisons of these strong points in communication with each other, and they are connected also by a network of converging strategic roads and railway lines.

This fortified area is only the first line of French defence. Behind it lies a double string of virtu-

RACINE, September 7 (C.P.).—Defending himself when arraigned on a charge of breaking into a filling station "Peck" Carner, 32, of Racine, testified thus: "The operator of the station gave me $5.00 a week ago to buy him a dog. I spent the money, but not for the dog. I had to return with a dog or $5.00. It was quite a problem, because I didn't have the money. So I broke into the filling station to get the money to pay him back." Ninety days was the penalty.

WOMAN ENACTS STABBING SCENE

Claims Jeweler Threatened To Kill Husband, Son Unless She Eloped With Him.

ATTACKED HER IN WOODS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP)— A dark-haired housewife was near collapse today after re-enacting a woodland death scene in which she killed a middle-aged jeweler.

Her dress stained with blood, Mrs. Millie Prince, 31, stood in Queen's wood late yesterday and showed police how she stabbed Charles J. Wolfert, 56. She said Wolfert had threatened to kill her husband and 16-year-old son unless she eloped with him.

Standing on the death spot, she cried:

"He spread his arms out wide and came up to me and said: 'Go on. You haven't got the nerve to kill me. But I deserve to be killed'."

"All my friends have left me," she quoted him as saying. "You're all I've got. I'm going to have you if I have to get rid of your husband."

Then, she said:

"He punched me in the face. He caught me. I knew it was me or him. I stabbed him. I don't know how man y times. I knew I had to finish it or he'd get me."

The stabbing was done, she said, with a souvenir knife she carried in her bag.

Last night Mrs. Prince was treated for abrasions and a possible fracture of the jaw and was detained pending the filing of homicide charges.

WANT WORK STARTED

SAULT STE. MARIE—The Sault Ste. Marie branch of the Canadian Legion planned to-day to ask T. E. Unemployed men, including many ex-service men, are affected by the delay, it is claimed.

DISCORD RISES IN WRECK PROBE

District Attorney Dissatisfied With Statement Of Railroad Official.

BLAMED ENGINEER.

BINGHAMTON, N.Y., Sept. 7. (AP) — A grand jury inquiry to place possible criminal responsibility for a train wreck that took 14 lives and injured scores was announced to-day after District Attorney Frank Wooster clashed with counsel for the Erie Railroad.

Wooster, who announced the inquiry, intimated he was not satisfied with a statement by an Erie official holding Engineer M. H King of Elmira solely responsible for the wreck.

King was accused of running past signals. He was at the throttle of a milk train which rammed the rear of the Atlantic flyer, Chicago-New Work express, Tuesday night. A wooden passenger car sandwiched between steel cars of the express was smashed to kindling wood by the impact. All of the dead lost their lives in this car. With federal, state and county investigations getting under way, the local inquiry recessed on a discordant note last night when Wooster and Frederick J. Meagher, Erie counsel, clashed over examination at police headquarters of Martin T. Reap, yardmaster. Wooster said "hot words' were passed, but that Meagher was willing to co-operate.

Splendid Programme On Order For In Front Of Grandstand

PLENTY OF BIG THRILLS.

Thrills and comedy have been the objective of the Peterborough Exhibition Board in planning the grand stand features for next week. Sensational acts that catch the breath relieved by the art of comedians in twelve or thirteen acts round out a program which the Board regards as the best balanced they have ever presented.

Gales of laughter are going to be stirred up in the grand stand when the Phunny Phord known as "Lizzie of the Sawdust," does its stunt with Ernie Wells, ace clown with Barnum and Bailey's Circus, and Guy Purdee, a Keystone Comedy Cop. Their ancient auto seems to be human, darting hither and yon apparently unguided, spitting fire, throwing water on those accompanying it, and doing other mystifying stunts. Every car driver is going to get a lot of laughs out of this rip-roaring humor.

The big thrill on the program is

Sweetheart's Sandwich Box Leads Youth To Vanquish Bear In Battle For Lunch

SAULT STE. MARIE, Sept. 7. — (CP)—Percy Davis and a girl companion one bright and sunny morning packed a basket lunch and hied to the bush for a day's outing. After spreading the lunch temptingly on the grass in a quiet nook, Percy decided he would like a dip before eating.

While doffing his clothes in the car a bear, tempted by the delicious spread, emerged from the bush and started eating the lunch.

The girl started to scream, but the bear continued to munch at the lunch. Percy was undressed in the car when the girl's screams reached him. Hastily donning garments he jumped from the car, armed himself with an axe and rocks and gave battle to the bear, which had disposed of visible food and was trying to open a tin box containing sandwiches.

The bear retreated under the barrage of rocks but carried off the box of sandwiches. Percy gave chase, for the sandwiches were all that was left of their lunch. He induced the bear to drop the box and marched back to the picnic grounds for his interrupted swim and a lunch of sandwiches.

Ambulance Detachments Continue Combing Texas Communities For Injured.

HIGHWAYS BEING OPENED

HARLINGEN, Tex., Sept. 7. (AP) Ambulance detachments of the United States Army to-day began a systematic search through hitherto inaccessible sections of the hurricane-devastated lower Rio Grande Valley for injured refugees.

It was considered likely additional fatalities would be discovered in remote communities unheard from since the disastrous storm abated.

A preliminary survey by the Red Cross, covering that part of the stricken area linked by paved ways, accounted for 24 deaths and hundreds of persons injured. There were found to be 3,750 families destitute, 4,000 homes destroyed and 8,000 damaged.

Four persons lost their lives at Harlingen, two at San Benito, four at Rio Hondo, one at Port Isabel, two in rural communities and eight at Matamoros, Mexican resort city across the Rio Grande from Brownsville.

Clearing weather yesterday allowed telephone and telegraph company repair crews to restore communication lines put out of commission by the destructive winds which ripped and tore at the rich agricultural section from Monday night until past noon Tuesday. Highways were being opened to traffic again as water standing on them slowly receded.

The storm denuded citrus groves of their ripening crop, valued at around $6,000,000 and levelled cotton all over the fertile valley. The damage to property was expected to run into the millions.

VISCOUNT GREY NOTED BRITISHER TAKEN BY DEATH

As Foreign Secretary Gave Germany Ultimatum Plunging Britain In War.

IN HIS 71ST YEAR

Acted Ambassador To Washington In 1919-20—Great Lover of Birds.

CHRISTON BANK, Eng., Sept. 7. —(C.P. and A.P. Cables)—Viscount Grey of Fallondon who, as Sir Edward Grey, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, gave Germany the ultimatum plunging Great Britain into the war, died today at the age of 71.

He virtually retired from public life in 1916 because of failing eyesight and had been seriously ill for more than a week, becoming gradually weaker although he waged a stubborn battle for life.

Death came to him at 6:05 a.m. at Fallodon, his beautiful home on the Northumbrian coast.

As Secretary for Foreign Affairs for the years from 1905 to 1916, Viscount Grey was fated to play a leading role in the destinies of Europe. He never wavered in his stand on behalf of Belgium after exhausting every effort to avert the great disaster of war.

During a five-months period in 1919-1920 he was the temporary British ambassador to Washington.

The room in the mellow red-brick mansion where the Viscount spent his last days looked out on a bird sanctuary he had set up on the grounds of Fallodon, and throughout the long days of his illness he lay with the windows open whenever possible so the sounds of his well-loved birds could reach him.

Unconscious 70 Hours

He had been unconscious for nearly 70 hours. He could take no food. His remarkable stamina, however, surprised those at his bedside, and the entire nation.

The cessation of his feeble breath-

"No," said Pat, with a sly wink; "he drives a horse and cart."

Delegation Demands An Immediate Reply As Guide For Future

"Demand" Non-Contributory Insurance, More Relief With Winter Clothing At Once, Removal Of Police Control Over Activities, And Permission To "Ride The Rods" Home.

PERLEY ASSURES CABINET CONSIDERATION; 300 PARADE CHEERING BUCK, RED RUSSIA.

OTTAWA, Sept. 7. —(CP)— A party of 15 men and women representing 300 delegates to the National Conference of the unemployed now in session here, presented a list of "demanded" reforms before the Dominion Government and demanded "an immediate answer." They were told by Sir George Perley, Acting Prime Minister, that no immediate answer could be given but that their presentations would be received by the cabinet.

"On the reply we get from the Government today will depend the next course of action to be taken by this conference," declared James Mouston, Toronto, one of the spokesmen. Immediately after the audience the delegation returned to their associates line up on Weddington street and commenced a slow march up and down the sidewalk fronting Parliament Hill.

Cheers for Tim Buck, the Toronto radical now in Kingston penitentiary, for the Russian Soviet and "the Young Communist Society," and singing of the "Internationale" rang up and down the line as the delegates paced back and forth, 300 strong and two deep on the sidewalk to keep within the law against unauthorized parties.

The Government was urged particularly to establish a system of non-contributory unemployment insurance, increase the relief allowances all around with an immediate grant for winter clothing, repeal section 98 of the Criminal Code, remove the Royal Canadian Mounted Police control over unemployed organization activities, and to order police to allow the delegates to "ride the rods" back to their homes unmolested.

Represent 300,000.

Alderman Reg. Morris, of East Windsor, presented the main petition and declared that the party represented more than 300,000 unemployed, of which 150,000 were trade unionists. He was followed by H. Sharman of Hamilton, who spoke for the unemployed youth and Mrs. Hutton of Vancouver, who spoke for the Girls' Club of that city.

Ewart G. Humphries, Mount Denis, Ont., introduced the speakers and James Houston, Toronto, closed the discussion with an impassioned appeal and the declaration that the future course of the party

HAVANA, Sept. 7 (A.P.)—Soldiers set up machine guns in uptown parks this afternoon as Havana was stirred by many confusing rumors, including an insistent report that the United States would ask the two-day old radical government to surrender power.

A widely circulated rumor was that Washington would ask that Carlos Manuel De Cespedes, who was deposed from the provisional presidency by a radical coup d'etat, be placed at the head of the government again with a new "cabinet of concentration." Such a cabinet all revolutionary groups.

Child Injured When He Startles Horse

Darting from the sidewalk while at play yesterday afternoon, 3-year-old Bernard Jones received cuts on the forehead and upper lip after being knocked down by a horse at Reid and Murray Streets. The child's injuries were attended at the Standard Surgical and Medical Clinic.

According to the report of Constables W. Piercy and George Carey of the city police, the child was playing at the sidewalk, when he ran into the roadway and under a horse—one of a team of horses in charge of Fred Pavey, garbage collector. The horse was startled and knocked the child down.

It is estimated that there are 9,855 millions of tons of iron ore in America that are still to be mined.

PLANS ARE MADE TO RUSH WORK ON GENERATORS

C.G.E. Will Start Work On Five Generators For Beauharnois Immediately.

ORDERS BEEN PLACED.

Fifth Machine Be Completed In 1934 Instead Of 1937 As Planned.

Contrary to the original announcement that the construction of five huge generators ordered by the Beauharnois Power Corporation from the Canadian General Electric plant in this city would be delayed over a period of four years, a decision to proceed immediately on the production of the entire five machines was revealed by plant officials today.

The decision was made principally to provide as much immediate employment as possible, it was stated. Following on the heels of the announcement of a shorter working week to provide more jobs for the city's unemployed made yesterday, the announcement constitutes the second item of good news to Peterborough workmen from the plant within twenty-four hours. The work of building the mammoth machines will result in increased activity in several of the plant's major departments during the next two years and is expected to require the reemployment of a considerable portion of the company's original staff. Orders for almost all the materials which will go into the generators have been placed and deliveries in Peterborough are expected to begin arriving shortly.

Will Speed Production

Although work will go ahead as fast as is practical and as fast as space in the plant will permit, the fifth machine will not be completed until late in 1934. Delivery dates on the machines and installation at

MISSING GIRLS REPORTED SEEN

Pair Believed To Have Stopped At Claude River Garage Last Friday.

MAN IN CAR

QUEBEC, September 7 (CP).—Search for the missing Marguerite and Maud Ascah centred on the Claude River district and village of Marsouins, Gaspe County, to-day, following a report two girls resembling the missing cousins had been seen there last Friday.

Police were informed an automobile containing two girls had stopped at a Claude River garage and that later the same girls had visited a hotel at Marsouins. There was one man in the car. Police and volunteer workers at once concentrated their efforts on the area and hope to find some indication of the girls' whereabouts in one of the two places.

A reward of $200 was offered yesterday for information leading to the finding of the girls, aged 17 and 15 who disappeared a week ago.

Two Teachers, Both Claiming One Job Show Up At School But Find No Pupils

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 7 (C.P.)—Closed a few hours after opening Tuesday, Cairo Public School in Euphemia Township to-day had two teachers, no pupils and a swell row on its hands. An intricate tangle was brought about by the allegedly illegal dismissal of Miss Jean Stalker of Newbury, teacher last term and appointment of Blake McLean, son of the school board's chairman.

Police were called when the little school re-opened Tuesday and Miss Stalker an McLean both appeared in front of the class of eight pupils to teach. They closed the school until to-day. The teachers were back on the job to-day but the pupils didn't show up.

M. Walles of Cairo, whose two children attend the school, said the pupils would be kept home until the trouble was cleared up. It was predicted the school board would have to pay both teachers for the September-December term.

School Inspector J. J. Edwards said the school board in dismissing Miss Stalker on June 19 had not given her sufficient notice. The notice should have been given June 1. McLean is a 1933 graduate of London Normal School.

Roosevelt Hesitates To Take Final Step For Fear Action May Cast Blight Over Foreign Policy—Means American Lives And Heavy Cost.

NEW JUNTA FIGHTING TO AVOID CRISIS, ARMED THRONGS ROAM STREETS, WAITING.

WASHINGTON, September 7 (C.P.). — Toward Cuba, with its rumbling volcano of discontented forces, President Roosevelt's Secretary of the Navy sped to-day while the United States administration's decision on assuming the heavy responsibility of armed intervention hung on the fateful events of the next few hours.

Already Cuban waters bristled with American warships. Marines were concentrated and equipped as an expeditionary force at Quantico, Va. Secretary Claude Swanson hurried toward the Cuban capital aboard the swift new cruiser Indianapolic. But thus far the feared eruption which might bring bloodshed, dicorder, and anarchy and demand American intervention had not come.

President Roosevelt in an unprecedneted move called diplomats of leading Latin-American nations to his desk late yesterday to tell them of his fears and hopes; his extreme reluctance to intervene.

He indicated that if a government capable of ruling Cuba can be constituted quickly before some nervous trigger finger sets loose a conflagration, the vexing question of intervention will vanish of itself.

The gist of the President's views, expressed in calm and quiet converse with the envoys of Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Mexico, was later laid before the representatives of the rest of Latin-America through Secretary of State Cordell Hull in line with the administration's policy of frank co-operation.

Delicate Step.

Far-reaching responsibilities were involved in intervention, a right conferred on the United States by the treaty which granted Cuba its independence after the Spanish-American War. It was exercised only once, under the Theodore Roosevelt administration in 1906 to 1909.

Marines or troops, once landed, might have to stay for months or even years, as that experience showed. Almost inevitably, intervention would mean the loss of some American lives. In money, too, the cost would be considerable.

Beyond and behind all this is the danger that the action might be misconstrued among the other nations of Latin-America and a blight

The farm later changed hands and Mrs. Harry Myers found the ring yesterday not far from the house.

FROST DAMAGES ALBERTA CROPS

Worst Loss Suffered In Peace River Areas—Ripening Late.

RAINS SLOW HARVEST.

OTTAWA, Sept. 7.—Canada's crop situation in the Prairie Provinces has been affected by two main factors in the past week, an official crop report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics states. One is the damaging frosts in certain parts of the West, and the other factor the interruption of harvesting by varying rainfalls.

In the first place, the report states, damaging frosts have been suffered in the Peace River District, and moderate frosts over a wide area in Northern and Central Alberta. These frosts have been sufficiently severe to damage late crops. The extent of the actual frost damage will not be apparent until threshing is under way in the affecteod areas.

In the second place, the report continues, harvesting has been interrupted throughout the three Provinces by varying amounts of rainfall during the last week. Precipitation has been heavy in Central and Northern Manitoba, Southern and Northern Saskatchewan, and moderate to light throughout most districts in Alberta, with the exception of the Peace River, where substantial rains and some snow were reported.

In general, harvesting is well advanced in Manitoba, Southern and Central Saskatchewan and Southern Alberta, and the rains were advantageous in improving the feed situation, the report proceeds. In Northern Saskatchewan and Central and Northern Alberta continuance of wet weather would delay the ripening of late crop harvesting generally.

DREAD DISEASE CLAIMS VICTIM IN LONDON MAN

Retired Thedford Salesman Succumbs To Sleeping Sickness After 10 Days.

OFFICIALS CHECK UP.

Two Sarnia Men Reported Ill —Malady Claimed Mild.

LONDON, Ont., September 7 (C. P.). — First victim of sleeping sickness in this district was dead today as authorities sought to determine if other cases of the disease existed. Rendol Snell, 64-year-old retired salesman of Thedford, died in hospital here last night after lying unconscious since last Thursday. He had been ill ten days.

Two cases of the disease in a mild form were reported yesterday from Sarnia where T. W. Creelam and Charles Smith were placed under care of specialists. Dr. A. J. Bell, Sarnia medical officer of health, said there was no danger of the disease spreading in the area under his supervision. Physicians said they knew of no other cases.

LLOYD GEORGE GRIEF STRICKEN

Lauds Late Viscount Grey—Newly Published Memoirs Attach His Old Policy.

WAR OFFICE ATTACKED.

BANGOR, Wales, Sept. 7.—(C. P. and A. P. Cables) — David Lloyd George, whose memoirs, published by coincidence on the eve of Viscount Grey's death, contained a sharp attack on the former secretary for foreign affairs in connection with the outbreak of the war, was obviously distressed today when informed of the passing of his one time colleague.

With a voice full of emotion the former prime minister and Secretary of War said:

"It is sad to be told of the death of an old colleague. We were members of the same government and sat at the same council table for more than 11 years.

"We had our disagreements in opinion and he and I gave free expression to them. That is inevitable in politics, especially in the course of a long life. But I have nothing now but grief at the death of one with whom I worked so many years in complete personal harmony."

Mr. Lloyd George made his remarks when he was about to leave by train for London. Viscount Grey of Fallodon, who gave Germany the war ultimatum, died this morning at Christon Bank, England, at the age of 71, after an illness of more than a week.

Lloyd George in the first volume of his war memoirs said millions killed in the Great Wear need not have met death for the conflict should have ended in 1916 and the Allied strategy in France in the earlier stages was a "sanguinary mistake."

He criticised the war office repeatedly for "mental obtuseness" and a "pitiable lack of initiatiev."

"An ideal Foreign Secretary would be a cross between a recluse and a tramp for instance between Sir Edward Grey (late Viscount Grey of Fallodon) and Ramsay MacDonald" (now Prime Minister) Lloyd George wrote.

He said the war office was a "perpetual source of obstruction" when he started organizing the munitions ministry in the early days of the

MYSTERIOUS SKELETON FOUND AT OWEN SOUND

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Sept. 7 (CP)—Mystery surrounds the finding of a skeleton by two men on the farm of W. A. Lindsay, west of Egremont concession. It is thought that the remains had lain on the spot for nearly a year.

W. Allen and E. Lindsay were on their way to swamp nearby when they stumbled across the clothed skeleton. Close to it was a gold watch and chain, a hand mirror, a drinking cup and fountain pen, but from these it was not possible to identify the body.

Almost directly above where the bones and clothing were found a leather belt hung from the branch of a tree, which indicated the remains might be those of a suicide. No person from Durham or the vicinity has been reported missing during the year, and authorities are at a loss to solve the puzzle.

SAVE COTTAGES TURKEY POINT

Crew of 75 Men Battle Flames All Day As Resort Is Again Menaced.

OTHER FIRES RAGE.

SIMCOE, Sept. 7. — Driven by a strong west wind, a bush fire which has kept Turkey Point under a pall of smoke for more than a month, broke out again yesterday and threatened to destroy a section of the summer colony there. Late last night the fire was under control, but residents of the small summer resort were hoping for rain. The flames were first reported yesterday morning and spread rapidly, coming to within fifty yards of the main road which divides the cottage settlement from the woods. Last night there were four reforestation service men patrolling the area aided by four or five volunteers from the community. There is a big truck in use, hauling water to danger points, and a water pump from the forest patrol is expected to arrive to-day. About seventy-five men fought the flames all day.

Another fire raged five miles north-west of Simcoe in wood lots on four farms in Windham Township. Last night it was still burning, and more than fifty men have been engaged in combating it. The flames broke out on Monday on the farm of Mrs. H. Fox. About 100 acres of bush on property owned by James Goodlet, Edward Gilbert, Frank Wolfe and Harvey Potts has been destroyed. A large acreage of young pine was also destroyed near Turkey Point on the Provincial Government's forestry station farm No. 2. Employees of the station at St. Williams have been battling the flames.

MOUNTIE SAVES HIS COMPANION FROM GRIZZLY

VICTIM BADLY MAULED.

Officials Fear Many Missing Men In Yukon Have Met Same Fate.

OTTAWA, September 7. — Several persons have disappeared recently in the Yukon, and Royal Canadian Mounted Police officials suspect that some of them have been killed by grizzly bears, according to a report received yesterday by headquarterrs here from Superintendent A. B. Allard, officer commanding the Yukon district.

In support of his suspicions, he refers to an attack made on a prospector who was saved by Corporal P. A. McAskill after he had been severely injured.

The prospector's name was Thomas J. Keating, living at Keno in the central portion of the Yukon District. Keating wanted to stake a claim over ten miles from the town, and took Corporal McAskill with him.

The corporal's report describes the progress of the two men during the long days of the Arctic. They stopped and made tea, stopped again and made stakes with which to mark the claim, and by 6.18 they had reached a point half a mile by direct route from the Knoll near which Keating wished to stake h's claim.

The men separated, the corporal taking the direct route, and the prospector a circuitous one. The mountie reached the knoll first and sat down to rest until his companion should come in sight. The officer had a rifle, but the prospector was unarmed except for the stakes.

Keating eventually appeared some 400 yards away, and the officer later noticed that a big grizzly bear was following him with two cubs. She kept drawing closer as the man

MOTHER OF MARMORA RESIDENT AT CENTURY MARK UPON FRIDAY

Mrs. Valentine Litt, Sebringville Still Active After 99 Years In Canada.

TAKEN LIFE'S SUNNY SIDE.

SEBRINGVILLE, Ont., Sept. 7 (CP)—Bright, cheerful, interested in current events, Mrs. Valentine Litt of Sebringville will celebrate her 100th birthday at the home of her son, Frank Litt, here Friday.

Born in Alsace-Lorraine in 1833, Mrs. Litt came to Canada with her parents when one year old. The family settled in Fullerton Township.

To-day, 99 years after her arrival in this county, Mrs. Litt is still active. During the past year she has attended church on several occasions, and last week took at 45-mile motor trip to Grand Bend, a summer lake resort. She enjoys reading and her eyesight is still strong.

Although Mrs. Litt had no definite recipe for longevity she tells that during her life she worked hard and lived carefully. She has always, she says, tried to look on the sunny side of life.

When first coming to Canada Mrs. Litt's family built a log house in a forest-enclosed clearing. Until 13 years old she received little education as the first school, conducted by a Lutheran minister, was not constructed until that time.

Two sons, Frank of Sebringville and William of Marmora, and two daughters, Mrs. Anna Kruspe, Stratford, and Mrs. W. Yager of St. Jacobs are still living. She has 18 grandchildren and 10 great-granchildren.

COUNCIL DEFERS POLICE DECISION AFTER DEBATING

Split Occurs in Deliberations Over Size of Force Required.

MILK BYLAW PASSED

Informed Section of Trent Canal Open Only Three Months Next Year.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 7. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—The Campbellford section of the Trent Canal, from Lock I at Trenton to Healey Falls, will only be open three months next season, from June 15 to September 16, was the information conveyed to the Campbellford Town Council Tuesday evening, at the regular session of that body, when Clerk J. F. McGregor read correspondence from W. A. Fraser, M.P., in which was enclosed a copy of a letter written to him by the Hon. Dr. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals. The letter followed a resolution passed by the council at its August meeting protesting the action of the government in closing the system earlier than in previous years. Dr. Manion in his communication stated that, based on traffic records for 1932, traffic using the canal did not warrant the government keeping open the waterway longer than the anticipated changes.

The much discussed question of a police chief for the town was again deferred, the council on motion sponsored by Deputy Reeve N. A. MacColl and Councillor F. F. Long, holding the appointment over for another month. In the meantime, Constable George Hardy will continue to police the municipality.

The council divided over the question as to whether one or two policemen were needed for the town, the holding over the matter being to see if one man could properly handle the situation. Councillor E. C. McKeel, as chairman of the Police Committee, reported that applications for the position of chief constable had been sorted out by the committee, but that he was of the opinion that by doing split duty Constable Hardy could adequately handle the job, providing that the duties of truant officer, weed inspector and sanitary inspector, which now go with the position, were excluded from the duties of the chief constable. These duties, he thought, came under other branches of the town's organization. If his suggestion were carried out, he saw a saving for the town of considerable expenditures, including one salary, a uniform, and incidentals, in all he thought, about one thousand dollars a year.

Gets Support

Councillor Neal Thompson supported Mr. McKeel to the one man question while Mayor H. N. Carr and Reeve C. H. Davidson favored a two man force. A resolution was sponsored by the council however, petitioning the Provincial authorities, that as the surrounding country was not policed, that a Provincial Constable be permanently located in Campbellford. This motion came following report of Mayor Carr, who had been in touch with Inspector Lougheed of Belleville, who expressed himself in favor of the suggestion.

An extra sum of $30, representing fifteen days' extra work, was allowed paid to Robert Lowery, town assessor, for work he has done over and above his duties in the delineation of lots in connection with the compilig of the list of land for sale for arrears of taxes. Mr. Lowery ddressed the council regarding this matter.

He also brought to the attention of the council the fact that he had in error assessed several chain stores on a 75 percent basis, according to how he thought the Act read. The town solicitor, D. J. Lynch, however, gave it as his opinion that this was an error, and this increase in assessment only applied to warehouses. As the rolls have already ben handed in, Mr. Lowery was instructed to notify the stores concerned that the matter will be rectified at the next court of revision.

The matter of purchase of wood from F. Young, local dealer who addressed the council in this regard, was left to the Relief Committee to handle, and brought to the attention of Councillor John O'Sullivan, who is a member of this committee and handles all the wood supply.

The clerk was requested to obtain quotations from printing firms for the supply of tax collector's books and assessment rolls. This action followed a request from the S. R. Hart Company for the supply of the town's books, which they have now filled for many years. It was felt that perhaps a better price could be obtained elsewhere. The motion was put by Councillors McKeel and Long.

Makes Report

Reporting as chairman of the Road and Bridge Committee, Councillor O'Sullivan stated that no sewer or water main will be laid to the residence of Thomas Peake, as applied for in August, but that if money held out a sidewalk would be laid this Fall. The clerk was also requested to obtain prices on two stop signs following a request from Mr. O'Sullivan that signs be placed at the corner of Ranney and Market streets, where corner houses block the view of road traffic.

The milk by-law, considered and passed at the last session of the council, and forwarded to the Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Provincial Minister of Agriculture, was approved by him, and passed, signed, sealed and numbered on motion of Councillor J. R. Battisby and Deputy Reeve MacColl.

Mayor Carr reported regarding the meeting of town officials and the Commission Board with Hydro officials, in an endeavour to enter into a contract for sale of power to the Hydro from the town, that the Hydro had referred the matter to their technical experts for consideration.

The matter of building a sidewalk in front of the residence of E. H. Greig, promised two years ago, was referred to the Road and Bridge Committee for what action they deemed necessary. Mayor Carr brought the matter to the attention of the council.

Rotary Street Dance

The Campbellford Rotary Club were given the privilege of closing off Front street, south, and Mill street at the V intersection, south of the Post Office, for one evening in September, when that organization considered staging a street dance. Mayor Carr made this application.

Councillor McKeel told the council that if it would level off the road allowance on Inkerman street in front of the McKeel houses, and fill with loam, that his father, A. H. McKeel, would next spring seed this all down and make it a beauty spot instead of what it now is: a mass of weeds and long grass, unable to be cut owing to the stones and boulders strewn along. This land runs between the road and the creek upon which the houses front. The matter was referred to the chairman of the Road and Bridge Committee.

Mayor Carr presided over the meeting which was attended by all members.

IN MEMORIAM

ARMSTRONG—In loving memory of my dear Daughter, Verna M. J. Armstrong, who passed away September 7th, 1932.
We think of you, our Verna, dear,
Of all your gentle ways,
Your courage and unfailing cheer
Which love alone repays.
Remembering your kindly voice,
Your heart so warm and true,
Our hearts ache when we are sad
To know that we have lost you.
The pearly gates were opened,
A gentle voice said, "Come";
And with farewells left unspoken
You softly entered home.

ing alone indicated that life had flickered out. A sister, Mrs. Coetlogan, and her daughter maintained a constant watch during his last hours.

The exact nature of his illness was not announced, but is believed to have resulted from high blood pressure.

A little less remarkable than his fame as a statesman was his prominence as a friend of birds and animals. It was said he won the trust of the most timid creatures and squirrels, robins, ducks and wild fowl would perch on his shoulder or near him as he walked through the garden to the favorite spot where he fed them.

He also endeared himself to villagers in the tiny hamlet of Christon Bank and the village of Embleton.

Near the gates of his estate— a great, three-filled park—groups of anxious countryfolk gathered daily during his illness to receive news of his progress or to pray for him.

Tributes Pour In.

LONDON, Sept. 7 (C.P. and A.P. Cables).—Tributes to the life and achievements of Viscount Grey of Fallodon began pouring in to-day from all quarters—his former political colleagues, statesmen, and various other persons prominent in all walks of life—when news of the death of the former Secretary for Foreign Affairs spread.

One of the most striking came from the Marquis of Reading, who was Lord Chief Justice at the outbreak of the war. His message read:

"His memory will always be revered for his efforts to avoid a long-threatened European war and for the important part he played in reaching the vital decision in August, 1914, as well as for his consistent and successful efforts and endeavors to steer clear of entanglements with America before she entered the war."

MOUNTIE SAVES HIS COMPANION

plodded on, unaware of his "shadow." The officer at length shouted to him to move away so he could shoot the animal. Keating turned and the bear was up to him.

Disappear in Bush

"The bear kept advancing towards him (Keating)," the report proceeds, "while he kept backing away and swinging a stick, but did not attempt to run. They both disappeared into the bush." The cubs also disappeared. The report explained that the man and his assailant were so close together that the corporal could not shoot without endangering the man's life.

The mountie hurried as fast as he could through the bush and around a creek to rescue his companion. He found Keating on the ground, with his right wrist lacerated and the corner of his left eye so badly cut he could not see out of it.

The injured man was conscious and told how the bear had struck him with its claws and knocked him down, and then left to accompany her cubs. His right leg was broken. He warned McAskill that the bear would return to her prey, which she had left to gather in her cubs.

While the corporal was putting the prospector in an easy position the bear noiselessly appeared not 10 feet away. The corporal grabbed his rifle and fired three explosive bullets, which killed the animal.

The mountie returned to Keno, got a party who carried the injured man towards Keno, a doctor meeting them on the way and rendering first aid. Keating later recovered in an hospital in Mayo.

This experience, following that of a year ago when John McDonald was partially eaten by a bear which had killed him, has convinced the officers in the Yukon that the grizzlies there will attack humans without provocation, and the police are expecting that some of the many disappearances which they have been asked to investigate in the district will be traced to bears.

Mr. Brown of the Montreal grading staff, who officiated at the Campbellford grading station last week was well pleased with the general character of cheese here.

Burnley factory on August 30 received 7,600 pounds of milk and Spring Valley 5,100 pounds. These factories situated in Haldimand township, are on the west fringe of Toronto milk and cream shed, and are receiving considerably more milk than for the past few years.

Commission Board In Good Position

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 7 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent) — Despite difficult times and the added expenditure that has faced the Water and Light Commission Board of Campbellford this year, the financial outlook for this branch of the municipality is more than bright with increased consumption of power reported by the manager P. C. Denyes and collections holding their own. This information was forthcoming at the regular meeting of the Commission held last evening and presided over by Chairman J. O. Benor.

Mr. Denyes reported that the consumption of K. W. hours was up 1.560 over last year. During the month of August collection of arrears of accounts amounted to $304.38, which item itself was a fine record, while tota. receipts for the month were $2,393.99. There was also a very substantial balance on hand, and Commissioner Benor stated that at a rough estimate, there would be a balance for 1933 of between twenty and twenty-one thousand dollars in the Commissions' favor.

Apart from business communications, very little business came before the Commission. The matter of some delinquent accounts was passed on to the manager to deal with, and the accounts passed. Mayor H. N. Carr and Commissioner A. J. Meyers were also present.

Dark Horizon

(By J. P. McKnight. Copyright 1933, by the Associated Press)

HAVANA, Sept. 7.—Cuba's turbulent situation had reached an impasse to-day for which no one saw any but a bloody solution.

The Leftist administration continued on the surface to be optimistic their coup d'etat of Tuesday would be successful and declared order would be maintained and there would be no American intervention

But all sections of more conservative opposition groups saw intervention as an accomplished fact unless an abrupt change came in the tense situation.

Among these latter factions were members of the ABC secret society, the followers of former President Mario G. Menocal, and a considerable part of another important revolutionary body, the OCRR, among whom fears of a counter-revolution were expressed.

In the face of this acute crisis the administration—a five man junta set up after soldiers, sailors, and national police ousted commissioned officers and obtained the resignation of President de Cespedes' month-old provisional government—courageously tackled head-on its most dangerous problems.

It secretly resolved to disarm all civilians and began to try to restore to their former positions officers ousted Monday night and Tuesday morning.

Impartial observers believed that neither effort would be crowned with success.

Unnumbered thousands of students, ABC members, OCRR men and others have pistols and rifles and machine guns, for which ammunition was issued in large quantities from the barracks Monday and Tuesday.

During the present crisis, it is generally believed, these men will not give up their weapons unless forced to do so.

HAPPY DISCOVERY.

GUELPH.—William Willis, Guelph Collegiate student, spent his summer vacation thinking he had failed in his examinations last term. Today he had returned to school to find he had passed, his name having been erroneously omitted from the list of successful pupils.

LEMUEL HUBLE

(Examiner Correspondence)

HAVELOCK, Sept. 7.—Havelock residents were deeply shocked on Monday morning when it was learned that Lemuel Huble of Toronto, a former resident of Havelock had passed away at his summer home at Fesserden after an illness of only a few hours duration. Mr. Huble had been in poor health for the past year but had continued to follow his vocation as conductor with the Canadian Pacific Railway. At the time of his death he was spending a week's vacation, but on Sunday afternoon suffered a stroke from which he never rallied. Mr. Huble was born at Havelock the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Oran Huble. He is survived by his widow, formerly Lillian Scott, six sons and three daughters. They are Clarenceof Havelock, Norman, Frank, Gordon, Horace and Billy, Elsie, Mary and Edna of Toronto.

The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon at one thirty from the home of his son Clarence here, under the anspices of the Masonic order of which Mr. Huble was a valued and esteemed member. The service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Beaton of Knox Presbyterian church. Many friends from Toronto accompanied the remains to Havelock, a number of them officials and old employees of the C. P. R. who came to pay their last respects to the deceased.

Messers H. Roche, F. Butters, J. Hoffman, L. Rowat, R. Crawford, R. Sanderson acted as pall bearers and conveyed the remains from the hearse to the plot in Maple Grove cemetery. Many beautiful floral tributes bore mute testimony to the respect and sympathy of a host of friends. The sympathy of all in this district goes out to the bereaved wife and family.

SCHOOL BANKS DO WELL.

Although it was too much to expect that the Penny Bank system could pass through a long period of financial stress unscathed, the showing made By Peterborough pupils during the school year ending in June must be regarded as most gratifying.

Despite the fact that family incomes in many cases was partially or completely stopped, a good many pupils succeeded in making weekly deposits during the year, and while there were numerous withdrawals, inevitable under the circumstances, the total on deposit at the end of June this year was within $800 of last year's total at the same period, $15,091.92, as against $15,875.32 in June, 1932.

The average number of pupils making regular weekly deposits was 40 per cent., which was well above the 25 per cent. average set up in the whole province.

The effects of the unemployment crisis can be seen in the returns from some of the local schools; only 21 per cent. of the pupils of the Prince of Wales School and 29 per cent. of those in attendance at Central being able to add regularly to their school bank accounts during the year.

The system on the whole has, however, stood up magnificently, and the savings accounts in the school banks must have been of the greatest assistance to many families whose earning powers had suddenly collapsed by reason of the prolonged depression.

SPLENDID NEWS.

The announcement from the Canadian General Electric Company of a shorter work week in its local plant, opening an opportunity for the employment of many of the former work force, is one of the best bits of news this community has had in many a day.

The new working schedule issued by the company, which takes effect on Monday, is accompanied by definite orders to foremen to "increase the number of employees in their respective departments to meet production demands," and the notice adds that "the management desires to provide a wider distribution of the available work."

"The company's policy will be to work double shifts wherever possible rather than exceed 40 hours per week per employee," concludes this portion of the bulletin.

The inauguration of this policy opens the door of hope to many workers who have been without jobs for a considerable period; it means that they will be shifted from the relief list into the ranks of the gainfully employed, and that their spending power will be correspondingly strengthened.

It is not too much to say that for them this means the turn of the tide, and with the expected pick-up in the company's production that the shorter work week will put many of our citizens in an independent position once more.

The announcement will have a tonic effect on the whole community; it is a definite step toward better conditions, and will have a reaction on the whole business and industrial fabric of this city.

THE MAYOR'S MISSION.

Mayor Denne's mission to Ottawa where he will attempt to persuade the Federal Government to proceed with the construction of the new locks bridge is one that means a good deal to this city at the present time, and it is to be hoped that he will be successful in his efforts.

This project has been mooted for more than two years, and definite action has been held up so long that those who looked upon the undertaking as a possible means of employment have long since lost hope.

If Mayor Denne can do anything to promote an early start on this work he will have amply justified his trip to the capital, inasmuch as the project would undoubtedly provide some much-needed jobs for a portion of the city's unemployed, and to that extent at least ease the relief situation.

That a more substantial bridge is an absolute necessity at this point cannot be gainsaid; the present structure is not regarded as safe for heavy traffic, and as the bridge is on the route of provincial highway No. 7 there is every need of it being replaced by a structure suitable for such an important artery of traffic.

The mayor can be trusted to place the whole case vigorously before the Minister of Railways and Canals; his representation, let us trust, will be successful in securing an early start on this necessary work.

BUT WHAT ABOUT AFTERWARD?

Our friends below the international boundary line are rushing along toward the abolition of the Volstead Act with a great deal more speed than they are showing in preparing for the method of handling the liquor question that is to follow the official end of prohibition.

Vermont, long a dry fortress, this week joined the ranks of the states which have already voted for the repeal of prohibition, and it is certain that by December sufficient states will have taken similar action to ensure the slaughter of the 18th Amendment.

What will come then nobody seems to know.

There will have to be a regulation sale of liquor, of course, but as to the form this will take no definite information seems to be available.

Will the old saloon system come back, or will there be Government control as we have it in Ontario, or will the Quebec plan be adopted, or what other method is there in contemplation?

Wiping prohibition out of the constitution is proving to be ridiculously easy; the real difficulty will come when it will be necessary to decide what is going to take its place.

So far the United States has been so busy getting rid of the Volstead Act that it has no time to prepare for the wet era that is just round the corner.

When it does tackle that task it will find a real job on its hands.

THE PATRIOTS IN ACTION.

Presidents and chief executive of railroads in United States were informed by government officials some months ago that it would be necessary for them to reduce their salaries. These ranged between $75,000 and $100,000, and even better.

Now it is reported that these highly-paid gentlemen have been in a huddle, and word is that $60,000 has been set as the limit. With great restraint and self-imposed discipline they will refrain from taking away from their already crippled treasuries any amount in excess of $60,000 per year. Thus does the spirit of the patriot begin to work its way to the surface. The rugged hardihood of the Pilgrim Fathers will not down. It is being recreated through the media of these railway chiefs.

One cannot but wonder why they want to take salaries of $60,000 per year from roads which are not paying, and which have been calling upon the government for funds to keep from going entirely under. Events of recent years have demonstrated that their brains, executive ability, planning capacity are not worth $60,000 a year or anything like it. The veriest amateur could have suggested making a trip to Washington to arrange for a loan of some millions from the government to save the situation in the meantime. That is merely following the lines of least resistance. Not one ingredient of solution is in it.

We do not believe that these men are worth more than $25,000 per year. That would be a good place for them to start, and when they demonstrated that they had the power to deal with the present situation the salary might be slightly advanced according to the degree of worth exhibited by the various executives. If they gave evidence that they had nothing better in their bag of tricks than going to the government and asking for more loans, then it would be well to dispense with their services. — Stratford Beacon-Herald.

AN INDUSTRIAL REVOLUTION.

The Roosevelt experiment of placing every industrial activity in the United States under the control of the National Recovery Act or "NRA", as it has come to be termed, is beginning to be looked at from the long-term as well as the immediate result, says Financial Counsel. The plan under which dictatorial powers have been conferred upon the President and his special representative, Gen. Johnston, aimed in the first place at the immediate improvement in business, or rather at some action that would start business on the upgrade and end the steady downward movement. It started out with the thesis that business could only be given a momentum in a positive direction by increasing prices, and the threats of inflation immediately resulted in basic commodities at least moving sharply up. The result of this, in turn, was that cotton-textile mills announced higher prices for their fabrics because raw cotton prices had advanced; the rise in leather prices forced the prices of boot and shoe manufacturers upwards, and so all along the line, with few exceptions. As a third stage in the development of the public movement headed by the President came a realization, almost suddenly it would seem, that prices had advanced both of raw materials and of processed goods, but that the all important element was lacking for a permanent business improvement—an increase in buying power. At this point the stock market slumped and commodity prices started to react and the American dollar began to recover from its depreciated condition. Then came the almost frenzied putting into force of the NRA—in order to establish this increase in buying power that was needed to meet higher prices.

Obviously, the most direct method and the speediest to secure increased buying power was to increase earnings of as large a number of the 120,000,000 of population. How could this be done? The answer was, By increasing wages and finding work for a large portion of the unemployed. In the absence of improved business, a lessening of unemployment could be induced by cutting down the average working hours of each individual; hence the practical slogan, "Higher wages and shorter hours." To enforce this situation every industry in the United States by groups is being compelled to adopt what is known as the NRA "code", which fixes the scale of wages and working hours for every industrial plant in the country. Immediately some industries cut down working hours from 50 or 55 a week in some cases and 44 hours in many others to an almost uniform period of 40 hours, and wages went up 10 per cent., 15 per cent., 25 per cent. and 30 per cent. in many cases. That is what is happening at the present time, with a determined effort being made to have at least a "blanket" code in effect in every industry by the first of September.

It still remains to be seen whether the President must use artificial means to depreciate the American dollar still further and to drive up still more commodity prices, in order that the swing of increased buying may continue and business reach a more or less permanent improvement. Now comes a certain misgiving in industrial circles that a permanently higher wage scale has not only been introduced in the United States but almost "read into" the Constitution. In other words, the President's policy appears to mean that the ratio borne by wages to the cost (and selling price) of the finished article will continue to be higher than during the past 20, 30, 40 or 50 years. If this is the case the NRA has ushered in what may fairly be termed an "industrial revolution." Undoubtedly side by side with the movement in the United States to raise the scale of wages will go a tendency to check up on profits of corporations. It may easily be that the margin that has existed in the past will be cut down; otherwise the advantage in "real wages" to the general public would be entirely offset. On every side are heard warnings against "excessive" prices for goods on the part of producers. If this receives nation-wide support of a political as well as administrative character, the margin of corporation profits existing heretofore in times of good business seems certain to be considerably modified.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Hon. Leopold MacAulay says that government is an art and not a science—and certainly there is nothing very scientific about the kind of government we have been getting in Ontario.

Professor Drummond sees no profit for farmers this year, which is the opinion Canadian farmers had themselves unanimously reached.

Heavy rains have for the moment removed the forest fire menace. Conditions generally in the woods, however, will still call for care on the part of hunters, woodsmen and settlers.

CHAPTER 17.

Ted Chandler watched Sally drive away in the big roadster. Gus Vitelli watched her, too. Ted kept the gnarled little man in the corner of his eye. Gus had stopped when Sally backed the car out of the garage and he stood not 50 feet away frankly watching her. Ted could see the expression on Vitelli's ugly face—like a hungry hyena's, he told himself. Watching that face from the garage window Ted nodded slowly and permitted himself a brief smile.

After Vitelli had moved on toward the front of the house Ted went into the kitchen and had his lunch. 'Mr. Proctor around?" he asked Cleo, the cook.

'No, Mist' Chandler," the fat, cheerful brown woman said. 'No, Mr. Proctah, he went out somewheres an' hasn't got back far's ah know."

'Cleo," Ted said thoughtfully, just between the two of us, what do you think of Gus Vitelli?"

Cleo's big eyes seemed to become all white and she pursed her thick lips into doughnut-shape.

'Ah dunno," she said, "ah dunno, Mist' Chandler."

Ted smiled reassuringly. "Oh, yes you do, Cleo. You've already told me."

"Ah told you. Ah ain't told y'all nuthin, Mist' Chandler."

"Oh yes you have, Cleo. Your face told me just now."

Cleo frowned, then looked at Ted with frank admiration. "You a smart one, Mist' Chandler. That's what ah been sayin', you a smart one, you ain't no common kind of chauffeur, you ain't."

"You're not so dumb yourself, Cleo," Ted said by way of flattery. "And you needn't worry about me. The only reason I asked you about Gus was—well, he sort of gives me the heebie-jeebies and I wondered if I were crazy."

Cleo looked about quickly, her big rolling eyes prowling the room awesomely. Then she spoke in a whisper, close to Ted's ear. "Ah don't even like to think about dat man!" she said. "He's mean. Dat man's pizen, Mist' Chandler, pizen!"

"What did he do to you, Cleo?" Ted asked softly.

"Me? He didn't do nothin' to me. An' he better hadn't try it," Cleo hissed. She reached to the table and picked up a long butcher knife. "Just let him try pickin' on me," she said, her eyes shining fiercely now, "an' ah spill his guts."

Ted's inclination to smile died quickly; Cleo was passionately earnest. In fact, Ted was glad at the moment that he was not Gus Vitelli.

"I can appreciate your enthusiasm, Cleo," he said matter-of-factly. "But what's the cause? What in particular have you against Gus?"

"He's just pizen, that white man," she said, emphasizing her point with the knife. Ted drew back out of range. "He always come sneakin', snakin', soft-footin' around an' smile like a old alley cat and look mean. Ah'm tellin' you, Mist' Chandler, that man got murder in his heart. Yessah, murder, ah swear!"

Ted sat up suddenly. 'Murder," he said. "What makes you say that, Cleo?"

"Ah knows, ah can tell. Ah see him look at people. Ah knows."

"Look at whom, Cleo?" Ted urged.

Cleo bent forward and whispered tensely, "At old Mist' Proctah," she said. "Ah seen him. Ah seen him lookin' at him time again out of them yellow little snake eyes. 'Nen old Mist' Proctah he die, don't he?"

Ted nodded. This was real luck. He tried not to be too quick to force Cleo's statements for fear she might suspect his purpose. So far they had been friendly as a white chauffeur and a colored cook, no more, no less. To appear as an interrogator, as an investigator might be fatal.

Cleo went on, with suspicious glances at the door and windows. "He hated old Mist' Proctah; nobody can tell me different. They never talk much together or nothin' an' Gus Vitelli, he just stay on and eat and sleep an' sloother around the house, eyein' everybody. An' Mist' Proctah wasn't the only one he hate. Ah knows. Ah seen him look at young Mist' Proctah just like dat. He scared of young Mist' Proctah—anybody be scared of him—but he look at him just thataway with murder in his old black heart, you mind what ah'm tellin' you, murder."

"Gee," Ted said lightly. "He isn't any Sunday school boy, then, is he?"

Cleo's eyes rolled significantly. "An' that ain't all," she continued. "Seem like he hate everything. Ah seen him, time again, when they ain't nobody much around, sittin' out back above de beach with that nasty revolver he got banging an' bangin' away at de po' little sandpipers runnin' along de beach. Ah'm tellin' you, Mist' Chandler, just sittin' there banging away at them po little birds an' smilin' an' hittin' 'em, too. It's shorely a wonder fo' de Lawd that they's any of them po little birds left to run around."

"He does, does he?" Ted asked casually, hiding his excitement. "He shoots at those little birds? Why, they're quicker than water bugs. He must be some shot!"

"What ah mean dat white man shorely can shoot!" Cleo said, reverently. "But he don't do it no more."

"He doesn't? What's the matter?"

Cleo shook her head gravely and rolled her eyes again. "Not since old Mist' Proctah dead he ain't shoot no more," she said solemnly.

Something clicked in Ted's mind, but he appeared only casually interested.

"Probably respect for the dead," he remarked, smiling.

Cleo simply looked at him pityingly.

Ted rose. "I'm going to keep out of that apple's way," he said. "And I certainly appreciate your telling me about him. And don't worry, Cleo. I won't let it go any farther. I don't like him any better than you do."

Cleo gazed fondly down at the shining blade of the long knife. "Just let him try any of his tricks with me," she said, almost hopefully, Ted thought.

Once outside, Ted felt like shouting. His interview with Cleo seemed to be the most profitable thing he had done since coming to the strange villa by the beach. Gus Vitelli—with murder in his heart. Ted smiled again.

After straightening up the garage, Ted went down in back of the house to lie in the sun with his shirt and undershirt off. He aspired to a tan like Fred Proctor's. He had not lain there long, his eyes closed, mulling his discoveries over in his mind, when he heard the familiar purr of the roadster coming up the drive. He jumped up, pulled on his clothing and ran up to meet Sally and wipe off the car.

"Well, anything new, Mr. Holmes?" Sally asked saucily.

"Plenty, Miss Watson, plenty."

"Really?" Sally's eyes danced.

"Plenty. Gus Vitelli, your little gargoyle friend, has murdah in his h'aht."

"What do you mean, Ted?"

He told her of his interview with Cleo.

"See! See?' Sally said triumphantly. "Gus Vitelli. I told you. Now, can't we do something about it? Can't we have the police arrest him?"

Ted smiled and shook his head. "We haven't enough on him for that. We're going to have to watch him all the time and dig into his past from now on. Maybe we can trick him into the net." Ted paused. "Anyway — that isn't all. There are other things you're forgetting. Such as the question of why Fred Proctor is playing you along as his 'secretary' without making any real passes at you. The question of his hunting that empty cartridge. What did he know or suspect of his uncle's killing? The question of the prowler in your room. And the question of Mike Collins ——"

Sally interrupted. "Mike Collins!" she exclaimed. "I saw him."

"When?"

"Over on Beach street. He came out of the bank and got into a big green touring car."

"That's his privilege, I guess," Ted said. "He keeps up a more or less legitimate front, you know."

"I know, but he saw me, too, and I wish you could have seen the way he smiled at me." She shuddered. "Oilily, knowingly — insinuatingly. I could have slapped his face."

"Feeling despondent?"

"Why?"

"If you're not, don't slap his face."

"I don't care!" Sally insisted. "I just wish I had."

"Don't do it, baby. I don't want to lose you yet."

"Yet?"

"Or—ever," Ted said solemnly. He pinched her cheek and gave her a little slap under the chin.

"Get along thar into that house," he commanded, "and doan't let old massa kotch y'all tawkin to the chauffeur."

Cleo's voice came from the kitchen door. 'Mist' Chandler?"

'Yes?" he called, going to the garage door and looking up toward the house.

'Telephone for you," the cook said. 'Man at the newspaper."

'Coming," Ted replied.

He bit his lip. Why hadn't he told Hall not to call him at the house? And what could the newspaperman have to tell him that was so important as to overcome caution?

ALL OF US

By MARSHALL MASLIN

CAN YOU EXPLAIN IT?

I had a dream and it mystifies me and I cannot explain it. It doesn't make any sense at all, and I can't seem to get it out of my mind. Perhaps you can pick two and two out of it somehow and add them to a four. I can't.

* * *

In this dream, suddenly, I found myself in the power of five gangsters. I was walking along the street at night and a big black car drew up to the curb and these gangsters stepped out, stuck short automatics into my ribs and told me to come along—The Chief wanted me.

It was flattering to have five gangsters pick me up, but not exactly pleasant. They didn't seem very human, those little pale fellows with lizard eyes, who never smiled once. . . . It was hardly likely that I could appeal to them with any story of my wife and my children and how much my creditors would miss me. In fact, I didn't even think of appealing to their "better natures". . . . I went along.

The next thing I remember is being in a big field, far from town, facing The Chief. . . . And the Chief was an old acquaintance of mine. A nice, mild gentleman of courtesy and sweetness, who never used any of those words you find in modern plays. . . . A friend of mine, whom I like and respect. . . . But there he sat on a big boulder, looking grimly at me, mercilessly at Marshall Maslin, and telling me that my last moment had come. . . . I didn't like his looks at all. . . . My next memory is of losing my temper and hitting him a good smack on the jaw. . . . And the last memory is hearing him tell his pale-faced playmates to take me over the hill and bump me off. . . . That's where the dream ended.

So, I suppose, I'm dead. No saving miracle happened. They took me over the hill and wiped me out. My wife and children are wondering what happened to me, my body's lying out there in the field, still and cold, and that diabolic friend of mine is going about his business, mild and gentlemanly and unsuspected of his incredible villainy. . . . Even he doesn't know that he's The Chief. I saw him yesterday, and I could see he didn't have the slightest suspicion of the desperate career he lived in my dream.

And I want to know why. I want to know why I picked on him, of all people, to be villain of my dream. I want to know if I have some long-rankling grudge against that fine soul. I want to know if I'm envious of him, or what it is that made me dream that dream. . . . I want to know, but I suppose I never shall. And he's the one person I'll never tell about that crazy dream.

KNOWLEDGE

We live to learn—that we may learn to live. We welcome good books as we welcome good friends. We hunger for knowledge that will broaden our mental horison and dig deep into the well of learning for a better understanding of an interesting people. We follow unknown jungle trails and tramp burning deserts that we may see, and hear, and know. We bend every effort for a fuller, richer and happier life. Yet how little effort we put forth for a safer life.

"FAIR WAGE OR BOYCOTT" PLAN NOT FOR E. WINDSOR

EAST WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. (C.P.)—East Windsor is not ready to adopt the "fair wage or boycott" plan instituted in Windsor by Mayor David Croll, the city council decided when the suggestion from its neighbor city was tabled last night.

"We can hardly take such a step when we do not lead," Alderman Davenport said in explaining that the city pays lower wages than those set by the "fair wage" plan. "We are paying firemen 25 cents an hour, 35 cents to Board of Works employes and 27 to school janitors so we are not in a position to dictate to others."

The council decided, however, to ask the committee of supervisors to allow increases to city employes in view of the fact that cost of living was advancing.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

LI HUNG CHANG AT TORONTO.

On this date, in 1896, Toronto was much excited over a visit from Li Hung Chang, then viceroy of China, who was en route home from England via the C.P.R. His Excellency had been met at Niagara Falls by Sir Henri Joly de Lotbiniere, on behalf of the Dominion government, and travelled by special train under heavy guard. It contained special food, including a large number of live ducks and fowls, which were killed as needed, and also, according to Hector Charlesworth, "a vast pile of clay cubes that looked like cement bricks, each of which contained an egg several years old, which he esteemed a palatable delicacy." As soon as the Earl descended from the train he entered his great gilded chair, which because of its heavy bulk required the services of four lusty bearers. The choice of these bearers had been a serious problem for the civic fathers. They decided that the task should be undertaken by the police; but many of the "husky Ulstermen" of that body threatened to strike if they were detailed to carry a "Chink." However, four stalwarts at last volunteered, and were the subject of much derision by their comrades. Later they became subjects of envy when His Excellency conferred on them the Order of the Double Dragon.

And so he of the brilliant yellow jacket and peacock feathers was borne through the gates and down through a packed mass of humanity (as many as 70,000, then considered a big crowd for Toronto) to the grand stand, where he was duly enthroned in a special section. But hardly had the civic welcome begun than it was noticed that his Ex's attention was wandering. The ballet girls taking part in the spectacle were as curious as the rest of the crowd, and peered at the visitor from behind the scenes. They caught Li's eye, and he started to go behind the scenes to obtain a closer acquaintance with the girls; but his secretary, Lo Feng Loo, afterwards Chinese Ambassador to Great Britain, intervened and prevented the threatened disruption of the proceedings.

After the formal welcome, Mr. Joly paid a compliment to the wife of the Lieutenant-Governor, asking His Excellency if he would like to see the most beautiful thing that could be shown him in Canada. The old gentleman was willing, and, chuckling at his little joke, Mr. Joly brought forward Mrs. Kirkpatrick and, after giving the lady an admiring look, Earl Li turned to Mr. Joly and said, "You have not deceived me!"

Although there had recently been a change of Government at Ottawa, "Tory Toronto" was true to its idols, and the guests of the day included Sir Mackenzie Bowell and Sir Charles Tupper, each of whom was presented to the Viceroy. To the former he remarked, "It is quite evident from your appearance that you are a Conservative," and of Sir Charles he asked: "You are of the opposite party from Gladstone?"

"There are many wonderful sights to be seen, but there is only one Toronto Exhibition." His Excellency, when safe home in China, is to write a book recording his impressions. He might report of us that we are a pleasure-loving people, much addicted to acrobatic performances and living principally upon peanuts and sausage rolls.

The latter proving quite clearly that "hot dogs" were unknown in 1896!

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterborough's Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner.

Margaret Martin,
Peterborough, Ont.

Your handwriting indicates a pleasant, sympathetic and most friendly disposition. You have sufficient will power and determination to enable you to accomplish anything upon which you set your mind. You are at your best in a social position because you mingle well in society. Your extremely tall upper loops show that you enjoy the 'spirit of romance', and derive the keenest satisfaction from the creation of your own ideas. Everything you undertake is done on impulse. You would like to give orders and command attention but you are not forceful enough to do so at present. You heartily delight in a day's work well done and do not waste time on useless regrets.

Frances O'Brien,
90 Sophia street, Peterborough.

Your handwriting as shown on sample for analysis portrays a very determined disposition. Your mind is keen and retentive. You can acquire and impart knowledge. You are not too indulgent or condescending but have sufficient consideration for the sensitive feelings of others to enable you to emanate justice tempered with mercy, loving kindness and benevolence together with an honest endeavor to assist your fellow sufferers. You are most particular about your personal clothing and appear to create an individual style all your own. You are a quick thinker but deliberate in your actions, an efficient critic, able to disseminate between good, bad and indifferent. Your capital 'E' indicates an artistic tendency which lends intrigue to your pleasing personality. You are never obtrusive and therefore, do not inflict your 'pressure of presence' where you feel that it is not welcome. When your feelings are hurt, you nurse the grievance inwardly for days at a time, but do not talk about it.

Mrs. McElroy,
Charlotte street, Peterborough.

The handwriting as depicted on your sample for analysis, shows you to be very firm and set at all times in your ways. Your philosophy is that you believe no one acquires anything in this world without working hard for it, as you have had to do. You feel, and think that your work is not appreciated at present. But please endeavour to oast this uncalled-for illusion from your mind and feel happy because you and your work are appreciated to the fullest extent. You do not understand this because you have a tendency to see only that which is on the surface. You are in your right sphere and there is no logical reason why you should not enjoy love and happiness, if you but make an effort to cultivate a deeper power of discernment. Do not worry so much over petty details. If your work bores you to tears, shut up the house, go out of doors and breathe deeply as you walk. And, while walking, think how richly blessed you are. There are so many worthwhile things that you can do which many people would shun. You are talented and gifted with the power to do the work that's nearest.

Mary Garvey,
483 Sheridan street, Peterborough.

This handwriting with its tendency to lean all in one direction, favors a sharpness of character, which at times over-rules all other favorable characteristics. You are the type of person who wishes to be told, 'why this and that.' You place your own estimation on things in general, then, if they do not measure up to your standard, you wonder why, and your feelings, which are acutely affected by external impressions, become moody and taciturn. Your 't' bars indicating argumentativeness, positively admit that you will carry your point in view to the bitter end. This noteworthy characteristic would serve you well in politics or on a debating team. You find it difficult at any time to apologize. Yet you are often almost heartbroken and know that you would give all you possess just to make yourself say: 'I am sorry." This is because, at heart you are supersensitive and a trifle self conscious. All your movements are quick and decisive, and you would do anything for a 'pal.'

Jas. Brown,
14 Murray street, Peterborough.

Your handwriting represents you as one who prefers to undertake business in a big way. Advertising along a special line should suit you admirably. You are very fastidious about your personal clothing and must be well dressed in order to be happy. You are perhaps a little self centred, and desire to command attention at all times. You word must be the law, obeyed implicitly, or you become aggressive and morose. You can be most convincing in an argument. Everything you undertake you finish with a flourish. You possess a predominating characteristic which denotes the temperament and ability of an artist (not necessarily a painter). 'Bigger and better' advertising would emphasize your artistic talent. You are attracted to and by the opposite sex, but the chosen one must measure up to your own standards in order to command attention. To those whom you truly love, you can become the idol of the hour or, forever.

One-Minute Pulpit

All things come alike to all; there is one event to the righteous, and to the wicked; to the good and to the clean, and to the unclean; to him that sacrificeth, and to him that sacrificeth not; as is the good, so is the sinner; and he that sweareth, as he that feareth an oath.—Ecclesiastes 9:2.

CENTRAL BANK OPPOSED BY MONTREAL CHAMBER

(By Ray Brown, C. P. Staff Writer)

MONTREAL, Sept. 6.—(CP)—The Montreal Chamber of Commerce in a written submission to the Royal Commission on banking, today went on record as opposing a Central bank.

A central bank "would be under the control of the government and necessarily subject to political influence," it objected. A central bank would be an expensive organism "which would deprive the government of the important service of income which it derives through the operations of the finance act and would probably involve additional expenditures."

Control of the expansion of credit should not be left "to a central bank, necessarily subject to political influence."

CONSIDER $350,000 DAM IN GRAND RIVER VALLEY

GALT, Ont., Sept. 7 (CP)—Grand River Valley Boards of Trade were ready to-day to proceed with the final survey of a project to conserve water in the northern reaches of the river through erection of a large dam near Waldemar. Completion of the scheme in which ten municipalities would take part would solve problems of water supply, sewage disposal and flood control, it was said.

Decision to proceed with the survey was reached yesterday at a conference between officials of the Boards of Trade and the Ontario Government. It was anticipated start of work on the project this winter, if authorized, would provide $350,000 for relief work in the district.

Municipalities concerned in the scheme are: Fergus, Elora, Waterloo, Kitchener, Preston, Galt, Paris, Brantford and Caledonia. Total cost of construction in the first phase of the project would be between $600,000 and $700,000, it was said.

FEES SEND PUPILS HAMILTON TO DUNDAS

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 7 (CP)—County High School pupils have been registering for attendance at Dundas High School in large numbers since it was announced that a $26 fee would be required of them if they registered at Hamilton schools, it was learned here to-day. Close to 350 town and rural students are now registered at the Dundas institution, while very few have applied to the Hamilton High schools.

The reason for the sudden influx of students to Dundas was explained by the fact that the tuition fee is $40 per child per year less than in the Hamilton schools.

NINE REDS TO DIE

DUESSELDORF, Germany.—Nine Communists were senttenced to death to-day for murdering a Nazi storm trooper and attempting to kill several others in an attack from ambush upon a Nazi post at Erkrath June 20, 1932.

The prosecutor demanded the death penalty for twelve men accused of the crime, but one was sentenced to 15 years and two were acquitted.

PLUNGE TO DEATH

DALLAS, Tex.—Mrs. J. H. Logan, 23, and her daughter, Elaine, two, plunged to death early to-day from a seventh storey window on Cliff Towers, the apartment hotel where they lived.

The bodies crashed to a concrete driveway. The child was killed outright and Mrs. Logan died shortly afterward.

THREATS ALARM PROF. EINSTEIN

Police Guard Area After Nazi Reported To Have Set $450 On His Head.

MAY MOVE TO ENGLAND.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Sept. 7. —(A.P.).—Great anxiety has prevailed at Villa La Savoyarde, Professor Albert Einstein's Blankebergh residence, since a report was received saying a secret Nazi organization set a price of about $455 on the famous physicist's head.

Mrs. Einstein has been particularly alarmed, as her husband continues his habit of taking early morning walks and occasional strolls across the downs.

Local police are keeping a vigilant watch in the immediate neighborhood of the villa, and bodyguards precede and follow the professor and a companion on the walks.

All Germans spending holidays in the vicinity are carefully investigated.

Professor Einstein said he plans eventually to change his Belgian residence and to accept an offer of homes given him by Britons or Americans.

DELEGATION DEMANDS REPLY

would depend upon the Government's quick action in meeting the major demands of the petition.

Sir George Perley was accompanied by eight members of the Cabinet, as follows: Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice; Hon. E. N Rhodes, Minister of Finance; Hon. Arthur Sauve, Postmaster-General; Hon. Murray MacLaren, Minister of Pensions and National Health; Hon. E. B. Ryckman, Minister of National Revenue; Hon. Maurice Dupre, Solicitor-General; Hon. H. A. Stewart, Minister of Public Works, and Hon. D. M. Sutherland, Minister of National Defence.

Complete order prevailed throughout the hearing, although there was some bitterness from those who presented the case for the unemployed. It was charged that the Government was guilty of "criminal negligence" in permitting conditions to reach their present stage. It was declared that thousands were starving, even among the farming class.

Deny Negligence

Sir George denied most emphatically that the Government was guilty of negligence. "The greater part of our time has been devoted to dealing with this problem," he declared, "and we have done our share." The problem was, by nature of the constitution, a matter for the provinces, Sir George explained, but nevertheless the Dominion Government had given leadership and financial assistance to all the provinces and would continue to do so.

The greatest bitterness was voiced over the presence of uniformed mounted police about the building where the audience was held. One delegate declared that there were 100 mounted police at the gates, and he declared that the money used to maintain this force should be diverted to the maintenance of the unemployed.

There were a score of police on duty about the buildings and possibly as many civic police on the streets in that vicinity, but the delegates were not molested so long as they kept moving.

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett was unable to meet the delegation, having a previous engagement to be in Toronto and Newmarket to-day.

SOCIETY GIRL ATTACKED TWO NEGROES HUNTED

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 7.—(A.P.).—A hunt for two Negroes accused of attacking a society girl after beating and robbing her escort spread over Central Alabama to-day as word of the arrest of a Negro in another attack came from Plattsville, 16 miles from Montgomery.

Sheriff Sam Stern said the victims of the Montgomery crime were surprised by the Negroes as they sat in a parked automobile in a fashionable residential section on the outskirts of the city. Names were withheld.

The man was robbed of $20 and his watch and beaten. The Negroes then took the girl to a nearby field and attacked her, the Sheriff said. The other attack, also on a white woman, occurred in Autauga County. Sheriff D. B. Chambliss would reveal neither the name of the victim nor the accused, and refused to disclose in what jail the Negro was held.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

MINING MARKET

TORONTO, Sept. 7.—(CP)—The Standard Mining market lumbered along rather heavily today, restrained by weakness in New York Stock and Grain markets, and showing more weakness than strength in general. Some of the senior gold shares presented a firm front. McIntyre climbed to a new high and then receded to show a small loss of 25 cents at $39. Volume was only fair.

Interlisted Base Metal shares slipped moderately, Nickel weakening to 20.80 for a net loss of 45 cents but Noranda did better, retaining a small advance at $36. Base Metals Corporation lost 6 cents, Falconbridge 5, and Hudson Bay held steady.

Senior gold shares were under mild accumulation, particularly McIntyre which climbed to a new high record. A price of 131 shillings for gold in London today, establishing a record, attracted interest in the gold group. Dome, Hollinger, and Wright Hargreaves were also strong.

TORONTO EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Sept. 7 (CP)—Narrow recessions all along the line developed to-day on the Toronto Stock Exchange. Trading was slow in the early session and a little speedier in the afternoon, but at no time did the market show definite strength. Selling pressure, however, was absent and losses were limited mainly to fractions.

Interlisted stocks were less firm than domestic issues. Nickel closed off 45 to 20.80; Smelters dropped 1 to 132; Brazilian lost ⅝ to 13¾; C.P.R. a full point to 16½, and Ford of Canada ½ to 14½.

Walkers Common held its loss down to a half point, closing at 46.

With trading action slow and prices barely steady the market presented a draggy appearance through most of the day. All the interlisted shares eased off, influenced by unsteadiness on the New York board.

Volume was light in the distillery shares except Walkers Common, holding a fractional gain at mid-afternoon.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (A.P.). — Stocks mulled about uncertainly today to settle moderately lower in the late dealings. Steel shares were inclined to sag, while earlier gains in metals were largely erased. Losses of about 1 to 2 points were registered by Bethlehem, United States Steel, Case, Goodyear, Johns-Manville, Cerro De Pasco and Southern Pacific.

Homestake Mining lost 7 points and Seaboard Oil, Union Pacific and United States Smelting cancelled 2 point gains. Transfers approximated 960,000 shares.

THREE YEARS AND LASHES.

LONDON, Ont.—Edwin Martin, found guilty of bank robbery, was sentenced in police court here to-day to three years in Penitentiary an dfive strokes of the lash.

Marti nwas charged with robbing the Bank of Montreal here in June of 1929. He escaped and was traced through perforated currency to Detroit. A short time after he was convicted of robbing a bank in that city and sent to prison for four years.

STEEL FOLLOWS ITS RECESSION

Current Average Now Estimated At 45 Per Cent of Capacity.

NEW ORDERS READY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7. (AP)—Operations in the steel industry continue to decline, though the recession is slower than recently, "Iron Age" said to-day.

It estimated the current national average at 45 percent of capacity compared with 47 per cent last week, 50 percent a fortnight ago and 53 percent three weeks ago. New business, the review stated, is being held back pending a final adjustment of market practices to the conditions imposed by the iron and steel code, although there has been an increase in specifications against third quarter contracts cosed at pre-code prices.

Automobile production for September is estimated at between 185,000 and 190,000 cars against approximately 230,000 for August. Automotive consumption of steel is declining, "although not at a rapid rate."

ORDER BRADLEY

26 into the tragedy and the returning of a verdict by the coroner's jury holding Michael Bradley responsible for the day-break slaying.

Hired Girl Testifies.

Muriel Marchildon, 14-year-old hired girl on the Michael Bradley farm, was the next witness. Between seven and eight o'clock on the morning of July 21, the girl testified, she had seen Michael coming from the direction of a stable on the farm. "There's someone coming; tell them I was not out," Bradley had said to her, the Marchildon girl swore. Michael Bradley had slept on the ground floor of his home the night before the killings, witness said. She had seen a gun in Michael Bradley's home a few days before the tragedy, but could not identify a gun produced in court.

Sheriff Dominic Sloan, of Pontiac County, testified to the finding of a number of .32 calibre discharged rifle cartridges on the farm of the slain Joseph Bradley. There were also bullet holes in the floor of the house, he swore. The Sheriff identified bullets removed from the floor and cartridges found in the yard of the Joseph Bradley homestead. High Constable Michael St. Germaine gave evidence corroborating the statements of Sheriff Sloan.

The Same Rifle

A feature of the preliminary hearing was the evidence of Dr. J. M. Roussal, medico-legal expert from Montreal. Dr. Roussel testified it was his opinion that a rifle found on Michael Bradley's farm had fired the shots that killed Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bradley, father and mother of the accused. John Bradley, uncle, and Joanna and Thomas Bradley, sister and brother. Dr. Roussel said he had conducted tests in Montreal with the found rifle and was positive the weapon was the one used in the massacre.

When the evidence of the crown had been submitted, Magistrate Millar offered to take a voluntary statement from Bradley immediately. The accused had nothing to say and was then committed.

Throughout the hearing, Bradley sat with a disinterested attitude, his eyes were downcast all the time with the exception of a few furtive glances about the crowded court room.

Bradley was represented by James Crankshaw and Marcel Gaboury, Montreal lawyers. Defence counsel intimated they would oppose any move for a change of venue for the trial of Bradley.

EXHIBITION BOARD PLANNED WELL BALANCED PROGRAMME

provided by three high divers, Captain Lavalley, Pauline Black, and Johnny Bannana, the comic of this trio. It is an all-Canadian act, and several members of the Board who have already seen it declare that it would be a standout in any show.

Diving Human Torch.

Capt. Lavalley is the big feature of this attraction. In the afternoon he dives from a height of 100 feet into a tank containing less than four and one-half feet of water; and at night, after saturating himself with high-test gasoline, he ignites himself and dives as a flaming torch into a blazing tank. You have to see it to believe it. Pauline Black, recognized as Canada's champion lady diver, gives an artistic and daring performance which she concludes with a swan dive of 60 feet into a small tank of water. Meanwhile Johnny Bannana provides the comedy relief and his own share of thrills on the high ladders and in the tank.

Just to help the public laugh the depression along its departing way, Moran and Wiser have been included in the program to amuse the crowd with their boomerang hat tricks, juggling, etc. Hats will be thrown over the heads of the audience in such a scientific way that they always return to the stage and are invariably caught by Moran and Wiser. These artists are Australians from the same circuit that gave us the wood-chopping experts of a former program, an act that is still remembered for its exceptional class.

Two Animal Acts.

Australia is also represented in another act, Gordon's boxing kangaroo, and from his Antipodean methods apparently Joe Savoldi developed his flying kick attack which has placed him among the top notch wrestlers from "Bob," black kangaroo. Everybody will like this act, especially the children. For them, too, is Max Gruber's jungle oddities, an animal act which will be of special interest in this no-circus year. It is both amusing and educational for both children and grown-ups.

Christopher and Columbus are a pair of comedians and acrobats; and then there are the Three Willys, two men and a lady, who have been acclaimed in European circuses.

This brief summary affords an idea of the general excellence of the grand stand attractions for the Peterborough Exhibition next week.

Music lovers will have the local opportunity of hearing the Scots Guards Band in two concerts on Monday and Tuesday nights, and the last three afternoons will be featured by the best light harness races the Board has ever presented, with three stake races for $500 purses included in the cards.

TRIAL FOR FOUR IN DOPE CASE

Mountie Testifies One Of Accused Group Accepted $70 For Tin Of Narcotics.

$1,000 CACHE FOUND.

WELLAND, Ont., Sept. 7. (CP) Charged with possessing and selling narcotics, four men were committed to trial in Welland police court to-day after Sergeant John Leopold, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, had testified.

Leopold, famous for his evidence during the Toronto Communist trials two years ago, declared he had paid Matteo Cipola, of Welland, $70 for a carton of narcotics on John Christopher's farm in Crowland township on Aug. 9. The sergeant related circumstances leading up to the sale and said Guiseppe Cordaro, Welland, Mike Trotta Niagara Falls, Ont., and Alex Durante, Niagara Falls, N.Y., the other men committed, participated in negotiations.

Cipolla and Trotta, Leopole testified, drove from the farm to Niagara Falls, Ont., where Leopold and Sergeant H. A. Weeks arrested them. Arnold C. Lachenaner, United States Government narcotics agent, loaned to the Canadian Government, gave evidence corroborating the Mounted sergeant's story.

More than $1,000 worth of narcotics was found on the farm, the police testified, included 10 cartons valued at $70 a piece, and two pounds of opium worth $100 a pound.

Sergeant R. M. B. Sunley, of the Niagara Falls division of the R.C.M.P. had charge of the case, Lorne Reid, K.C., Niagara Falls, was crown prosecutor and Wendall Musgrove, K.C., defence counsel.

Japs Move Brigade In Manchuria Area

TOKYO, Sept. 7 (AP)—The War Office announced to-day the Sixth Infantry Brigade would be immediately withdrawn to Japan from Manchuria, where since January it has been engaged in the Sino-Japanese Jeho warfare and its aftermath.

Non-Japanese authorities, however, said the move would reduce only slightly the command of General Takashi Hishikari, the Commander-in-Chief of Japanese armies in Manchuria, because remaining units will be expanded.

SPORT OF KINGS

By ART MURRAY
(Special to Examiner.)

WHEN THEY open the gates at Thorncliffe on Saturday, the plant owners are looking forward to the most successful race meeting ever staged at the Queen city track. There are enough horses on the grounds at present to start a meet right away and with Stamford Park closed for the season, a good many more will be shipped there before the end of the week. The track itself was never in better shape and it looks as if some of the long standing records will be broken. The popular daily double and the one-two wagering will again be in vogue and every little detail has been looked after by Billy Woollett, the most popular race track manager on the North American continent, and believe you us that takes in a lot of territory. Woollett is always looking after the comfort of his patrons and as to his popularity among the horsemen it will be remembered that at the spring 1932 meet they presented him with a magnificent silver tea service as a token of the many kindness shown them by him.

CARLYDON ALWAYS wins a heat at this track and we are looking forward to him keeping up the good work at the coming meet. Soll Gills is another that is very partial to this racing strip and we hear Willie Morrissey has him all pepped to up to go. Golden Spur and Lace Shawl are a couple more from the same barn that will bear watching. Bold Bendigo will be a cinch in a long race and the longer the better.

• • •

HERE IS a Canadian bred called Brave Alonzo that has just rounded to form and looks headed for a very successful fall campaign. Altsheb should cop a sprint event in the near future. This one is knocking them dizzy in his early A.M. trials and if he wins his race it will be peaches and cream as he always pays a nice dividend. Devout has not won a race this year but as Thorncliffe is his home stamping grounds we look for Bill Donoghue to slip him over when nearly everybody is looking out of the window.

• • •

MARSHALL CASSIDY will handle the starting barrier which ensures some real get offs for the week. This may be his last season in Canada as he has been offered the job at the Coney Island track and at Cincinnati for next year. If he goes Canada will lose one of the best in the business.

• • •

ANOTHER FAMOUS Canadian racing stable will pass out of existence on Tuesday next when the Davies Bros. will put up their string for auction, the following hides will go under the hammer, Shore Lint, Refiner, Wentworth, Kh

CAMBELLFORD SCHOOLS OPEN

High School Has Highest Enrolment In Its History—Increase of 40 In Public School.

NO STAFF CHANGES.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 7. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—With increased attendances in both the High and Public Schools, the school year opened in Campbellford this week under very favorable circumstances and gives indications one of the prosperous years in the history of these institutions of learning will be 1933-34.

The official opening day of the schools was Tuesday, but this day was mostly taken up in registrations, class arrangements and the securing of the necessary text books and school supplies. On Wednesday classes started in earnest and pupils and teachers alike got into their stride.

In the High School, the registration on Wednesday was 217, an increase over the previous day of six and Principal E. H. Greig informed the press that this year's attendance registration was the highest in the history of the school, and that he expected still more pupils to enrole within the next few days.

And the same high number of starters was recorded at the Public School. Principal Chas. Haig reported the entrance enrolment at 472 pupils, which is an increase over the enrolment at the beginning of last year's school term of forty. He also expects that more pupils will be enrolling within the next few days, pointing out to the press that there were always some who were late in starting the school year owing to holidays and the attractions of the district fairs and the C.N.E.

No changes in school staffs are reported this year. The teaching staff at the High School, under Principal E. H. Greig, B.A., is: Miss K. T. O'Shaughnessy, B.A.; Miss K. B. Ferris, B.A.; E. Stephens, B.A.; Miss Marion Dickson, B.A.; Miss Mary Stephens, B.A., and E. E. Darling, B.A. In the Public School, Principal Chas. Haig supervises the following staff: H. Dunk, Miss Helen McDonald, Miss Hazel Atkinson, Miss Enid Richardson, Miss Grace Irwin, Miss Helen Bygott, Miss M. Biddle, Miss Hazel Wright, Miss M. Thomas, Miss Freda Nelson, and Miss Annie Martin.

TOO MUCH EXCITEMENT.

CINCINNATI.—Mrs. Rose Datillo watched her daughter being married before the altar of St. Mary's Church. After the ceremony the bride turned to her mother to give her a kiss, but just as she did so Mrs. Datillo dropped dead of a heart attack. Physicians said excitement killed her.

COMBING LAKE FOR SCHOONER

Smoke Over Winnipeg Waters Hampers Planes On Aerial Search.

MISSING TWO WEEKS.

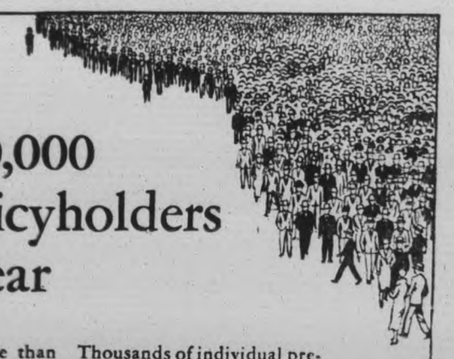
WINNIPEG, Sept. 7 (CP)—Rock-bound shores of Elk Island, tiny uninhabited spot in Lake Winnipeg, near Victoria Beach, 85 miles north of here, are being searched to-day in hope of finding trace of the missing auxiliary schooner "Breeze" and her crew of two—T. Haddick and his nephew, James Edgerton. The 10-ton, double-master schooner has been missing for more than two weeks.

The reports from Indian fishermen sent searchers to Elk Island. They reported seeing the "Breeze" with sails set, heading in the direction of the island, on August 20. Later, a terrific storm swept the lake, and the Indians believe she foundered.

Haddick and his nephew, both residents of Winnipeg, have not been heard from since August 22, when they left a Lake Winnipeg port bound for Victoria Beach. Flying boats and land parties have conducted an extensive search during the past five days. Poor visibility, heavy smoke clouds from forest fires blanketing the lake at times, has hampered the aerial search.

Tweed Girl Injured As Car Overturns

TWEED, Sept. 7 (Examiner Correspondence).—Miss Dorothy Simmons of Tweed was seriously injured in a car accident at 4.30 Monday morning while returning from a midnight dance. The car driven by Clare Rashotte overturned at Chapman Corners, near Tweed. Clare Rashotte and Don Casey, another occupant of the car, escaped with slight injury. Rashotte was taken to Belleville by Provincial Police, who are investigating.



Over 20,000 new policyholders every year

For many years more than 20,000 men and women have joined the Canada Life's great family of policyholders annually. Group insurance policies would greatly increase this total.

Each individual in this large number has received personal service from a Canada Life representative. This requires a widespread organization and a great variety of services and plans.

Thousands of individual premiums aggregate many millions of dollars annually—money that is to grow and be returned, sooner or later, to beneficiaries or to policyholders themselves.

During the past three years the Canada Life paid out over $77,000,000 in this way. In the same period it added over $43,000,000 to its assets to provide for future liabilities to policyholders.

REPORT COLORED ON BUSH FIRES

Haliburton Residents Deny Settlements Threatened At Any Time.

VICTORIA CROPS FAIR.

LINDSAY, Sept. 7 (Examiner Correspondence). — According to statements made by residents of Haliburton to The Examiner today, the reports sent out relative to bush fires in that county during the week-end were highly colored and not in accordance with the facts. The blaze started in a swale where it was confined. No damage was done to pasture or crops, and the settlements were at no time seriously menaced. On Monday night the men from No. 9 camp on the Coboconk-Minden Highway were despatched to the scene of the blaze, which was under control that evening. The rain which fell all day Wednesday was welcomed.

It is announced that Hon. Robert Weir, Federal Minister of Agriculture, will, in all probability, officially open the Lindsay Central Fair.

William James Lytle, town, pleaded guilty in the police court yesterday morning to the charge of having obtained a car from a local dealer by false pretences. He was remanded for a week by Police Magistrate Jordan. According to the police Lytle trade in an old car for a new one and gave a bad cheque for the balance. A few days later, it is charged, he went to a garage in Bowmanville and traded the car for another. On instructions from Lindsay, the Bowmanville police placed him under arrest.

According to the report from the local Agricultural office, the crops in Victoria County, despite the severe drought, have been fairly good, with an average yield. All the grains with the exception of buckwheat have been harvested, with crop yielding up as high as 43 bushels to the acre, with the average running between 25 to 30 bushels; Spring grains, including oats, barley and mixed grains, yielded considerably below the average. Straw was short and in most cases grain was thin on the yield.

While looking over an old well this week on his farm in Eldon Township near Argyle, Walter Veale noticed an odor of gas, and on investigation found considerable in the well. Standing some distance from the opening, he tossed a burning brand into the well. An explosion followed, and although Mr. Veale was some distance away, the flames struck him full in the face, causing severe burns. A further investigation will be carried out with a view to ascertaining if the gas is in sufficient quantities to make it commercially profitable.

The White Star Mines Company, of Haliburton, would like to locate in Lindsay. They have written the council in regard to financial assistance. The firm manufactures poultry grit, chipped stone for building purposes, stone for stucco work, marble for store fronts, etc. The request was referred to a committee.

The municipal council of Ops (Victoria County) and Cartwright (Durham County) together with a number of local business men have been urged by farmers to secure the right of way over the roadbed of the Canadian Pacific Railway from Lindsay to Burketon. Some time ago this line was completely dismantled. The roadbed is level and the scheme to utilize the stretch as a highway for vehicular traffic. It passes through the heart of Cartwright Township and links up with the resorts on Scugog Lake.

DESTROYERS DISPATCHED INTO RED SEA DISTRICTS

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, September 7 (C.P.). — The destroyers H.M.S. Duncan, Diamond, and Delight, left here suddenly to-day supposedly for the Red Sea.

It was believed that a tense situation has arisen in the neighborhood of the Red Sea, where King Ibnsaud was said to be making preparations for a possible outbreak of hostilities with Imam Yahya, a state in South-west Arabia.

Difficulties apparently have arisen over frontier lines between the two countries.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 64c to 65c; oats, 32c to 34c; barley, 40c to 43c; rye, 45c to 46c.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Influenced by hopeful prospects regarding NRA codes, grain markets late yesterday more than overcame an almost 2 cents loss in wheat and 1 cent in corn.

Leading trade authorities said the grain price trend for the immediate future would probably be contingent on how the codes worked out.

Wheat closed firm at the same as Tuesday's finish to 1 cent higher; corn ⅛c off to ¼c up; oats, ¼c-⅜c down, and provisions unchanged to 17c decline.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Cheese prices continued to advance on the Montreal Dairy and Produce Market yesterday with another gain of ¼c a pound being registered. The general quotation for Ontario white cheese became 10¾c to 10⅞c a pound, and for colored 10¾c to 10¾c. Quebecs became generally 10c for white and 10¼c for colored. Receipts were heavy, totalling 10,289 boxes. At the weekly auction of butter and cheese held yesterday, 785 boxes of No. 1 Quebec cheese sold at 9 3-16c a pound, and 229 boxes of No. 1 Quebec colored brought 9 3-16c.

Butter was fractionally firmer with the general market quoted at 18c per pound, ½c firmer than on Tuesday. Receipts were 809 boxes. At the auction yesterday 676 boxes of No. 1 Quebec butter brought 18c a pound, while 50 boxes of No. 1 butter sold for 17½c a pound. Receipts yesterday amounted to 809 boxes.

The egg market was about steady with graded shipments of Ontarios selling at 22c to 23c a dozen for extras, 17c to 18c for firsts and 13½c to 14c for seconds, while Westerns remained slightly under Ontarios. Arrivals were 1,296 cases.

The potato market was firm at 75c to 80c per 80-lb. bag of New Quebecs.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, September 7.— With export trade the lightest it has been for some time and hedging pressure in evidence only at the start, prices slipped og fractionally on the Grain Exchange yesterday to close ⅛c to ⅜c lower.

For the greater part of the morning the pit was deserted and operations were on a very light scale. October hit the "pegged" level of 70¼c early in the day and closed at that figure, with December finishing at 71⅞c and May at 77c.

The Chicago market had a similar trend to Winnipeg, while easiness was displayed at Liverpool and at Buenos Aires. Cables contained little of note, and despite continuance of drought in Argentina prices quoted for late wheat were lower.

Following good purchases of Canadian wheat on recent days there appeared to be a lull in the demand. Closing quotations at Liverpool were ⅝d to 1d lower while Buenos Aires at noon was unchanged to ⅛c down.

Cash grains were generally neglected. Aside from an early 3-cent break in rye, trading in all coarse grains was dull and of a routine nature.

32-Pound 'Lunge Is Caught Without Hook

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 6.— And still they're catching them in the Trent, for Charles Gkgle of Lakewood, Ohio, trolling at Fred Keller's, Healey Falls, yesterday landed a 32 pound lunge, which took him nearly an hour to land. And the funny part of the story was that it was not caught with a hook. Fishing with a friend from the boat, he hooked the whopper, but when he went to haul in, it broke away. But unfortunately for Mr. Fish, in the quick get-away, it got entangled in the other line, and when eventually landed, was bound round and round with line, but minus a hook in the gill.

In Zoology, Lemuria, was a hypothetical continent, now largely covered by the Indian ocean, which was proposed by Haeckel as an area of ancient land characterized by being inhabited by lemuroid animals.

Weddings

BARLEY—SMITH

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 7. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).— Young Street United Church parsonage, Toronto, was the scene on Sunday, September 3, of a very pretty wedding, when Mary, only daughter of Mrs. George Smith of Campbellford and the late George Smith, became the bride of Jack Sterling Bailey, only son of Mrs. Wm. Bailey of Belleville, and the late William Bailey of Stirling, the Rev. Ernest Harston, LL.B., officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, wore an ivory crepe ensemble, and carried a bouquet of pale pink and mauve gladioli. The groom's sister, Miss Pauline Bailey, was bridesmaid, groom being supported by Mr. John Dargavel. A number of relatives and friends witnessed the ceremony. The bride and groom left later by car for Niagara Falls. On their return they will reside in Burlington, Ont.

Rylstone

All roads lead to Rylstone on Sunday when Rylstone Church celebrates its fiftieth birthday. Services will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Watt of Queen's University, Kingston, at 11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. A fowl supper in connection with the anniversary will be held on Tuesday night in the old church (which is now used for a shed). A good program of addresses, music, etc., will follow.

FRANCE IS NOW GREAT FORTRESS

ally impregnable citadels, Strasbourg, Metz and Thionville; Belfort, Epinal, Toul and Verdun.

"The girdle of France's eastern fortresses and fortified lines, designed so as to be impassable, is nearly complete," said the French Premier in the Senate last May.

The mountains on the French side of the Italian border form a natural parapet, and the passes through them have been blocked by forts and artillery positions. Along the Belgian frontier to the north, across which the last invasion came, a new system of sluices provides for the flooding of large areas between Dunkirk and Lille.

No other nation on earth lives behind such formidable ramparts. To man them France maintains a first-line army of 340,000 young soldiers, and just across the Mediterranean is another large colonial army, consisting mainly of colored troops, of which some detachments are always stationed in France, while the rest could be brought over at a few days' notice. The total strength of French military reserves is estimated at 5,000,000.

This splendid army, commanded by the best generals and recruited from one of the most courageous peoples on earth, is backed up by the finest air force in existence, consisting of 2,266 first-line machines. The French navy outclasses any other in Europe except our own, and is particularly strong in submarines and coast-defence craft.

Men, munitions, and war material form, however, only part of the ample strength upon which France can rely with confidence to keep her in security. Her internal resources have a variety and a balance that make her virtually independent of the outside world.

France has suffered less from world depression than any other of the leading European countries. Until quite recently her great problem was not one of unemployment but of shortage of labor.

The expansion that has taken place in French industry is measured by the fact that, even in 1932, exports from France were nearly 30 per cent greater in volume than before the war, whereas British exports during the same period had considerably declined.

It is of great advantage to France that her export industries are in most cases world monopolies of her own. She is the established purveyor of the luxuries of civilization.

No one can open a bottle of champagne without putting money into French pockets. Well-dressed women in every country buy their clothes, jewelry, perfumes, and a large proportion of toilet preparations from Paris. Early fruits, flowers and vegetables French cheeses and sardines, all have an assured market in this and other northern European countries.

So large is the revenue derived from these exports and from the huge French tourist industry that the gold reserves of the Bank of France amount at the present rate of exchange to something like £900,000,000, covering the note-circulation by virtually 100 per cent.

The fortunate distribution of the population crowns and confirms these advantages. Out of 41,000,000 French people, one-half are country folk, getting their living directly or indirectly from the soil and rooted to it by the widespread division of property.

Except in the days of Louis XIV and the great Napoleon the French nation has never been so paramount in European counsels as it is to-day.

I rejoice in this condition of affairs, for now that legitimate French claims are fully satisfied, I feel confident that France will always exert her powerful influence for peace.

That is why I would urge the French people to be as objective on the subject of security as in the rest of their national policy. By exaggerated fears of attack they are keeping the rest of Europe in constant uneasiness.

Those fears are groundless, and should be abandoned. France has no need to worry.

Mrs. Grant, formerly of Egypt, spoke a few well chosen words on W.C.T.U. work. Mrs. Grant also had beautiful souvenirs of Egypt.

Mrs T. Metcalfe of Peterborough, rendered a solo "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."

At the close of the meeting luncheon was served by the ladies in charge, Mrs. McGregor, Mrs. G. Tindle and Mrs. Hammond.

Mr. and Mrs. Laing, Mrs. Meighen and Mr. Lang, Sr., of Toronto, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Manning, at their cottage at Pleasant View.

M. E. Malcolmson Going To New York

Murray E. Malcolmson, assistant accountant of the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce here is to be transferred to New York City. He expects to leave Peterborough early next week to assume his new duties in the United States, where he is to undertake special training in international banking.

A Manitobian, Mr. Malcolmson has been in the service of the Bank of Commerce for the past fourteen years, during which time he has served in all sections of the Dominion with exception of Quebec and the Maritimes. He came to Peterborough two years ago from head office, Toronto, in his present capacity, and while his fellow colleagues express regret at his pending departure, they consider that Mr. Malcolmson has received recognition of his ability, in being selected to take up special training in international banking.

A. E. Bannister from the Ottawa branch, who succeeds to the position of assistant accountant here, reported for duty yesterday afternoon.

LONA ANDRE

It wasn't any doings of Lona Andre that she landed in the movies. It was her alert mother who entered her picture in a screen contest without Lona's knowledge. Lona won hands down. But once she arrived in the movie capital, she did the rest to assure her a place in the cinema sun with her acting and beauty, which, you must agree, is worthy of discussion.

Household Hints

MENU HINTS

Baked Ham Special Potato Salad
Summer Squash Apple Sauce
Cookies Milk Coffee

This is an economical menu to serve when you are having a number of people to dinner, supper or lunch. The cookies, you notice, use lard instead of butter.

Today's Recipes

Special Potato Salad—Four cups cold boiled potatoes, diced; one cup pecans, broken in small pieces; one chopped onion, one-fourth cup mayonnaise, three-fourths cup whipped sour cream, two hard cooked eggs. Mix all the ingredients together except the eggs. Arrange on a bed of lettuce and garnish with the sliced eggs.

Boiled Salad Dressing.—One teaspoon salt, one teaspoon mustard, two teaspoons sugar, cayenne, one tablespoon flour, one egg or two yolks, three-fourths cup scalded milk one-fourth cup hot vinegar. Mix the dry ingredients and add to the egg. Add the milk gradually and cook over hot water, stirring constantly. As it thickens add the vinegar. When thick, cool quickly.

Butterscotch Cookies.—One cup lard, one and one-half cups light brown sugar, two eggs, one-fourth cup vinegar, one teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg, one-fourth teaspoon ginger, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon baking soda, one teaspoon baking powder, one tablespoon vanilla, flour to make a firm dough. To the lard add the vanilla, salt and spices; blend well together. Then add the sugar a little at a time and cream well. Add the eggs one at a time, beating well after each egg. Dissolve the soda in the vinegar and add. Sift the baking powder with the flour and add (about two and one-half cups of flour or a little more if needed), roll thin, cut in shapes desired and bake in a moderate oven. By adding the spices and flavoring to the lard you do not taste the lard, and the vinegar helps to give the butter flavor. These are good. The recipe makes about five dozen good-sized cookies.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Matching Set

Ordinary bathroom sets do not include a cover for the closet flush box, so often used for placing small articles.

This is simply taken care of by purchase of a small sized turkish towel with stripes to match color scheme of room. A piece five inches wide is cut from each end and hemmed, giving two covers. The middle part can be used for a cleaning cloth or any desired purpose.

Carrot Marmalade

Scrape carrots and wash. Put through food chopper. To each pint of pulp add juice and grated rind of one lemon and one orange. For each quart pour over mixture three and one-half cups sugar. Let stand over night and in the morning cook until carrots are transparent.

Millbrook

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Pitt motored from Toronto and spent the Labor Day week-end with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Pitt. Mrs. Pitt, accompanied them home and will visit in Toronto and attend the Canadian National while in that city.

PLANS ARE MADE TO RUSH WORK ON GENERATORS

the Beauharnois Power site will remain as originally planned, extending from December, 1934, until 1937. As they are completed, they will be stored in Peterborough for installation on the specified dates.

Four large generators with a capacity of 58,000 horsepower each and six smaller generators, all built by the Canadian General Electric Company, are already in operation at Beauharnois. The five on present order are to be duplicates of the four large machines. They will be built from the same designs and plans. While the draughting department will receive no benefit from the order, the machine shop, the armature, punch press and structural steel departments and the general office will go into renewed activity.

Each Weighs 650 Tons

A conception of the size of the five generators to be built may be gained from a few statistics on the machines given by the engineering department. Each generator will have an outside diameter of 40 feet with an overall vertical dimension of 28 feet. Each will weigh 1,300,000 pounds or 650 tons, almost twice the weight of the largest steam locomotive in existence. With a capacity of 58,000 horsepower, each unit would be capable to supplying all the power required by the Central Ontario and Trent system of the Hydro Electric Power Commission or the combined requirements of the cities of London, Kitchener, Galt and Guelph.

Materials entering into the manufacture of the generators will come from the copper mines and forests of Canada, the iron mines of the United States and Britain, the rice fields of Japan, the asphalt lakes of Trindad, and the mica mines of India. Manufactured materials will be supplied by Canada's steel mills, copper refineries and wire mills, paper mills, cotton mills, paint and varnish factories, aluminum refineries and iron foundries. It may be necessary to place the orders for the 70,000-pound forgings for the shafts in England, as no plant in Canada has, up to the present, handled such large pieces.

As far as possible all raw materials and maufactured materials required will be secured in Canada and the British Empire.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

There is work which is labor saving in itself. The work is preparatory.

* * * * * * *

Unless these preparations have been made, and made correctly, the main task is more difficult and time-consuming. For example, a mother saw her daughter attempting to do some sewing which should have been basted first.

* * * * * * *

So she said to her daughter: "You'll find that easier if you baste it first." "I haven't time for that, I'll baste it afterwards" was the reply.

* * * * * * *

The mother knew it would take twice as long to do the sewing without the gathers being evenly caught first with basting stitches. Later on, when the daughter became more proficient with her needle she used to laugh over her mistaken labor saving.

* * * * * *

The person who takes clothes from a line and carelessly tosses them into the laundry basket, makes creases in them which must be ironed out. They were not there at first, but were of her own making.

* * * * * *

Worse than this is the rolling up of sprinkled clothes without any attempt to smooth them before dampening down, or to keep them flat when rolled. The dampness sets the wrinkles and makes scores of new ones, thus greatly increasing the work of ironing.

* * * * * * *

It requires a little longer to keep the clothes smooth, than to toss them about and roll them up in any fashion, but the task of ironing is increased in much greater proportion.

* * * * * *

The work of preserving the clothes from wrinkles is a labor-saving and time-saving method.

* * * * * * *

Dishes can be dried much faster with a fresh towel, than with one previously used. So it is labor-saving to rinse dish towels after meals. This takes but a moment and in the end saves time.

* * * * * * *

Putting things away in their proper places after using them is work which pays a good premium. Everyone knows the time lost in hunting for mislaid articles is out of all proportion to the little time it takes to put them in the proper places at first—and good tempers are sorely taxed, if not lost entirely while doing the hunting.

* * * * * * *

A little preventive work proves labor saving!

TOWEL ECONOMY

NEW YORK.—A wave of economy has hit municipal court and it looks as though the justices will have dirty hands. The Budget Director has ruled that they can have only one clean towel every two weeks, instead of one a week.

Your Health

by DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Exercise may prevent a person on a diet from losing weight. And rest in bed may reduce weight faster than exercise.

Few people would agree offhand to such statements.

Dr. Clendening

Exercise has always been considered the sovereign adjuvant of diet in reducing systems. Immediately after an announcement that President Roosevelt had gone on a reducing diet, Heywood Broun announced that he reduced by exercising on his private three-hole golf course. Perhaps he would have been better advised to go to bed.

Paradoxical as these things appear, they are supported by the weightiest scientific evidence. The term "the negative phase of metabolism after exercise," was introduced by Dr. Bernhardt in an article, "Zum Problem der Fettleibigkeit" (ergebn. d. im. Med. u. Kinderh, 1929), and recently repeated by Wilder and associates at the Mayo Clinic.

Overweight people have long maintained that they gain weight on less food and more exercise than others. This has been vigorously denied. It is proved experimentally that no matter what a person's weight, loss will occur with less food. But there are some tricks in it and Dr. Bernhardt comes to the rescue of the veracity of the overweight's complaints.

With many obese people, after exercise the metabolism goes into a negative phase, when for several hours they may use up less energy than if they had sat still. The weigh loss induced by the exercise seems to throw them into this state, the result of which is that the loss is promptly regained. This is called the "negative phase of metabolism."

Wilder's experiments do not confirm this, but he did find that patients on a diet confined to bed lost from three to eight times as much as when up and about. He attributes this to the greater water loss in bed.

This water retention is a very important thing for any candidate for reduction to understand. Everyone has had the experience that on a diet the weight may go down for a few days and then stick stubbornly at a certain figure. It is discouraging, but if the diet is kept up the weight again suddenly drops off several pounds. The phenomenon is ascribed to water retention.

Everyone has also observed that weight reduction does not proceed smoothly, but is likely to go in spurts. One report shows a period of 28 days when no loss whatever was noticed.

The thing is full of tricks like that for which all reducers must be prepared.

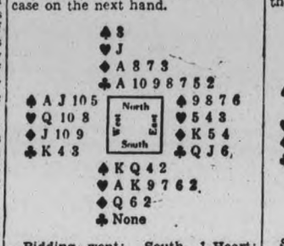
CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

FREE DOUBLES OFTEN PROVE EXPENSIVE

Many players make "free doubles" (doubles of game bids) upon sporting chances to defeat contracts. Sometimes a fulfilled redouble temporarily shows the doubler the folly of his fad, as was the case on the next hand.



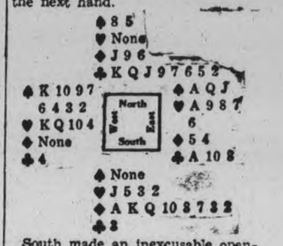
Bidding went: South, 1-Heart; North, 2-Clubs; South, 2-Spades; North, 3-Diamonds; South, 4-Hearts, knowing that the hand would not play well at no trumps, and wanting to make certain that bidding did not cease short of game West doubled, and South ventured a redouble, ending bidding, as opponents had no escape.

The opening lead was the J of diamonds. East's K won the trick, and he led back his fourth best spade. The declarer split his equals by covering with the Q. West won with the Ace. Of course West saw that his Q of trumps would kill the lone J in dummy and later on insure his own 10 winning a trick, so his return lead was the Q of hearts. The declarer's K won the trick; his Ace won the next trump trick, then he led the 9 of hearts, bumping together the two outstanding trumps, giving opponens their third and last trick, although at the moment South could not be sure of fulfilled contract.

West's return lead was the J of spades. Declarer's K won the trick. South led his Q of diamonds. When he led his last diamond and won with dummy's Ace, that suit broke leaving one long diamond in dummy, upon which he discarded one of his losing spades. The other loser went upon dummy's Ace of clubs, insuring fulfillment of the contract.

Another Expensive Double

One of the worst possible doubles is one made instead of first assisting partner when unusual aid is held for his make, as was done on the next hand.



South made an inexcusable opening bid of 5-Diamonds. West could not be blamed for overcalling with 5-Spades. North raised his partner to 6-Diamonds. East should have bid 6-Spades, and his side would have made a grand slam. Instead of doing this, East double opponents, and they fulfilled their contract.

"Three washes a week . . yet their clothes stay bright" mother of three babies says

"I began using Chipso several years ago because a neighbor said it made the best suds," Mrs. Harvey Fell told us. "When I tried it I thought so, too. But I found out something even more important—Chipso doesn't fade colored clothes, or hurt my hands, or harm even silks and woolens!

"The children get so many clothes dirty that we wash two and three times a week. It wouldn't take long for the clothes to wear out if we put them into harsh soap as often as that! But with Chipso the colors hold up and the materials don't get thin and sleazy.

"Besides, with Chipso, you don't have to break your back scrubbing. Dirt soaks right out in those good suds! One washday's hard rubbing is equal to months of actual wear on clothes, so I think they are bound to wear longer if you wash them this softer Chipso way.

"I certainly do like Chipso suds. They don't break down no matter how much dirty work you call on them to do in the wash tub, or in the dish pan and scrubbing pail. Yet they are just as easy as a good toilet soap on my hands. I find it a real economy to use Chipso because I never have to worry about its being too strong or harsh for anything I want to put in the wash."

Chipso is a real economy! It is not adulterated with harsh, "dirt-cutting" ingredients. It is SOAPIER. That is why it makes more concentrated suds that do more work to the tubful and are SAFE even for silk stockings and delicate woolens. Why don't you try it? Get your inexpensive big box of Chipso from your grocer and have it ready for your next washday.

Pirates Forced To Do Smart Comeback In First Game To Gain Victory.

CUBS MOVE UP.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, A.P. Sports Writer.)

There still was plenty of trouble in sight for New York Giants today, but behind them was convincing proof that they have the ability to come back when they have to.

The Giants' lead, which dwindled at an alarming rate in the first two games of their important series at Pittsburgh, remained at 6½ games as they rallied brilliantly ot win the second game of yesterday's double-header and the third of the series, 9-1, after the embattled Buccaneers had pulled out a 6-5 10-inning decision in the opener.

The Pirates did some comeback work of their own in the first clash, rallying to drive Freddy Fitzsimmons to cover in the late innings after an exciting four-run rally in the sixth had given New York the lead. The Pirates knotted the count in the eighth when Pie Traynor and Arky Vaughan rapped Fitzsimmons for triples and Tommy Thevenow singled off Hy Bell's delivery. The winning run came in the tenth when Bill Swift, third Pirate pitcher, singled with two on base.

Ralph Birkofer, young southpaw who trimmed the Giants in New York recently, failed to get through an inning of the second game, and Chagnon was not much more effective.

Defeat Braves.

Meanwhile, the third place Chicago Cubs crept a half-game closer to the leaders by knocking off Boston Braves by 4-3 behind young Bud Tinning, who pitched a three-hit shutout up to the final inning. St. Louis Cardinals did even better, beating the Phillies twice, 3-1 and 8-7.

After taking the opener on Bill Hallahan's three-hit flinging, the Cards had to stage a seven-run spurt in the last two innings of the nightcap, getting the last four off Phil Collins and Roy Hansen in the ninth.

Brooklyn and Cincinnati divided a meaningless double-header, the Dodgers taking the first 7-3 with the aid of four unearned runs and the Reds pounding out 21 hits to reach their high scoring mark of the season with an 18-8 victory in the second.

Senators Unchanged.

The American League situation remained unchanged with Washington 9½ games ahead of New York Yankees largely because of the efforts of Alec McColl and Lou Gehrig. McColl, the 37-year-old Senator rookie, pitched four-hit ball in his first major league start and batted in two runs in a 3-1 victory over Chicago White Sox. Gehrig did all the Yankee scoring in the Yanks' 3-2 triumph over St. Louis Browns. Hitting his 24th homer among other bicws.

Jimmie Foxx came through with 41st boundary belt and Lefty Grove hurled effectively in the pinches for his 20th victory of the season as Philadelphia Athletics downed Cleveland 5-4. Detroit Tigers combined 14 hits with a flock of walks off Boston pitchers, and beat the Red Sox 11-5.

Only Record Hurt In Boxing Battle

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 7 (C.P.).—Biffo and Socko put up a brisk battle in the comedy bout of the benefit amateur boxing show—but the only one injured was Joe Fischman, second.

Between rounds, Joe ventured to prove that the hand is quicker than the eye by removing a piece of iron from one of the boxer's gloves without being seen.

The theory worked. So quickly did the hand—and the iron—move that the iron struck Joe in the eye.

Newark Continues Session With Skeeters By Winning Twice.

(By Orlo Robertson)

The battle lines centreing around the second place playoff berth in the Northern Division of the International League were drawn a little closer today as the teams entered the final four days of the regular season.

Toronto Maple Leafs still clung to the position but only by the slim margin of one game over the fast travelling Montreal Royals and the equally high-stepping Buffalo Bisons.

Here is how the three rivals compared in the standings today:

	Won	Lost
Toronto	80	82
Montreal	78	82
Buffalo	80	84

The Bisons did much to bring the three teams closer together yesterday by taking their fourth straight game from the Leafs, 3-2, while the Royals were splitting a doubleheader with Rochester Red Wings, already "in" as holders of the first place playoff berth in the Northern Section.

Bill Gould gave the Leafs eight hits but he was effective in the pinches, leaving eight Toronto players stranded on the bases. He was aided also by fine defensive work, four double plays cutting short as many threatening Toronto rallies.

In the Rochester-Montreal twin bill, the Red Wings came from behind to win the first game 7-6 with a three-run uprising in the ninth, but in the nightcap the Royals bunched their 11 blows to take an 8-7 decision.

Newark Bears continued to make merry at the expense of Jersey City Skeeters, winning a doubleheader 2-1 and 5-3. Don Brennan bested young Roger Hanlon in the opening contest while Jim Weaver had easy sailing in taking his 25th victory of the season in the seven-inning nightcap.

Baltimore's doubleheader at Albany was rained out.

Khorasan May Be At Thorncliffe

TORONTO, Sept. 7. — It is likely that when the nominations close today for the Francis Nelson Memorial Handicap the feature event of the opening card at Thorncliffe on Saturday that Khorasan will be among the entries. Word was received yesterday that Jimmy Badame is shipping back his string from Detroit and as Khorasan is a member it is reasonable to suppose that he will be among those coming.

There were quite a number of arrivals yesterday at the popular Leaside course. A. Hullcoat got in with 12, the Hastings and Wright Stable with 14, E. Gleason, J. Burns, S. Crawford and W. F. Morrissey with three each and F. Parrott and Wiry Hage with two apiece.

Hank Greenberg, Tigers—Batted in four runs against Red Sox with three singles.

Chick Hafey, Reds—Hammered Brooklyn pitching for five hits.

MOUNTAIN GIANT BEGINS TO TRAIN

Starts Upon Heavyweight Boxing Career By Loading Trucks.

BIGGER THAN CARNERA.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 7. — (CP) — Jim Scott, the mountain giant the Citizens Conservation Corps discovered, had started his seven feet, 2¾ inches and 282 pounds out on a heavyweight career today—by loading trucks.

Howard Garland of Charlotte, boxing stable manager who heard about Scott when the Conservation Corps announced he was the biggest man enlisted by the United States government brought the big boy here and launched out on a five-year plan to put him on the heavyweight throne.

While Scott, who is only 20 and still growing, is learning something about the ring game, Garland expects to get a lot of help from him in his trucking business, and that's where he was today.

Firpo Hipps, middleweight in Garland's stable will get the job of turning Scott into a fighter. He plans to star him out with gymnasium work, gradually going into the fundamentals of boxing as Scott's muscles loosen up.

If Scott ever gets into a ring with Primo Carnera, the physical advantages will be his. He outweighs the Italian by 17 pounds, is 8¼ inches taller and with arms 90 inches long has 10 inches more reach.

300 Lawn Bowlers In Globe Doubles

TORONTO, Sept. 7 (C.P.).—Although heavy greens prevailed today, following last night's heavy downpour, officials were optimistic they would dry out sufficiently to enable play to get under way in the 28th annual tournament of the Globe Scotch doubles.

More than 300 lawn bowlers from all over Ontario have entered, while both Montreal and St. Petersburg, Florida, will be represented by a pair.

Teams from Woodstock, Waterloo, Tillsonburg, St. Catharines, Peterborough, Niagara Falls, Kitchener, Hamilton, Kingston, Guelph, Galt, Belleville, Brantford and Dunnville are included among the 86 pairs entered from outside of Toronto.

Last summer as a representative of the Ontario Athletic Commission Walter Knox travelled through Ontario schools and Collegiates giving a series of lectures on sport, illustrated with moving pictures.

CANADIAN ATHLETES REQUIRE ONLY COACHES SAYS KNOX

WALTER KNOX
Great Athlete, Greater Coach.

Walter Knox Has Devoted Years To Teaching Youngsters In Athletics.

ONCE GREAT ATHLETE.

(By Ben Goldberg, Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, September 7. — Canadian sport needs competent coaches and needs them badly, in the opinion of Walter Knox, formerly one of the world's greatest all-round athletes, a pioneer in the mass instruction of youthful Canadian athletes.

"Particularly are field athletes suffering due to lack of coaching," he said. "In addition to that the modern athlete doesn't show as much interest and enthusiasm as those of yesterday. The difference in conditions have brought about that change. Fellows and girls have twenty places to go, whereas years ago they only had a few.

"It is doubtful whether a group of modern athletes pitted against a group of old-timers could defeat them in a variety of different events.

"The trouble with the present-day athletes," he went on, "is that 90 per cent. of them are racing to train instead of training to race. That's the whole thing in a nutshell."

An athlete of remarkable versatility, Walter Knox has probably broken and held more world records than any other man in the world. His colorful career, which has been filled with endless achievements, have given him a well-earned place in sportdom's hall of fame.

Though a native of Listowel, Ontario Knox spent most of his life in Orillia. At the early age of nine, Walter began to show an athletic ability that was one day to make him Canada's greatest versatile athlete.

Knox's achievements are so numerous and amazing that one could touch only on his more remarkable performances. He retired after having carried away 411 firsts, 126 seconds, and 91 thirds.

In San Francisco during 1908, Knox broke a world' record running 75 yards in 7¼ seconds. The next year he equalled a world's record at Golden Gate Park Stadium in San Francisco doing 100 yards in 9 3-5 seconds. In 1913 at Harlan's Point he won seven out of ten events to win the all-round professional championship of Canada. The next year saw him take the all-round professional championship of the world at Manchester, England. He was 37 years old at the time.

Not only was Knox an outstanding athlete, but also a reputable coach. It was not unusual for him to take an average athlete, correct his ways, ad within a few days have that same person winning titles.

Knox's first job as coach was with the Bozeman Agricultural College at Montana. Next he coached a high school in San Francisco. In 1902 he went to Stockholm, Sweden, as coach to the Canadian Olympic team. Two years later he was appointed chief coach for England, Ireland, and Scotland by the British Olympic Committee fro three years to coach athletes in the British Isles in preparation for the 1916 Olympic Games, which were to have been held at Berlin, Germany. It was postponed, however, on account of the war.

Following the war, in 1920 he was again appointed Olympic coach for the Canadian team for the Olympiad at Antwerp, Belgium. The next year in Toronto, he was made chief coach of the Ontario Athletic Commission, and has been coaching for them ever since. Three years ago he was coach at Queen's University.

FISTIC TITLISTS IN GREAT FORM

Barney Ross And Canzoneri Ready For Big Bout.

EXPERTS WATCH BOTH.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(CP)— In two widely separated lake-side camps in New Jersey, Barney Ross, new lightweight champion, and Tony Canzoneri, former titleholder who becomes a challenger again in the Polo Grounds in New York next Tuesday night, settled down today to the final drive through their training schedule.

Essaying an ambitious experiment in trans-Jersey cross country travel, experts yesterday watched the 22-year-old youngster who beat Canzoneri for the title in Chicago, box four rounds at Lake Swannanoa, then took hastly flight 20 miles through the hot countryside in time to see Tony box six rounds at Pompton Lakes.

Both warriors appeared to be in splendid condition and both worked expertly. Each scored one knockdown during the afternoon with exactly the same type of punch. Ross floored Patsy Pasculli in the first round of his workout and Canzoneri did the same with Lou Lombardi.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Central Press Association

Number 89

ALEX MORRISON says:

A brief waggling of the club back and forth before starting your swing should help you to get away smoothly and easily, but there are ways of waggling the club.

The motion should be made with very little arm and body action; most of the movement being covered by an action of the wrists. Then you can be sure to benefit by the action.

If you find your elbows bending instead of your wrists, as is the case with a great many players, you have failed to loosen up your shoulders or body generally.

Start over again and move the club back and forth slowly until you can produce most of the action just in your wrists.

Most Important Thing In Tennis In Years Says Old Coach.

OTHERS EXPERIMENT.

Big Four At U.S. Men's Tournament Given Stiff Opposition.

(By GAYLE TALBOT
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 7. Vivian McGrath, the smiling young man from Australia and his double barrelled backhand are playing to standing room in the United States men's tennis championships.

Billed strictly as a novelty the only living player who hits a tennis ball from the port side with both hands grasping the racquet, the lad from 'down under' has proved far more than that. He is an exceptionally fine tennis player, and that two-fisted shot of his now has the experts doing mental and literary cartwheels.

"There's the most important thing tennis has seen in many a day" declared Mercer Beasley, the old tennis maestro, as he hunched over and watched. "The greatest backhand in the world to-day, and the lad has it all to himself."

Beasley and his star pupil, Frankie Parker, who was defeated by Keith Gledhill yesterday, have been experimenting with the stroke and it would not be surprising to see Parker using it next summer.

Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, was scheduled to play the sensational young Australian to-day, and the consensus was curtains for McGrath.

The "big four" of the tournament—Ellsworth Vines, Jr., and Frank Shields of this country, Fred Perry of England and Jack Crawford of Australia—all had come through rather easily up to this point, but each was promised pretty stiff opposition to-day.

Vines, the defending champ, faced Bryan Grant, of Atlanta. Shields met Rosuke Nunoi of Japan, who yesterday upset George Lott, veteran United States Davis Cup star, in a five-set match.

Crawford encountered Sidney Wood, Jr. Perry appeared to have his hands full against Keith Gledhill, former intercollegiate champion, who yesterday took a four-set fall out of Frankie Parker.

Gregory Mangin, national indoor champion, faced Jiro Saoth, of Japan; Wilmer Allison, another of this country's Davis cuppers, opposed Adrian Quist, member of Australia's cup squad, and big Les Stoefen of California squared off with H. G. N. Lee of England in the day's other three matches.

BOWLING NOTES

(By Herb Martin)

The rain yesterday certainly made the bowling green "all wet," but, weather permitting, the same schedule that was planned for Wednesday night will be carried out to-night.

• • •

The Friday night tournaments of this year have been patronized more than any other previous season, and this is partly because of the new scoring system and also of the variation of prizes given out each night. As the season commences to wane it is somewhat difficult to keep up the interest in the club affairs, and just to be different this week-end, books of tickets on the new six-cylinder Plymouth car will be given away as prizes.

• • •

Now, here is the idea:

To every bowler who is lucky enough to be in the charmed circle, will be given ten tickets on the Plymouth coach, or, in other words, you have a good night's sport plus a chance to win a $1,000 car and then, besides, you have a chance to boost your own number of points, so come on out and get into the game and—Be on time.

One-Armed Golfers Meet In Tourney

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Sept. 7 (AP)—Forty-four golfers who had left an arm on one of Britain's far-flung battle fronts came from all parts of the United Kingdom to-day to participate in the first championship for one-armed golfers.

N. R. Thomson, of Glasgow, led the field at the half-way mark with an 82, a score beyond the normal achievement of many a player with two arms, while close behind in second place with an 85 was J. P. A. Renwick, of Hawick, who left his right arm on Menin Road before Ypres in 1918.

Undaunted by their injuries the battle-scarred veterans whacked away industriously at the difficult Barnton course, and there were several scores under 90.

Thomson played beautiful golf in getting his 82, carrying the ball 262 yards from the tee, on the 18th hole, while A. L. Goundrill, of London, scored a birdie two on the 140-yard eight, his drive landing eight feet from the cup.

Forty of the players lost their arms in the war, the other four in engagements before 1914.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball—Softball—Lacrosse
Soccer—Wrestling, and Others

(By C. J. P.)

No games last e'en—all was quite along Sports Rialto. Too much rain. Sugar Bowl went through their entire double-schedule this year without having a game postponed on account of rain. Then in the last few weeks, they ran smack into a deluge in three play-off games to be washed out. Still, that's to be expected in September—lots of rain as well as plenty of chilly nights that interfere with ball games. However, just a few remain and the rugbyists glory in adverse weather conditions.

• • • • • •

Guess we wont have any Autumn Softball League this year. No place to play. The Brock has a dance floor down, and it's unlikely the Armouries will be available. Had a pretty fair loop of gals' and guys' teams in there last Fall, Westclox lasses copping the duke in the former and Sugar Bowl squelching Harrison's in a sizzling series between the men's teams. Some good old fist fights, too. But that seems to be all over, and any city teams wanting to continue playing had better find out if and when the Lakefield loop gets under way.

• • • • • •

We always did have a weakness for fighting ball players of the Ty Cobb type, or Hornsby—though we only know of him by hearsay. Even though we expressed indignation a short time back at the rough stuff pulled by some of the Kingston players, we couldn't help thinking that there have been several local players in the past ten years—some of them mighty popular, too—who used to carry a chip on their shoulders and their spikes high going into bases. Not that we advocate rowdiness in the diamond sport, but after all baseball is no cream-puff game, either. The more fight that's put into a contest, the better the players themselves enjoy it and the bigger crowds of fans they draw.

• • • • • •

Another thing, if you get known to opposing players as a soft mark or "gentlemanly player," it's just too bad. In a close play you'll get bumped every time, and even the umps will call a close one against you. Jawn McGraw in his prime couldn't look at an umpire without seeing red, and Cobb used to blister their ears with scathing remarks for all the world to hear. Consequently, the best umpires in the game used discretion when calling a close one in which either of those fire-eaters were interested.

• • • • • •

Coming closer to home, remember Jake Solomon? He knew his rules thoroughly he was a battler on the ball field and he was no slouch either at the ingenuous art of bluffing. If things were going too smoothly for Jake, and he couldn't' think up any new excuse to ride the arbiters, Jake would make some disparaging crack to an opposing player—and before many innings had passed Jake or his players would be in a battle with the opposition. Did the crowd love it? Well, they used to jam the park at four bits a head every home game! Yeah, we'll always regard baseball as a fighters' sport, and any fighting club can be readily recognized by the gates it draws.

• • • • • •

Perhaps there is no point in chattering along this line at this time of year. Just call it reminiscing and let it go at that. In case we're criticized for giving kids the idea that the spalding sport is one for roughnecks, we must point out that we have never advised players to try any dirty tactics or unfair tricks. Just play the game for all its worth and don't back down from anyone. Knotty Lee told us not long ago: "Give me a fighter, no matter how green, and I'll make a ball player out of him!"

Cogs go to Picton Saturday for the first O.B.A.A. game of the intermediate second round, the tilt starting at 3.15, standard time. Return contest will be staged here at Stevenson Park at 3.15 Monday afternoon. It's not so good a time to draw a real crowd but we imagine quite a gang will take it in at that, as the intermediates are the highest team we have left in the running now. Herb Ralph's juvenile Terriers play their deciding game with Toronto Lansdownes in Bowmanville Saturday at three, daylight saving time, both teams having won a game of the O.B.A.A. semi-finals so far on their own grounds.

• • • • • •

The Exhibition Board has jumped the horse racing purses to five hundred bucks for the three days of the turf sport at the Ex. this Sept. 14, 15 and 16th. They've got a large entry list to date and the three stake races will doubtless see plenty of hot finishes by the harness hoss rivals around the circuit. They'll run in the 2.17, 2.22 and 3-year-olds paces. These will be the only races here this year and should prove quite attractive to lovers of the pacers. And five C's will buy a lot of hay in these times.

SANDY WARMS UP FOR DEFENCE OF GOLF CROWN

Wants To Have Practice Round Daily Until Tourney Opens.

DIFFICULT COURSE.

Many Outstanding Amateurs Already On The Scene.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 7 (CP)—C. R. (Sandy) Somerville, London, Ont., went out to the Kenwood Country Club golf course to-day to get acquainted with the layout before starting defence of his United States amateur championship.

Sandy, who arrived from his London home last night, expects to enjoy a practice round daily until the tournament gets underway on Monday.

The course has so far withstood the first warming-up trials of some of the competitors.

Lawson Little of San Francisco made the nearest approach to par with a 72 in a practice round yesterday.

The next best scores were 74's, turned in by Albert Campbell of Tacoma, Wash., Canadian amateur champion; Frank Dolp of Portland, Ore.; George Dunlap, member of the 1932 American Walker Cup team; Nels Ruddy of Cincinnati, and Bobby Servis, 18-year-old sensation of Dayton, O.

"Gossip and Such"

IT'S A PICTURE that probably has been seen by more people than any other. It is no dead thing built of canvas and oil and one man's imagination, this picture of which we speak—this picture which soon none shall ever see again.

The scene is a ball park with sloping rings of human beings girdling a sun-drenched green field. Dotting the field are small patches of white and gray and blue—the team in the field, the base runners and the umpires.

A hundred thousand eyes are held by one of those patches of color, a tiny figure viewed from the immensity of the stands, a tiny figure waving a yellow wooden needle.

The figure spins, there is a faint hollow click and a speck of white rises against the bleachers, becomes a black dot against the glaring blue sky and vanishes.

A roar engulfs the world, a chaos of sound shakes the air as the massed thousands pay tribute to the King—for Babe Ruth has hit another home run.

• • •

HOWEVER, soon Ruth won't hit any more home runs. Soon this thrilling picture, baseball's greatest drama, will be but a memory, living only in the recollection of aging men and women who saw it.

Everyone has known from the beginning that this moment must some time come. But, nevertheless, now that it is here, now that from Babe Ruth's own lips has come the word that he is through—it is a shock.

From now on each Ruthian homer will be a tragic and not a thrilling thing. For in the mind of every spectator and in the heart of Ruth, himself, will be the question: Is this the last one? Is this the final, mighty clout in the long dynasty of magnificent home runs which number nearly 700, the first of which dates back to nearly 20 years ago?

• • •

AS THE BASEBALL story of Babe Ruth approaches the last page the sport world regards the passing of the Bambino with mixed feelings.

No one can honestly feel sorry for Babe as a man. By current standards he is a wealthy man, comparatively young. He is in excellent health and need not, unless he so desires, give up baseball. Opportunities to remain connected with the only game he knows are many.

It is the passing into a legend of a human symbol of heroic effort, the Sultan of Swat—not Mr. George Herman Ruth—that brings whatever sorrow we may have in the news that the Babe is through.

That is—we are really being sorry for ourselves, for in the passing of Ruth we lose a thrill that just, somehow, cannot be replaced.

The Japanese are known as Nipponese because "Nippon" is the name by which Japan is known to its inhabitants.

BOWL—OSHAWA GAME TO-DAY

Clash At Riverside Park At 5.15 This Evening In Softball.

IMPORTANT FIXTURE.

Sugar Bowl and Oshawa Tuxis clash at 5-15 this evening in Stevenson Park, it being the first game of their second O.A.S.A. round playdowns. The return fixture will be in Oshawa Saturday afternoon. The contest here was scheduled for yesterday, but rain forced it to be postponed till this evening. It is bound to be a grand battle, and as it may be the last men's softball playofff seen here this season, a huge crowd is expected.

Either Ross Curry or Lefty Sturgeon will do the pitching for the Bowlmen, who won the city title again in Peterborough this year and then went on to eliminate Lindsay in Ontario competition without a loss. In the Oshawa Tuxis, George Dormer's crew will meet as tough opposition as can be found in Intermediate ranks. The Motor City squad has played a large number of games this season, many against crack teams, but never dropped a decision. To-day's game here should see both snappy fielding teams at their best, with excellent twirling and some good hitting likely, also.

PRACTICE IN BOWMANVILLE

Terriers, Manager Herb Ralph's local Juveniles, Ontario semi-finalists, now on even terms with Toronto Lansdownes, will leave at five o'clock this evening from LeBarr's in donated cars to hold a baseball practise in Bowmanville, where they are to play the deciding game against the Toronto team Saturday afternoon at three o'clock, daylight saving time.

RELIEF PROGRAM GIVEN APPROVAL

Each Government will Pay One-Third of Wage Outlay.

TORONTO, September 7. — With the Ontario Cabinet giving its approval late yesterday afternoon to the new Dominion-Provincial relief works program, under which each Government undertakes to contribute one-third of the total spent by municipalities in wages on such works, the way is paved for the abandonment—to a degree, at least—of the direct relief system, and the embarkation on Province-wide plans of unemployment relief construction.

Federal Approval.

The scheme has already been approved by the Federal Government, although it has not formally been signed. With the two Governments paying two-thirds of the wage bill, the municipalities must pay the remaining one-third, plus the cost of materials, supplies, etc. On work carried out by the Province, the Dominion is to pay 60 cents per day to each laborer in the case of the trans-Canada Highway, and 50 cents a day to those employed on other Provincial roads.

Premier Henry stated that the plan had really been approved by the Ontario Government earlier, but final adoption was left over until word had been received from Ottawa that the way was clear for its adoption. This information was received from Ottawa yesterday prior to the Cabinet meeting to endorse the plan. Many municipalities had informed the Government at Queen's Park that they were prepared to proceed with relief works, but they had been told to wait until the matter had been finally settled, Mr. Henry stated.

HASTINGS NOW PLAYGROUND

Summer Colony Founded in 1930 is Beautifully Situated.

INCREASING FAST

HASTINGS, September 6 (Examiner Correspondence). — With the tourist season almost at a close, Hastings can boast of the fastest growing summer colony in Ontario. This colony, which was only started in July of 1930, is situated on what as known as McCarthy's Point, one mile west of Hastings on the north side of the beautiful Trent River, in a small bay west of the railroad bridge.

Mr. Hugh McCarthy, who was the owner of the Point, disposed of the first lot to Mr. H. Blumson of Toronto in July, 1930, who completed his cottage in August of the same year. Mr. Nelson Hofsteter, of Canal Fulton, Ohio, also built the same year. Since then fourteen more cottages have been built by the following: Messrs. A. L. Hill, A. V. German, of Hastings, R. Connors of Campbellford, Mr. Gunn, McClure, J. Warrington, and Webster, of Toronto. Mr. J. P. McGuire of Toronto, who has a beautiful summer home on the island, has already built six cottages on the Point. The quick growth of the Point is very remarkable considering the times to have sixteen cottages built in the past three years, and plans are already complete for three more next season.

Pictures of this beauty spot with its tall oak shade trees have appeared in many American journals with other beauty spots of the Trent River.

PICNIC IS ENJOYED BY YOUNG PEOPLE

Warsaw W.M.S. Plans Extensive Fall Activities.

WARSAW, Sept. 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—The members of the United Star organized class with teachers, Mrs. G. C. Taylor for girls, and Mr. E. Sloan for the boys, held their annual picnic at Birdsall on Friday, with an attendance of more than fifty, including guests, among whom were Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson and children, also Mrs. G. G. Taylor and Mr. J. A. Crowe.

Bathing, pitching horseshoes and softball were the principal amusements.

Societies Meet

The members of the W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid of Warsaw Presbyterian Church met at the cottage of Mrs. William Dunford, on Quarry Lake, on Thursday afternoon. The Ladies' Aid, of which Mrs. Thomas Crowe is president, held its meeting first. Quilt blocks were handed in and a quilting is planned for the near future. It was also decided to purchase yarn for knitting.

At the W.M.S. meeting, Mrs. Richard Tedford, president, presided. The circle of prayer was Mrs. R. W. Payne, Mrs. T. Borland and Mrs. Charles Tighe. Mrs. W. H. Clements read from Glad Tidings, "A day in the most southern station in our Formosa field," also "A Call from Manchuria."

A paper on the Study Book lesson, "Our Indian Work and Presbyterian Residences" was prepared by Mrs. John Clifford, who was unable through illness to attend. The paper was read by Mrs. T. H. Crowe.

During the business period, all articles donated for the bale which is to be sent soon were on display. It was left for the executive to arrange the time and place for the social evening.

Refreshments were served and a delightful social half hour was spent. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Dunford for their kindness in opening their summer home for the meeting.

District Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Allan U. Payne motored to Toronto for a few days recently.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mervin, of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Panter and little daughter, of Toronto, called on friends near Warsaw on Sunday.

Miss Isabella Coleman spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. David Miller.

For Friday, September 8

A particularly lively and interesting state of affairs is presaged by the lunar and mutual planetary configurations. There is quite likely to be active and strategic contact with rings, mergers, close corporations or secret societies. All pertaining to literary work, publishing, etc., should thrive, but real possessions, lands or property may encounter setbacks or postponements.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a very lively and eventful year, with encouraging contacts with corporations, rings, combines or secret bodies. All pertaining to writings and publishings should thrive. Private affairs may unfold some intriguing or singular phases. Rash and impulsive moves or quarrels would menace best interests. In all calmness and self-control are enjoined.

A child born on this day should be versatile, clever, lively, but may be disposed to be impetuous, wayward and quarrelsome, needing firm early discipline.

Miss CAN'T GET ALONG

This young lady is a wall-flower at most parties, and never gets a promotion at the office. She's always saying the wrong thing, making costly errors. She thinks it's all luck, but the cause is really physical.

Miss Can't-Get-Along suffers from unsuspected constipation—indigestion—headaches—listlessness—spotty complexion. Poisonous waste in her intestines is undermining her health, befogging her brain, making her miserable. Eno's "Fruit Salt" will help her—quickly!

Miss CAN GET ALONG

This girl always seems to get "the breaks." She is popular wherever she goes, good-looking, bright-eyed, competent. Of course she can get along! She knows the value of good health and how to get it.

A dash of Eno's "Fruit Salt" in a glass of water every morning keeps her inner system as clean as her face and hands. Her digestion never bothers her, and she doesn't know what a headache is. For 60 years Eno has helped millions to health. It is gentle, sure, safe! Forms no habit!

Eno has been imitated but never equalled. Resolutely refuse substitutes.

Eno is always prominently displayed and recommended in the better stores. Sold in two sizes: Household (large) 8 oz. and Handy (medium) 4 oz.

Sales Representatives for North America: Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., 10-18 McCaul St. Toronto CA-23-33

DON'T FAIL TO HEAR THE SCOTS GUARDS BAND AT THE PETERBOROUGH EXHIBITION, MONDAY AND TUESDAY NEXT—EVENINGS ONLY

FAMOUS BAND TOURS CANADA FOR 3RD TIME

Scots Guards Band Be Heard At Exhibition Monday And Tuesday.

EVENING PERFORMANCES.

Regiment Was Raised In Scotland By Famous Marquis Of Argyle.

When the Scots Guards Band paraded at Orleans at a recent annual celebration in memory of St. Joan of Arc, they were saluted by the French nation as "Wonderful band." They were the musical feature of the celebration and to them fell the honor of intoning the "Marseillaise" at the foot of St. Joan's statue.

The spectacle was a particularly impressive one. When the Scots Guards arrived at Orleans they were met by the Mayor and the members of the municipal council of the famous French city. Proceeding through the streets to the Place du Martroi, they halted in front of the statue of St. Joan, on one side of which was drawn up the crack band of the 131st French Infantry Regiment.

Immediately upon the arrival of the Guards, the Frenchmen played "God Save the King." The Guards replied with the stirring strains of the "Marseillaise." In a short speech the Mayor of Orleans expressed his gratitude to H.M. the King for permitting the Guards to cross the Channel and referred feelingly to the British regiment's wonderful record during the late war.

The band will be heard at the Peterborough Exhibition next Monday and Tuesday nights.

Although its headquarters are in London and the regiment forms a part of the Brigade of Guards attached to the Household of His Majesty the King, the Scots Guards Regiment still retains its connection with Scotland, the land of its birth. Consequently, the Scots Guards Band maintains a full complement of pipers attached to its woodwind and brass unit.

The Scots Guards Regiment was raised in Scotland by the famous Marquis of Argyle, one of the staunch supporters of Charles I., in the wars of the Cavaliers and the Roundheads. The regiment did not actually take up its residence in London until 1688, nearly 50 years after it came into existence.

The Scots Guards Band, which is touring Canada, commencing August 21, has visited the Dominion twice in modern times, once in 1912 and again in 1921. The second battalion of the Regiment was stationed in Canada from 1861 to 1864, under the name of the Scots Fusiliers Guards.

M.O.H. REPORTS NO CASES OF SLEEPING SICKNESS

No suspicion of sleeping sickness in Peterborough has been reported as yet, Dr. T. W. H. Young, city medical officer of health said today.

Commenting on the minor plague which yesterday claimed a London, Ontario, man as its latest victim, he expressed the opinion that there is no particular occasion for alarm here. Recalling two cases of the malady in this city in recent years, he pointed out that both patients recovered.

Beyond an operpowering drowsiness, symptoms of the disease's approach are few, the doctor said. The victim generally feels somewhat "miserable" for a day or more before the long sleep overtakes him.

FRY'S OFFERS $2,500 FOR THE ANSWER

THERE are ten popular opportunities for benefitting from the "extra nourishment" that Fry's Cocoa gives.

The athlete, for example, after a strenuous game, finds Fry's most refreshing—quick to restore energy to tired muscles and "tone" to exhausted nerves. Fry's Cocoa is nearly ALL food of the best kind—which, of course, makes it very economical.

When you come home chilled or tired—from work or play—take a delicious, steaming cup of Fry's Cocoa. How you will enjoy it!

There are many other good times for taking Fry's. What do you think is the order of their popularity?

327B

ENTER THIS FRY'S COCOA CONTEST

Third Prize	$250
Fourth Prize	$150
Fifth Prize	$100

Disregarding the above order entirely write down these Ten Uses in what you think is the order of their popularity in the average home.

A Total of 294 Prizes—Aggregating $2,500.00

The First Prize will go to the person whose arrangement of these Ten Uses comes closest to what is found by popular vote to be the correct arrangement. The Second Prize will go to the person whose arrangement comes second closest, and so on down the list. In the case of ties the Company will pool the necessary amount of money from the prizes and distribute it evenly.

How to Enter the Contest

Your entry must be made on the back of a label taken from a tin of Fry's Breakfast Cocoa. Simply write down the Ten Uses, one below the other, in what you judge to be the order of popularity. Then print your name and address plainly at the foot and mail it to the address below. Make as many entries as you wish on the following basis:

1-lb. tin label good for two entries

CONSTABLE IS BADLY WOUNDED MAKING ARREST

C.P.R. Constable Is In Serious Condition In Montreal Hospital.

FIVE BULLETS IN BODY.

Pair Of Thugs Were Trying To Break Into Freight Car.

LANORAIE, Que., Sept. 8.—(CP)—While arresting two men in the act of breaking into a freight car in the railway yards here early today, Constable James Mackie, 43, of the Canadian Pacific Railway Police, Montreal, was shot and seriously wounded. Constable Mackie was removed to Joliette and then to a hospital in Montreal where he is in a serious condition with five bullets in his body.

Constable Mackie with Constable G. Miller, also of Montreal, was patrolling the yards when they saw two men attempting to open the door of a freight car loaded with cement. As the constables started to arrest the pair one of the men drew a revolver and fired at Constable Mackie.

Paul Thorin, 28, of Montreal, the man who police allege fired the shots was arrested and shortly afterwards another man whose identity was not disclosed was arrested at St. Thomas, three miles from Joliette.

Little hope is held for Mackie's life at the hospital where he was removed. Two of the bullets are in his chest, two in his left arm and one in his left side, below the heart.

Relatives of Constables Mackie who reside on Bolivar street, sought information of the shooting from The Examiner early this afternoon, but requested that their names be witheld in connection with the story.

THEFT CHARGES FACED BY THREE

Oshawa Fans Have Car Broken Into And Pocket Book Stolen.

CLOVER SEED STOLEN.

Two Oshawa visitors to the softball game at Stevenson Park last evening returned to their car to find a window smashed, and a bill fold containing automobile and operator's licenses; a two dollar bill; and a pair of shoes, stolen. The victims of the theft were Raymond Way and Lorenzo Powell, both from the "Motor City."

The theft was immediately reported to City Police. Shortly afterwards Constable Joe Wheeler apprehended Joseph Collins, 555 Romaine street, and recovered the bill fold and licenses from a hole in the sidewalk outside the Dominion Cafe on George street, where an effort had been made to hide them.

This morning Collins appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., and after electing summary trial and pleading guilty to the charge of theft, was remanded for sentence until Wednesday next, on the application of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

Pleading guilty to a joint charge of breaking, entering and theft of four bags of clover seed, valued at $55, Norman Wood and Clarence Brooks, who were arrested by Provincial police officers in Smith-township, were remanded for sentence until Wednesday next, when they appeared in County Police Court.

Asked if they had anything to say, both men pleaded for a chance to make restitution to Fred Steinkrauss, Smith Township farmer, from whose storehouse the theft

As it is his house only boasts of half a verandah. As he investigated the sounds that had awakened him he found two youths had demolished the west end of the porch. Thieves escaped, motive unknown.

MADMAN RUNS AMOK IN STREET KILLING THREE

Considered Harmlessly Demented, Maniac Suddenly Opens Fire With 2 Shotguns.

TAKES OWN LIFE.

Fourth Victim, Rushed To Hospital, Is Not Expected To Live.

BELFAST, Me., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—A mentally deranged man, who for years had been considered harmless, ran amok in the business section of the city to-day, killed three men and critically wounded another, and then blew off his own head.

The dead are:

Herbert E. Ellis, 65, an insurance man.

W. W. Blaisdell, 75.

Raymond Blaisdell, 40.

R. B. Stanhope, a veterinarian, is in the Waldo General Hospital, and the superintendent said he could not live.

The business section of the city was thrown into an uproar as Adrian Jones, who had been considered harmlessly demented, came down Main Street with a shotgun in each hand.

He first downed Ellis and then turned to the office occupied by the Blaisdell's, who are father and son, and engaged in the trucking business.

After killing the Blaisdells, Jones went into Stanhope's office and shot him.

The killer then ducked into a blacksmith shop on the same street and while officers, hurriedly summoned from the courthouse and other parts of the city, prepared to lay siege to the place a shot was heard and they entered to find him dead.

88 YEARS SINCE PETERBOROUGH HELD ITS FIRST EXHIBITION

Board Loyally Supported By Residents Of City And District.

NOW CLASS 'A' EXHIBITION

In the eighty-eight years since the first Peterborough Agricultural Society was organized in 1845 no other development has been more significant of its progress than the fact that our own Exhibition has been promoted in the official classification by the Dominion Government to Class A.

This is virtually the accomplishment of the directorate which in our own time has conducted the management of Peterborough's Industrial Exhibition more recently under the presidency of Roland Deane. The success of the Board, loyally supported by the people of the city and district has been attained after years of diligent and enterprising endeavor involving the risk of extraordinary expenditure for which the directors made themselves personally liable.

And because of this splendid progress, culminating at a time of financial stringency, the Board appeals more strongly then ever for the continued co-operation of the public in a special effort this year to strengthen the Peterborough Exhibition's status in the Class A group with official recognition of parity with the exhibitions at London and Ottawa.

The essential and paramount fact of this year's Exhibition is that it has literally reached a pinnacle of development that permits of no "let down" or falling off. In this position the Exhibition requires a

UNITED FARMERS FAVOR ABOLITION BANK DIRECTORS

STABILIZE CURRENCY.

Suggest Central Bank Take Over Business Of Dominion, Provincial Gov'ts.

(By Ray Brown, C.P. Staff Writer)

TORONTO, Sept. 8 (C.P.) — Abolition of boards of directors of Canadian banks was urged upon the Royal Commission on Banking today. Their place should be taken by independent officials who would be responsible to the boards of the Central Bank or the National Investment Commission to be created. Existing bank shareholders should be put in the postion of preferred shareholders and not be permitted to exercise any control over banking policy or administration.

These were among the recommendations made to Lord Macmillan and his commission colleagues by the United Farmers of Ontario through R. J. Scott, president, and W. C. Good. Mr. Good read the brief to the commission.

He urged the appointment of a central bank.

Central Bank Functions

It should take over the Dominion note issue. It should gradually take over the greater part of the note issue of the banks. It should assume all the functions now exercised by the Treasury Board of Canada in the matter of advancing Dominion notes under the Finance Act. It should take over the banking business of Dominion and Provincial Governments and act as agents for such governments in all their borrowing operations. It should stabilize Canadian currency. And it should stabilize foreign exchanges.

Generally speaking the Central Bank should "supervise the structure, management and operation of the Canadian banking system so as to bring greater stability to economic development and minister to the welfare of the Canadian people."

"Catastrophic and disastrous price changes" were noted by Mr. Good as one of the main contributing causes of present depressed conditions.

After he had read his brief, Lord Macmillan adjourned the hearing until later in the day. Then Mr. Good will be subjected to some questioning on on the points he has raised.

"If the car is not returned by midnight Thursday I'll send the thief to the penitentiary."

Thursday afternoon he got it back. Police had found it abandoned and undamaged.

Fisherman Landed 2 Bass On One Cast

Who says the fishing is poor in the Kawartha Lakes this year? Finley Meeks of Armour Road reports that he cast a plug into the waters of Pigeon Lake the other day and pulled in two fine bass on the one cast.

Mr. Meeks was casting for lunge off his cottage at the time. By the weight of the tug on the end of his line and the struggle necessary to pull the line in, he knew something unusual had hapened to his plug but he was more than astonished to find a three-pound bass snagged on the first gang of the plug and a second bass only slightly smaller hooked on the rear gang. He got them both safely into his boat.

If you don't believe it, Andy Clegg, John Law, and Robert Crowe all of Peterborough, will vouch for Mr. Meeks' story.

Chabot Announces He Is Through With Hockey And Stick To Business.

SMYTHE SILENT.

TORONTO, Sept. 8 (CP)—Lorne Chabot, Toronto Maple Leaf net minder, who announced to-day he has retired from hockey. A new position with a dairy company demands his presence here all year and he has decided a business career holds more for him than the few years more he might play big league hockey.

Conny Smythe, manager of the Toronto entry in the National Hockey League, stated he had heard nothing of Chabot's decision to quit the game. He refused comment and would not say whether he had plans for filling Chabot's position. Benny Grant of Syracuse, the Leaf farm, may succeed to the job.

Chabot has been on seven playoff teams in his seven seasons in the "big time." In 1928 his goaltending aided New York Rangers to the Stanley Cup, and in 1932 he was with Toronto when they won the world's championship.

Born in Montreal 32 years ago, Chabot went West in his early twenties and played amateur hockey at Brandon and Port Arthur, figuring on two of the Ontario city's Allen Cup championship teams. In 1926 he went to Rangers, and after two seasons was traded, with an unannounced sum of cash, to Toronto for John Ross Roach.

ROBBERY VICTIM BRUTALLY SLAIN

Taken Into Country And Shot Because He Was "In The Way."

1 OF 4 HELD, CONFESSES.

DETROIT, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Four young men, one of whom, police said, declared he opened fire because his victim was "in the way," were held to-day for the kidnapping and brutal slaying last night of Joseph Nesbitt, automobile service company manager, who was found dying in a ditch along the highway in adjoining Macomb County this morning.

The four, who gave their names as Robert Razzo, 23, and Robert Buffa, of Detroit; Douglas Whitsitt of Toronto, Ont., and Charles Davidson, of Port Huron, Mich., said they obtained $87 from their victim, Razzo, police said, admitted the shooting.

Nesbitt died in a Mt. Clemens hospital at 4 a.m.

"I don't know why I shot him," police quoted Razzo as saying. "He was just in the way and I didn't want him around."

Nesbitt was kidnapped at 9 p.m. as he sat in his car in Detroit. Whitsitt told police the four last night decided to "get a car" and selected Nesbitt as the victim.

He said they climbed into Nesbitt's car and drove into Macomb County, where they robbed him, and where Razzo opened fire without warning. Pushing their victim into a ditch, he told police, they sped away in the car.

Detroit policemen arrested the four in Nesbitt's car shortly after 4 a.m. They made no resistance.

RELIEF IN CITY COST $119,563 FOR 8 MONTHS

Applicants For Relief Must Not Own 1933 Car Licenses.

31 NEW APPLICANTS.

Two Unemployed Leaders Have Doctor's Certificates Board Told.

Peterborough relief disbursements for the eights month ending August 31 totaled $119,563.87

Relief Officer A. R. Metheral's financial statement to the Central Relief Board last night presented the following details:

	August	Eight Months
Provisions	$ 8,350.08	$ 73,100.45
Milk	853.45	7,211.70
Fuel	522.85	13,494.20
Rent	2,252.93	19,714.30

Sundries	102.15	1,217.77
	$12,233.17	$119,563.87

Application for relief and possession of an automobile are incompatible circumstances the Board decided as a definite policy for the guidance of Mr. Metheral.

Any person who received relief last year and purchased a 1933 automobile license is hereby debarred from obtaining any further relief this year, according to an amendment by James Runnett, seconded by W. E. Perdue, which was adopted by a majority of the Board.

The motion by Alderman Holland, seconded by Ald. Tuggey, agreed with the principal of the amendment, but suggested that withholding of relief by Mr. Metheral in these cases be left to his discretion, especially if the applicant used his car as a means of earning money.

"I could name five families who took out licenses this year and are now looking for relief after getting it before," Mr. Metheral said. "I know of two families living in one house, each had a car and liquor permit. They couldn't get anything. In another family the father was on relief last winter but had no car. The son gets work at $7.50 a week and buys a car. I cut them off, although the father is still unemployed."

It was stated that the recom-

NEW COAL CODE TO RAISE PRICE

WILL HIT CANADA.

By Sam Robertson

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—The controversy-riddled bituminous coal industry of the United States had been presented today with a code fixing fair-wages and working conditions, providing for price increases.

Canada being a large furnace for United States coal, the price increase embodied in the charter will naturally have its effect on Canadian pocketbooks. A code for the anthracite branch of the industry is just in the offing.

General Hugh Johnson, forceful administrator of the National Recovery Act, handed the code to bituminous operators and union spokesmen unable to agree among themselves, at about the same time dissension was born with a similar code-structure Johnson built for the oil industry.

A Handy Cow

PEMBROKE, Ont., Sept. 8.—(CP)—This cow doesn't depend on anyone for a drink of water. Owned by Milburn McBride, Wesmeath Township, recently it was seen in the barn-yard busy at the well, shoving the pump handle up with its nose and down with its horns, working fast enough to pump a good stream into the trough. When there was enough water, she drank her fill and nonchalantly walked away.

Spotted Crashing In Terrific Storm By Fishing Party

Believed To Have Plunged Into One Of Small Lakes Dotting Countryside—Witnesses Claim Craft Was Very Low And Travelling Slow When Halt Came.

SEARCH SINCE SUNDAY IS UNAVAILING; OTTAWA URGES SHARP WATCH BE KEPT.

SUDBURY, Ont., Sept. 8.—(CP)—A balloon believed to have been one of the two missing in the Gordon Bennett International race from Chicago, pitched to the ground during a terrific storm in the Meteor Lake district last Sunday and has not been found, a party of fishermen said today on arrival here.

Joseph J. Paul of Sudbury, one of the fishermen, said he was fishing at Meteor Lake during the storm when he saw the big bag appear in the murky sky and bravely attempt to make headway in the elements. A bolt of lightning blinded him for a moment, he said, and when he looked up the balloon had disappeared.

Paul said it may have fallen into one of the dozens of small lakes that dot the country. No trace was found of it or its occupants. Edward Close and Joseph Therverge of Mileage 56 were with Paul.

"We had just finished supper about six o'clock," Paul said, "when Therverge noticed the balloon. It was flying low—about 1,000 feet I would judge—and was half-mile away. One of the worst storms I have ever been out in was raging at the time. It was very dark. There was a heavy mist and owing to the darkness and the haze we could not see any markings on the craft.

"Neither could we see whether there was any person in the basket. The basket, however, was plain enough.

Terrific Crash

"All of a sudden there came a terrific bolt of lightning. When we looked around again we could not see any sign of the balloon."

Paul said the bag was in view only about ten minutes, and was heading slowly north in the direction of Timmins.

"Evidently it had been having difficulty before that," Paul said. "I was talking to Jack Young, a trapper at Mileage 45, and he said he saw the same balloon about four o'clock in the afternoon. He was only 11 miles from where we were and apparently it took the craft about two hours to go that distance. The balloon was barely drifting when we saw it."

NAZIS CANCEL SCIENCE TALK

Officials Forbid German Professor To Leave For British Conference.

"BRAINS DYING OUT"

LEICESTER, Eng. Sept. 8.—(C. P. Cable)—The Nazi ban fell on a paper which was to have been given before the British Association for the advancement of science today. Professor D. Katz of Rostoch, Mecklenburg, was to have spoken before the psychology section of the Association but his paper was suddenly cancelled. The Nazis had forbidden Prof. Katz to leave Germany.

Dr. J. J. Hurst, Cambridge, surprised the assembled scientists with the information that brains were dying out. Owing to the rapidly decreasing birth-rate among the more intelligent families, Dr. Hurst asserted, the intelligence index of population was declining so rapidly as to endanger the safety of modern civilization. He suggested a scheme of family allowances for parents of all classes whose intelligence was of the higher grade.

Prediction that in a few years the Eskimo race in Labrador would be extinct was made by Professor V. Suk. He said the main factor was the Europeanization of the people.

Professor F. A. P. Aveling of the University of London gave helpful hints on mental processes. Prof. Aveling who was born in St. Catharines, Ont. and educated at Ridley college, McGill University and Oxford, declared psychology is the science of experience, the most empirical of all sciences in the sense it deals directly with experiences as such, embracing all experiences alike indifferently, and at face value.

IRAQ'S MONARCH TAKEN BY DEATH IN SWITZERLAND

King Feisal Wrested Kingdom From Wreck of Turkish Empire During War.

WITH LAWRENCE'S AID.

Victim of Heart Attack After Long Illness—In His 48th Year.

BERNE, Switzerland, September 8 (C.P.). — King Feisal of Iraq, a scholar and desert warrior who with the aid of the romantic Lawrence of Arabia wrested a kingdom from the wreck of the Turkish Empire during the war, died in a Berne hotel to-day following a sudden heart attack. He was 48.

Death came on the heels of Assyrian troubles in Iraq, the youngest nation in the League of Nations family, which culminated in reports that 600 Assyrian Christians were massacred.

The King, broken in health, was deeply angered by these charges, which undoubtedly contributed to weaken his heart. He was gravely ill when he came here from Bagdad a few days ago, and his physicians, although realizing the treatment in Switzerland was necessary, were apprehensive of his ability to stand the journey.

While it was generally known that he was gravely ill, his passing was a shock even to members of his entourage. His intention was to remain here two weeks and then return to his capital, Bagdad.

He was accompanied here by his brother Ali, who is in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Descendant of Fatimah.

King Feisal was born in 1885 at Taif, the son of Sharif Husain, and a descendant of Fatimah, the only surviving child of the Prophet. He was educated privately in Istanbul.

After the Great War he played an important part with General Allenby and T. E. Lawrence in Arab revolts. In 1921 he was elected to the Iraq throne by a plebiscite.

On his arrival here the monarch in an interview insisted there was

Thirteen Prisoners In County Bastille

With the outgoing of one prisoner at the expiry of his "time" and the incoming of four men who were remanded this morning, the population at the County Gaol to-day was "unlucky" thirteen.

Throughout the present year, according to Colonel T. D. Johnston, the gaol governor, the average number of inmates at the gaol has remained around the dozen mark. It is many a long day since the gaol held its legal capacity of two dozen prisoners.

When Colonel Johnston took over the governorship of the gaol some five years ago, there were six prisoners in residence. Shortly afterwards the population dropped to a minimum of one, so far as the present gaoler's experience is concerned.

Robert Rae, turnkey, and one of the longest serving officials of the county, can recall a time in his own experience when the gaol has been completely empty for a period of some days.

NEW SETTLERS IN NORTH ARE FAVORED CLASS

No Reason They Should Not Make Good If Pioneers Did.

REV. PATERSON SPEAKS.

Agriculture Will Be Key In Development Of North Kiwanis Told.

"The big thing in northern Ontario will not always be the mines" Rev. J. Douglas Patterson told the Kiwanis Club in an address at luncheon to-day. "The mines have served to open up the country, to bring railways, roads and hydro power into the country, but agriculture will be the key to its real development."

Rev. Paterson spoke from the experience of a number of years' residence in northern Ontario and from observations made on a motor trip north this summer from which he has just returned to the city. He entitled his address, "Northern Ontario Tweny Years Ago and To-day."

Three Fertile Belts

"Settlers in the three fertile agricultural belts in the north are making as much money on their farms as farmers in Peterborough County, Mr. Paterson declared. A picture of Northern Ontario as a vast area of rocky land of value only to the extent of the minerals contained in the rock is a gross misconception he said.

Referring to newspaper accounts of difficulties being experienced by the settlers sent into northern belts during the past few years, he declared, "If the settlers who went into the north and set up paying farms under pioneer conditions without assistance from Government twenty years ago have succeeded, there is not a reason in the world why the settler of today cannot make good. The Government is providing roads, farm lands and even houses for new settlers—not to mention subsidies and bonuses with which the pioneers were never favoured." He declared that injustice is being done

ROBBERS LOOT MOVING FREIGHT

Hurl Over 50 Cases Of Liquor From Car To Right Of Way.

FAIL TO GET THEM ALL.

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 8. (CP)—Thieves broke into a sealed carload of liquor on a Canadian National Railway manifest freight early today and threw more than 50 cases from the moving train.

It was believed a gang broke into the car when the freight stopped at Glencoe. Loaded at Windsor, the liquor shipment filled several cars on the manifest freight due in London between three and four a.m. The loss was first noticed when the train stopped in the East London yards. C.N.R. police immediately started an investigation.

All the missing cases were not picked up by the robbers as sectionmen between Hyde Park and Komoka recovered a few on the right of way to-day.

Canada Needs 50% Greater Population Is Claim of Bennett

Premier At Newmarket School Cautions Time For Increase Not Opportune At Present—Sees No Need Of Action To Curtail Wheat Production In West.

WARNS AGAINST PERSONAL ATTACKS LAUNCHED AT RADIO COMMISSIONERS.

NEWMARKET, Ont., Sept. 8.—(CP)—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett left the Liberal-Conservative summer school here today with a statement its members could look forward to enunciation of a new government policy on Canadian conditions within a few weeks, after he had taken time to examine the domestic situation. The Prime Minister gave no hint of what that policy might be.

Mr. Bennett, rushing here yesterday after speaking twice at Toronto, submitted to a flood of questions from young Conservative students and told them, among other things, Canada needed a 50-percent increase in population if it is to take its proper place among nations of the world. He cautioned, however, that the present was no time to discuss means to increase the population when unemployment exists in the land, and revealed two Canadian authorities had been working on the problem with a group of "most powerful interests" in Great Britain.

From the Prime Minister's speech it appeared clear his government considers it unnecessary to take any action in Western Canada to curtail wheat production. He told the school Canada's quota under the recently signed international wheat agreement approximated very closely its 10-year average production of the cereal.

A Warning

Mr. Bennett scored persons directing personal attacks against members of the Canadian Radio Commission and told his audience if the country wanted to part with government-controlled radio it could do so; but, he warned, if the people "ever do it, they will find it very difficult to get it back."

Mr. Bennett repeated his statement made in Montreal the day of his return from the United Kingdom, that Canada could not embark on a program of wage increases and decreases in hours of labor because such a plan would lose export trade which places this country fifth among exporting nations.

In his speech he declared his belief, despite institution of dictatorships in several countries, that no better system of government than democracy, despite its faults, had been evolved.

Democracy, he said, was facing the greatest est since it had become a principle of government. He maintained the only hope of 20th century democracy lay in education.

DAIRY COUNCIL TO INVESTIGATE BUTTER PRICES

Official In Quandry On Method Of Reducing Surplus Stock.

STORMY SESSION.

Admit Farmer Not Getting More Than He Should For Cream.

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—Investigation of the National Dairy Council of the prevailing butter prices, internal and external markets and the stock of butter in storage in Canada will probably result from a meeting of the Ontario branch of the Canadian Creamerymens' Association, held behind closed doors at the Royal York Hotel, yesterday.

Creamerymen and produce dealers from all parts of Ontario were present at the meeting which had as chairman W. H. Forster, Hamilton, president of the National Dairy Council. J. F. Singleton, dairy commissioner for Canada, was also in attendance, yet despite four hours earnest discussion—which, at times, is said to have been quite stormy—those at the helm were unable to agree just exactly how the problem of reducing the surplus stock of butter and increasing the prices for the producing farmer and at the same time making it possible for the creameries to operate so as to break even or at a slight profit could be solved.

Huge Surplus

That there is in Canada at the present time a storage surplus of butter amounting to 10,000,000 pounds—or in transportation figures 400 car loads—was freely admitted. It was also accepted as fact that the farmer was not getting more than he should for the butter-fat cream, and it was claimed that the creameries were at present prices, taking a two-cent loss on every pound of butter produced.

Capturing the British market would be a solution to the local problem members of the Ontario branch felt, but it was pointed out that to do this it would undoubtedly be necessary to reduce the price as the situation was serious. Reduction of price was not, however, unanimously agreeable to many representatives.

The gathering found itself in a quandary, torn between the fact that the farmers are getting a low price for butter fat and that if it continues for months the farm revenues of the Dominion will be greatly reduced and that W. H. Forster, president of the National Dairy Council, was firmly convinced that "butter prices will not hit bottom until we hit the export level"—which means lowering the prices to get rid of the surplus and in this way make a market for the future.

OPEN SEASON ON PARTRIDGE OCTOBER 9-19

Hunters Also Allowed To Shoot Birds For Six Days of Deer Season.

ALL DATES ANNOUNCED.

Daily Bag Allowed Is Five Of Each Variety—15 For Season.

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—Open season for the hunting of partridge in Ontario this autumn is to run from Oct. 9 to Oct. 19, inclusive, Hon. G. H. Challies, Minister of Game and Fisheries, announced yesterday afternoon, an Order-in-Council to this effect having been passed by the Cabinet. But hunters possessing deer or moose hunting licenses may shoot partridge for six days of the deer hunting season, the periods differing in the several hunting districts.

For Residents

The season from Oct. 9 to Oct. 19 is open for all parts of Ontario except Crown game preserves, Provincial parks and any other lands which are legally prohibited. This particular period is open only to residents of the province who have gun licenses. The other periods set aside specifically for those with deer and moose hunting licenses are not restricted to residents, any one possessing the above license being allowed to shoot partridge.

These periods are as follows: In the district north of the main line of the Canadian National Railways—deer and moose: Sept. 15 to Nov. 25; partridge: Oct. 20 to Oct. 25, inclusive.

In the district south of the C.N.R. line and north of the C.P.R. line from North Bay to Heron Bay, and north of the Mattawa River—deer and moose: Oct. 20 to Nov. 25; partridge: Oct. 20 to Oct. 25, inclusive.

In the district south of the C.P.R. line and north of the French River—deer and moose: Nov. 1 to Nov. 25; partridge: Nov. 1 to Nov. 5, inclusive.

In that part of Ontario lying south of the French River—deer and moose: Nov. 5 to Nv. 20; partridge: Nov. 6 to Nov. 10, inclusive. On St. Joseph's Island—deer and moose: Nov. 10 to Nov. 25; partridge: Nov. 10 to Nov. 15, inclusive. It will be noted that, except for the most northerly district, the partridge hunting season is open to the hunters of deer for roughly the first six days of the deer season.

In releasing the above schedule, Mr. Challies explained that by the arrangement, residents of the Province woud have the first opportunity at the partridge; and also in the general period allotted to them they would not be bothered by the high-powered rifes used by the deer hunters. And the other periods for the deer hunters allowed them a time in which to hunt partridge while out after deer or moose.

Bag Allowed

The bag allowed partridge hunters is five of each of the following varieties in one day, or a total of 15 of each kind in the season: ruffled grouse (birch partridge); Canada grouse, (spruce partridge); sharp-tailed grouse (prairie chicken); prairie hen and ptarmigan. The hunter may take his quota of each type, provided he can get them.

According to the Order-in-Council, the birds must be used for food or mounting on or before five days after the end of the partridge season, unless subsequent possession has been approved by special permission.

FASCIST DICTATOR IS AIM OF RISING FRENCH FACTION

Joseph Caillaux, Financier, Mentioned as "Man to Head Party."

SOCIALISTS SPLIT

(By Kathryn Stoffregen, Central Press Canadian Writer)

PARIS, September 8. — The brilliant careers of Hitler and Mussolini are haunting the dreams of a number of French politicians today.

To be the French Hitler, they think, might easily become the destiny of a "strong" man who knows how to capture the imagination of the millions of dissatisfied Frenchmen. Dissatisfied are the middle classes, dissatisfied are the workers and dissatisfied is every French taxpayer, it is freely admitted.

A Gallic Hitler from the Right or a Hitler from the Left? That is the question being asked to-day.

Toward the Right looms the elegant, monocled figure of Joseph Caillaux, aristocratic financier. As earl as 1926 he tried to propose governing France by decrees. Many well-informed Parsilans believe that the crisis in the French budget will give Caillaux a chance to pose as dictator, at least, as far as public finance is concerned.

Split in Socialists.

Close to him are young men of the "radical group" — radical in name only. There are underground reports that those young men will unshed a "neo-radical," i.e., Fascist, party into the world, next October at the radical party congress in Vichy.

Already there is a "natural Socialist" faction in the making.

The spectacular birth of this new offspring of the Socialist Party occurred but a few weeks ago, at a party congress, M. Leon Blum, hitherto undisputed boss of the French Laborites, found himself in a battle with "young" leaders such as M. Marquet, Mayor of Bordeaux of wine fame; Marcel Deat, a clever theoretician, and the parliamentarian Montagnon, who are attempting to wrest leadership from "internationalist" leaders of Labor in France.

"Order, authority, nation and action," is the slogan of the young heretics. "World Socialism," is Blum's slogan. To Blum, and so far the majority of French Laborites, the nation is less important than internationalism.

"Everywhere there is a tendency to act on a national basis," the "Neo-Socialists" (as they are called) retort: "Nations are taking refuge in themselves."

The program of the new group demands reduced hours of labor, a minimum wage, and increased purchasing power.

An ancient Greek name for Ireland was Ierne.

no fanaticism against the Assyrian Christians in Iraq.

"The Iraq Government only did what any civilized, law-abiding government would have done—it stamped out an attempt of a small minority of rebels to overthrow order and authority, he said.

He declared his relations with Great Britain, which early this year gave up its mandate over the young Kingdom, were of the best.

Before retiring last night he complained of feeling tired. He motored to Interlaken, Switzerland, for lunch, and returned about 3 p.m. yesterday, going immediately to his room. He told his aide-de-camp he had a headache and wished to retire early.

Sudden Attack

Professor Charles Kocher, a noted doctor, was called and a nurse also remained in attendance during the night. When an inquiry was made about the monarch's health at 10.30 o'clock, the physician expressed himself as satisfied.

A few minutes before midnight, however, the patient took a turn for the worse, and he died at 12.30 a.m. The body was taken to the Anatomical Institute, a clinic. It will be sent to Iraq possibly to-day or to-morrow.

The brother, former King Hedjaz, who was stopping at a hotel near Berne, was immediately summoned.

MRS. J. MOONEY, 222 East Eighth St., Hamilton, Ont., writes: "Just before my baby was three months old I found I could not satisfactorily nurse her. For almost two months I tried various milks but none agreed with her. I read different times about Eagle Brand, so I decided to use it. A week showed a difference. Barbara became contented, would go to sleep after her feeding without any fuss and no vomiting. Nowat 7 months she is just average weight, bright, active, and so contented, which means so much to a busy mother of four active children."

Ford V-8

THE MODERN CAR

THE FORD V-8 is The Modern Car. Modern in its distinctive lines. Modern in its eight-cylinder design and performance. As Henry Ford himself says—"The V-8 is the coming car for the majority of drivers. It will be only a short time until motor manufacturing practice will follow the trail we have blazed."

That's something to keep in mind when you are deciding on which automobile to buy. You don't want to buy a car today that's going to be old-fashioned and out of date a year from now.

The Ford V-8 is revolutionizing the industry because it is an entirely new kind of eight-cylinder car. No longer need you deny yourself the satisfaction of an eight because of high price. No longer need you worry about cost of operation and up-keep.

The Ford V-8 sells as low or lower than cars with fewer cylinders. And don't let anybody tell you that it isn't as economical to run. Talk to owners of this 1933 V-8 and they will show you exact cost records of 22 to 25 miles per gallon of gasoline. Practically the only car that will beat these figures is the New Ford Four.

In fairness to yourself—for the greatest dollar-for-dollar value—see and ride in the big New Ford V-8. We challenge any low-price or medium-price car to match its quality, performance, and economy.

RELIEF IN CITY COST $119,563 FOR 8 MONTHS

mendation of the special Relief Board was to the effect that car-owning applicants should not be given relief for six months. The Central Board adopted the new policy last night on the Runnett amendment, which Ald. Tuggey remarked, makes no exception for any person who tried to use his automobile in business but still had to apply for relief.

Insurance Proposed

A. B. Cunningham suggested that the Board might consider whether the winter's supply of wood should be insured, but no action was taken.

"We are coming to the season when the fire hazard is much reduced," Mr. Perdue said, and Ald. Tuggeys' comment was that the city had an efficient fire department. If any of the wood piles did catch fire the brigade would be called before any serious damage was done.

Ald. Tuggey asked that his resignation as a member of the wood committee be accepted. His reason for this course was that he had not been consulted by the chairman, Mr. Cunningham in regard to business transacted by the committee.

R. C. Braund, chairman, requested Ald. Tuggey to reconsider his decision, and on Ald. Holland's proposal the resignation of Ald. Tuggey was left in abeyance for a month.

Ask for Re-examination

A remark during subsequent general discussion that some persons were getting relief and doing nothing for it, elicited a statement by Ald. Tuggey that C. W. Holland and William Childs, leaders of the United Workers' Federation were exempted from relief work by certificates of physical inability issued in June by Dr. T. W. H. Young, M.O.H.

"Two notorious men who are going to run the city," was Ald. Tuggey's allusion to Mr. Holland an Mr. Childs. He read Dr. Young's report to the effect that Mr. Childs had been under his care for neuritis and was unable to work; and that Mr. Holland had been examined in June and was found by Dr. Young to be unable to do anything but light work.

"I've heard from several sources that Holland said he would not work" Mr. Runnett stated.

Mr. Braund said that perhaps the two men had improved in health since last June.

On Ald. Tuggey's motion, seconded by Mr. Runnett, it was decided to have the two men re-examined by Dr. Young.

"If his report is the same as the last one," Mr. Runnett suggested, "we ought to have them examined by some other doctor to make sure of their condition."

Ald. Tuggey's motion was adopted.

New Applicants

Mr. Metherall reported thirty-one applicants for relief added to the list during August. Some of them had previously received relief, but had been off the list for some time while they had been temporarily able to support themselves.

On the brighter side of the unemployment picture, Mr. Metherall informed the Board that a family which had recently sought to be deported to the Old Country had recently moved to Toronto where the husband had obtained work which promised to continue for at least a year.

Restriction May Reduce Great Wheat Surplus

Restriction of wheat production by 21 countries as agreed at the London international wheat conference, is expected to bring about the "disappearance" of the great Canadian and American surplus and has been called a real step toward world recovery. Petherick Pioneers Honored By Community In Campbellford Home—Home Destroyed By Fire.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 8 (By Examiner Staff Correspondence)—"When Petrick's Corners Came to Campbellford" could aptly have been the description of a gathering on Wednesday evening, when that community about one hundred strong, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John McKenzie, Wallace street, and showered these venerable old timers and pioneers of the district, giving them many useful gifts to enable them to start housekeeping in their new Campbellford home.

Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie, who are aged 86 and 86 years respectively, have lived all their lives in the Petherick district, but early this summer suffered a severe loss when fire completely destroyed their home and all contents. After this setback, coming late in their lives, they decided to come to Campbellford to live, and the function on Wednesday evening was the community's expression of best wishes to their old friends.

Notable among those present were two sisters and one brother of Mrs. McKenzie, all of whom are past the eighty mark; Mrs. Barron, who will be a close neighbor of her sister; Mrs. Jessie Johns, and Mrs. Dave Brunton.

Those chiefly responsible for the arrangements of the shower were Mrs. Lindsay Anderson and Miss Susie Wright. During the evening the guests were entertained to delightful refreshments.
